HUN OFFENSIVE ROLLS INTO LUXEMBOURG AND BELGIUM AT FOUR DIFFERENT PLACES

Churchill Says 'Big Three' In Entire Agreement on Aims Which Bind Their Alliance

London, Dec. 20 —(CP)— Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that the three great powers were in "entire agreement about the general aims which bind our alliance," but added that "whether there is complete agreement on every aspect of these matters is another question altogether."

Opening a potentially critical debate on British policy in liberated lands, the Prime Minister said:

"We had a certain task thrown upon us and we are discharging it to the best of our ability."

No Doubt of Co-operation.

He asserted that so far as the United States and Russia were concerned, he had "not the slightest doubt that the complete and effective co-operation will go on in all aspects of the war."

Mr. Churchill side-tracked an attempt to draw him into a discussion on the widely reported statement that the great powers already had agreed upon some "spheres of influence."

One member pointedly asked the Prime Minister whether "he did not agree that there is a danger to implementation of proposals of the Dumbarton Oaks conference if certain powers are not brought into co-operation during the war?"

"I think that is a topic that obviously I should not attempt to deal with now," replied Mr. Churchill.

Criticism Adds to Difficulties.

Pressed as to whether there was "no complete co-operation and accord" among Britain, the United States and Russia on British policy in Greece, Mr. Churchill replied:

"The burden of attending to troubles in Greece has fallen upon Great Britain and we have not so far been able to discharge this task without criticism, even here at home, which has added to our difficulties.

"The three great powers are in entire agreement upon the general aims which bind our alliance and we have every need to keep in the closest association in this dangerous and momentous phase of the war."

Eden Reviews Orders For Terms.

Before Mr. Churchill took the floor Foreign Secretary Eden reviewed the requirements Lt.-Gen. R. M. Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece, had laid down to the E.L.A.S. forces to evacuate the province of Attica, to order all members in Athens and Piraeus to cease resistance, and to hand in their arms.

"General Scobie made it clear," said the Foreign Secretary, "that as soon as these requirements were fulfilled he would inform Field Marshal Alexander (Allied Mediterranean Commander) who would concert the necessary steps to put an end to the present turmoil in Greece and to restore to all Greeks, whatever their opinions, the peaceful enjoyment of their democratic principles."

Mr. Eden said a committee of the E.A.M. (National Liberation Front Party) agreed Dec. 16 to withdraw the E.L.A.S. forces from Ottica, but had not replied to the other conditions for an end of resistance and surrender of arms.

Will be Free to Chose.

If the E.A.M. accepts the terms of the armistice, Mr. Eden said, "then we shall do our best to ensure to the Greek people the government of their choice and free elections as early as possible."

Giving assurances that "it is not our desire that as a result of this busine there hould be victimization, either on one side or the other," the Foreign Secretary said: "Our desire is that there should be an amnesty and that Greeks should have opportunity to live in peace and harmony."

Discussion of foreign policy was suspended while Mr. Churchill delivered a lengthy report of the welfare of British troops in India and Burma.

The main foreign policy debate was expected later today on motion for adjournment.

Eden Sends Pat On Britain's Armed Action in Greece

London, Dec. 20 (CP)—Standing pat on Britain's armed intervention in Greece, Foreign Secretary Eden today urged quick re-establishment of face-to-face contact between the foreign ministers of the three great powers and urged that the only way Britain may have erred in Greece was in failing to take troops of the Allies into Greece along with her Tommies.

Opening the government's defence in the face of bitter Labor-Liberal attacks on British policy in Greece, the Foreign Secretary denied implication that British policy was dictated by sphere-of-influence plans and said Britain was "seeking nothing for ourselves in Greece—neither strategic advantage nor economic advantage or any other advantage of that kind at all."

He said the government would "welcome quarterly meetings between foreign secretaries of the great powers as they used to have before to deal with some of these matters."

"The Prime Minister and I," he said, "have said over and over again that we would go anywhere."

Mr. Eden maintained that the "only criticism that could have been made (about Britain's policy in Greece) is that we ought to have brought contingents of the others with us as well."

"The government, I say quite frankly, did not foresee matters would turn out as they have done and in a fashion all of us deeply deplore," Mr. Eden added.

Weather Forecast

More Cigarettes And Beer for Men In India and Burma

London, Dec. 20 — (CP) A Christmas present from Prime Minister Churchill today was the promise to men serving in India and Burma that their beer and cigaret rations shortly will be increased — and that they may soon have a chance to meet some women from home.

Discussion of lonely soldiers serving in distant outposts — whom critics of the government have labelled "forgotten men" — was staged in the House of Commons as the Prime Minister delivered a lengthy report on their welfare.

Mr. Churchill told the House steps were being taken to make life more enjoyable for the men — many of whom have been away from home more than three years.

He paid special tribute to British women who carry on social and entertainment work in the outposts.

"Steps are now being taken to encourage more British women—both those residents in India now and volunteers from home — to undertake this important and valuable contribution to the welfare of the troops," he said.

Comrades Toast One-Man Army Who Won V.C. in Savio Action

By WILLIAM BOSS
(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadian Corps on the Adriatic, Dec. 20 — (CP Cable) — News that Pte. Ernest Alvin (Smokey) Smith of New Westminster, B.C., has been awarded the Victoria Cross thrilled men of his unit, the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, when they heard about it.

News of the award, for "dogged determination" and "superb gallantry" shown by Smith in holding a bridgehead across the Savio river north of Cesena against a determined German counter-attack last Oct. 21, was conveyed to the unit yesterday by The Canadian Press.

As the news radiated from regimental headquarters to companies and platoons, "one for Smokey" was quaffed by the boys whose only regret was that the authorities had not left the 30-year-old veteran with the regiment until the award was announced, so the event could be celebrated together.

In view of the 8th Army's practice that men who earn the V.C.—the Empire's highest award for valor — are not sent back to the front line the Seaforths expect they will not see Smith again until after the war.

Smith and several other men crossed the Savio to establish the bridgehead when they were attacked by three Panther tanks, supported by two self-propelled guns and 30 infantry. Pte. Bob Blair of Prince George, B.C., one of the men, was wounded and saved from capture by Smith, who used a tommy-gun and piat mortar to account for at least one Panther tank and kill at least 10 Germans.

4 RED COLUMNS CONVERGING ON DEFENCE ANCHOR

City of Kassa Under Siege After Russians Make Break Through In Czechoslovakia

Moscow, Dec. 20 — (AP) — Four Red Army columns were converging in heavy attacks today on the city of Kassa, anchor of the entire German defence system in the mountains of eastern Czechoslovakia.

A communique last night announced fall of the village of Senya, only nine miles to the south. Other Soviet columns were boring in from the southwest, southeast and east. Field dispatches reported steady progress.

On the southwest, the main German highway-rail escape route was cut. Other routes leading through the mountains of middle Slovakia are reported continually harassed by patriot bands.

The drive for the coveted town was a co-ordinated effort of two powerful Russian forces — Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2nd Ukrainian and Gen. Ivan Petrov's 4th Ukrainian armies.

Part of General Advance

The drive on Kassa was part of general advances on a front of more than 80 miles north of the southern borders of Slovakia and in northern Hungary. The border was crossed at many new points.

The strength of the German defence was indicated in enemy casualty figures announced by the Russian command. At Senya alone, the communique said, Red Army troops killed 400 Germans and Hungarians and captured more than 2,000.

The highway and rail escape routes for the Germans were cut as the Russians swung across the border 20 miles southwest of Kassa, capturing the railway station of Turnava and the adjacent highway town of Turna.

Under the impact of the Russian drive Hungarian troops were reputed steadily deserting, although they are mixed in with German units and many of their officers have been replaced by trusted Nazis.

The communique made no mention of the continuing siege of Budapest.

Maj. D.V. Currie, V.C., Honored at School His Wife Attended

Owen Sound, Ont., Dec. 20—(CP)—Major David V. Currie, recent winner of the Victoria Cross, last night paid his first visit to the "place I have heard so much about and have seen so little of" — the school at school section No. 2 Derby Township, near here, where his wife received her entire public school education.

Attending the annual Christmas concert, Maj. Currie was presented with an engraved silver cigaret case from the school section and said, "Although born in the west, I feel as if this school district is my home as well as that of my wife."

Brigadier Graham Decorated in Ottawa

Brigadier Graham won the D.S.O. for brilliant leadership of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Sicily. He won the bar to the decoration during the Italian campaign.

Brigadier Graham went overseas as a major in 1939 and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel the next year. In September 1942 he was made a brigadier. He returned home after long and meritorious service and at present is Deputy Chief of the General Staff at Army Headquarters, Ottawa.

MANY WAR BRIDES TO ESTABLISH CANADIAN HOMES.

Some Will Rejoin Husbands Already Sent Home From Fighting Zones

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Dec. 20 (CP) — Catching their first fleeting glimpse of Canada through rifts in a snowstorm, several hundred more British "war brides" of Canadian servicemen have arrived in the Dominion to establish new homes in their adopted country.

Some were en route to join husbands already in Canada. Many brought young babies with them. A few already were widowed and were to join their husbands' families.

Arriving in the same contingent were a small number of servicemen, including R.C.A.F. personnel, a few army officers and a group of four Nursing Sisters who had seen service in Italy.

Others in the group included a handful of French-Canadian civilians who had been interned by the Nazis after the fall of France.

The Nursing Sisters were Isobel Gervin and Constance Nicholson of Winnipeg, who had served with a Canadian hospital in Rome, and Kathleen Bayley and Gladys Clark of Ottawa, who were attached to a hospital on the Adriatic sector.

Widow Among Brides

A widow among the war brides was Mrs. Lillian Bell, whose husband, Sgt. Alvin Bell of Gilbert Plains, Alta., had been killed in action. "It was hard to lose him so soon," she said, "but at least I'll have our baby in his country."

Mrs. Vera Larson was heading for Saskatoon to join L-Corp. Peter Larson, discharged on medical grounds after service in Italy. She had their three-year-old son, Robert.

CLOSED ON HOLIDAYS

Toronto, Dec. 20 — (CP) — The Toronto and Montreal stock exchange will be closed Saturday, Dec. 23, and Saturday, Dec. 30, as well as on Christmas and New Year's day, it was announced today.

GREEK LEFTISTS WARNED TO CEASE FIRE THURSDAY

If Order Not Obeyed Britain Will Use Full Force of Arms

Athens, Dec. 20 — (CP-Reuters)—Aircraft today dropped leaflets containing a warning from Lt.-Gen. Ronald Scobie, general officer commanding in Greece, to civilians in and around Athens and Piraeus that "rebel" guns still firing after 9 a.m. tomorrow will be attacked "with all the arms at my disposal."

These, he added, would include planes, naval guns and rockets.

The announcement said: "This attack will continue until the guns are destroyed.

"For their personal security all civilians in the area concerned must immediately evacuate to a distance of 500 metres (about 545 yards) from the position of any rebel guns.

Gen. Scobie's proclamation followed the fall of R.A.F. headquarters after a gun-dynamite assault by E.L.A.S. forces.

The pro-German ex-premier, Jean Rallis, who fled Averoff prison two days ago after 12 hours of a heavy E.L.A.S. siege remained at large in spite of a widespread search for him.

But the Communist paper Rizopastis said two others of the escaped prisoners, Gen. George Bacos, former Minister of National Defence, and George Pirounakis, Minister of Supplies during the German occupation, had been captured and executed.

Impending political developments largely dominated the scene, however, with the probability of an early acceptance of Archbishop Damaskinos as Regent.

A telegram from Premier George Papandreou's cabinet to King George II in London recommended that the rule be turned over to Damaskinos as Regent. Themistokles Sophoulis, elderly Greek statesman, sent a similar message, and the assent of the King was awaited.

INDIAN HANGED

Edmonton, Dec. 20 — (CP)—Paul Abraham, 28-year-old White Court, Alta., Indian, was hanged at Fort Saskatchewan jail today. He was convicted of the murder of his wife at Cherhill last July 18.

Greatest Penetration Made At Stavelot Near Liege

By JAMES M. LONG, AP STAFF WRITER

Paris, Dec. 20 —(AP)— German infantry pushed today behind swift armored columns advancing more than 20 miles into Belgium, but U. S. tanks and troops were holding firm in some sectors of the enemy break-through channel.

One front dispatch said the United States 1st Army's situation was officially termed "definitely better" Tuesday night, with hardening of the American flanks north and south of the four-pronged German counter-offensive. American tanks and tank destroyers hit in from these sides.

Supreme Headquarters disclosed the Germans had smashed five to 20 miles ahead by Monday noon in four columns driving into Belgium and Luxembourg.

But today the German wildcat armored columns struck deeper into Belgium, and German infantry was beginning to back up these probing fingers "in some strength," a 1st Army front dispatch said.

This would put the Germans more than 20 miles into that Lowland country. The deepest disclosed penetration had been to Stavelot, 20 miles inside Belgium and only 22 from the fortress of Liege.

Details Withheld

A middle German column has achieved the greatest advance, dispatches said, hammering beyond the column that reached Stavelot.

Precise details were withheld.

The fast-ranging German mechanized columns were obviously in quest of American supplies, but were reported meeting little success.

One 1st. Army officer said the enemy had drained troops from other sectors for this "very bold" move, and that if the counter-offensive were crushed "the war can be won right here."

Americans knocked back numerous enemy counter-attacks on the eastern end of the northern flank, two of them before dawn today, east of Malmedy "in the corridor where infantry first met the main force of the enemy onslaught," said A.P. War Correspondent William Boni.

(The German high command claimed without confirmation that more than 10,000 Americans had been captured so far.)

U.S. troops were holding out in some key towns and pockets, bypassed by the main German forces in this wholly fluid warfare.

Partly Lift Secrecy

Supreme headquarters partly lifted the cloak of secrecy to tell of the five-to-20 mile advances up to Monday noon in the Winter counter-offensive.

American anti-aircraft guns halted German tanks near Stavelot yesterday, but elsewhere the armored spearheads moved forward. Stavelot and St. Vith, 11 miles to the southeast, both were in U.S. hands yesterday morning, a dispatch said, with heavy fighting east of St. Vith.

American anti-aircraft gunners claimed more than 200 German planes shot down in three days.

The partial lifting of the security blackout gave the first official disclosure of the depth and danger of the German recoil offensive mounted with all the power of the enemy's arsenal—rested crack divisions, tanks, planes, V-weapons, parachute troops and amphibious vehicles.

Dispatches from the counter-attack line, however, declared Lt.-Gen. Hodges had flung in infantry and armor in attempts to stem the onslaught.

In fluid, confused battle, some infantrymen fought until they were overrun in their foxholes by tanks. German parachute troopers seized one American hospital, but the infantry rewon it, freeing the captives.

Up to noon Monday the greatest German penetration was to Stavelot, 22 miles southeast of Liege and 25 southwest of Aachen. Unconfirmed reports in Paris said a precautionary civilian evacuation of Liege had been ordered last night.

Strike in Force, then Split

One German column struck in force across the border from near Honsfled — 27 miles southeast of Aachen — and then split. One unit veered to the vicinity of Butgenbach eight miles northeast of Malmedy. A second jabbed on to Stavelot, five miles southwest of Malmedy and eight miles south of Spa, famous resort town.

The second enemy drive was a pincer thrust on the important road hub of St. Vith, four miles inside Belgium and about 12 miles south of Malmedy.

It cut off some American troops, but up to Monday noon at least they were holding out in tight defence pockets, and St. Vith itself was being barred to the Germans by screening forces.

Dispatches today from both 21st Army group and U. S. 9th Army headquarters said enemy patrols had suddenly thrust into Allied lines in the Geilenkirchen area — some 35 miles north of the northernmost German push — and heavy mortar fire crashed on Allied positions.

Antwerp Objective

(Whether this heralded a new enemy assault in this area where once the British 2nd and U.S. 9th Armies had their junction point, or simply was intended to prevent the Allies from moving reinforcements south was not apparent.)

A 9th Army dispatch said German prisoners were extremely confident about the offensive beating into the U. S. 1st Army lines. Buoyed by propaganda, some said this was but the beginning, and that Antwerp would fall in a few days.

'Situation Better'

With the U. S. 1st Army in Belgium, Dec. 19 — (Delayed)—(AP)—The situation on the 1st Army front tonight was officially described as 'definitely better,' although German armored columns were ranging far and wide in a great 1918-style offensive.

The "shoulders" of the defence north and south of the broad break-through area are beginning to harden. That is why the situation is described as improved.

American tanks and tank destroyers hit the Germans on the flanks.

It is probable that one or more pitched tank battles have been fought, although lagging reports did not permit this to be ascertained definitely.

The Americans still held some key towns in the area through which the Germans have passed. These cannot be named. Army headquarters kept information to correspondents vague, allowing no pin-pointing of the German penetrations.

But Wildcat enemy columns are punching ahead in a supreme effort to cut behind 1st Army supply dumps and thus provide the German columns with sinews they sorely need. So far they have picked up little, an army spokesman said.

The Germans have drained men and machines from other sectors in the west to make this "very bold" move, it was stated.

Several hundred German parachute troops have been rounded up since the counter-offensive began Saturday.

The northern German column has reached the general vicinity of Stavelot, but it is the central column which has achieved the greatest advance. No information was given even as to the general location of the southernmost column.

Flying bombs have been roaring over the 1st Army sector in numbers reminiscent of the hardest days and nights in London last July.

Although Hitler may have ordered the daring stroke, it is considered at 1st Army headquarters that it is most likely that he is having no part in its tactical direction. The offensive shows the hands of a skillful tactician, probably Field Marshal von Rundstedt.

Free Exchange News Termed Essential By Canada's Four Political Leaders

Ottawa, Dec. 20 — (CP)—National leaders of the four major political parties in Canada hold the common view that a world-wide freedom of exchange of news is essential to the well-being of mankind.

In positive terms the four leaders made known their stand in statements to The Canadian Press, released today.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal party, said the matter of protecting news freedom by international compact "is receiving careful attention from the government" and that "it is also under examination by the other Allied governments."

John Bracken, leader of the Progressive Conservative party; M. J. Coldwell, leader of the C. C. F. party, and John Blackmore, leader of the New Democracy party, went emphatically on record as in favor of news freedom being written into the peace treaties.

The leaders' statements, solicited in order to ascertain parliamentary opinion on freedom of news, were a sequel to a resolution passed unanimously by the Board of Directors of The Canadian Press.

INMATES OF COUNTY HOME ARE PROMISED REAL CHRISTMAS PARTY

With practically all the viands produced on their own farm, inmates of the Hastings County House of Refuge will dine as usual on Christmas with all the "trimmings" at the regular Christmas party.

There will be a tree for the guests and presents will be distributed to all. Special Christmas treats will be provided and more gifts will be distributed through the kindness of outside sources.

Superintendent Elmer Sandercock and Matron Mrs. Sandercock and their staff are sparing no effort to make the coming Yuletide one of the best enjoyed at the institution.

CHRISTMAS GIFT FOUND AT STATION

A Christmas gift box was found on the C.P.R. station platform here today by Mr. Fred White, of this city. The box was given to the C.P.R. station agent. A card on the box indicated the present was from "Carrie and Jack to Dad." After leaving the parcel at the station, Mr. White also reported his findings to the police.

PRIZE LIST COMMITTEE OF QUINTE SEED FAIR CONVENES AT BRIGHTON

Prize list committee for the Quinte District Seed Fair convened at the Brighton agricultural office, Wednesday afternoon to revise the prize lists for the seed fair which is to be held at Orono during March. Committee members from the Belleville district to attend the meeting included the fair president, Mr. Oscar Parks Bloomfield, with Col. Roscoe Vanderwater of Foxboro; H. Lynn Fair of Stirling and Howard Parnell, seed inspector, of Belleville.

THIEVES BREAK INTO REID DAIRY BLDG.

Thieves broke into the Reid dairy building on Parker Street some time last night and stole ten dollars in small change and two flashlights. Entrance was gained by forcing the coal chute door and crawling thru' to the coal bin to enter the main portion of the building where the robbery was made. The break-in was not discovered until employees reported for work this morning, police reported.

FIVE DRUNKS SPEND NIGHT IN JAIL

Several inebriates, who were doing a little too much pre-Christmas elbow bending, fell into the hands of the law last night and had to be taken to the police station to "sleep it off." Loitering around downtown restaurants caused the greater part of the trouble that led to the arrest of five such persons.

TWO MINOR BLAZES

Members of the local fire department had two runs on Tuesday afternoon and evening, both being for minor causes from which no damage was reported. Gas conditions in an East Bridge Street residence called for an investigation by firemen, while they were also called to 78 Queen Street to extinguish a chimney fire.

MAJ. RON. CHURCH SLIGHTLY WOUNDED

Well-known athete of the district and a veteran "original" of the 1st Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Major Ron. Church has been slightly wounded overseas, according to word received by his wife in Picton. Major Church returned overseas last year after spending eight months on instructional duty in Canada.

No details were included in the cablegram but it is believed Major Church is attached to a unit other than that of the "Hasty Pees."

One of the most colorful showmen on the hockey cushion or the baseball diamond, Major Church is known both here and in Napanee. He was one of the pitching stalwarts of the Picton baseball nine for several years and with the former "Warpy" Phillips carried his squad through to the Ontario Intermediate finals in 1933.

He enlisted in 1939 in Picton with the rank of lieutenant and went overseas in December of that year. He returned to Canada with the rank of major and was an instructor at Brampton and other military centres. His wife is the former Noreen McManus of Picton.

CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE RESULTS IN CAR-TRUCK CRASH

Property damage of considerable amount resulted to the front portion of a motor car during a car-truck collision at the intersection of St. Paul and John Streets, earlier in the week. Police investigated and found a car driven by Charles Anderson, 19 Dunbar Street had crashed into the rear of a truck driven by Malcolm Grant, Donald Street. Grant was driving his truck south on John Street, and police allege he failed to observe the stop street regulation before entering upon St. Paul Street, where Mr. Anderson was proceeding in a westerly direction. Damage of a considerable amount resulted to the radiator, hood and engine of the car police reported.

NO CHRISTMAS EVE MIDNIGHT SHOWS

There will be no Christmas Eve midnight shows at city theatres this year as has been the general custom in screen entertainment in other years, it was learned today.

Due to the fact that Christmas Eve falls on Sunday this year, and many people will be paying religious tribute during that day and night, theatre managers have foregone the entertainment that has heretofore ushered in Christmas morning.

However, there will be matinee and evening performances at all theatres on Christmas day, with afternoon shows starting at three o'clock.

The usual stage and screen attractions will be offered at midnight shows on New Year's Eve with regular performances scheduled for New Year's Day.

THEIR MAJESTIES ATTEND REVIEW

The Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) wound up its 1944 training schedule in a blaze of regimental and entertainment glory at the armouries Tuesday night, the final parade including presentation of parchment commissions to junior officers, pay for all ranks and a sports and entertainment period for officers, nco's and men. The regiment has discontinued training for the holiday period and will 'fall in' for its 1945 Syllabus on Jan. 9.

Featuring the parade was the presentation of parchment commissions to Lieutenants I. E. Shapiro; T. K. Franklin; H. R. Gibson; J. A. Jackson; L. A. Kells; A. J. Marvell; C. N. Nicholson; O. Pinkston and C. J. Riddell. The commissions were formally presented to the officers by Lieut. Col. B. C. Sisler, commanding officer before the assembled squadrons of the regiment.

Sports Program.

Their pockets comfortably lined with the coin of the army realm, thanks to the efforts of Paymaster Captain Les Shiels, all ranks joined in a variable sports program that took them from the rifle ranges in the basement to ping-pong tables in the lecture rooms. Shooting contests, volleyball games and bowling competitions were included and later the prizes were presented to the lucky winners.

With all ranks from the colonel to the drummer boy in attendance, a fine program of entertainment was provided in one of the main lecture rooms. Featured were several tuneful piano selections by William Navin, vocal solos by Master Albert Doby, and a piano selection by Trooper McCaul of Deseronto. Highlighting the musical part was an officers' quintet composed of Lieuts. Taylor Franklin at the piano, Nicholson, Jackson, Marvell and Gibson. ThisThis "barber shop five" gave out with some fine offerings of blending harmony, and revealed a hitherto uncovered piece of regimental talent. Bingo was also included in this part of the affair.

Going down to a flaming death behind the controls of a speedy Spitfire, or to make the supreme sacrifice while in the heat of action with the infantry or artillery, requires steel nerves and an iron courage, the sort of courage which thousands of Canadian fighting heroes have.

But there is still another kind of courage. It's the sort of courage which calls for a man to stick to his civilian post despite the ravages of a disease which is slowly but surely eating away his life. It's the sort of courage displayed by Norman Lancaster, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Lancaster of this city, who died doing his duty as a radio operator at the lonely Hope Island lighthouse in Georgian Bay.

Refused enlistment into the armed services because of a chronic diabetic condition, Norman, nevertheless, wished to serve his country in a way comparable with the sacrifice being given by his brother and his school pals. Left behind when they went into the services he resolved also to serve. He attended the Radio College of Canada, graduated as a radio operator and was stationed to the Hope Island lighthouse north of Midland.

There he stuck to his post despite a gradually weakening condition. Finally he took seriously ill, at first too ill to send out the call for medical aid. The lighthouse keeper, Alex Herron and his wife, were unable to operate the equipment. Then Norman rallied and sent out the call which brought the government lighthouse tender to the rescue. But storms delayed the return trip and he died a few hours before the ship docked.

Surviving besides his parents are a sister, Mrs. C. R. Dougherty of Belleville and one brother G. Rae Lancaster of the R.C.N.V.R.

Maj. Bob Graham Takes Part In Bridgehead Action

By WILLIAM BOSS

With the Canadian Corps on the Adriatic, Dec. 17—(Delayed)—(CP)—West coast and Ontario infantrymen on the right flank of the Canadians' Naviglio canal bridgehead gained a narrow foothold over the Munio canal last night, while troops on the left flank scored a 800-yard gain.

Sunday, troops in the centre hurled back the 15th German counter-attack since the bridgehead was established Dec. 12.

The troops on the right flank of the bridgehead became weary of sitting only 25 feet away from the enemy and in a 24-hour grenade-vs.-potato-masher free-for-all, Capt. Dave Ames of Vancouver managed to infiltrate into the enemy positions and take 12 prisoners. To the right, Maj. Alec Beckingham of Kingston, tried to do likewise, but the plan did not work. Then Capt. Jock Macsill of St. Thomas, sent a platoon through the position held by Capt. Ames' men. After a brief skirmish the Germans fell back. The Canadians were supported by Manitoba tanks under Majors Bob Graham of Belleville, Ont., and Bill Millroy of Calgary.

On the left flank, a 800-yard gain brought Ontario, Quebec and maritime troops under Capt. Benny Potts of Kingston to positions commanding the Vecchia canal. Capt. Potts' men met the Germans in close contact fighting and the Germans retreated leaving 40 dead. Canadian and German stretcher-bearers were busy with enemy casualties. Capt. Potts' losses were two men wounded. The Canadians took only seven prisoners, indicative of the high calibre of the enemy troops opposing the Canadians — Germans who believe in fighting to the last man and the last round of ammunition.

Troops of a Toronto armored reconnaissance battalion under Maj. G. A. Burton of Toronto, supported by Ottawa valley infantry under Capt. P. A. M. Neill of Pembroke, probed north between the Naviglio and Munio canals in the direction of highway 16.

"The land is as flat as a pancake," one commanding officer commented as his farmhouse headquarters rocked with the blast of shelling. "And that's not maple syrup they're pouring on."

WO. Jack Hart on Way Home After Completing Tour of Operations

His first tour of operations as a Spitfire fighter pilot now completed, Warrant Officer Jack Hart, son of Mr. P. J. Hart of Point Anne, is on his way home to Canada, it has been learned by his father. WO. Hart is coming home with his R.C.A.F. twin PO. "Buzz" Hayden of Toronto, with whom he has been since they attended initial training school at Belleville together.

Since they met at Belleville after joining the R.C.A.F. about the only time the two fliers have not been together except when they were flying, was when they were forced to parachute from their flak-riddled planes. Hayden came down in the backyard of division headquarters and was invited to dinner. At that time Hart felt that he had the best of his pal because he was already a member of the Caterpillar Club, whose members are fliers who have bailed out and turned up at headquarters.

BANCROFT

Sgt. Wm. Morris Reported Missing

Bancroft, Dec. 20 (Special)—Wounded in action three times in the Italian war theatre, Sgt. William Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Morris, is now officially reported missing according to word received from defence headquarters in Ottawa. The telegram indicated he had been missing since December 5th.

Sgt. Morris enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment at the start of the war and proceeded overseas late in 1939.

Home on Furlough.

Another of Bancroft district's fighting sons, Pte. Henry Ruttan, son of Oscar Ruttan of Hermon, is home from the wars after serving in the Italian war theatre. He enlisted in January, 1940 and went overseas in May of the same year. He is now home on 30 days rotation leave, following which he will make a six months tour of Canadian training centres. A brother, Basil, wounded in action in 1942 is now discharged and is assisting his father on their farm.

Cold Weather.

Jack Frost settled down in this district in no mistaken quantity early in the week with the thermometer dropping to 24 below Monday morning and 19 degrees below Tuesday morning.

FUND TO COMMEMORATE DEEDS

New Westminster, B.C., Dec. 20—(CP)—A $50,000 scholarship foundation will be established to commemorate the deeds of Maj. John Keefer Mahony, and Pte. Ernest (Smokey) Smith, Canada's latest Victoria Cross winners, representatives of 22 organizations in this home town of the two heroes decided at a meeting last night.

Capt. Max Porritt Missing, Believed Prisoner of War

Veteran of the heavy fighting in Italy, Captain Maxwell Porritt, 33, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Porritt, 91 Lingham Street, is missing and believed a prisoner of war according to word received by his parents.

Born in Jonquier, near Quebec City, Capt. Porritt came to Belleville with his parents when about ten years of age. He took an early interest in the military and prior to his enlistment with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment at the start of the war was associated with the local Argylls with which unit he had attained his commission. He went overseas with the first Canadian contingent with the rank of lieutenant. Before going active he was employed by J. and J. Cash, Ltd.

After training in England for some months, Captain Porritt was returned to Canada for a special course and trained on the west coast with the Brockville Rifles for six weeks before proceeding back overseas. He was still in England at the time of the Sicilian invasion but has seen considerable action in the Italian war theatre.

Obituary

LATE JOHN THOMAS BRENNAN
(Tyendinaga)

The funeral of John Thomas Brennan, formerly of Tyendinaga, who died suddenly in Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 8th., took place from the Corrigan & O'Brien Funeral Home, 30 Moira Street West, on Monday morning last to St. Charles Church at Read where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father R. J. Coyle, who also said the committal prayers at the graveside in St. Charles' cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. Dennis Meagher, Vincent McKenny, Michael Hanley, M. J. Hunt, Daniel Gaffney and Michael Walsh.

Counterfeit 50 Cent Pieces Passed Here

Taking advantage of the Christmas rush and the fact Front St. stores are employing extra and inexperienced help, counterfeiters are reported to have circulated numerous bogus fifty cent coins in Belleville. Today several merchants reported to police the fact these lead half-dollar pieces have been accepted by inexperienced help during the rush period. The coins are described as of a dull lead-like color, very light in weight and of a smooth surface. They should be easy to detect, police officials announced, as the coins are a poor duplication of Canadian currency.

MANY WAR BRIDES

Another wife, with a youngster was Mrs. Thomas Thibodeau, who was hoping her army sergeant husband, an instructor at Camp Borden, Ont., would be able to join her at his Moncton, N.B., home. Mrs. Thibodeau, formerly on the staff of the London Express, was accompanied by her two-year-old daughter, Ann.

Two Brigadiers Home

They are Brig. Eric W. Haldenby, of Toronto, who took the 48th. Highlanders overseas five years ago, and Brig. J. E. Ganong, of Toronto, who sailed with the same outfit as a company commander in 1939.

Brig. Haldenby led the 48th. into France during the short-lived invasion of that year "and led them out again." he recalled with a grin—and later he was torpedoed while on the way to Italy. The torpedoed ship carried a hospital group, all of the personnel of which were saved.

Brig. Haldenby has been commanding a reinforcement group in Italy.

Brig. Ganong, who returned to Canada after an absence of five years to the day, was commanding a brigade in France at the time he left.

Three Superforts Bomb Tokyo

They found all of Honshu, the main island of Japan, blacked out in expectation of the return of B29s on nightly flights to report the weather over Japan. Two B29s bombed Nagoya early yesterday, some 12 hours after the second major Superfortress raid on that city.

The crew of the first plane attacking today saw 10 bomb blasts followed by fires covering a large square area.

Anti-aircraft was meagre and two night fighters which came up kept their distance.

GERMANS' RECOIL

Not Launched to Gain Time.

Evidence continued to accumulate that Field Marshal Von Rundstedt has not launched this push merely to gain time or to upset plans for an Allied offensive but had begun an all-out effort to crack the western front.

The continued unstinted use of German planes in spite of costly losses, the concentration of armor and motor transport and the appearance in the line of certain crack German elements known to have been in reserve for a "last ditch" defence of the Fatherland seemed to indicate Von Rundted's purpose.

One front dispatch said the main German effort had been fairly well channelized and contained on its flanks but that elements of crack German divisions still were probing into Belgium.

Another dispatch from Belgium said the Germans appeared to be unable to widen materially the base of their twin penetration triangles, but the points of those triangles were pushing deeper into Belgium.

The situation southward along the attack zone, which extends to the area of the Luxembourg border city of Echternach, was variously described as being in a fluid or semi-fluid state. Belgian refugees moved toward the area along the roads as long lines of American guns and tanks hurried up to the lines.

German tank columns were stopped and hurled back in the area south of Monschau and at least six enemy counter-attacks were repulsed. German infantry suffered heavy losses and crowded air stations showed that American losses also had been heavy.

(A Berlin dispatch to a Swiss newspaper said the German high comand has increased the strength of its western offensive in a gigantic effort to re-take Aachen and drive Allied forces from German soil.)

Lancasters ,Out.

An emergency call late yesterday brought a big force of British Lancasters and U.S. flying Fortresses from British fields. These planes spread 2,000 tons of fragmentation and high-explosive bombs on rail and road junctions immediately behind the attacking forces.

German resistance stiffened markedly all along the Siegfried Line from Luxembourg to Switzerland and it appeared that the Allied winter offensive had been fought to a temporary standstill.

The U. S. 3rd Army seized 40 more pill-boxes and fortified houses in the Saarlautern area, for a two-day total of 176, and had cleaned up Dillinge save for the factory area. U.S. 7th Army troops repulsed two strong counter-attacks northwest of Wissembourg. Farther south, French 1st Army and U. S. 7th Army troops made small gains northwest of Colmar and in the high Vosges.

Despite foul weather, German armor and truck convoys moving into the Belgian and Luxembourg wedges were hammered by fighter-bombers and by a powerful force of British and American heavy bombers yesterday.

Co-ordination of the R.A.F. and U.S. Air Forces in tactical support of the 1st Army was described as "never better." British fliers had the dual task of preventing some of the German planes from getting into the battle area, and of disrupting Nazi transport.

Canada's First Private V. C. Winner Receives Award From the King

He Thought He Was Going Home On Leave, Surprised When Told of V.C.

By FRANK LOWE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, Dec. 20 (CP Cable)—The private in the colorful kilt of the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada stood rigidly at attention while the King said: "Here's a little present for you from me," handing him a leather-covered case.

And 30-year-old Ernest Alvia (Smokey) Smith was holding in his hand the Victoria Cross—Canada's first private and the second soldier from New Westminster, B.C., to win the Empire's highest award for valor in this war.

"That's about all there was to the investiture," said the short, dark, soldier with a quick grin, telling how he received the medal Monday at the second private investiture in the history of Buckingham Palace. The other one, a few weeks ago, was for his fellow-townsman, Maj. John (Jack) Keefer Mahony.

Helped to Hold Bridgehead.

Smith won the award for gallantry in helping to hold the Savio river bridgehead forged by the Seaforth Highlanders north of Cesena in the Canadian corps' sector of Italy last Oct. 21.

The New Westminster private said: "I guess the investiture only took a couple of minutes but it seemed like hours to me." The King and Smith were alone in the King's private suite for the formal decoration of British Columbia's fifth V.C. since hostilities began.

Later Smith, who with quips and quick come-backs seemed to be the most self-possessed Canadian yet to win the V.C., said he knew nothing of the award until he arrived here from Italy Sunday.

Thought He Was Going Home on Leave.

"I thought I was going home on regular Christmas leave when they told me to pack up," said the soldier who has been serving overseas for five months including 16 months in Sicily and Italy. "I didn't ask any questions—all I could think about was getting home.

"So when they told me here I was to get the V.C. I just laughed and asked who they thought they were kidding. But damned if they weren't right."

That was as much as he would say about his feat of holding the Savio river bridgehead.

Smith escaped without a scratch in this action, in which respect he was luckier than thrice-wounded Maj. Mahony.

But in Sicily, he recalled, a "mortar got me through the chest just one hour before we went out of the line for a rest and I was in hospital for three months."

Will be Home For Christmas

Ottawa, Dec. 20 (CP)—Canada's eight Victoria Cross winner—Private Ernest Alvia (Smokey) Smith, 30, a Seaforth Highlander from New Westminster, B.C.,—will be home for Christmas and probably will arrive at Dorval, Que., by air today or Thursday, military circles said.

An unemployed day laborer before the war, Smokey won the V.C. for almost single-handedly holding a vital Italian bridgehead against German tanks, self-propelled guns and infantry.

Twice wounded before the action that won him the award, Smokey has been described as "a one-man army" for his gallantry Oct. 21 in a Savio river operation that was vital to the capture of Cesena and the advance to the Ronco river.

WATCH FOR NAZI ESCAPEES

Toronto, Dec. 20. (CP)—City police are on the lookout for two German prisoners-of-war, Walter Roenning, 24, and Gerhard Schmidt, 23, both of the German army who escaped from a labor project at Vermilion Bay, Ont., on Dec. 14. Roenning is described as being five feet, five inches tall, 132 pounds. Schmidt is five feet, three and three-quarter inches, 143 pounds.

Text of Citation Reveals Extraordinary Courage of New Westminster Man

In Italy on the night of Oct. 21-22, 1944, a Canadian infantry brigade was ordered to establish a bridgehead across the Savio River. The Seaforth Highlanders of Canada were selected as the spearhead of the attack, and in weather most unfavorable to the operation they crossed the river and captured their objective, in spite of strong opposition from the enemy.

Torrential rain had caused the Savio River to rise six feet in five hours, and as the soft vertical banks made it impossible to bridge the river no tanks or anti-tank guns could be taken across the raging stream to the support of the rifle companies.

Led Piat Group

As the right forward company was consolidating its objective it was suddenly counter-attacked by a troop of three Mark Five panther tanks, supported by two self-propelled guns and about 30 infantry. The situation appeared almost hopeless.

Under heavy fire from the approaching enemy tanks, Pte. Smith, showing great initiative and inspiring leadership, led his Piat group of two men across an open field to a position from which the Piat could best be employed. Leaving one man on the weapon, Pte. Smith crossed the road with a companion, and obtained another Piat.

Almost immediately an enemy tank came down the road firing its machine guns along the line of the ditches. Pte. Smith's comrade was wounded. At a range of 30 feet, and having to expose himself to the full view of the enemy, Pte. Smith fired the Piat, and hit the tank, putting it out of action.

Kills Four, Routs Rest

Ten German infantrymen immediately jumped off the back of the tank and charged him with Schmeissers and grenades. Without hesitation, Pte. Smith moved out on to the road and at pointblank range with his tommy-gun killed four Germans and drove the remainder back. Almost immediately another tank opened fire and more enemy infantrymen closed in on Smith's position.

Obtaining some abandoned tommy-gun magazines from a ditch he steadfastly held his position protecting his comrade and fighting the enemy with his tommy-gun until they finally gave up and withdrew in disorder.

One tank and both self-propelled guns had been destroyed by this time, but another tank swept the area with fire from a longer range. Pte. Smith, still showing utter contempt for enemy fire, helped his wounded comrade to cover and obtained medical aid for him behind a near-by building. He then returned to his position beside the road to await the possibility of a further enemy attack.

No further immediate attack developed and as a result the battalion was able to consolidate the bridgehead position so vital to the success of the whole operation which led to the eventual capture of San Lorgio Cesene and a further advance to the Ronco River.

Thus by the dogged determination, outstanding devotion to duty and superb gallantry of this private soldier, his comrades were so inspired that the bridgehead was held against all enemy attacks pending the arrival of tanks and anti-tank guns some hours later.

Twice Wounded

Twice wounded before the action that won him the award, Smokey has been described as "a one-man army" for his gallantry.

Smokey is the first Canadian Victoria Cross winner of the war below the rank of commissioned officer. He is the fifth V.C. winner from British Columbia — another being Major John Keefer Mahony, also from New Westminster. Smokey is also the sixth Canadian Army man to win the top award.

For 4½ years—more than four of them overseas—Smokey played the tough and exacting role of a private soldier in the infantry.

Neither promotion nor glory had come his way. He had fought throughout the long, tough Italian campaign since the Seaforth Highlanders landed in Sicily in July, 1943, except for two months spent in a North African hospital.

OFFERED BRIDAL SUITE

Pocatello, Ida., Dec. 20 — (AP) — Willie Kissie, 25-year-old wounded merchant seaman, believes that maybe there is a Santa Claus, but it cost him $300 to find it out. Kissie lost his wallet containing the money just when it would have come in handiest — on a honeymoon in Oklahoma City. His story in morning papers brought dozens of cash offers and from a hotel manager an invitation to occupy the bridal suite.

GREW UP OVERSEAS

St. Thomas, Ont., Dec. 20 — (CP) —Relatives of Pte. James G. Chambers, who just returned from five years overseas, were a little surprised when he stepped off the train. He was only 16 years old when he left and was five feet, six inches tall. When he returned he towered over his family — standing six feet, two inches.

FOILED GESTAPO

By PAUL AUDET
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Dec. 20 —(CP)— Fiction-like adventures which a short time ago were part of his day-to-day life were recalled today by Capt. Guy D'Artois, young French-speaking officer of the Canadian army, as he told of sudden death, women spies and romance with the French Maquis.

The 28-year-old captain bailed out over France four months before D-Day, landing in the Department of Saone and Loire, near Switzerland, to organize and lead the Maquis in a ruthless struggle that was to end with the appearance of the first spearheads of the French-American 7th Army.

His Romance.

There was more than danger for D'Artois. Romance was woven into the picture too, and he returned to Canada without a scratch and with a wife.

Capt. D'Artois, attached to the First Canadian-American Special Service Force, was the only experienced paratrooper of his group when it started training personnel and was assigned to "cheer up" a party of five young women about to make their first parachute jump. He was "making jokes" about his assignment when his attention was attracted to one of the girls as she jumped from the plane.

"I'm going to marry that girl," D'Artois said to himself . . . and so he did.

The girl was Sonia Butts, 20, of Woking, London suburb, and they were married shortly before both of them parachuted over France. D'Artois landed in the Saone-Loire Department and his wife in the Department of Sarthe, just below Britanny. Both helped to organize the French Maquis and met in Paris a few months later. Now Mrs. D'Artois is expected to join her husband in Montreal shortly.

Capt. D'Artois gathered some 3,000 men, most of them miners, and taught them guerilla warfare tactics.

"Fake" Raids.

To feed them he made "fake" raids against French farms. The raids were "fake" because the farmers were paid in advance and "smashing windows was just a question of making it look good to the Germans."

"Once," said D'Artois, "they put a beautiful blond Polish girl after me. But we got the girl and she was shot."

Forty-two women were shot as spies in his sector.

CANADA'S LATEST WINNER OF VICTORIA CROSS

Educational Estimates:

'45 Govt. Grant for Belleville Schools Will Exceed This Year's by $60,000

Under the new proposed educational program of costs for public, secondary and vocational schools, as announced by the Ontario Department of Education some time ago it is estimated government grants for such schools in Belleville in 1945 will amount to approximately $60,000 more than the grants for education amounted here in 1944, L. A. Kells, administrator of the Board of Education announced here today.

Schedule of Grants.

Regulations respecting general legislative grants for public schools, collegiate institute and vocational schools (both day and evening) saw Belleville grant for 1944 amount to $30,500 while under the new regulations in 1945 these grants will total approximately $90,500. The latter figure is based on the proposed new schedule of grants to our city schools and is made up as follows—35% of the approved costs of education in four public schools estimated at $31,500; cost of $10 per pupil of average attendance plus approved costs at the Collegiate Institute amounting to $29,000 and the percentage cost of salaries for the Vocational School which is estimated at $30,000 by Mr. Kells, making the aggregate total of $90,500.

Basis of Costs.

According to the new schedule of educational grants by the Ontario Government the interpretation is based on "approved costs and costs of operation," which means the actual amount of capital expenditure and expenditures of maintenance out of current revenue. According to the new scale the 1944 grant to Belleville schools was approximately 14% of the gross expenditure for education in the city, while under the 1945 schedule of grants the approximate grant will be 42% of the cost of education in the city, the report added.

Reduction of 5½ Mills.

Further Mr. Kells' statistical report showed the high school assessment for Belleville in 1944 amounting to $11,230,036, with a tax rate for secondary school education of 8.6 mills. The assessment in 1944 for public schools here was set at $10,026,435, which was equivalent to a tax rate of 10.3 mills, making a total school tax rate of 18.9 mills for 1944. However, with an approximate population of 15,980, the reduction in tax rate will probably be 5½ mills less the one-mill subsidy that has been paid municipalities to assist the payment of education by the department in the past. The cost of education in Belleville should be approximately four to four and one-half mills under the new regulations in 1945, Mr. Kells reported to the Board of Education here in his final report as secretary administrator today.

Japanese Inhumanity

Through another report the world has come to know something more of the cruelty of the Japanese as practised against the white people who had fallen into their hands. It is the War Office statement that the Japanese had so worked more than 60,000 under such brutal conditions that 24,000 of them died.

The statement issued yesterday, related how the Japanese in their thirst for speed in pushing their aggression, utterly disregarded human life and suffering, sick prisoners being carried to work on stretchers, there being cases of torture and killing as well and beating of officers and men. Twenty-five thousand in all died and of these fewer than one thousand were Japanese, the rest English, Dutch and Australians.

The whole story of the brutality in sending these men to build the Thailand-Burma railway, their transportation in metal cattle cars on the journey lasting five days and nights, when the men were so crowded that they could not lie down but had to stand or lean against one another or against equipment, the conditions everywhere being below standard, is one that brings against the Japanese people a terrible indictment which proves to what steps the aggressor and the militarist class will go to carry on their work of evil.

Horrible inhumanities have been committed by the Germans and Japanese which for all time will set a stigma upon these nations. Japan reveals a callousness and barbaric satisfaction in such deeds and Hitlerite and militarist Germany has revealed a ruthlessness and indifference to the ordinary humanities and conventions, murder and every other crime being committed without compunction.

Truly the United Nations have been faced with the worst manifestations of human depravity that the enemy could practise and indulge in.

The enemy has made people in all lands which fell under their control to bear burdens no humans should be called upon to bear, they have killed them. By Germany a terrible era was ushered in by her deeds upon the weak and the prisoner. Systematic murder by gas poisoning or by bullets and the destruction of the bodies in huge ovens was one way.

These two foes stand forever as evidence of the depth to which humanity in the form of Germany and Japan has descended in the pursuit of the false and inhuman doctrines of the Axis way of life.

These terrible deeds of the enemy are direct result of the callous and ruthless ambition for power sought by Hitler and Tojo and the German and Japanese warlords. Nazism and Japanese Fascism are the worst forms of tyranny the world has seen—the systematic destruction of human beings by murder, torture, cruelty, and all of the evidences and work of civilization and culture on which they could wreak their vengeance.

The Japanese raising of a memorial to the 25,000 who died in the building of the Thailand-Burma railway shows the low status of the morality of the Japanese if they could believe this would appease or satisfy western civilization. The insincerity it displays is like the smug smiles and grins of Japanese while Tokyo was planning the infamous raid on Pearl Harbor.

Good Hunting in Pacific

Remarkable success has been achieved by the United States submarines, warships and planes in the havoc wrought to Japanese shipping and the huge numbers of Japanese planes the Americans have shot out of the sky. The press for a long time has been telling of the success of the raids on Japanese ships and planes and the totals of losses suffered by the Japanese have reached great proportions.

907 ships sunk by American submarines is an imposing figure and of these 94 were fighting ships. The latest count is 33 Japanese ships lost. Japanese convoys have suffered gravely, being practically wiped out recently.

By-Products of Br. Oil Prospecting

Britain's wartime research for oil deposits to supplement oil imports have uncovered two new coalfields, valuable deposits of potassium and two great natural gas wells. This was revealed on December 7th by Dr. Lees, the discoverer of British oilfields.

Potassium deposits—the first ever found in Great Britain—will be of immense value to British agriculture. The two gas wells give two and five million cubic feet of gas daily and will provide a cheap, abundant source of power supply for industry.

"Matilda"

(Mr. Churchill sang "Waltzing Matilda" aboard a British cruiser during one of his visits to Normandy, Australian News Letter relates.)

The story is told by Lt. Peter Taylor, R.A.N.V.R., of Western Australia. Mr. Churchill was in the captain's cabin and using the cruiser as his headquarters when he was attracted to the wardroom by sounds of extreme merriment during a sing-song. He heard a number of officers refering to Lt. Taylor, who is a bright spark, as "Digger." Mr. Churchill, after asking the cruiser's captain if Digger was an authentic Australian, asked to be introduced to him.

Then Mr. Churchill said: "I would like to hear you sing 'Waltzing Matilda.'" Lt. Taylor sang the song, with Mr. Churchill and other officers lustily joining in the chorus.

"Mr. Churchill was grinning all round his cigar and looking like a real old British bulldog," Lt. Taylor said. "He said to me—'That's the song the Australians sang entering Bardia. Those days we were all alone.' I then somewhat cheekily replied: 'Not alone. The Australians were always there.' Winston just grinned and patted me on the back. Mr. Churchill then asked everyone to sing 'Rule Britannia,' and he led the chorus."

The War Comes First

(New York Times)

In Washington it was officially stated that military requirements take precedence over materials for reconstruction. Sicily can't have horseshoe nails, The Netherlands can't have water-pumping machinery, the Greeks can't have fishhooks, the people of Spitsbergen can't have coal-mining machinery, unless and until the gods of war have first been satisfied. War has priority in the factories and on the ships. War must have this priority; there is no way out.

The choices that have to be made are terrible. We hope they are made with the knowledge that during the months to come soldiers may have less to do in some liberated countries if civilians are well looked after.

But an Allied victory is the first necessity, even for the cold and hungry civilian. Without such a victory he could look forward to nothing better than years of slavery and deprivation.

If a big gun hastens the destruction of the Nazi power, it is better than a big pump to clear the drowned farms of The Netherlands, or equipment that will help the fishers of the Aegean bring in their catch. This is what war is like and why wars have to be brought to a final end.

McCrae Memorial Gardens

(Lethbridge Herald)

Near the little cottage where Col. John McCrae, writer "In Flanders' Fields," was born, a memorial garden to the poet will be established, a dispatch from Guelph says. Nothing could be more appropriate than a memorial garden to the man who immortalized the poppy, particularly those blooming "between the crosses row on row" in Flanders' Fields.

CRECHE

Let us build it, yard and stable and the straw-filled, lowly manger,
And the shepherds at the doorway come to view the tiny stranger,.
And the inn that was too crowded and the star that shone above it.
As we loved it once, as children, so will childhood always love it.

Somewhere, somewhere we have stored them; on some dusty shelf we've laid them,
Every little holy figure, as our mothers bought or made them.
Bring them down this Christmas season. All their lives when comes December
That for them a creche we fashioned, they will happily remember.

Have the wise men, richly mantled, in the distant presents bringing,
And the angels in the heavens songs of hallelujah singing.
'Tis the loveliest scene of Christmas, so with reverence restore it.
Let the children help to make it; all their lives they will adore it.

BARBER POLE

The barber pole with spiral stripes is a relic of the days when barbers were also surgeons.

As early as the fifth century A.D. the barbers of Rome extracted teeth, treated wounds and bled patients as part of their professional work.

When the London barbers were incorporated in 1461 they were the only persons practicing surgery in the city. In the reign of Henry VIII Parliament passed a law providing that barbers should confine their activities to minor operations such as blood-letting and drawing teeth, while surgeons were prohibited from "barbery and shaving."

It was not until 1745, only 30 years before the American Revolution, that the barbers and surgeons of London were separated into distinct corporations, and the practise of surgery by barbers was not abolished in France, Germany and other European countries until much later.

The barber-surgeons generally bled their patients in the arm, and, in the days when few people could read and pictures and emblems were used as shop signs, the emblem of the profession was a spirally painted white and red pole from which suspended a brass basin with a semi-circular opening in the rim.

The white ground representing the bandage used in blood-letting, the red stripe represented blood, and the basin represented the vessel used to receive the blood.

Strangely it has been the barbers and not the surgeons who have retained, in a modified form, this ancient symbol of the profession.

In the United States the brass basin is generally omitted from the barber pole, but it is still common in Britain and on the Continent.

American barbers also add a blue stripe, perhaps to make the colors conform with those of the national flag.

COMRADES

Eventually Canadian reinforcements got across and the bridgehead was saved.

Saved by V.C. Winner.

"It sure will be something to tell my grand-children", said Blair, the only one of Smokey's group left with the regiment. "Not everyone has had his life saved by a V.C."

Smith also saved the life of another comrade, Pte. Kenny W. Ballard, Vancouver Piat gunner, when they were charged by the enemy.

The Seaforths were tickled that the first Canadian private soldier to win the V.C. in this war was a member of their unit. Incidentally in flying back to Britain last week Smith also became the first private soldier to return by air from this theatre. He is the Seaforth's first V.C. either of the First Great War or this war.

(A London dispatch said Smith received his V.C. from the King at a private investiture in Buckingham Palace Monday. He said he was "pleased" to take the decoration home to his mother for a "Christmas present".)

Smith is the 114th man and the eighth Canadian to win the V.C. in this war. Five of the eight Canadians were from British Columbia. Other Canadian V.C.'s.

Other Canadian V.C.'s of this war:

Lt.-Col. C. Cecil I. Merritt, Vancouver, now a prisoner of war in Germany, for heroism on the Beach of Dieppe, Aug. 19, 1942.

Capt. F. T. Peters of Prince Edward Island and Nelson, B.C., recognized when his Royal Navy ship forced the boom of Oran during North African landings, Nov. 8, 1942. He died later.

Maj. Paul Triquet, Cabano, Que., recognized for bravery with the Royal 22nd Regiment at Casa Berardi, Italy, Dec. 14, 1943.

Maj. Charles Ferguson Hoey, Duncan, B.C., recognized posthumously for service with the British army in the India-Burma campaign in February, 1944.

Maj. John Keefer Mahony, 32, New Westminster, B.C., for continuing successful direction of the holding of an Italian bridgehead, May 24, 1944, after being wounded three times.

Flt. Lt. David E. (Bud) Hornell, 34, Mimico, Ont., for pressing home a successful attack on a U-boat in June, 1944, which cost his life.

Maj. David Vivian Currie, 32, of Moose Jaw, Sask., and Owen Sound, Ont., for blocking and holding one of the main German escape routes out of the Falaise pocket August 20, 1944.

HIMMLER DIRECTING OPERATIONS, REPORTS SAY

With the 7th Army in Germany, Dec. 20 — (AP)—Heinrich Himmler is personally directing the Germans in the Colmar-Mulhouse pocket and on the Alsatian Plain, say reports received by the 7th Army. The Gestapo chieftain was said to have come to the Alsatian Plain to urge the German forces there to resist as strongly as possible.

$3,000 SECURED IN HOLDUP

Montreal, Dec. 20 — (CP)—Three men staged a $3,000 holdup at the Caisse Populaire Ste. Arsene here yesterday. Adelard Blais, the Caisse manager, told police that the men were "in such a hurry" they overlooked a newly-installed vault in which there was a "considerable" sum of money.

OPERATE ON USUAL HOURS

Toronto, Dec. 20 — (CP)—Ontario liquor stores and wine shops will operate on the usual daily hours of 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. during the Christmas and New Year season, it was announced by the Ontario Liquor Control Board yesterday. In former years it was the custom to keep later hours during the holiday season.

HUNGARY'S CAPITAL UNDER SIEGE

Red army forces have increased the pressure on German defenders of Budapest and furious artillery and tank battles are now being fought in many sectors about the almost-encircled city. Unconfirmed enemy reports say that fire rages out of control in many sections of the metropolis.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS
By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

SO YOU'RE GOING TO HAVE A BABY?

I address this talk to young men exclusively. Others who listen in must do so at their own peril.

First I offer a bit of advice to every young man who reads this column. Do you contemplate marriage or are you too wise to be so tied down? All right, you're not that kind. Well, then, do you intend to raise a family, God willing, while you both are young and fit and happy? Or is there enough of the rat in you, after all, to make you think it would be better to wait a year or two and have some fun or get the furniture, car or house paid for or get a lease with a clause in it before you have a baby?

You may, of course, get out of debt in a few years, you may even pay as you go and save a little besides. But don't kid yourself. That has little to do with happiness. I know. I was there. In the early days of practice more than once I had to go and hock my watch to starve off dire privation—but we were the richest people in town, for we had a baby. Despite the privations of our situation (and probably my shocking lack of business sagacity) we were young and fit and happy AND we had our baby.

Very well. You're a man, not a rat. You'll be happy if you have a baby, even if you haven't as fine clothes, furniture or front as many of the rats you know.

Your first concern, then, is to have the finest baby you can, and accordingly it is up to you to learn everything there is to learn about prenatal care—study everything right along with your wife, go with her to the doctor for instruction and advice and as chosen head of the family see that prospective mother and child get the best of care from the very beginning—and this is a matter of intelligence, not of financial circumstance.

Too many young men take the attitude that a wife's preparation for maternity is not a proper subject for the husband to be too concerned about. This is the way some hospital superintendents, head nurses and staff physicians like it. If they can keep the husband cooling his heels in the corridor or waiting room, that gives them complete freedom to perpetrate breaches of the rules of obstetric or surgical asepsis and whatever neglect it pleases them to inflict on mother or child—I know, because I have been there.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Silvery Scale Disease

Young man in our office sent for your pamphlet, began taking A and D as you suggested and obtained fine results—his skin is now almost entirely normal. He had never experienced any material improvement from medical treatment. Now there is another case of psoriasis in a young woman who has just started to work here. Won't you please send the pamphlet to her, too—I inclose stamped envelope directed to her.

(R. O. J.)

Answer — I am glad to send the pamphlet on psoriasis to any reader who provides stamped preaddressed envelop and mentions it —"The Silvery Scale Disease." Do not send a clipping in lieu of your own request. Frankly I don't know whether vitamin A alone, vitamin D alone, or both combined, would be most effective against psoriasis. I wish some of our readers who have the trouble would try it out—by taking only A, as directed in the pamphlet, for several months; then if not improved, taking only D for several months; finally, if still not much better, taking both together for several months.

Running Ear

Can infection from a chronic running ear be the cause of arthritis. The running ear dates back 35 years, to attack of acute inflammation and punctured drum —an ear specialist said later that it was mastoiditis.

(Mrs. L. T.)

Control Crossed

(Mrs. K. A. H.)

Brain centres for control of hands, arms, feet, legs, are on opposite side, but relative size of arteries does not determine handedness. X-ray examination could give no information. Approximately 4 out of each 100 persons is naturally left-handed, and there is nothing we can do or, I think, should try to do about it.

LADY THORNTON DIES

Montreal, Dec. 20 — (CP)—Word was received last night of the death in a nursing home near Philadelphia of Lady Thornton, widow of Sir Henry Worth Thornton, former chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways. Born in New Castle, Penn., the former Virginia Blair married Sir Henry in 1901 and came here with him from England in 1922.

Canadian Battle of Schelde Laid Base for Offensive Into Germany

By ROSS MUNRO
(CP War Correspondent)

With the First Canadian Army in Holland, Dec. 20 —(In one month's savage fighting, Canadian troops, aided in the later phases by British forces of the First Canadian Army, cleared the Germans from the Schelde estuary and opened the way to the great port of Antwerp, which became a vast Allied supply base for the Western Front.

While the Schelde battle was going on, other troops of the Canadian army with formations of the British Second Army engaged Germans in southwest Holland and drove them north of the Rhine. These victories on the Schelde and in southwest Holland were described by Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery Dec. 16 as the finest operation of the Western Front campaign. They gave the Allies the supply port and laid the foundation for the big offensive into Germany.

The Schelde battle began in early October, after the Canadian army had captured all the Channel ports, with the exception of Dunkerque. It was Western troops of the 3rd Division who launched the first assault on the Schelde, defended by the German 64th Division in the pocket south of the estuary and the 70th Division north of Antwerp and on South Beveland Island, which lies along the north side of the estuary. German coast defence troops bolstered the enemy force.

Heavy Opposition

On Oct. 6, the Regina Rifles, the Canadian Scottish and the Royal Winnipeg Rifles crossed the Leopold Canal into the Schelde pocket. They met extremely heavy opposition and for five days there was bloody fighting in the bridgehead. At times the Canadians held only the 10-foot wide dike on the north side of the canal. But the valiant westerners hung on to that bridgehead in a "little Arnhem" stand that is a highlight in heroism for the Canadians' campaign in the west.

Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, the Canadian Corps Commander here, was acting as Army commander, while Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar was recovering from an illness at that time, and when this strong opposition developed he sent the highland brigade against the pocket at another point. The highlanders landed from the sea southeast of Breskens in an attack which caught the Germans completely by surprise. A beachhead was won and other Canadian troops reinforced this success, attacking north and west into the pocket.

Meanwhile, the 2nd division had cleared the Germans from the northern outskirts of Antwerp and from a section of the Turnhout-Antwerp canal. It followed this up by striking north, driving the enemy back towards Bergen op Zoom. The division cut the causeway running from the Dutch mainland to South Beveland Island and by mid-October was ready to thrust along the causeway to South Beveland.

But the flank of the 2nd had to be screened and southwest Holland had to be cleared up too. So the 4th division, with British, Polish and American divisions, launched an attack northeast of Antwerp, while the 2nd British Army put in a co-ordinate attack westward from the Nijmegen salient.

Co-ordinated Attack

The attack began on October 20 and two days later the key town of Esschen, east of the Beveland causeway and right on the flank of the 2nd division, was captured by troops of the 4th division. The advance was pressed north from there to Bergen op Zoom, Roosendaal and Breda by the Canadian Army, while the second army took Hertogenbosch and Tilburg. This two-way thrust shattered the defence line of the 15th army in southwest Holland and 40,000 enemy troops rapidly withdrew north of the lower Rhine.

When the 4th division captured Esschen, the Highlanders of the 3rd division fought their way into Breskens, on the south shore of the mouth of the Schelde opposite Flushing. Then the 3rd fought westward through the pocket, capturing Schoondike, Oostburg, Sluis and destroying the last remnant of the 64th division at Knocke and Heyst on the north sea coast.

The battle ground was the worst in Europe. It was polder country—dead-flat reclaimed land, criss-crossed with dikes. Large areas were flooded and the Canadians had to battle their way from dike to dike sometimes knee deep in mud and water. The weather was cold and every day was foggy, gray and bleak. Air support was restricted and because of the flat nature of the district good artillery observation was difficult.

The infantry again bore the heavy burden of the battle, for it was practically impossible to use tanks in the polders.

Dike Warfare

On Oct. 24, the 2nd Division struck out along the causeway leading to South Beveland and they faced the same difficulties as the 3rd did in the pocket. They fought a vicious dike war, mile after muddy mile along Beveland. But they kept up relentless pressure and steadily drove back troops of the 70th Division. A ship canal crossing Beveland was a major obstacle but the 2nd Division made an assault crossing at night over this 300-foot waterway and pushed on to Goes, the principal town of Beveland, and to the causeway leading to Walcheren Island.

By the end of October, the 3rd Division had captured all the German batteries which could fire on the estuary from the south side and were mopping up around Knocke and Heyst.

The successes of the 2nd Division on South Beveland were bolstered by an assault landing made by troops of the British 52nd Lowland Division who crossed the Schelde in amphibious vehicles to go ashore on the southeast tip of the island on Oct. 26. After a few days the two forces linked up and swept through the rest of the island.

Schelde Battle Won

The climax to the Schelde battle came on Nov. 1 when British commandos and other troops of 52nd Division made the third sea-borne attack of the operation. They sailed from Breskens and landed right at Flushing. Three hours after this landing more British commandos were landed by the Royal Navy at West Kappelle on the western tip of Walcheren Island. The Navy suffered heavily from coastal gun fire but the commandos got ashore.

With these two forces on Walcheren, in addition to Canadian infantry who had won a bridgehead on Walcheren at the end of the causeway leading from south Beveland, the end came rapidly. Flushing was captured; Middelburg and Weere were taken; Walcheren, which had been more than half flooded weeks before when Royal Air Force heavy bombers burst the coastal dikes, was entirely overrun.

Canadians also occupied north Beveland and Tholen, two other Dutch islands.

But once the Schelde pocket was cleared and south Beveland and Walcheren captured, the estuary was open. The Royal Navy minesweepers went to work immediately and within a few weeks Allied convoys were sailing into the vast harbor of Antwerp, which had been captured intact by British troops of the second army in early September when that army rolled through Belgium.

Drove North to Rhine

In southwest Holland the Canadian army drove north to the Rhine which flows westward, as the Waal river, into the North Sea. The Canadians took Bergen Op Zoom, fought northwards to Steenbergen and the river. The British took Roosendaal and went north to the river on the right bank. On the right flank of the British the Americans and the Poles jumped ahead to the river too. On Nov. 9, in the first flurry of winter snow, the Poles eliminated a suicide pocket of Germans holding out at the southern end of the demolished Moerdijk bridges over the lower Rhine. This ended the battle for southwest Holland.

The American-British six-army offensive went in shortly afterwards and the Canadians relieved British troops in the Nijmegen salient. Some units took up positions inside the German border of Nijmegen.

On the Schelde, Canadian troops saw as heavy fighting as the 3rd division had in the beachhead and around Caen.

Cannifton

Cannifton — On December 13th the last euchre of the Community Club for this year was held in the Orange Hall. Two minutes of silent prayer were held for the late John Hansey who was killed in Italy, the first of the boys on this community's list to be lost overseas. The first on the list was Lyle Armstrong killed on active duty in Canada. A wreath is being placed on his grave as usual. 1944 activities included the sending of 45,000 cigarettes overseas, 69 boxes of chocolate, 33 packages of gum. In March 36 parcels were sent overseas, also in October 34 Christmas boxes were dispatched and $77 was sent to different personnel serving in Canada. 10 pairs of sox were given new recruits of this year. Donations have also been given the Red Cross and War Victims' Fund. This last has been made possible by the co-operation on the part of the community of Cannifton and Corbyville. The meeting closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne." The club will resume its activities in the new year.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

With R. C. A. F. Overseas, Dec. 19 —(CP)— The alertness of a Goose squadron crew returning from a bombing misson resulted in the rescue of seven airmen who had been adrift in a dinghy for 4½ hours.

The Halifax was well over the English Channel when the skipper, P.O. Reg Frankling of Windsor, Ont., saw distress flares. Dropping to low level the dinghy could be seen, bouncing around in heavy seas.

Wireless Operator P.O. Verne Martin of Port Arthur sent a message to Air Sea rescue headquarters in England.

Thirty minutes after Frankling landed on his last gasoline, the seven men in the dinghy were picked up by a destroyer.

Newsreel shots of flaming Brunswick, Germany, and the daylight bombing of the Tirpitz were taken by a Canadian, Flt. Lt. Jack Loftus of Toronto. He has made more than 15 trips with an R. A. F film unit on special photographic Lancaster bombers.

The flights are considered more dangerous than normal bombing runs because the film aircraft must hover a long time over the target to get good shots.

"We go early and stay late," said Loftus, who joined the R. C. A. F. in May, 1937, and did air photography at Trenton, Ont., in the Queen Charlotte Islands, and at Brantford, Ont., before the war.

A German defensive position at Donsbruggen, north of the forest of Reichswald, was heavily damaged by R. A. F. Typhoon rocket bombers led by Flt. Lt. L. M. Metcalfe of St. Thomas, Ont.

The position was concentrated around three houses and two were the main Typhoon targets.

"There was a dandy explosion from the yard," said Metcalfe. "It must have been a truck loaded with something that was just waiting to be blown up."

Yuletide Season Brings Cheer to Wartorn Britain

By ALLAN NICKLESON
(CP Staff Writer)

London —(CP— This will be Britain's brightest and tastiest wartime Yuletide.

Brightest—because of the almost-unanimous belief peace carols will prevent a seventh Christmas of conflict in Europe and because street lamps shine and house windows glow for the first time since the country took up arms.

Tastiest—because peacetime commodities that developed overnight into wartime luxuries are back in small quantities as the enemy retreats and because food stocks hoarded in Britain against the Nazi submarines and invasion threat have been released.

The long-awaited Allied invasion has come and gone and Britons got ready for the holiday with the promise that most war factories and shops would shut down for a long Christmas weekend. Comparatively, Berlin reported that a critical food situation would not allow for usual special Christmas rations in Germany this year.

There is sorrow and suffering to more than balance the scale, but generally the very young, who may even get a utility toy or two, and the very old, who can find comfort in an extra tea ration among other things, can't help but have their happiest year-end since the last peacetime Christmas in 1938.

The best present by far for a handful of families came early this month when 2,000 sun-tanned veterans of the Mediterranean war came home on Christmas leave to families they hadn't seen in years.

Changed Conditions

Not all came back to their old homes, however. With thousands upon thousands of other Britons some had lost dwellings and possessions through flying bombs and rockets. And in hundreds of homes Christmas will be another day of grief for relatives killed on the battlefronts or by Germany's indiscriminate use of V-weapons.

But whether in a bomb-damaged home or temporary "digs," there will be a slice or two of turkey for most and such almost-forgotten things as oranges, nuts, and ice cream will be on many tables.

Extra sugar, sweets, margarine and meat will be allowed. Extra supplies of dried fruit like raisins and dates have enabled housewives to make puddings of almost peacetime richness.

Improved lighting through the country—with London the last place to fall in line because of the varied lighting arrangements in the different boroughs—has lifted the gloom which confined millions to their homes after blackout.

Gifts are much more practical than other wartime years. Vouchers for the price of a good permanent wave are popular, as are vouchers for beauty treatments and manicures. Such articles for the home as vegetable graters and colanders—once considered far too ordinary for Christmas presents—now are considered ideal.

Toymakers have been allowed an extra 25 per cent of normal output and the 9,000,000 children of toy-receiving age will get more playthings this year. Promised shipments of thousands of toys from Belgium will help. As usual, too, organizations in Canada and the United States are shipping Christmas gifts to British children again this year.

J. Mahony, V.C., Given Welcome In Home Town

New Westminster, B.C., Dec. 20—(CP)—Maj. John Keefer Mahony, V.C., faced 3,000 cheering fellow-citizens here Monday night and told them in a quiet, informal address how it feels to come back to one's home town a hero.

"I'm not as nervous as I thought I'd be," he told the massed ranks of citizens out to welcome him back at a formal reception.

Characteristically turning the spotlight from himself to his regiment in Italy, the regiment he led into battle in the Malfa river fight in which he won the Empire's highest military decoration, the tall young officer said:

"I only wish this awful war were over and that tribute were being paid to them tonight—that they were sitting here on this platform."

Behind him on the platform at the arena here were four men who had won the Victoria Cross in the First Great War. they were PTMACOL. John MacGregor, V.C., M.C. and Bar, D.C.M., and Croix de Guerre; Lt.-Col. J. R. Strachan, V.C.; Lt.-Cmdr. R. Bourke, V.C., D.S.O., and Lieut. Robert Hanna, V.C.

Mrs. Merritt Attends.

Mrs. Cecil Merritt, wife of Lt.-Col. Merritt who won the Victoria Cross at Dieppe and now is a prisoner of war in Germany, was also on the platform.

Wing Cmdr. F. Ball Commands Swordfish Squadron in Britain

With R.C.A.F. Bomber Group in Britain, Dec. 20 — Wing Commander Frank Ball of St. Thomas, Ont., has been appointed commanding officer of the Swordfish squadron succeeding Wing Commander Joe Lacombe, D.F.C., of Acton Vale, Quebec. The latter relinquished command after successfully completing his first operational tour.

W.C. Ball started his tour with the Lion squadron and had completed nine trips when appointed to his new post.

A graduate of McMaster University W.C. Ball is a member of the permanent force, joining the R.C.A.F. in 1938. He is 28 years old. Before coming overseas, he served with the Directorate of Training, R.C.A.F. Headquarters, Ottawa; was chief instructor at Dauphin, Man.; squadron commander at Brantford and Chief Air Staff Officer at Goderich.

Mrs. Ball is the former Miss Athol Crosier of Belleville. Wing Commander Ball was at the Trenton air station for some months earlier in the war.

Indicted on Counts Of Plot to Slow Down Production

New York, Dec. 20 —(AP)— A special Federal Grand Jury Tuesday indicted Carl L. Norden, Inc., bombsight manufacturers, and a war plant survey firm and four individuals on charges of conspiring to slow down production of the war-vital Norden bombsights.

The indictments also charged a conspiracy aimed at forcing makers of war goods to employ the survey company, Corrigan, Osburne and Wells, Inc., specialists in the installation of production control systems for industrial concerns.

Individuals named were Theodore H. Barth, president, and Ward K. Marvelle, vice-president of the Norden company; Cmdr. John D. Corrigan of the U. S. Navy, as head of the survey firm, and Robert H. Wells, vice-president of the concern.

Elderly Woman Found Destitute Had $35,000 Hidden Throughout House

Hamilton, Dec. 20 —(CP) About $35,000 in bonds and cash was accidentally discovered by police yesterday when they visited an east end home here to remove an elderly woman, whose husband has been living on a pension, to hospital.

Police reported the house was cold and cheerless, empty of food. Police said the husband was just as astounded as police to discover in one room bonds hidden under a mattress, a considerable amount of cash in an old box under the flooring, and eight bank books with balance of more than $2,000 in each.

Chief Constable Joseph R. Crocker, refusing to divulge the couple's name, said: "The husband knew absolutely nothing about the wealth possessed by his wife as she had kept her business affairs strictly private at all times." He added the bonds were all gilt-edged security, properly registered in her name.

The husband later told police he recalled his wife many years ago had fallen heir to certain legacies but had not disclosed particulars to him.

Mrs. Roy Sills Elected President Zion W.M.S.

Zion. — Mrs. Delbert Rowe was hostess for the December meeting of Zion W.M.S. with its Christmas program. After the usual opening exercises, reports were heard from the various secretaries. It is gratifying to note that the Zion W.M.S. has raised the allocation and voted to send to the Presbyterial treasurer the fifteen per cent increase which was requested. The Mission Band had raised nearly $25 while the mite boxes from the Baby Band brought in the sum of $6.

A beautiful Worship Service was conducted by the President "A Canadian Friendship Service" with candle lighting and carols in which several ladies took part.

Mrs. Clifford Ketcheson led in a study period from the Study Book "West of the Date-Line". A Christmas Story, "The Little Clock-Maker", was told by Mrs. Ralph Sills. The thought conveyed to the listeners was that it is not the value of the gift that is given but the love that goes into it. Prayer by Mrs. Tufts closed the meeting. There were nine Auxiliary members present, one Mission Band member and three babies. The collection for the day was $2.40. Mrs. Rowe served a dainty lunch and a social time was spent. The following is the slate of officers for 1945, as brought in by the convenor of the Nominating Committee:

President—Mrs. Roy Sills.
1st Vice President—Mrs. Clifford Ketcheson.
2nd Vice President—Mrs. Clifford Bay.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. Ralph Sills.
Press Secretary—Mrs. Wm. Tufts.
Corresponding Secretary — Mrs. Harold Beatty.
Treasurer—Mrs. R. Bennett.
Christian Stewardship Secretary—Mrs. F. Searles.
Community Friendship Secretary—Mrs. H. K. Denyes.
Supply Secretary—Mrs. Sloane.
Associate Members Secretary — Mrs. L. Brough.
Sec. of Temperance and Christian Citizenship— Mrs. H. Casey.
Missionary Monthly and World Friends' Secretary—Mrs. K. Denyes.
Mission Band Leader—Mrs. Percy Bay.
Baby Band Leader — Mrs. D. Rowe.
Pianist —Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson
Group Leaders — Mrs. Clifford Ketcheson, Mrs. D. Cranston, Mrs. H. Beatty, Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson.

WEDDINGS

HANDLEY—McFAUL

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the parsonage of the Picton United Church on Friday, December 15, when Mirian Jean, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Corey McFaul, became the bride of James Earl, only son of Mrs. D. Handley, Cherry Valley. Rev. E. A. McCutcheon officiated at the ceremony which took place at three o'clock.

The bride was attractive in a street length dress of cornflower blue Satin crepe, two-piece style, with crown hat and accessories. Her corsage was of deep rose carnations and bouvardia.

Miss Theda McFaul was her sister's attendant. She wore a fuchsia Satin crepe dress with pleated trimming and navy hat and accessories. Her corsage was of pale rose carnations and bouvardia.

The best man was Mr. Harold Pennell.

The happy couple left immediately following the ceremony on a honeymoon which will be spent at Ottawa and eastern points. For travelling, the bride donned a blue coat, muskrat trimmed, over her wedding dress.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Handley will reside on the groom's farm near Milford.

SET UP RESERVE FUND

Brantford, Dec. 20 — (CP)—City council last night passed a by-law setting up a special reserve fund of $190,481 for post-war provision of necessary replacements, improvements and adjustments in public works.

BLANKET APPEAL REJECTED

London, Ont., Dec. 20 — (CP)—A blanket appeal against the assessments on about $1,250,000 worth of Canadian National Railways buildings and properties in London was rejected last night by the city court of revision. Values placed by the city assessment department were upheld.

Christmas Concert

FOXBORO PUBLIC SCHOOL

Foxboro.—The Christmas closing exercises of the Foxboro Public School drew a capacity audience in the United Church Sunday School parlors on Monday evening.

Carmen Hopkins, a pupil who has been a patient at the Shriners' Hospital, Montreal, for the past five years, acted as chairman.

The program was as follows:

"O Canada" by the School.

A Choral Welcome by Joyce Woodward, Margaret Healey, Dorothy Kelly.

Acrostic: "Christmas Greetings" by Primary pupils.

Playette: "Santa's Helpers" by Juniors.

The Doll Drill.

A group of Junior girls recited "We're Waiting for the Twenty-Sixth".

An operetta: "Rumpelstiltskin", outstanding characters being:

The Queen—Muriel Wannamaker.
The King—Bruce Burd.
Rumpelstiltskin, (The Dwarf) — Donnie Wannamaker.
The Herald— Keith Derry.

Two lovely carols by the Senior pupils directed by Miss Margaret Atkinson, music instructor: "Here We Come a-Carolling"; "Christmas Hymn" in three parts.

National Anthem.

At the close of the program all were invited to the classrooms of the Public School where the children's work in crafts and manual training was on display. Note books containing stories and illustrations in Social Studies and Natural Science and weed collections, seed collections, and an array of mounted insects at different stages proved of real interest to parents and friends. A "moving picture" of "The Evolution of the Aeroplane" formed an interesting exhibit along with several model planes built by pupils.

In the Senior room a tea table attractive in the Christmas colors was presided over by Senior girls wearing dainty-colored aprons and caps, results of their own handiwork. A booth selling war-savings stamps did a flourishing business.

Since the opening in September the school has sold seventy-five dollars worth of war-savings stamps, contributed thirty-two dollars to Red Cross, raised $19.30 for the Navy League, collected thirty bags of milkweed in the milkweed collection, and conducted two very successful salvage collection drives.

MADOC

Women's Institute Members Plan More Work for Red Cross

Madoc — The December meeting of Madoc's Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. S. R. Beatty on Friday afternoon with a fair attendance. Carol singing with Mrs. J. Aylesworth at the piano, opened the meeting. Mrs. G. C. Moon, war work convener, reported on the activities of war work committee showing a balance of $171 on hand after sending parcels overseas to 36 Madoc boys and girls on active service. Several letters of replies of appreciation of the gifts were read. It was decided that the members plan to give an afternoon as often as possible to work in the Red Cross rooms. Arrangements were made to send flowers and some potted plants to the older members for Christmas. The delegate to Area Convention, Mrs. Hill, gave her report and presented many worthwhile thoughts and suggestions. Mrs. B. Tanner gave a reading "Christmas All Over the World." The guest speaker for the meeting was Rev. Father Hyland who chose as his subject "The Future Status of Women in Public Affairs." His address was most instructive and he left to the members many worthwhile suggestions and thoughts. A vote of appreciation was tendered to Father Hyland for his address. Miss M. Bronson conducted a contest on "The Business Men of Madoc." The singing of the National Anthem concluded the meeting. Mrs. Moon, Mrs. Ken Nicol and Mrs. C. Whytock assisted the hostess in serving afternoon tea.

Promoted to Captain.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nayler received word from their son, Joe, that he had received his commission and now ranks as Captain Nayler. Joe left for overseas one year ago last June and has seen most of his active service in Italy. He is a nephew of Major E. T. Nayler of Kingston, Percy of Madoc and John of Arvida, all three being veterans of the Great War.

Late Rev. G. W. Rivers.

News of the sudden passing of the Rev. G. W. Rivers at Richmond Hill on Tuesday afternoon was a great shock to the citizens of Madoc. Rev. Rivers was the pastor of Trinity United Church in Madoc for eight years and won the esteem of every citizen as well as members of his congregation during his stay in this village. He is survived by his wife and two sons, Raymond, now overseas, Rev. Gray Rivers, and one daughter, Lillian, C.W.A.C., of Calgary. Interment took place at Richmond Hill.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Ashley are spending a few days with their son, Douglas and Mrs. Ashley, at Arnprior.

Mr. G. Ballard of Saskatoon, is visiting his sister, Mrs. W. Grey, in Madoc.

Mrs. Fraser Aylesworth is leaving for Ottawa on Monday where she will spend the holiday season with her sister, Mrs. Cluffe and Mr. Cluffe.

C.S.M. Cecil Yearwood of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment arrived home on Saturday from overseas. Cecil Yearwood is one of the Mers having left Picton just five years ago with the Hasting and Prince Edward Regiment for overseas and has seen active service in Sicily and Italy. His wife and three children reside in Madoc.

KNIGHTS OBSERVE APPROACH OF YULE WITH HAPPY PARTY

The approach of the Noel was celebrated in all the traditional gaiety of holiday season in the Knights of Columbus Hall on Tuesday evening, when the Knights entertained their wives and children at a jolly Yuletide party.

For the occasion, the hall was a delightful scene of Christmas color. Christmas lights twinkled in a riot of multi-hue. There was a tall spruce tree dressed in its Christmas best, and there was even a fat, cheery Santa Claus, who distributed gifts as well as toy horns to all the children.

Featured entertainers for the evening were Bill Havin who played piano selections, chiefly Christmas songs and carols, and Danny Roy Smith who with his guitar played and sang numbers which delighted the ears of all the small tots.

Honored guests at the party were Monsignor J. F. Nicholson and Father A. L. O'Donnell. Monsignor spoke a few words to the assemblage, and based his remarks primarily on the meaning of Christmas and the coming of the Prince of Peace. He wished each and everyone present the joys of the holiday season and happiness in the New Year.

Mrs. Thomas Laycock entertained Bethel Woman's Association for its Christmas meeting. Plans were made for a pie social early in the New Year. A splendid program was enjoyed and refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

ONLY TWO PLATES FOUND

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 20. (CP)—About 20 persons were injured, only two of them seriously, when a bus carrying workers to the Welland Chemical plant collided with another bus during heavy fog. Twelve persons lost their sets of false teeth, and only two plates were found intact.

Want to Be Good-Looking? Then Mind Your Manners!

Loraine Day has both beauty and charm.

By HELEN FOLLETT

IN THE pursuit of good looks, it is well to keep in mind that perfect features and the divine form should be accompanied by charming manners, otherwise they don't mean much. They appeal to the eye, and that's an advantage, of course, but they do not appeal to the heart. A woman may be as plain as Paddy's pig, but, if she has a sweet voice, a kindly wit, is gracious and endearing, she has Miss Lovely beat a mile.

Tact is a quality of charm. Cultivate it if you feel that you are lacking. It tells one what is the right thing to do, the nice thing to say. It creates the attitude toward others by which one wins affectionate regard. To be tactful is to pay the other fellow the most flattering attention. It is mental grace; it is heart beauty. It makes one an interested listener, because self is not uppermost.

Praise Generously.

If you would be charming, be generous in your praise of other women. The moment she says a catty thing, one is looked upon with suspicion, for cattiness knows no limit. One endears oneself to others with graciousness, not bitterness or criticism.

A charming woman is tolerant. Knowing her own shortcomings, she overlooks those in other people. Even the smartest among us may say something stupid now and then. She never brags or boasts. She does not talk endlessly about her personal affairs.

A great deal of time is spent on the cultivation of physical loveliness, petting the complexion, arranging the curly locks, tinting the finger nails, dressing the svelte shape. And that's all right, if it doesn't keep one too long before the mirror and the dressing table.

But a little time now and then should be given over to meditation concerning the art of living, learning how to get along happily with one's fellow creatures. In other words, every effort should be made to cultivate beauty of the soul, which is charm.

Tailor-Made Legs of Hollywood

(By Gertrude Bailey in The New York World-Telegram)

When a girl in the movies gets a run in her stocking she calls for Willy of Hollywood. When a star's legs don't match her glamour, he gets an S.O.S. from her studio. For contrary to popular belief, some of the most beautiful stars have imperfect legs and this amazing stocking man knows how to hide them.

According to Willy, Hedy LaMarr has "piano legs" which he disguises with dark stockings—gunmetals, blacks or dark browns — or with stockings that have vertical ribs, clocks and pointed heels to give a slenderizing effect.

He turns seams toward the outside for Norma Shearer and Myrna Loy who are bowlegged, and puts the seams on the inside for Greer Garson because she's knock-kneed. "The eye follows the seam, not the shape of the leg", he explains.

To make a ballerina out of Loretta Young, Willy had to pad her legs. He used rubberized pads, then an understocking of skin tone and a regular stocking on top of that.

But not all of Willy's work is confined on outwitting nature. He's the man who created 14-karat gold mesh stockings at $350 a pair for Marlene Dietrich and designed a stocking with a zipper pocket in the top where Betty Grable could hide a key.

Willy predicts that in post war days we'll be wearing giddy-colored stockings; hose made of vinyon (Carbon yarn) which are sheerer than nylon and will dry in three minutes, and he's working on a stocking with three elastic sections at the top which can be put off according to the length of the leg. Another of his pet ideas is to make stockings with elastic heels to fit sizes 8 1-2 or 10 1-2.

Beautiful legs? Yes, there are some, and here is Willy's own test: Four inches difference between the measurements for ankle and calf, and seven inches difference between the measurements for calf and thigh, spell perfect legs.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Soldier Decline to Be Doubting Thomas

Dear Miss Fairfax;

A couple of weeks ago I noticed a letter in your column from a serviceman that fitted my case exactly. The soldier had a nice little wife but his family couldn't forgive him for marrying her because it cut them out of his insurance, so they began writing that she was having great times with other men. My family tried the same dodge on me, and I wrote them a letter and threatened to break off all communications with them if they ever wrote like that again.

They apologized and said they were mistaken, but it has really killed half my affection for them. Any fellow who believes such tales about his wife when he knows her to be a good girl is unworthy of his uniform.

Another Soldier

It's amazing what insurance will do. It's far more of a family wrecker than "the other woman." A man who allows unfounded gossip—no matter what the source—to fill him with suspicion deserves no sympathy. Don't be a Doubting Thomas, even if your great-Aunt Jemima tells you your wife is having a grand time on her allowance.

Would You Like It If Your Sister wrote to your Fiancee Overseas?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am in my upper twenties and have a sister a bit younger than I am. I became engaged to a fine young man three months ago. He's in the service, now overseas.

My sister always seemed quite fond of him, and started corresponding with him and both of them showed me most of the letters, as they were really only friendly. She has never asked me if I minded if she wrote him, and therefore I can't help saying I don't like it.

I don't want to appear selfish, but I am a little jealous. She's quite attractive and has many friends. She lives quite a distance from where I do, so probably I don't know all about it. How can I handle this without hurting either one of them? She knows I'm engaged.

Puzzled

Why don't you say to your sister, as tactfully as possible, the next time you see her: "It's mighty good of you to take so much interest in my future husband. But why don't you pick out an overseas correspondent of your own?" If you say this in the proper way without showing the least bit of feeling, I think she'll realize that she's being silly or perhaps unintentionally disloyal.

If she's of a flirtatious type, she probably thinks that even a future brother-in-law is worth a few sprightly letters. I think any girl in your position would be apt to resent this correspondence. You'll have to handle this question very carefully.

Seems a matter of Professional Courtesy

Seems to Be Just a Matter of Professional Courtesy

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Several months ago, I had to be in the hospital, and while there, one of the internes who took care of me was exceptionally gracious and really went out of his way to make me more comfortable and happy. When I came home, I wrote him a letter of thanks, etc.

Not long ago he called up saying he is going into the service and while he would like to call on me, couldn't possibly make it. Last week I received a friendly and interesting letter from Camp. I showed it to my husband, who said I ought to answer it. (My husband met the interne at the hospital.)

I'm sure he has no ulterior motive, nor have I, but he just wants to be friends. Some friends have told me to ignore the letter, and I'm just wondering what would be correct?

(Mrs.) D.

Doctors are human as well as the rest of us. Some patients and also their case histories—are more interesting than other peoples and their ailments. You thanked him: he wrote you a polite note in reply. I agree with your husband, there was nothing irregular in an exchange of friendly notes between physician and patient.

FASHION FLASHES

FIRST FAVORITE with many women who like flower prints is the rose cluster print. A charming new frock cut on flaring tunic lines has clusters of apricot and red roses on a black ground with a cascade of matching roses at the off-centre square neckline.

There's a whisper of Spring in a pretty new suit of pink gabardine. It is made with hand pinked edges and has slot pockets. The high rise skirt has a panel pleated front and plain panel back.

Cited for Spring is a trim coat of white woollen, cut on simple lines with club collar and self button closing. It relies for effect on elbow-length cuffs of black fox.

Step out and see the new Spring shoes—once again in color. Black or blue suede with red binding is used for a wide-band sandal with high, Louis heel and open back.

Most effective glove of the season, we think, is the glove of black suede with open latticework from wrist to elbow, making wonderful use of a small amount of leather.

Conversation piece is the only possible name for a bag we saw last week. An enormous pouch of butter-soft, highly polished brown alligator, it had a wide frame of shell and huge gilt initials. Worn with a simple brown suit it was extremely effective.

ITS ABOUT TIME to check your shopping list. If you find you need one or two more house gifts, consider this idea. A basket filled with pine cones. It stands by the fireplace and when empty is used for kindling.

Farm Forum Group Holds Enjoyable Evening

Carrying Place.—A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by the Centre Farm Forum Group at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vanclief on Monday. Following the radio broadcast which was a review of the findings of the forums across Canada on the month's topic—"People—Builders of the Community",—a social time was spent.

Miss Walters conducted an amusing contest 'Touch and Name', with Mrs. Ken Green and Ralph Redner, being the winners. Mrs. Harmon Montgomery led in an 'Ice' contest with Miss Walters and Mr. Redner as winners. Mrs. Roy Brickman led in a game of Bingo with many receiving prizes.

At the close, Mr. and Mrs. Vanclief served refreshments, and all expressed their appreciation of the pleasant evening the Group had been given. There were twenty-six present. The next meeting will be on Jan. 8, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Pulver.

PICTON

Power Disrupted For 2½ Hours On Saturday

Picton, Dec. 20—Saturday afternoon from 3 to 5.30 p.m. all Hydro power was off in Picton and district, due to a broken high tension cable at Bloomfield. The afternoon was dull and several large stores, without light, were forced to close. Others that remained open did little business. There was no theatre matinee. There was a huge crowd of shoppers in town, many just able to get out after the storm. Merchants lost many thousands of dollars' business as a result of the lack of power.

Sunday saw further high winds and snow flurries and snow plows were again in action. While all county roads were passable, the snow had not been winged back into the ditch and the narrower path filled rapidly.

Cheese Producers.

Prince Edward County Cheese Producers Association annual meeting on Saturday heard addresses stressing the need of high quality cheese in order to hold post-war markets.

Provincial Secretary of the association S. L. Jose dealt fully with floor prices for cheese after the war, the pasture improvement scheme and artificial insemination.

President W. H. Montgomery dealt with cattle diseases and believed the program of artificial insemination being carried out in Leeds County should be extended.

Agricultural Representative F. J. Webster said there were five demonstration plots of four acres each, of permanent pastures. It is planned to extend this work.

Dairy Instructor E. W. Henderson urged all farmers to send clean milk to factories in order that high quality can be maintained.

Officers elected were: President, W. H. Montgomery; vice president, C. Peck; secretary, C. H. Fraleigh; auditor, W. Bedell; directors, Harold Bonter, E. Walt, C. Barber, A. Lloyd, W. Walmsley, O. Handley, R. Simpson, F. Hope, C. Tice, H. Burley, E. Keogh, M. Williams, C. Pearce, W. Bedell.

Delegates to the provincial convention are T. Ackerman, E. Walt, O. Handley, R. Richards, W. Bedell, M. Williams, C. Barber, R. Simpson, C. Fraleigh, L. Allison, G. Ackerman, A. Lloyd, C. Pearce, C. Peck, H. Spencer.

Winners Announced.

Winners of prizes in the draw held at the Rotary jamboree Saturday night were: breakfast suite, L. Pymer, Bloomfield; cedar chest, Miss A. Macri; wrist watch, John VanDusen, Picton; floor lamp, Harold Vincent, Picton; coffee table, Mrs. D. Campbell, Picton; ton coal, Llewellyn Hughes, Waupoos; 15-lb. turkey, Clair Laundry, Cherry Valley; case oil, Morice Galway, Picton.

Senator Davies Returns to Canada

By the Canadian Press

Ottawa, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Back in Canada after a month in the United Kingdom, Senator W. Rupert Davies declared Britons still are making "tremendous sacrifices" to help win the war and their spirit is high.

Senator Davies, publisher of the Kingston, Ont., Whig-Standard and a director of The Canadian Press, returned with Roy H. Thomson of the Thomson Dailies. Mr. Thomson is Vice-President of Press News, the radio affiliate of The Canadian Press.

Both newspapermen said the coverage being given Canadians on news from Britain and the fighting fronts was "very good." Senator Davies noted also that Canada's conscription issue had been fully covered in the British press and that the British public had shown tremendous interest in the situation.

As for Britain itself, Senator Davies said, the population was undergoing severe hardships. V-bombs were still creating damage, but "the people are not unduly worried."

Mr. Thomson, who travelled to Paris during his stay abroad, found France "very disorganized."

"The black market is rampant," he said. "There is little or no transport, and many other facilities are still lacking."

$1,000 REWARD OFFERED

Toronto, Dec. 20 —(CP) Chief Constable D. C. Draper last night announced that a $1,000 reward would be given for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Michael Jakiwchyk, 52-year-old cobbler, last Saturday.

On his right thigh is a large knife to cut him loose from the tow rope in the event of a hitch in the plan to draw him into the plane that picked him off the ground. He wears a back-type parachute. At RIGHT you see Sergt. Conway, dangling at the end of the tow rope after the flying pickup from the ground. A winch inside the plane is drawing him aloft.

The War Today—

Danger in Allied Threat at Duren Seen Reason for Nazi Offensive

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
(AP War Analyst)

Fighting continues along the 70-mile front of the mighty German counter-offensive which thundered out of the Rhineland so suddenly. It's a critical moment, but, as this column remarked yesterday, there's no occasion for panic.

Unofficial reports say that the U. S. 1st Army, along whose front the Germans have flung the bulk of their weight, appears to be holding the flanks of the enemy offensive. If that's confirmed it is indeed good news, for it will mean that thus far the Allies have avoided the grave danger of a complete breakthrough and the turning of Allied flanks.

The greatest threat to the Allied front seems to be in the Aachen sector. Aachen, captured after a blistering siege, is the funnel through which the Allies have been pouring their weight against the Roer river and Duren — anchor of the German line there. Duren is the gateway to the Cologne plain, which in turn gives access to the Rhenish city of Cologne and Germany's great industrial area of the Ruhr.

The Allied drive against Duren has presented the biggest danger to the German defence against invasion. Undoubtedly it was because the enemy high command foresaw a great Allied offensive into the Cologne plain in the immediate future that the counter-offensive was launched.

Possible Nazi Objectives

Now one of Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's chief objectives is to cut the U. S. 1st Army front southeast of Aachen and turn Lt.-Gen. Hodges' flank so that he will have to swing back northward and abandon Aachen. This also would be calculated to give the Germans possession of the Belgian fortified city of Liege — a disaster for the Allies, because this rail and road hub is the main distributional centre for Allied supplies and reinforcements intended for the front from north of Aachen all the way to Luxembourg.

Should the Allies lose Aachen and Liege, the Germans might even have dreams of capturing Antwerp, the great Canadian-won port upon which General Eisenhower is so heavily dependent for all his supplies from overseas.

However, latest reports indicated that Hodges not only was holding along the Aachen sector but was counter-attacking and had even sent patrols into Duren, on the east bank of the Roer. The German advance has been south of there against a comparatively thinly-held line.

PEDESTRIAN BY-LAW KILLED

Toronto, Dec. 20 —(CP)—Toronto's pedestrian traffic by-law died an unwept death yesterday when city council on recommendation of Board of Control referred it to next year's Civic Works Committee. The freak law was in force for just five days, providing such things as a $10 fine for pedestrians passing other pedestrians on the left instead of the right. Police officers said that no arrests had been made under the by-law. Controller Robert Saunders told council "this by-law has made Toronto the laughing-stock of the whole country."

Cattle Herds Now Flourishing In the Dominion

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 20—(CP)—Canada, which two years ago was harried by beef shortages in many cities, today counted cattle herds flourishing in abundance, and besides supplying an enlarged home demand could ship the United Kingdom more than 100,000,000 pounds of beef in a year.

Agriculture Department officials said that production of meats generally represented a triumph. Immense bacon shipments to maintain the United Kingdom bacon ration are continuing, with the hope that hog production will be held at continued high levels because of British Food Ministry contracts which ensure a continued market and steady prices for two years.

While turkeys were not abundant for Christmas tables, the Agriculture Department said there were ample supplies of other poultry even after a year of unusually heavy exports to the United States and United Kingdom.

In 50 weeks of 1944, sales of cattle at public stockyards and shipments direct to cattle plants totalled 1,426,376 head, a gain of 274,229 over the same period in 1943. Sales and shipments of calves were up 57,704 head and sheep 100,419 head. Inspected slaughterings of hogs were up 1,788,412 head.

Splendid Feed Crop.

Officials said that the increases in herds had been made possible in the first instance by a bumper feed crop harvested in 1942.

Prices Board officials said that in some cases the actual selling prices of meat to customers are less than ceilings such as those imposed on the best porter-house steak, 55 to 57 cents a pound, depending on locality, and rump roast averaging 44 cents a pound, with the lowest prices on the Prairies where large numbers of beef cattle are raised.

Fancy sliced bacon has a ceiling price of from 52 to 56 cents a pound, again depending on locality.

Authorities said that the only concern about future production has been in respect to hogs. Canada may ship a total of 700,000,000 pounds of bacon to the United Kingdom in 1944 and would like to be able to continue shipments as near this rate as possible. But there have been reports that many farmers, especially in the West, are reducing the number of hogs being raised. The fear is that unless Canadian production is kept up the British bacon ration of four ounces a week will have to be reduced.

Take All Surplus Beef.

The United Kingdom has made clear it will take all the surplus beef Canada can provide in the next two years. In July, Agricultural Minister Gardiner revealed an agreement under which 100,000,000 pounds of beef as a minimum would be exported in the two years 1944 and 1945. But it was announced in November that more than 100,000,000 had been shipped, with the minimum for two years exceeded in one.

Shipments of beef cattle to the United States were halted two years ago because of the domestic shortages. Some livestock producers have urged that this restriction be lifted in view of the surpluses which have developed but the government has said that Canadian cattle are not needed in the United States at present and the intention is to continue shipping surpluses to the United Kingdom.

SOME LICENCES DEFERRED

Brockville, Ont., Dec. 20 — (CP)—Authorities of 57 hotels and clubs in Stormont, Dundas, Glengarry, Leeds, Grenville, Frontenac and Addington counties to sell beer and wine were renewed by the Hotel Authority Board sitting here Tuesday afternoon. Renewals of authorities were deferred for the New Princess, Kingston, the Royal, Kingston, Dillon House, Cardinal, Commercial, Crysler, and Ottawa Hotel, Berwick.

Judge W. T. Robb presided.

Citation Explains Award of D.S.O. To Junior Officer

Ottawa, Dec. 20 — (CP)—Unusual in Canadian military annals, a Distinguished Service Order has been awarded a junior officer—Capt. Ian MacDonald Grant of Vancouver and Victoria, Three Rivers Tank Regiment — and the reason for the departure from normal commendation is shown in the citation announced with 16 others by Defence Headquarters here today.

Only 24, Grant took the initiative when senior officers were put out of action, defeated at least two enemy counter-attacks and assured the piercing of the Trasimeno line in Italy last June.

Military circles said that ordinarily, a Military Cross award went to junior officers for gallantry, with the Victoria Cross being given in exceptional cases. The D.S.O. is usually given to officers of the rank of major and higher who have responsibility of taking initiative in battle. However, in this case, Grant took over when his superiors' tanks were knocked out and the citation says in part:—

Of Highest Order

"The cool daring, initiative, complete disregard for his personal safety and superb leadership displayed by Capt. Grant in the face of terrific odds and under murderous fire was of the highest order and resulted in the objective being gained, the piercing of the Trasimeno line, the collapse of at least two counter attacks, which undoubtedly saved a squadron (of tanks) and its accompanying infantry from heavy losses in tanks and men.

"Further, his personal example was such an inspiration to the men under his command that they were able to carry the fight over nearly unsurmountable obstacles into the very centre of a heavily defended locality."

Longest of War

The citation ran more than 600 words — one of the longest of this war. Briefly, Grant's senior officers were put out of action and he pressed on with an attack with inferior forces and with both flanks exposed by his regiment's losses. Down to 3 tanks, he scored heavily on the enemy and made the remnants retire.

When counter-attacks developed he beat them off and when the enemy tried to infiltrate into his lines he got on foot and audaciously pointed out the advancing groups to his tankmen, who polished them off.

All the time he was exposed to heavy fire and "escaped injury and death time and again." He beat off other attacks and then took the battle to the enemy, forcing him to retire and assuring consolidation of the Canadian position.

Toronto, Dec. 20 — (CP) — If Vernon Huck, 17-year-old goalie of Notre Dame Hounds in Winnipeg, appears in an N.H.L. goal within the next few years he will qualify as one of our modern Horatio Alger, Jr., characters . . . Huck has been signed by Toronto Maple Leafs after appearing in exactly eight games of organized hockey. He will probably have to take his ice schooling for the next couple of years in the 'Peg, since the Manitoba hockey body has banned export of his particular type of hockey commodity. Usually, Leaf "futures" were taken east to play with one of the Toronto junior farm clubs.

Distance Detracts

Prospects for a top-flight pro hockey loop on the west coast after the war aren't so bright, says Carl (Vancouver News-Herald) Robertson. The game will have quite a revival when peace returns, but the remoteness of the coast will make it almost impossible to establish a Pacific coast league as number two professional circuit. N.H.L. teams won't want to send players so far away for seasoning, and would prefer to have them closer home . . . that might have some bearing on the situation, but if promoters want to throw their weight behind the plan, there shouldn't be too much difficulty. The old coast loop operated quite successfully several years, and didn't have the advantage of modern-day travel.

Bauer Baedeker:

The Bauer family of Waterloo, Que., gets around it seems. The five Bauer brothers, who have kept Waterloo quite prominent on the hockey map for years, all are in the services now and still travelling. Most noted of the quintet is elder brother Bobby, former Boston Bruin and member of the 1942 Allan Cup winners, Ottawa R.C.A.F. Flyers. Youngster Dave played with Oshawa Generals last spring after seasoning with St. Michael's College of Toronto. Eugene, Raymond and Jerome aren't quite as well known.

Here and There:

Everybody seemed anxious to make Dean Griffing feel at home when he went to Calgary to live. Even Al Ritchie, Regina coach and former football associate of the Griffing, wrote to friends in Calgary telling them to cultivate Griff's acquaintance and "make him feel at home." Calgarians expect the galloping Griffing to put their city on the football map . . . Harness racing is flying high in the Maritimes right now. A new racing circuit has been formed in eastern New Brunswick . . . Winnipeg is going for basketball in a big way, and 2,200 fans turned out for the final game of the autumn season the other day . . .

Legion President Praises Branches

Ottawa, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Alex Walker, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, today congratulated the Legion's 1,400 branches in a Christmas message on bringing the "reinforcement issue" to what he termed a "definite conclusion."

Mr. Walker's message said in part:—

"For the Legion, the year just passed has been a most eventful one. A great many problems have arisen to confront us, but it is doubtful if, in Legion history, there has been any more serious challenge than that of the reinforcement issue which came to the fore a few weeks ago and was brought — more by Legion efforts than anything else— to a definite conclusion.

"This was a national issue of grave significance and one we had been watching carefully for many months and years. When we decided to act, we did so with promptness and determination.

"However, our determination would have meant very little had it not been for the whole-hearted and immediate support we received from all Legion branches across the country."

OLD SEADOG STILL FIGHTS

London —(CP)— Capt. Le Meur, a Breton, is 62, but that doesn't stop him fighting against the Germans. As a Fighting French navy skipper he's hard at it and in the course of his career has earned 11 medals and 40 bullet wounds.

HAMILTON MAJORS SOLIDIFY HOLD ON TOP POSITION

Defeat St. Catharines Saints With Brady and Conick Starring

By The Canadian Press

After a lengthy lapse, O. H. A. Senior hockey came to the fore last night at St. Catharines where Hamilton Majors solidified their hold on first place with a 4-1 victory over Saints, their closest rivals. Hamilton's ace snipers, Johnny Conick and Dillon Brady, leaped to the top of the individual scoring table with 12 points each. The previous pace-setters, Doc Dafoe and Redy Carr, both of Toronto Staffords, now are second with 10 points apiece.

The team record for Majors stands at three victories and one tied game, with no defeat, for seven points, against Saints' four points on two victories and three setbacks. Staffords are third in the standing with three points.

Conick last night scored two of Hamilton's four counters and added an assist while Brady was responsible for three assists. Majors' other goal went to Doug Runions and Dinning. For St. Catharines, Adamson scored on a set-up by Benchley.

Browns' Capture Of Flag Biggest Sports Surprise

New York, Dec. 20 —(AP)— St. Louis Browns' capture of their first American League pennant was proclaimed today the biggest sports surprise of 1944 in the annual year-end poll by The Associated Press.

Virtually all the 83 sport writers participating in the poll mentioned the Browns' achievement with 40 ranking it first. Altogether the Browns received 141 points, 48 more than Army's 59-0 football rout of Notre Dame last month.

This touchdown parade earned 22 first-place ballots and numerous second and third-place votes for 93 points.

Far behind in third place with 12 points was Bob Hamilton's feat of winning the P. G. A. golf championship. Hamilton, an "unknown" from Evansville, Ind., beat the great Byron Nelson, one up, in a final that shocked the pro golf world.

Great Golf Match Now in Making

San Francisco, Dec. 20 —(AP)— The greatest golf match of the year is in the making, a war bond promotion featuring Byron Nelson, 1944's No. 1 golfer and slammin' Sam Snead, the hottest man in the game at present.

Nelson has won a majority of the big tournaments, about $45,000 in war bonds, has a scoring average of less than 70 a round for 1944, and has just been named "Athlete of the Year" in the annual Associated Press poll.

The big match probably will be played in Los Angeles under P. G. A. auspices, to promote sale of war bonds.

New York, Dec. 20 —(AP)— Col. Bill Bingham, head of the College Football Rules Committee, said the other night: "If the pro game is better than the college game, there's nothing the colleges can do about it. Adopting pros' rules won't help the college game."

All last summer Piedmont League Baseball scribes campaigned for a new press box to replace the inadequate coop atop the Newport news stand . . . Nothing at all happened . . . Then one day last fall a hurricane came along, uprooted a few sections of fence and shaved the press box off the stands, smashing it to bits . . . Opening-day ceremonies next spring likely will include three cheers for a hurricane.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Insult was added to injury for the Washington Senators of the American Baseball League when the annual Associated Press poll was announced at New York. After finishing a poor last in the League race the Senators were voted "the flop of the year". Notre Dame Football team was voted the second-worst "bust" of 1944 while the Navy grid team was picked as the third biggest disappointment and Detroit Tigers were in fourth place in the balloting because of their last-day pennant-losing reverse last season.

Tommy Gorman of Montreal Canadiens last night raised a plaint that players of other N.H.L. clubs were being sent out on the ice to trip, hold and wrestle Maurice Richard, starry right-winger of the Habitants. Gorman said he had made a formal protest to league President Mervyn Dutton.

Every member of the Ottawa team except the goaltender fattened his scoring average last night as Commandos defeated Hull Volants 11-8 in a Quebec Senior Hockey League fixture on Ottawa ice.

Barriefield remains undefeated in Kingston Hockey League warfare when they racked up their seventh consecutive victory last night at the expense of Victorias, the score being 5-1. In the curtain-raiser headquarters played their best hockey of the campaign to turn back the Queen's University team 2-0 and take over sole possession of second place.

Tommy Bell, a fighting terror out of Youngstown, O., earned himself a Jan. 16 bout with Ray (Sugar) Robinson by blasting Cleveland's Chuck Hunter all over the ring at Cleveland last night in a 10-rounder before 6,482 at the arena.

There were no knockdowns but Bell had Hunter on the verge of a knockout in the sixth and ninth rounds.

In his first start since last June, Bell needed a couple of rounds to perfect his timing. The welter then waded into the former National Amateur Lightweight Champion with machine-gun speed.

London, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Plans afoot in London call for the "world's greatest golf club" to be situated here after the war. It will be known as the Royal Golfers' club and negotiations towards purchasing a West End Hotel are in process.

Golfing peers and other distinguished British players interested in the plan hope to make the club a home for visiting teams and individual players coming from abroad to compete in championships and tournaments in this country.

Both men and women will be admitted as members and there will be no social bar. In addition to the plan for the hotel, which would have not only bedrooms but extensive dining and lounge accommodation, it is probable that members will have their own golf course near London. The Huntercombe Club, near Henley-on-Thames in Oxfordshire, likely will be selected.

That Negro flash from Montreal, L. Cpl. Danny Webb, did not fight Ben Duffy, British navy petty officer, on Dec. 6 when the bout was scheduled for London's Queensberry Club.

Webb first claimed attention of Britain's fight followers at Bristol a few months ago by decisioning Kid Tanner, British Guiana champion, over eight rounds.

Suffering from damaged hands Danny was forced to cancel an exhibition bout with Nel Tarleton of Liverpool, who, at 39, holds the British and British Empire featherweight crowns.

Thousands of carrier pigeons (and this no doubt will interest that hockey coach and pigeon fancier, Dick Irvin) which since inception of the Home Guard has been undergoing weekly training at battalion lofts in various parts of Britain, "stood down" with the Home Guard Dec. 3.

One of the loft owners is Gordon Richards, Britain's perennial jockey champion, who is a keen pigeon fancier. The loft in his garden at Swindon, holds 30 birds which for the last three years have made regular flights every Sunday. The pigeons made the journey from Marlborough to Swindon, a distance of 10 miles, in about as many minutes.

Four men convicted of conspiring to administer a drug to a racing greyhound at a Gloucester track received sentences varying from six month's hard labor to 14 days in jail . . . Alex Haining, 72, former international curler who played for England against Scotland and Canada, died at Huddersfield . . . FO. R. R. Smart, D.F.C., cricket, rugger and field hockey player and an International clay pigeon shot, was announced as presumed to have been killed in action. He was reported missing last January during an intruder patrol in a cannon-carrying Mosquito.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

It was the Englishman's first visit to Montreal. Stopping to chat with the porter at one of our local hotels he said:

"I hear you have a new Mayor here."

"Yes, we just got him the other day."

"How do you like him?"

"We haven't had time to find out yet."

"Does he have insignia like our Mayors?"

"Does he have what?"

"Insignia. For instance does he wear a chain?"

"A chain—oh gee no! — but you may have something there, mister.

Around the Town.

Working night and day the attendants at the Hume Arena have completed the base for their ice surface and in all probability there will be public skating tomorrow night....So get your blades out and sharpened for the big blow-off.... Junior hockey practice is not likely to be called before Friday, although a weekend workout is practically assured....The Christmas rush naturally would keep hockey turnouts at a minimum..A few of last year's junior squad left around town include Bernie and Al Meagher, Don Barrett, Jerry Moher, Maurice Rollins, Dick Fitzpatrick, Scoles, "Cue" Bishop, Roddy Lyall, the Wardhaugh boys, Johnnie Semark, Doug Day and a couple of others ..There are a couple of outstanding junior prospects at Albert College, not including Harry Boyd, the Grimsby flash, who may yet turn out with the locals....It has been suggested the Belleville Juniors be called the "Bears," maybe that's because the kids are growling over the fact they can't get into puck action.

Veterans' Interest Only.

Here's a story by Peterborough's Fred Craig that should be of interest to oldtime sport fans of the Lake Shore district, particularly in the annals of baseball. Fred says: "Thomas J. O'Neill, better known as "Tip", grand old man of Port Hope baseball was honored the other night at a complimentary banquet and old-time Peterborough players and fans will be interested in learning of the tribute paid the veteran who is now 78 years of age. A lot of the Port Hope ball players of yesteryear, including Bob Chalk, and Finnegan and Alex Hills were in attendance at the banquet and among the features was a message of congratulation from the Port Hope town council felicitating the sage of baseball on the service he had rendered during his many year's association with the diamond pastime.' "Tip" was a player himself many years ago and he never lost his interest in the game. He managed Port Hope clubs for many seasons, including the period in which the town was represented in the Midland League and later in the Central Ontario League, and at one time was a member of the executive of the latter loop. The veteran was a gracious winner and a gallant loser and always got a lot of fun out of the game. He has many friends who were associated with him in baseball and they will be delighted at the honor paid him by his home town. Unquestionably "Tip" is the Connie Mack of this district."

This and That.

Here are some interesting sport items gathered by Doug Vaughan, Windsor columnist. He says: "A New York paper polled subscribers to find out if they considered the Army football team of this year the best of all time and found out exactly nothing....The consensus showed that on running ability fans agreed that it was the best team they had ever seen but the team lacked a capable passer....There is no doubt that, given a passer of the ability of Sammy Baugh, Sid Luckman or Frankie Albert, the Army team would have been something out of this world....Here's a yarn out of New York's baseball meeting ....When Nick Cullop, newly appointed manager of the Milwaukee Brewers, was breaking down fences with homeruns for Minneapolis, the fans of the city gave him a "day" ....When Nick came to the plate to receive a collection of gifts he doffed his hat to the crowd revealing a shiny bald head....Although he hit two homeruns that day, Owner Mike Kelly called Nick to his office after the game and bawled him out....Nick," said Mike, "when the scouts in the stands saw that billiard ball roof of yours the price on you dropped $5,000.... The White Sox are reported ready to give Catcher Mike Tresh and Pitcher Bill Dietrich to the Cleveland Indians in exchange for Jim (Peck's Bad Boy) Bagby and the much-traded Roy Cullenbine.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 562

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

If the solemn maid was a bridge player, she might have said to her partner: "Every system is nuts except mine and thine. And methinks thine is a little screwy at times."

It startles even me to hear so many different opinions about every deal. And each claimant is so positive without proof. That's what jiggles my thermostat.

Control your blood pressure while we discuss this hand:

♠A J
♥A J 9 6
♦K Q J 4
♣A Q 10

The opening for that hand could start sizzling arguments in any group of hot bridge fans. Each might have a choice of his own with nothing to back it up except a stubborn streak.

The hand contains all the necessary vitamins for an opening of one heart, and a little more. It has more than enough tricks; more than enough high cards; more than enough sure tricks.

Some puddlenecks prefer an opening of one diamond with that hand. They have a hazy notion that the bidding of the lower ranking suit first will keep the bidding lower.

Some fumbledogs prefer an opening of one diamond for another reason. Their reason would be because it has better cards in it than does the heart suit.

Some bunglepuppies prefer an opening of one no-trump because it looks like a no-trumper. Others prefer an opening of two no-trump to show their wealth of honor tricks.

There are also some shoodahads who would open with two hearts or two diamonds. Their excuse is that they are afraid partner might pass their one bid.

It wouldn't be so bad if they would prove it. But when I ask them why, they look at me as if I were a worm.

My gosh! Maybe I am.

Little Benny's Note Book

My cousin Artie came home with me for lunch, and ma was giving it to us, being schamble eggs after soup, and I said to Artie, Hay, if you made twice as much noise drinking that soup you'd sound like 2 uneducated pigs instead of just one.

Why Benny, such a remark to make to your cousin or anybody else, ma said, and Artie said, G, that's all right, Ant Pawleen, he wouldn't know an uneducated pig if he saw one, and I can prove it, because he sees one every time he looks at himself in a mirrer and he still dont know it.

Now boys, really, I mean really, is that nice? ma said, and Artie said, Aw, Benny wouldn't reckonize something nice if it hit him right in the face, and I wish somebody would prove it by hitting him in the face with a nice ripe tomato.

Oh is that so, well I woudn't even need anybody to throw you in my face to know you're the ripest tomato that ever lived to tell the tail I said, and ma said, Now boys that's enough, that's enough immediately.

Aw G, ma, it's only a game we play, I said, and ma said, Then there's nothing funny about it.

Well jimminy, ma, you're the very one claimed it was funny, I said, and ma said, How dare you say such a thing to my face when I never even heard of such a game.

But G doozalem, ma, you claim it's funny every time Glen Gluster and Phil Arkins get on each other's program and insult each other for a half an-hour, I said, and ma said, That's different, that's on the air, and I said, So is this, ma, look at all the air across the table between me and Artie.

Bruins Hold Edge for Two Periods But Beaten 6 to 3

(By FRED KERNER)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

If there's one man on Detroit Red Wings who'll make every effort to see Wings come out on top when they play Boston Bruins' it's the motor city's team captain, Bill Hollett—the 32-year-old defenceman who has earned the nickname, "Flash".

After deadlocking the Bruins three times at Boston last night Wings rapped home four tallies in the final period to score a 6-3 victory and take over second place in the National Hockey League standing, ahead of Toronto Maple Leafs. For the record, Flash Hollett scored the winning goal.

The feud between Hollett and Art Ross' Bruins started last year when Ross traded him to Detroit for Pat (Boxcar) Egan. Since then Bruins and Wings have met 11 times, and the Beantown boys have not won any of them.

It was in Boston that Flash developed into one of the most sensational puck-carriers in all time, and though he carried the weight of the Bruins in their weak seasons, Art Ross let him go in a deal that most people still wonder about. Hollett is making good his "beat Bruins" promise, and takes great pride in doing it.

Last night the Rossmen gave Jack Adams' boys a tough fight for two periods. With goals by Herbie Cain, Kenny Smith, and Pat Egan, Bruins held a 3-2 edge going into the last stanza, but Rookie Steve Wochy soon tied it up, and minutes later Hollett plunked the winning counter past young goalie Harvey Bennett.

Eddie Bruneteau added two-goal insurance unassisted in the last minute of play

New York Rangers are at Chicago tonight and then travel east to Detroit to meet Wings on Thursday.

JAP MAINLAND BOMBED

Washington, Dec. 20 —(AP)— The Japanese mainland was hammered by China-based Superfortresses again Tuesday as the War Department reported "excellent" results from Monday's raid on Nagoya.

The raiders, numbering probably upwards of 100, apparently inflicted "serious damage," the War Department reported.

Enemy Resistance Cleared Out South Of the Senio River

Rome, Dec. 20. (AP)—Polish and Indian troops of the British 8th Army have cleared out virtually all enemy resistance south of the Senio river, west of the main Bologna-Rimini highway in Italy, where the Germans have been putting up a stubborn fight for the last two weeks, it was announced today.

The communique did not mention action along the Canadian Corps' Naviglio Canal bridgehead, where last night continued enemy counterattacks were reported.

Strong German resistance held other 8th Army units to limited gains north and northeast of Faenza. Headquarters disclosed last night that a savage enemy counterattack in that area had forced Allied troops to fall back to the northern edge of the highway city.

On the Allied 5th Army front in the mountains south of Bologna there were no appreciable changes in position, the communique said.

Heavy bombers of the U.S. 15th Air Force attacked oil refineries yesterday in Germany and rail yards in Germany, Austria and Yugoslavia.

One television set per household certainly won't be enough to take care of the family's varied tastes. Some idea of what one may expect is given by some recent New York programs. During one Willie Hoppe, billiard champion, demonstrated his skill, and another featured travel films made by explorers who provided their own commentary . . . Hume Cronyn, Canadian actor, is busy in "Yolanda and the Thief" . . . Frank Sinatra is undertaking a tour to warn youngsters, with whom he has the most influence, about the evils of racial intolerance . . . Alice Faye will not retire but will make another film soon . . . In Britain an author's work may be copyrighted for life, plus 50 years and in the United States for 28 years, plus 28 more on renewal.

Interesting line in "None But the Lonely Heart," as spoken by Ethel Barrymore: "Love isn't for the poor. No time for it" . . . It is reported that Donald Crisp will come to Ottawa for a spell of work for our government after he finishes in "Valley of Decision" . . . Interesting situation aired in a Montreal court. A couple was shown to seats by an usher. Another couple showed up a few minutes later, claiming the seats and pointing out a coat that had been placed on one of them as evidence of previous occupation. A face-slapping bee developed. Judgment hasn't been rendered yet . . . In "Son of Lassie" the three-months-old son of Lassie plays the title role until replaced by Lassie later in the film.

Teresa Wright, wife of Niven Busch, a writer, gave birth to a son . . . It will cost Jon Hall $5,000 to get a new nose. The tip was sliced off the first one during that Dorsey brawl. That's paying through the nose for high jinks . . . The USA cigarette shortage gave rise to this story: A boss, in critical tones, said "Is that your butt on the office floor?" to the office boy. "That's all right, sir," replied the office boy. "You can have it. You saw it first" . . . When and if the censors pass the British film, "Fanny by Gaslight," you'll see an excellent job of film making and gasp at how broad United Kingdom producers are when compared with the Americans . . . An actor asked a new movie star to marry him. "And if I refuse," she asked, "will you kill yourself?" The actor bowed. "That," he answered gallantly, "is my usual custom" . . . The UNRRA has its own film head, William H. Wells. The Canadian government has already contributed $50,000 to the motion picture activities of the international agency and it is not unlikely that the National Film Board will help serve the UNRRA.

There will be another Boys' Town picture made soon, to be called "Seven Letters to Boys' Town . . . 30-Game Schedule Adopted By Junior O.H.A. League

A proposed 30-game schedule was presented to the clubs composing group No. 2 of the Junior Ontario Hockey Association for ratification today. The proposed schedule provides five home and an equal number of road games for each team in the circuit and opens on January 2nd to close Feb. 5th. Following the regular schedule the top four clubs in the final standing will play-off for the group championship and the right to advance into the provincial junior O.H.A. playdowns.

By previous agreement the first and third placed teams meet in the semi-finals, as do the second and fourth placed clubs with the two ultimate winners then meeting in a best-in-three series for the group championship. The clubs composing the league include: Tweed, Stirling-Marmora, Campbellford, Hastings-Norwood, Trenton and Belleville.

The schedule reads:

Jan. 2nd—Campbellford at Trenton.

Jan. 3rd—Belleville at Tweed.

Jan. 3rd—Stirling at Hastings.

Jan. 5th—Trenton at Stirling.

Jan. 5th—Hastings at Belleville.

Jan. 5th—Tweed at Campbellford.

Jan. 8th—Hastings at Campbellford; Tweed at Trenton.

Jan. 9th—Belleville at Stirling.

Jan. 11th—Trenton at Belleville.

Jan. 12th—Stirling at Tweed; Campbellford at Hastings.

Jan. 15th—Hastings at Trenton; Belleville at Campbellford; Tweed at Stirling.

Jan. 19th—Stirling at Belleville; Trenton at Tweed.

Jan. 24th—Campbellford at Tweed.

Jan. 29th—Stirling at Trenton; Tweed at Hastings.

Jan. 30th—Campbellford at Belleville.

Feb. 2nd—Belleville at Trenton; Stirling at Campbellford; Hastings at Tweed.

Feb. 5th—Trenton at Hastings.

The group playdowns will open on Feb. 9th, convener E. R. Burrows announced, as he added Hastings' home games would be played at Norwood, while the Stirling rink will house the "Combines" as usual.

BUFFALO BISONS HELD TO DRAW

By The Canadian Press

St. Louis Flyers, western division cellar-dwellers, turned in their best performance of the season on home ice last night to hold Buffalo Bisons, eastern division leaders, to a 2-2 draw in the only scheduled American Hockey League game.

Flyers were minus three regular players and coach Hap Emms as they broke a four-game losing streak in games against Bisons.

Buffalo opened the scoring toward the end of the first period when a lucky shot by Ed Emerton caromed off the sticks of two Buffalo players before landing in the net.

Billy Kendall evened the score in the first minute of the second period but Buffalo went ahead again as Gordon Davidson scored on a major penalty shot before the session closed. Freddie Hergert scored the tying goal with less than three minutes to go.

CHAPTER 17

"You're to owe me one hundred dollars for this, Loveday, so that you can truthfully say that you are paying for it gradually and that your brother picked it out. You did pick it out, didn't you, Hugh?"

"But good heavens, it must have cost a lot more than a hundred dollars!"

"Never you mind what it costs; you pay me ten dollars now and the rest at regular intervals and keep calm."

"Hugh, would you? Ought I?"

"Well, to tell you the truth, it was my idea, and Chris of course picked it up and ran off with it," her brother had said. "I told him a month ago that I wanted to get you one."

"You all spoil me!" She had gotten out of the car, put her hand quite simply on Chris' shoulder, and kissed him lightly, gone to Hugh to repeat the embrace. "I'm too happy!" she had said.

"If you can say you are happy when Larry has treated you so—so—has treated you as he has," Chris had said later when they were alone, "it says something for your disposition."

He had spoken lightly, but she turned to face him a face suddenly troubled.

"But you mustn't say that! It wasn't like that. I'd like it better—truly I would!—if you'd sometimes say—if you'd realize that I was terribly to blame for the way Larry felt."

"I love you when you try to defend him," Chris said.

When she had gone upstairs to put the children to bed Chris lingered on. Annie Lum asked him if he was staying for dinner and he said yes. If Loveday felt any surprise about it she did not show it when she came down. The big heavily furnished old dining room was gloomy in the dark autumn evening. "But we'll have a fire in the library after dinner," she said as she came and went with the table furnishings, "and warm up."

Chris said little; he came to his place when she called him.

"This is not dinner, really. It's supper. Jam and biscuits always make a meal supper," Loveday announced; "when things come in courses, that's dinner. But with everything on at once—you forgot the bacon Annie Lum; I thought Hugh might come," she went on in the silence, "but he always sends a message by five, and there was no message while we were up at the mill."

"I wish we could have that first afternoon and that first talk up at the mill over again," Chris observed.

"That hot day, when there was such a lovely breeze up there? And then to come down and find Larry here and the babies in an uproar," she remembered, smiling ruefully. "That was the day Larry first went away," she added seriously.

"We didn't have to make talk that day," he said gloomily.

"And are we making talk now?" Color rose brightly to her face. "We are," she thought, "what's the matter with us tonight?"

"I think it's made a great difference to you that you know how desperately I love you, what a complete fool I am about you," the man answered quietly with a glance. "I think you like me less!"

"You don't think that you're the only fool, Chris?"

She got up and began to carry plates to the kitchen. Annie Lum padded in; knives and forks clattered. Chris sat where he was until the table was cleared and the doilies folded; then he followed Loveday into the library.

"I'm wondering how they keep those big London houses livable in the long winters with just this sort of thing," he said, kneeling to crumple newspapers, lay kindling, shake coal from the scuttle over pyre, and jiggle the flimsy black tin blower into place.

"Oh, but I've always loved these first fires before the furnace is started for the winter," Loveday said enthusiastically. Chris went to wash his hands; when he came back the fire was beginning to roar and crackle behind the tin shield. "There's a sort of satisfaction," she went on, "in doing things, producing results, yourself. Bringing milk in the pail and hunting for eggs—"

"Going up into the woods for a possum," he put in as she paused, "and drying his skin for a cap with the tail hanging down! Getting the wheat to the mill and setting round until it's ground."

"Oh, I don't care! I think those days must have been wonderful," she said; "Days when just plain food and shelter and clothing kept everyone going from morning until night. Spinning now—There must have been something so restful to old ladies in spinning! Chopping down trees and seeing the woodpile get larger and larger!"

"We are making talk," Chris said.

"My God, if I were only your husband now, if this were only our house!" he burst out suddenly. "I could—I'd stop going crazy! As it is, half the time I'm here I'm mad at you, mad at you because you go singing upstairs with those kids and you fuss with bacon and you hunt up just the right jam, and all the time I can't get into your life; I don't belong! I'd rather be unhappy with you than happy anywhere else; there is nowhere else. I go away from here thinking that it'll last me a little while, thinking I've seen her and talked with her and there's nothing—there's nothing so extraordinary—' "

" 'I no see nothing about that frog that is not like every other frog!' " Loveday supplied. "Chris," she said in a different, an affectionate tone, her chair near enough to his chair to permit her to stretch out a hand and touch his, "I know how you feel. But give me time. The miracle is that we've found each other, not that it's going to take time to work it all out. If we'd been free when we first met, if there'd been no Merle and no Larry we might — you and I —" she paused, looked at the now fiercely blazing coals.

"When you talk like that, when you say things like what you just said at the end of dinner," Chris said, "then I think that you do love me, and I'm all smoothed down, and I'll wait as long as you make me wait! Only I do want to—to belong, somehow, and to have you belong to me. And your life seems so damn complete without me!"

"But it isn't. Sometimes I think that it's you that makes it so thrilling," she said. "Your coming and your letters and presents make it seem like a part I'm playing. My own life never seemed so exciting, and that's because of you!"

"If I could have you," Chris said, gathering her hands tightly with his eyes closed, "if you were in his, leaning far back in his chair once mine, the Larry question settled once and for all, everyone knowing, the world all shut away, and you in my arms! Sleeping," he said in a whisper, "with your head on my shoulder, and waking to know that you were still there. Talking planning, making friends—always together!"

"And why can't you believe that it will come out that way?"

"Oh, I don't know. I suppose because I want you so much! You see, I'll go away in a little while," he said, "and drive to Del Monte. And for the first few miles I'll be quite happy remembering you—you up at the mill with the children today, and you putting a bandage around little Jean's finger, and you setting the table and lighting the candles and kneeling here before the fireplace with your face turned over your shoulder to look up at me, with the red light all over your hair. But then in half an hour I'll begin wanting to see you again, just for five minutes—one minute. I'll look at all the gas stations I pass and think, 'There's a telephone there; I could hear her voice. I could ask her if she's all right and hear her say, "Of course I am! I was reading in bed!" ' "

"And you really think any woman alive is worth that?"

"I think one is." He gripped her chin with his fine, thin, nervous fingers and raised her face, and they kissed each other.

"If ever you want to telephone, telephone," she said. "But you might hear something entirely different tonight, for our loathly friend Al Harris was hanging around today."

"Harris was? That's the weird old boy who claimed the reward?"

"Yes, he came slinking up while I was hanging out some clothes. It was such a dark foggy morning that I didn't see him until he was within three feet of me. He loomed up like a spook. He asked me if he could store some of his wife's things in the attic; he said he might be going away and he had nowhere to leave them. I said yes, of course, and then added brightly, having meant this from the beginning, that there was a nice dry little room over the meal room in the small barn, where an old hired man we had used to live, and he could take possession there and store anything he pleased. He didn't look a bit satisfied; he said that my grandmother used to let him go up in the attic, but I said—which is quite true—that Hugh and I are planning to divide off a four-room apartment on the second floor and we've locked the attic stairs. No, don't be afraid," Loveday broke off, laughing as Chris still looked serious, "he's probably miles away by this time! He's haunted by the idea of Grandfather's money, and yet there isn't an inch of this entire place that hasn't been searched, and by experts too. They tapped floor boards and ran their hands into rafters and measured baseboards for weeks. They went over the garden with rods that showed whether the earth had been disturbed or not. I don't know what it cost my grandmother, but it was the Owen Hugh Gurney Hospital she was worried about, and she didn't care what it cost!"

"But you do lock your doors at night, Loveday?"

"Sometimes. I think it would scare me more to lock up than to leave things open."

"Lord, I wish this phase was over!" He framed her face in his hands. "I wish we'd never met."

"I wish I could hear of something nice happening to Larry," she observed whimsically. "Isn't it too bad," she added, "that not wishing a person any harm, and really feeling delighted if any good comes to him, you can still feel that he—he clutters up the picture so terribly? D'you know what we ought to do and what we're going to do?" she asked with sudden decisiveness. "We're going to part tonight and not see each other until I've seen Larry and talked it all over with him and settled everything. It's just come to me that that's the only honorable way. My job is here, and my children are here, and I'm Mrs. Lawrence Ingersoll. What's that?" she added suddenly in a frightened voice as the sound of the bell rang through the quiet house.

"Who'd that be?" Chris asked, also on his feet.

"There are lots of bells, but nobody rings them. It's the front door, I think," she said, alarmed. "But who—at this hour—"

"After all, it isn't nine yet," the man said.

"That true."

They went out into the hall together. The girl snapped up a light and opened the front door to reveal the suspicious little weazened face of Al Harris, hung like a mask against the pitchy blackness beyond. Before she could speak Chris addressed the caller harshly.

"Well, what do you want?"

Harris looked at Chris in obvious confusion. He had expected evidently to find Loveday alone, or at all events in different company.

"I seen your light—" he began. Chris cut him short with another abrupt demand as to what he wanted. "I was wondering if maybe there was a key to that place up in the barn," Harris said.

"Have you been up there ever since this morning?" Loveday asked. "I told you to put your stuff in there and go down with the Bettancourt boy when he went to the village at noon."

"They's an old bed in there," Harris explained, "and I went to sleep."

"Well, you can get off the place and don't come aorund again," Chris said, "or you'll find your stuff and yourself out on the road. I don't propose to have Mrs. Ingersoll or the children bothered with you!"

"No use to make an enemy of him; he's not responsible," Loveday began warningly. "I don't see how you can possibly get to the village now, Al," she continued, "so you might as well go back to the barn and finish up the night. Unless," she added in sudden inspiration, "Mr. St. George will take you as far as Indian Hill when he goes."

"That's what I'll do," Chris agreed but without satisfaction. "I'll be going soon," he told Harris, "and I'll toot my horn when I start. I suppose," he added to Loveday when they had closed the door upon Harris' departing back, "I can get him so far tonight that he can't get back; I'll take care of that. But I'll be damned if I like a sneak like that hanging around here."

"He's harmless enough," she told him.

But harmless or not Harris' arrival had proved an interruption to their fireside mood. They went back to the library but only for a few moments talk; he did not sit down again, and Loveday did not ask him to.

"I'll get Harris as far as the village," the man said, "and give him a word of warning."

"I wouldn't do that. You don't know what crackbrained idea he might get into his head. Much better," she said, unalarmed, "to give him fifty cents and tell him to get himself some dinner."

"Oh, well, if he has no great harm done. After all, he used to prowl over the place in my grandmother's time; nobody minded much."

She went out into the windy autumn darkness with Chris: the trees were bending and creaking restlessly; there would be a storm. "Winter at last," she said; "we've had such a beautiful long autumn!"

Chris touched his horn; the sound was blown away on a sudden swoop of gale. He tried it again; no Harris appeared.

"Now isn't he a complete pest!" Chris said disgustedly. "He'd better show up or I'll—No, I can't do that. I can't go without him."

"He's probably gone back to the barn and gone to sleep. I wouldn't give him another thought." She felt suddenly tired out in the rough, soft wind that spoke of rain and storm. No moon, no stars were in sight; clouds tumbled darkly overhead, and the trees bowed and creaked. "I will lock up tonight, Chris," she said, smothering a yawn secretly under cover of the surrounding blackness, "and tomorrow I'll see that Bettancourt gets him off the place."

"No, I'll stay in Hugh's room," Chris said with sudden decision. "I'd worry myself sick driving away from you with that halfwit on the loose somewhere. Let's go and build up the fire and finish the evening; and whenever you're sleepy I'll turn in in Hugh's room. Now don't be silly, Loveday; that's the only sensible thing to do!"

Her hair was wildly blown about her cheeks glowing when they came back into the quiet of the lighted hall. He built up the fire; she seated herself on the broad davenport that faced it, and Chris, his exertions concluded and the fire roaring behind the blower, sat down somewhat breathless beside her.

Life with Maquis Of France Told Kiwanis Club

A shy, unassuming young man PO. "Bunny" Armstrong, stood before members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon on Tuesday at the Quinte Hotel and told a story of life with the Maquis of France after being blown from a Lancaster bomber on a mission over Germany, which held the members spellbound and brought forth at its conclusion the heartiest applause that has ever been given to a speaker before the club. The young man is from Peterborough and how he accomplished so much and being so shy as a public speaker was the wonderment of the members. His story was told without eloquence or fanfare, it being simply a tale of events that would be the envy of any young Canadian boy. His introducer, Bill Steer, who knew him in the Lift Lock City before he went overseas, told of his life in that city and of his many manly characteristics.

Honorary Memberships Conferred.

President Jack McVeigh presided at the luncheon with Harold Carruthers as song leader and Dan Ogilvie as sergeant at arms. Bill Navin presided at the piano. The club held a long sing song the Christmas music predominating but time was taken out for the centre table to provide a little harmony, which was well received. His Worship Harry Rollins, who is president-elect of the Kinsmen Club and Orland Pinkston, president of the Rotary Club, were presented with honorary memberships in the Kiwanis Club. The two were presented by Harold D. Bateman and both spoke of the co-operation that existed among the service clubs in the city and Mayor Rollins proposed that the service clubs should promote some memorial that will live long after the members have ceased to function. He proposed a swimming pool and this was followed by Lawrence Kells, who outlined the Board of Education's views on the matter. A donation of $20 was received from the Reliance Industries, Ltd., for the use of the Kiwanis bingo equipment.

31 Missions Completed.

"Bunny" Armstrong, who completed 31 missions over German territory, told his listeners that on the 32nd mission, which was to Berlin, that his bomber was riddled by flak and fighter opposition and simply blew up.

"I don't know how I left the plane but I think I was blown clear by the explosion and when I came to I had parachuted to earth and came to rest in a large tree," said the speaker. "I was pretty well shaken up but was soon rescued by Belgians and taken to security of their homes. I was fixed up by a French doctor and kept under cover for some time and then I joined the Maquis and we started out on a sabotage tour that ruined many German communication systems and other priority works. He told of being notified of the invasion on June 6th and that he prepared to get in touch with partners and return to England to again get into the scrap. Mr. Armstrong told of meeting up with U. S. officers and being taken back to England by plane and then home for a well deserved rest.

Told of Gestapo.

The speaker told of the Gestapo, a very influential body in occupied Europe. "You could tell them a mile away," said the speaker, "and I ran slap bang into them one night and was lucky to escape. I went into a house where there were a number of German officers and the woman of the house claimed me as her cousin and that I was deaf. For weeks they spied on me and then gave it up as a bad job." He stated the biggest raid he was on consisted of 1,100 bombers with no fighter escort and he related the box barrage by anti-aircraft fire was very damaging at all times. The Gestapo, he said, was very ruthless and that he had seen men shot on sight. He stated that the older German officers and men were not so bad but the youths were fanatical and shot at the least provocation. The speaker answered many questions that revealed the interesting and adventurous time that he had while with the Maquis. The club's appreciation was expressed by Lawrence Kells.

Toronto, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Spr. Martin Vancleaf, former gold miner and prospector, returned home this week after more than four years overseas, to learn that the gold mining stock which was worthless when he enlisted now has a market value of nearly $70,000.

The 35-year-old native of Bracebridge and two partners staked a property which now is Wasa Lake gold mines in Northern Quebec. He received 50,000 shares in the company as his vendor interest. In recent months the property has become one of the new development sensations in the northern Quebec gold fields and the stock is now selling at $1.30 a share.

"I can hardly believe it and have to pinch myself — but I always had faith in the property I staked," the sturdy member of the Royal Canadian Engineers said in an interview. "What a Christmas-birthday present." He will be 36 Dec. 24.

Vancleaf, home on a 30-day Christmas leave, was met here by his wife and their seven-year-old daughter, Doris Jean. They left last night for his parents' home in Bracebridge, loaded with presents. Mrs. Vancleaf now lives at MacTier and lived for a time at Kingston.

"I staked the Wasa Lake ground in 1935, just before my daughter was born," he said. "I had worked through the north and was employed at Beattie Gold and Francoeur Gold. I'm sure glad I kept hold of my interest in that wildcat — you know it was once called the Wildcat mine."

He hasn't made any plans for after the war. He accepts his fortune calmly and guesses "the north is the place for men, around mining."

Vancleaf enlisted at New Liskeard after he and Mrs. Vancleaf gave up their home at Artnfield, Que. He went overseas with the 2nd Battalion. When a summons came for experienced mining men to do a tunnelling job at Gibraltar, he transferred to the No. 2 Tunnelling Company and spent 222 months at The Rock. He suffered a broken leg there and returned to England.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Vancleaf of Bracebridge, have five other sons and three daughters. Four brothers are in uniform and the other is at Perron gold mine. One sister lives in Toronto, another Mrs. P. Berdgineau at Port Dalhousie, and the third, Mrs. Vern Schell, at South River.

NUT KERNELS FATAL TO GIRL

Swift Current, Sask., Dec. 20 — (CP)—Kathleen Daum, 2½-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Daum of Swift Current, died yesterday en route to hospital at Moose Jaw after swallowing some nuts Monday, a portion of which apparently lodged in her throat.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Dec. 20 (CP)—Weakness was general this afternoon on Toronto exchange. Golds led the decline. Trading was moderate at 358,000 shares.

Transcontinental resources slipped off 14 cents to 1.21 in quite heavy trading and losses of 5 to 10 cents were boarded by Buffalo-Ankerite, Frobisher, O'Brien, Aunor, Central Patricia, Cochenour Willans, Medsen, Beattie and others. Macassa was stronger 3.80.

Steep Rock weakened 15 cents to 2.25 and Lake Dufault was off 10 cents to 1.30. Noranda, Nickel and Hudson Bay weakened moderately.

In industrials foods held up and slight weakness appeared in papers, senior oil and miscellaneous issues.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Dec. 20 —(AP)— News accounts of the German counteroffensive unsettled today's stock market and leaders retreated sharply.

Pressure became general after an irregular opening featured by another sizeable advance in the rails. Near the fourth hour principal carriers and industrials were off to around 2 points.

Prominent among the losing issues were Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, N. Y. Central, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Westinghouse and Johns-Manville.

Canadian issues were inclined to lose ground, though all losses were only fractional.

TRAGEDY STRIKES GIRLS

London, Dec. 20— (CP)—Tragedy struck among singing girls in a southern England factory recently when a German V-bomb exploded in a workshop, killing or injuring all but three, it was reported Friday. Girls had just finished recess on the night shift and returned to their machines singing, "You are my Sunshine."

"Suddenly the place was filled with flames," said Anne Savill, 26.

DROVE VEHICLE MORE THAN THIRTY-FIVE MILES

Toronto, Dec. 20 —(CP) — Victor Raymond Stewart today was fined $100 and costs when he pleaded guilty to operating a commercial vehicle more than 35 miles and to making a false statement to the Prices Board.

Stettinius' Statement On Border Pacts Given Prominence

Moscow, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Russian press and radio gave wide distribution today to the statement by Edward R. Stettinius, United States Secretary of State, that the United States was not opposed to border settlements through mutual agreement before the end of the war.

Polish political elements here favoring an immediate understanding with the Soviet Union on a comon frontier found support in the stand.

(Poland's government in London was reported to be drawing up "certain proposals" in an effort to reach an agreement with Russia. There was on indication what line the proposals would take.)

Some German And Some American Units Surrounded

With U.S. 1st Army, 12.15 p.m., Dec. 20 (AP)—German armor by a pincers movement has cut off some elements of an American division in the area of St. Vith, Belgium, it was disclosed today.

CAN'T INCREASE PRICES

Toronto, Dec. 20 —(CP)— Hotels, restaurants and other public caterers may not increase meal prices or prices of refreshments and beverages offered at Christmas or New Year's whether dancing or other entertainment is provided, F. L. J. Seldon, Ontario Regional Prices Board representative warned yesterday. Operators who served special meals at higher rates in the holiday season of 1941-42 may charge the same prices as they did that year.

ARMED DEMONSTRATORS IN PIRAEUS

Crowds of armed E.L.A.S. demonstrators are shown in Piraeus when they paraded through the streets of the Greek city. The armed demonstrators were not allowed to enter Athens, where British troops and E.L.A.S. forces had been fighting.

Obituary

LATE REUBEN PRINGLE

In the sudden demise of Reuben Pringle the community in which he had resided for 30 years or more has lost a great Christian, one of the kind so rarely met with in these days. He was kind to all and especially loved the children and youth to whom he was an example worthy of following.

He was actively connected with the former Methodist Church and later the United being superintendent of the Sunday School for some sixteen years and of the church 35 years and gave generously to support of both, and always enjoyed the church services. He was for many years a member of the Church Board and treasurer of Shannonville Appointment. He was a regular contributor to needy and worthy causes and especially Temperance cause and the Sick Children's Hospital. He truly went about doing good and living his Christianity in his daily life.

Mr. Pringle never married, he and his sister, who predeceased him in June, 1942, successfully operated their farm and apiary in the 2nd concession of Tyendinaga on county road. He is gone but will not be forgotten by his friends and all who knew him.

—Tribute by former Sunday School pupil.

The sudden passing of Mr. Reuben H. Pringle was a shock to the community of Shannonville and district.

He passed away in the Belleville General Hospital after only a short illness which was caused by contracting blood poison through a scratch. He was in his sixty-eighth year. The funeral was held from his late residence, 2nd concession of Tyendinaga, on Saturday, December 9th. Interment was at the Melrose Cemetery.

He lived for many years in the district and was known and liked by all. He was a good Christian and was superintendent of the United Church Sunday School in Shannonville for many years. He always played an active part in the church and was looked up to by the young people of the district.

His passing is certainly a loss to the community.

HAD 148 BOTTLES OL LIQUOR

Toronto, Dec. 20 — (CP)—Andrew Moren today was fined $500 or three months in jail when he was convicted of having in his possession 148 bottles of Scotch whisky, rye and rum brought from Quebec. Police said the liquor had a bootleg value of $2,500.

NO BOMBS — JUST CARROTS

HE'S CREDITED WITH KILLING ROMMEL

Lieut. Harold Miller, who doesn't like to be called a hero, turned to and helped his mother prepare breakfast. Lieut. Miller, 20-year-old pilot, who is credited with killing Germany's famed Field Marshal Rommel, is also credited with having shot down six Nazi planes. Miller has participated in 76 combat missions. Reunion took place in Santa Rosa, Calif.

AIRCRAFT WORKER GETS NATIONAL AWARD

Mrs. Mona Mackenzie, Toronto, Ont., first woman winner of one of the 25 director-general's merit awards, given annually for the year's best production-saving ideas of aircraft workers. Mrs. Mackenzie's invention cost $1.11 to install and saves the plant $1,534 annually. Husband of Mrs. Mackenzie, seen with her two children, is with the army medical corps and is a grand-nephew of the late Sir William Mackenzie.

PARACHUTED INTO FRANCE

2,000 War Brides Have Arrived In Canada Out of a Total of 30,000

This is one of the reasons why the Department of National Defence is making haste slowly in bringing Canadian servicemen's wives from Britain to this country. At present, only about 2,000 of 30,000 United Kingdom war brides have been given permits to come to their future homes.

Other reasons for the comparatively small number of war brides coming to Canada are lack of shipping facilities, housing shortages in many parts of the country, delays in making arrangements for the wives and their young children, and the problem of what the brides will do when they get here, says the Ottawa Journal.

25,000 Married Soldiers.

Of the total number of British brides, some 25,000 are wedded to Canadian soldiers, 3,000 to airmen, but less than 500 to officers and ratings of the Royal Canadian Navy.

Asked recently if the navy was stricter in giving permission to marry than the army or air force, naval authorities said no, that wasn't it at all. Nor are they woman-haters.

"Our case is not like that of the army or even the air force," the Journal was informed. "Our men get very short leaves in the United Kingdom, very often do not return to the same port, and haven't the time to meet girls and get to the marrying stage."

At present the flow of war brides to Canada is restricted almost altogether to wives whose husbands have been repatriated, and to others where the in-laws have issued them definite invitations to come and stay with them.

Army authorities said that as a rule the British girls have proved very adaptable, and adjust themselves readily and happily to their new surroundings.

"It's not always simple," a liaison officer said, "to assure a welcome in some communities to a United Kingdom girl who has married a Canadian soldier or airman. The girl he left behind him, even if there was no formal engagement, doesn't always take the matter kindly. In general, however, the situation is satisfactory and the brides get along very well."

A few Canadian soldiers, usually those who have been on duty at a port for many months, have married French and Italian girls. These marriages, however, have been few and as yet have raised no problem. In all likelihood these wives will not be brought to Canada until after cessation of hostilities in Europe.

London Bureau Is Busy.

The Canadian Wives' Bureau in London is a busy place with many more applications for passage to Canada than can be met. On securing passage the war bride may only take £10 English money with her. Later she can have funds transferred from a British bank to Canada.

While marriages of Canadian soldiers and airmen have decreased notably since D-Day, a sharp upswing is expected when the war is over, and the Canadian formations are brought back to Britain pending the assembly of shipping to bring them home.

Facilities extended to British brides are much greater and vastly better organized than in the First Great War. Aided by military authorities, the Immigration Branch, the Canadian Red Cross and other groups, they are given help and attention from the port of embarkation until their arrival in the community in which they will live.

LONDON LETTER

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, Dec. 20 (CP)—The complexion of the south coast has changed. The war paint is being peeled off.

The biggest change for the Sussex coast is that most of the Canadians have gone. Month after month they helped guard Britain against any possible German invasion attempt and trained for D-Day. Sussex became known to Englishmen as a "Canadian colony."

The Canadians were pupular
The Canadians were popular now.

"We liked them fine while they were here," one elderly, white-haired woman told me as she looked out across the channel from Brighton. "Now they've cleared out the French coast and the buzz-bombs don't fly over any more. We like them better still."

She smiled as she pointed to the beach. Soldiers were using bulldozers to locate land mines moved from their original positions by waves and tide. Near the piers the army's mine-detectors don't work because of the steel piles.

There are still defences in the Brighton-Hove area. The concrete obstructions on the shore side of the promenade are still in place—but the barbed wire entanglements are coming down.

There are still Canadian officers and men in the streets, mostly on weekends. And there are scores of "new Canadians" living in Brighton and Hove—the British wives the soldiers married while stationed on the coast.

Six young British servicemen .. three R.A.F., two army and a Royal navy rating—were in the train compartment in which I went to Brighton. The conversation turned to Canada.

Two of the airmen had served in Canada during the war. They said they thought they might decide to live there after discharge.

"Canada is wizard," said the young fellow who had a year at Patricia Bay, near Victoria.

"Not for me," said the navy man. "I was a builder before the war and I know my trade. Canada is like the States, too many specialties. I wouldn't be happy if I was on a job where I had to do only one thing—like shingling, for instance. I'm going to stay here where people take more pride in their work."

Christie's of Oxford Street probably is the world's most famous auction house. Its specialty always has been objects d'art—paintings, period furniture, old porcelain and silver. And even in wartime it still goes in for that sort of thing.

But now and again it branches out. The goods differ though the names of prominent people remain. We liked this advertisement clipped from a London newspaper, as illustrating the scope of Christie's business and the extent of one wartime shortage:

"ON MONDAY

"Samples of the cigars may be had on paying for same on Thursday and Friday preceding."

Smart Shooting by Red Navy Gunners

Modern naval armaments vary in size and function no less than the vessels themselves, ranging from small submarine cannon to the bristling battleship turret.

But size alone does not determine effectiveness. For example submarine Captain of the Second Rank Mahomet Gajiev, a mountaineer of Daghestan, once engaged three enemy patrol boats, sinking two and routing the third.

The accuracy of Russian naval artillery has become a byword and this refers equally to guns of all calibres. I remember a day in August, 1941, when the battleship October Revolution, anchored in the Neva River, was given orders to check German forces that had broken through our defences in one sector and were advancing on Leningrad.

The Hitlerites marched confidently along a highway behind a big brass band. From a long distance Soviet artillery observers spotted the glint on the band instruments and reported the coordinates to the battleship.

Our first 12-inch salvo dropped squarely into the band. Soviet reinforcements took advantage of the confusion among the enemy and launched a counter-attack supported by naval guns.

* * *

During the war Soviet sailors have rendered great aid to Red army land forces operating on the seacoasts. Naval artillerymen have also fought on land, demonstrating the accuracy of their weapons under any and all conditions. The enemy himself has testified to this.

I was once present at the interrogation of a German flier, an oberleutant, who had bailed out of his damaged Junkers into blockaded Leningrad. The flier stated the German command had received information regarding a new secret Russian weapon called the "Barbakadze."

At these words everyone present burst out laughing. We were all well acquainted with the jovial Georgian Major Grigori Barbakadze, son of a school teacher of Kutaisi, who was commanding a naval battery mounted on railway cars, which was hauled up and down the front by three locomotives.

This was actually a gun turret from a heavy cruiser. It would open fire from totally unexpected positions, wipe out a German headquarters previously spotted by scouts, or blast a panzer column, then make a quick getaway.

The strange sounding Georgian name of the Major had somehow reached the Germans, who assumed it stood for a new weapon.

Red navy artillery has been in action in many other areas. I shall never forget how the Red army men threw their caps into the air and cheered when they first saw the withering fire launched by several naval guns mounted on Volga passenger steamers. The same welcome was given the sailors by the defenders of Odessa, Sevastapol and other seacoast cities.

* * *

In the Far North I often ran into Captain Fedor Ponochevny, a calm, slow-moving Ukrainian in command of a battery on the rock-bound shore at the entrance to the Gulf of Pechenga. His task was to sink enemy vessels entering or leaving the port.

In the 40 months from the beginning of the war to the capture of Pechenga, Captain Ponochevny's battery sent 34 enemy craft to the bottom: the first on the afternoon of June 22, 1941—and the last on the day preceding the fall of the port. For over three years the Germans tried to destroy this battery by air bombing and intensive shelling from nine batteries on the opposite shore of the Gulf, but they failed to silence it even for a moment.

The Germans never openly engaged our forces at sea unless they had a big numerical superiority. I happen to know what occurred in one such engagement, directed on the Soviet side by Senior Lieutenant Igor Chernyshev, a 24-year-old Muscovite who wore a large mustache to make him look older.

Chernyshev's two patrol launches were cruising in the Gulf of Finland when they were attacked by a group of enemy vessels of the same type. The enemy attempted to surround and capture the Soviet boats.

Lieutenant Chernyshev is something of an amateur boxer and in this engagement he used two fisted tactics. Before the enemy had a chance to open concerted fire he struck at the rear of the group and closed in to knock out first one launch and then a second.

His own launches were damaged but they did not slacken fire. The remaining enemy boats, however, changed their minds about attacking and fled under cover of their coastal batteries.

I mention Lieutenant Chernyshev because the modest artillerymen of cutters armed with small cannon—which in case of need can be operated by one man—deserve equal honors with those accorded their colleagues on battleships and cruisers.

MORE THAN 450 etc hhtodf lib

Ottawa, Dec. 20 —(CP)— More than 450 Canadian servicemen will be included in the King's New Year honors list, it was indicated here.

While the lists are not yet complete, the navy estimated a list of 145, the army 140 and the R.C.A.F. 180. All the lists are expected to include a smattering of women.

Accompanying the navy's list will be the traditional New Year's promotions, this year totalling between 500 and 600 names.

Danish Picture

From Dagens Nyheter, Stockholm, comes a description of general conditions at present in Denmark, given by a Dane who knows them.

Although Copenhagen is directly under the whip of the Gestapo General Pancke, German terror is more noticeable in the provincial towns. As there are not so many German soldiers in the capital they don't mark public life to the same extent, and although 20 Copenhageners were shot down by the Germans last week one seldom meets eye-witnesses of such incidents.

But Jutland towns are literally swarming with German soldiers; in some towns the population has increased by 50 per cent. The Peninsula is now almost isolated from the rest of the country. Many devastating explosions have occurred there recently, but the German censors will not allow the news of these to be published in the Copenhagen press. The quality of the German troops varies. Elite troops were sent to Copenhagen for propaganda, while many troops in Jutland consist of old men and boys. One elite division from Italy, however, arrived in Juland not long ago.

* * *

The Germans are building two defence lines across Jutland. One is just north of Kolding to Esbjerg and one about ten kilometers further soutn. South of the border, near Tonder, there is a line called Friservolden, and another at Husum and the old Danish line of Dannevirke (built a thousand years ago against the Germans.) Some of the trenches are filled with water.

It is increasingly difficult to cross the Great Belt. German police search all travellers, they look for arms and bombs in suitcases. The Germans have priority and occupy all seats before the Danes are allowed on board. (News comes from Sweden that the crew of the big Danish ferry which escaped to Helsingborg recently have all asked to stay in Sweden, except one woman. The story that they were "forced" to hand it over to five saboteurs probably seemed to them a little thin.)

About six thousand Danes are imprisoned in Denmark itself. The prisoners receive different treatment according to the prison, but the ordinary German warden seldom gives cause for complaint, as most of them are convinced that Germany will lose the war and this "favorably affects their behaviour." But the Gestapo are unanimously characterized as veritable devils. Arrestees are often ordered to stand facing the wall for hours and if they move they are brutally kicked. A hundred Danish policemen about to be transported from the Frosley camp to Germany were ordered to parade in the pouring rain wearing only their shirts. Danish prisoners seem to be deported to Germany at random. Gestapo men pick out every other or every third prisoner, having no list of names. Prisonrs are overcrowded. Often five prisoners are locked in one cell and must take turns to sleep.

REINFORCED 1ST U.S. ARMY CHECKS NORTHERN PRONG OF COUNTER-OFFENSIVE BY GERMANS

Huns Made To Pay Fearful Cost In Men and Munitions

One U.S. Formation Stops 60 German Tanks in 3 Days

By WES GALLAGHER
(AP War Correspondent)

In the Stavelot Sector, Belgium, Dec. 21 — (AP) — American troops engaged in trying to stem the German break-through are suffering a big battle price in men and material, but are making the enemy also pay a fearful cost in blood and munitions for his great western front counter-offensive.

Along this sector of the front the German advance has been stemmed and broken and was hurled back this (Wednesday) morning when the Germans launched a series of fierce attacks at points on a 20-mile front. These blows failed in piles of broken bodies and twisted metal.

One American unit knocked out eight panther and tiger tanks in two hours this morning. Farther south, however, the German panzer advance was showing the professional punch the enemy exhibited in 1940.

One infantry unit returned to 1st Army lines in bits and pieces, but its losses were amazingly small considering that the group claimed to have killed 1,200 Germans. The unit had lost much of its equipment, except for rifles and bazookas.

Another badly-mauled American formation, which bore the full fury of the assault, claimed to have stopped 60 German tanks in three days. But it, too, had lost a great deal of its artillery and motorized equipment.

Germans Use Tricks

The enemy troops are using every trick ever tried during this war. There have been several authenticated cases in the last 48 hours where the Germans used the old trick of waving a white flag as if they were going to surrender and then advancing near the American lines to a favorable position, dropping down and opening fire.

Several miles to the south the Germans operated four American Sherman tanks, calling infantry to come up close for support and then opening fire on them with machine-guns.

SOVIET COLUMNS ON THREE SIDES OF CITY OF KASSA

Germans Pushed Back On 125-Mile Front In Southern Slovakia In Bitter Battles

Moscow, Dec. 21 — (AP) — The Red Army pushed the Germans back on a 125-mile front in southern Slovakia today and battled with battered Nazi garrisons on the outskirts of the strongholds of Kassa and Rimaszombat.

Soviet columns last night were on three sides of both these heavily-defended southeastern Slovakian towns which control highways and railways connecting with direct routes to Bratislava, Vienna and Prague to the west.

In advances up to five miles, a communique said, the Russians captured 13 towns in the Rimaszombat area in a drive aimed at the key citadel of Losonc, 17 miles westward. Chief of them was Tornala, 13 miles east of Rimaszombat and a strongpoint of formidable enemy defences on the east bank of the Slana river.

Latest reports had Soviet forces preparing a climactic attack on the Torysa river fortifications two miles outside Kassa.

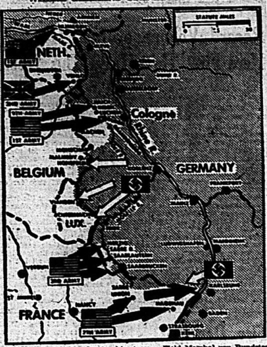
Front reports said the great battle raging farther to the west, north of the Danube Bend, was going favorably for Red Army troops struggling for other routes westward toward Bratislava and Vienna.

The German high command was reported throwing in large numbers of reserves and new air units in an effort to check the Soviet push, which threatened to spill out across the Danube and block escape routes from beleagured Budapest.

The southeastern Slovakia Soviet drive appeared almost certain of throwing the Nazis out of Kassa and Rimaszombat within the next few days. Capitulation of the towns would loose the enemy hold from a huge segment of eastern Slovakia, if not all of it.

An Izvestia report from the Slovakian battlefront said hard winter weather had set in. Ski men—both German and Russian — were taking a more active part in the fighting.

WHERE GERMANS OPENED OFFENSIVE



In an order of the day to his troops Field Marshal von Rundstedt announced that "the hour has struck" to throw the Allies off German soil. Aided by the revived Luftwaffe and a new "secret weapon," about which there are no details, powerful German divisions are counter-attacking along an 80-mile front at the spot marked by the white arrows in the centre of the Allied line, held by the U. S. First Army. Reports said that the Germans have penetrated far into American lines crashing into Belgium and Luxembourg. German press and radio are playing up the drive with the optimistic slogan "Paris by Christmas."

Enemy Has Driven 35 Miles Into Belgium Past Malmedy Cutting Liege-Arlon Road

Weather Becomes Tragedy For the Allied Air Power

With U. S. 1st Army, Dec. 21, 10:35 a.m. —(AP)— Reinforced elements of the 1st Army have stemmed the northernmost prong of the German offensive while containing the flank of this spearhead on a line running through Malmedy and Stavelot.

The forward push of crack enemy armored units in this thrust was checked by a head-on collision with veteran 1st Army troops. They were backed up by additional artillery, armor and tank destroyers, which swung into action without a moment's delay and drove forward in a bid to stem the German advance.

Other Americans swung into position along the northern flank of the German salient which has been pushed back southward at several points. Considerable forces of enemy armor were chewed up and the German infantry suffered heavy losses.

14 Miles South of Liege

Paris, Dec. 21 (AP) — The German counter offensive has driven 35 miles into Belgium beyond Malmedy, cutting the Liege-Bastogne-Arlon road at a point about 14 miles south of Liege fortress. Supreme Headquarters disclosed today.

Field Marshal Karl Von Rundstedt's massive Winter rush across Allied lines of communication has developed into two deep wedges as massive formations of from five to six armored divisions and eight to nine infantry divisions poured into a wide breach under the concealment of fog and cloud.

The second deep wedge had penetrated three-fourths of the way across Luxembourg. This drive farther south appeared directed toward Sedan, scene of the 1940 break through.

This drive carried 14 miles from the frontier town of Vianden to just east of Wiltz, 10 miles east of Bas-Sedan. Wiltz is 36 miles north of the city of Luxembourg. A parallel German column was in the vicinity of Clearvaux, seven miles northeast of Wiltz.

Supreme headquarters still did not permit up-to-the-hour pinpointing of German positions, and field dispatches quoted "good authority" on the 1st. Army front as saying the German drive was not likely to be checked this week although the northernmost prong of the German attack had been stemmed.

American troops were fighting back, giving and receiving their heaviest losses of the war, as Von Rundstedt concentrated from 13 to 15 armored and infantry divisions—up to 200,000 men—into a massive bid for a break-through.

(The German high command claimed its spearheads had penetrated the Ardennes Forest and cut the 45-mile Liege-Bastogne highway, one of the main north-south highways linking the American 1st and 3rd armies.

Will Not Be Halted This Week.

(Bastogne is a Belgian town four miles west of the Luxembourg border and 40 miles northeast of Sedan. It was through the Ardennes Forest that the Germans made their great break-through in 1940, smashing across the Meuse at Sedan.)

Security regulations still blacked out the name of towns which German advanced elements had reached 48 hours ago.

But on good authority it could be said that the German onslaught was not likely to be halted this week, although 1st army counter-measures have been in progress since the German attack began rolling Dec. 16.

American troops suffered considerable casualties and several elements were completely surrounded south and west of St. Vith.

(Crossing of the Liege-Bastogne road would represent a 17 mile advance west of St. Vith for the Germans, or a minimum penetration of Belgium and Luxembourg of 14 miles. The road is approximately 35 miles east of the north-south course of the Meuse as it flows through Givet, Dinant and Namur.)

The German 80-mile front had been contained on its north flank along the line from Monschau, Butgenbach and Stavelot after a 30-mile penetration into Allied rear areas 22 miles from Liege.

But on the enemy's southern flank the Germans were reported surging forward in a possible turn toward Sedan on the Meuse, 65 miles southwest of their last reported positions at Maspelt, south of St. Vith.

Low grey clouds and fog for the second day bound Allied air forces to the ground and robbed the U. S. 1st Army of its best chance of pulling down the German offensive to a complete halt immediately.

With the fields crawling with German armor and roads jammed with German transport, the weather was a tragedy for Allied air power. Only six Allied planes got off the ground yesterday.

The last reported positions of the Germans were two days old because of an Allied Supreme Headquarters time lag in announcements for security reasons.

But dispatches from the 1st Army front said Von Rundstedt's offensive had slackened slightly in violence today and showed signs of slowing up to consolidate positions.

Begin to Take Effect

Other dispatches from the 21st Army group front to the north said Allied counter-measures on the north side of the German wedge were beginning to take effect, but that the German offensive must be expected to make more progress. The dispatch did not explain what these counter-measures were.

Stettinius May Go to London

By FLORA LEWIS
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP) — The possibility arose today that State Secretary Stettinius might go to London as a preliminary to a big three meeting.

Foreign Secretary Eden called for a re-establishment of "quarterly meetings of foreign secretaries" of the great powers in the House of Commons yesterday.

British spokesmen have clearly shown for some time their ardent wish to have a high Allied conference on their home ground; but it seems improbable that Marshal Stalin would be willing to leave Russia to meet Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt in Britain.

The flare-up in Greece and Italy bared differences in Anglo-American policy towards liberated Europe which both sides have expressed their interest in talking out.

Mr. Churchill told the House of Commons yesterday that the Allies agreed on general aims, but that "whether there is complete agreement on every aspect of these matters is another question altogether."

Whether Mr. Stettinius will travel to London before the big three meets depends on the decision of President Roosevelt, say well-informed sources. So far, no decision has been taken, they said.

In addition to the purely Anglo-American problems, it is considered possible that Mr. Stettinius may meet with Russian diplomats in London to lay the groundwork for Allied agreement on the question of voting procedure in the world peace agency.

Priority on Trains For Armed Forces In Holiday Season

Toronto, Dec. 21 (CP) — The Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway announced last night in a joint statement that uniformed men and women of the armed forces will have priority over civilians in boarding Canadian trains and will have first choice of seats during the Christmas holiday travel season. The policy became effective last night.

"The supply of passenger equipment is limited," said the statement. "The men and women of the armed forces are entitled to enjoy Christmas at home. This can be assured by civilians refraining from travelling. Members of the armed forces will be given preference."

C.C.F. TO NOMINATE CANDIDATE TO CONTEST GREY NORTH

Owen Sound, Dec. 21 (CP)—Maurice Christie, President of the Grey North C.C.F. Association, announced last night that the C.C.F. has decided to contest the Grey North bye-election Feb. 5 in which Defence Minister McNaughton will be the Liberal candidate. The C.C.F. will hold a nominating convention Jan 6.

Mayor Garfield Case of Owen Sound has been nominated as Progressive Conservative candidate in the by-election.

2 Fliers Make Forced Landing

Sackets Harbor, N.Y., Dec. 21 —(AP)—Two fliers, lost in a blinding snowstorm on a flight from Canada, made a forced landing near here late yesterday.

PO. Douglas Wagner, R.A.F. pilot, and L.A.C. Richard Earl, Royal Navy, escaped injury. Their Harvard trainer was on a routine flight from Kingston Ont.

Wagner said he climbed to 10,000 feet without emerging from the snow; then dived through a hole in the storm, landing wheels up. The plane's only damage was a bent propeller.

GOOD NEWS CAUSES DEATH

Grants Pass, Ore., Dec. 21—(AP)—For 14 years executors have been searching for Ed. S. Young, whose grand-uncle in Philadelphia bequeathed him $5,000. Finally, they found Young here, a 72-year-old relief recipient. He listened to the news, then dropped dead.

Stimson Sees War Shortened If Nazi Push Fails, 1918 Recalled

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP) — War Secretary Henry Stimson said today if the German counter offensive fails it definitely will shorten the war.

He coupled with this assertion, however, the statement that the Germans' ability to launch the huge offensive is significant.

Mr. Stimson, in his weekly review of the war given at a news conference, said the German chose for their attack a sector "which had been loosely held by both sides. It was a terrain which had not offered to the Allies much incentive for exploitation."

In response to a question Stimson said he based his statement concerning a possible shortening of the war on his recollection of events 25 years ago when he fought in the First Great War.

"I was there when they drove almost to the Channel, again almost to Armentieres," he said. "Again when they drove to the Marne. I remember how we felt—as if they would never stop. And then I remember how, suddenly, on the 18th. of July (1918) we bit into the German salient and it shrivelled up like a toy balloon.

"And, I remember how in what seemed a very short time after, the surrender came."

Mr. Stimson made these other points in his estimate of the European situation:

"Our armies are being steadily reinforced and the movement of supplies to support them has been greatly enlarged and improved. Germany, with the winter upon her is being subjected to a steadily increasing aerial attack which has assumed vast proportions.

"But menacing to the Germans as the situation has been on the western front, the German high command must also be prepared to meet the Russian Winter offensive wherever it may strike."

Mr. Stimson said Allied counter-measures are under way and then added:

"But in the fluid state of the fighting, if I gave you detailed accounts of German activities, it would inevitably throw light on our assessment of their current plans and capabilities. This in turn, would throw light on our counter-measures. The success of our operations and the safety of our men depend upon a certain amount of restraint and patience at a moment when the stakes are high."

Plan To Extend Sea and Air Blockade of Japan

Pearl Harbor, Dec. 21 —(AP)— Admiral Sir Bruce Frer, commander-in-chief of the new British Pacific Fleet, conferred today with Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the United States Pacific Fleet, on plans to extend the sea and air blockade of Japan.

The conferences began some days ago but just have been disclosed. It recently was reported from Melbourne that Sir Bruce's fleet alone was capable of challenging the entire Japanese fleet.

LEYTE CONQUEST BY U.S. TROOPS NEAR COMPLETION

Disaster Predicted for Jap Troops in Mountainous Country of Island

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Dec. 21 (AP)—American conquest of rugged Leyte island—the outcome "will decide the fate of the greater east war," Japan's Premier Koiso said Dec. 12—neared accomplishment today.

"The battle is rapidly drawing to an end," announced Gen. MacArthur two months and a day after he returned to the Philippines Oct. 20.

On Mindoro island "there was no enemy ground activity and his air action was light," today's communique said. Nine raiding planes were downed.

Disaster was depicted for the enemy on mountainous northwest Leyte. That decisive battlefield is crossed north and south by a single corridor from Pinamopoan to Ormoc and linked by a supplementary road to the west coast at Palompon.

Two American divisions slashing south from Pinamopoan and a third pushing north from Ormoc have fought to within a mile of a juncture along the corridor road, "thus completing destruction of the Yamashita line."

Formed at Heavy Cost.

Lt.-Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, who boasted his success at Singapore would be repeated on Leyte, had formed that line at heavy cost with reinforcements landed from bomb-blasted convoys prior to the loss of Ormoc.

Yamashita's "cohesion now is completely broken up and he is no longer capable of an integrated defence," today's communique said. "The small remnants of his forces, divided into isolated groups, are able to resist temporarily only at independent points. Scattered elements are fleeing toward Palompon in an endeavor to reach the northwest coast of Leyte."

Libongao, where the Palompon road feeds into the corridor, was seized by the U.S. 77th infantry division. A mile to the north, dismounted 1st cavalry division troops captured Kanango in a three-mile push south from Lonoy. Some of the enemy's isolated groups are squeezed between the 1st cavalry and the 32nd infantry division farther north.

Enemy losses in the Leyte campaign, including more than 30,000 drowned at sea in aerial destruction of reinforcement convoys, recently were placed by headquarters at close to 90,000.

CANADIANS SMASH 13 NAZI ASSAULTS IN NINE HOURS

Rome, Dec. 21 (AP). — German forces are throwing heavy tank-led counter-attacks against the Canadian bridgehead across the Naviglio Canal northeast of Faenza but the Canadians are holding fast despite the ferocity of the thrusts, Allied headquarters said today.

There was sharp action in the sector last night during which the Canadians took 40 prisoners.

The counter-attacks at the canal bridgehead, north of Bagnacavallo, were blunted by the Carleton and York Regiment of St. Stephen, N.B., which smashed 13 German assaults in nine hours, it was disclosed.

Other 8th Army troops—presumably Polish and Indian—crossed the Lamone River at two points near Ronco, occupied Formellino half a mile north of the Bolognarimini lateral Highway and joined additional units north of Faenza in seizing San Silvestro and San Pietro Laguna.

Clear Bank of River.

At the same time, New Zealanders cleared the east bank of the Senio River for three miles north of the highway.

South of the highway—route 6 along which the British 8th Army is grinding its way toward Bologna, present chief allied objective in the Italian campaign—action was confined to patrol operations.

Previously almost all enemy resistance had been reported cleared from southeast of the Senio and south of the highway.

With the prisoner-bag standing at more than 1,500, men of the Canadian Corps were menacing the strongly-defended junction of Bagnacavallo Tuesday night, Canadian Press war correspondent William Boss reported in a delayed front dispatch.

He said vigorous patrolling and mortar fire marked action along the Naviglio front.

Line Defined.

At the time the dispatch was filed, the Canadians held a line starting two miles north of Mezzano—on the Ravenna-Ferrara road six miles northwest of Ravenna—and running south along the Munio Canal, paralleling the Naviglio.

General Scobie Says Progress Made in Greece

Athens, Dec. 21 (AP).—Lt.-Gen. R. M. Scobie, British Commander in Greece, announced progress today in clearing insurgent forces from Athens and Piraeus in a routine statement issued three hours after the time he had set for beginning a full-scale attack on the rebel gun positions.

In an ultimatum last night the British general said that as of 9 a.m. today (3 a.m. E.D.T.) any ELAS forces still holding out would be attacked "with all the arms at my disposal".

A communique issued at noon made no mention of this warning, but said further prisoners and weapons had been captured.

Jean Allis, the pro-Nazi former premier who escaped from the Averoff prison two days ago when the insurgents stormed the building, was recaptured last night.

A reply was awaited from King George II in London on whether he would accept or reject a suggestion that the country's leadership be turned over to Archbishop Damaskinos as Regent. It was stated last night that Premier George Papandreou had advised the king by message to accept such a regency. Some cabinet members, however, are understood to have urged the king to oppose such a move.

In leaflets labelled "urgent warning", and dropped by R.A.F. pilots, Gen. Scobie had warned the ELAS—militia forces of the leftist EAM. party—that he intended to use machine-guns, rocket weapons, bombs, mortars, naval and land artillery in an all-out effort to silence insurgent guns which have been active for ten days

German Offensive Shows Signs Of Long-Range Careful Planning

By WILLIAM STEWART
(CP War Correspondent)

The dangerous German counter-attack between the Maas and Moselle may have been imposed by the necessity of removing the American threat to the vital Ruhr, but evidently is intended to deal with a situation that was anticipated by the enemy.

The counter-offensive doesn't have the appearance of an operation hurriedly put together but rather of an attack well-planned and weeks in the making.

Its strength may also prove that a long-expected development in Germany's defence strategy has now become fact. That development, forecast after Allied successes in France and Belgium, was that the German high command would be forced to switch its top defensive priority from the eastern to the western front.

It would be no surprise if the crack German infantry and tank forces making the drive into Belgium and Luxembourg included seasoned reserves from the eastern front. They may have been out of action reforming and have been moved to strike against the Americans on the threshold of the Ruhr.

Must Hold Ruhr

It seems certain that Germany could carry on the war no longer than she could hold the Ruhr and keep its great concentration of war industries intact.

The Germans would have anticipated that the Ruhr would be one of the prime targets of the Allied drive and planned counter-measures for the time the threat to the area became imminent.

While two American armies hacked their way closer to this vital Rhineland territory they apparently built up for their defence-by-attack.

It is seldom that the organization of an operation on such a scale can long escape detection of opposing

FIREMEN ANSWER THREE MINOR CALLS

Local firemen were called out three times Thursday morning in answer to calls all of which turned out to be for minor reasons. Early this morning firemen were called to the Mead Johnston company plant where an overheated furnace set fire to two planks in the furnace room.

Later in the morning firemen investigated an alarm coming from East Bridge Street, where tenants of a second storey apartment were fumigating the premises with unpleasant reaction for the tenants in the third storey. Tenants were asked to discontinue their fumigating practice. The third alarm was for a chimney fire on Charles Street. No damage was caused as result of any of the blazes, it was stated.

STOCK OF CIGARETTES STOLEN FROM STORE

Breaking open a rear entrance door, robbers stole the entire stock of cigarettes from Shannon's grocery store situated at 335 Front St., early Wednesday evening. The door was found ajar by P.C. Evans, who was on patrol at the time. Subsequent investigations by police and store employees revealed entrance had been gained by pushing against the outside of the door with sufficient effort to force the door bolt. The only thing reported to be missing was the complete stock of cigarettes. Sergt. Arnott and P.C. Evans searched the rear part of the building seeking footprints in the snow or other possible clues that might assist in the apprehension of the robbers.

WEATHER RESPONSIBLE FOR REAR-END CRASH

During the height of yesterday's storm a truck driven by Charles Jenks, Consecon, crashed into the rear of a parked automobile driven by Mrs. Emily Carter, of Peterborough. Mrs. Carter had brought her motor car to a full stop on Highway No. 2 about six miles west of Belleville owing to the blinding snow storm. Jenks was following behind and as visibility was at its lowest possible point the truck driver did not see the parked car until directly upon it. Roland Carter, a passenger in the motor car, received a slight eye laceration as he was hurled forward into the dash board by the force of the impact. Traffic Officer Harry Caldwell investigated and reported the element of weather had doubtless been responsible for the accident.

Boxing Day To Be Observed In Many Places

By The Canadian Press

Observance of Boxing Day — it's an old English custom — will make a long week-end for many Canadians this year, many of them leaving their jobs Friday, Dec. 22 and not returning until next Wednesday. Though not a statutory holiday in Ontario, more people in that province will benefit by the day-after-Christmas holiday than in any of the other eight.

Boxing Day is a public statutory holiday in British Columbia, Alberta and Manitoba and cities in those 3 western provinces will prolong the Christmas holiday spirit for an extra day. However, the fourth of the western provinces will find Tuesday, Dec. 26 almost generally observed as a holiday since the Saskatchewan government will close and all business concerns, except federal offices and banks, will close throughout the province.

East of Ontario observance will be slight or not at all. In Halifax, Saint John and Fredericton no holiday plans have been made, but a civic holiday has been proclaimed in Moncton, N.B.

The Province of Quebec, which observes four more statutory wartime holidays than any other in the Dominion, does not observe the old English Boxing Day custom, and only in Montreal will some of the stores remain closed for the day after Christmas.

Complete observance of the holiday will be made in more than 20 Ontario municipalities including Guelph, Kingston, Gananoque, Napanee, Chatham, Brockville, Cornwall, Woodstock, Ingersoll, Kitchener, Waterloo, Galt, Welland, Sault Ste. Marie, London, Timmins, Belleville, North Bay, Sudbury, Port Arthur, Fort William and the Dominion capital.

Only partial observance, with stores closing and industries remaining open, will be made in St. Thomas, Peterboro, Hamilton, Windsor, Brantford, and Stratford. Though the day has not been authorized by the Niagara Falls city council, most stores in that city will be closed. In Toronto, as in Montreal, only several of the large department stores will observe the holiday.

Members of Belleville Club Enjoy Annual Poultry Bingo Session

It was "concentration" night at the Belleville Club last night and the boys forgot bridge scores, golf stories, fishing yarns and whatnot for awhile to spread themselves in what was formerly the annual Poultry Bingo session.

Competition was keen as the gobblers and pullets were not too plentiful due to the fact that there is a war going on.

However, the bingoists went to work with a will and many visions of additional turkey and chicken feeds were shattered when stentorian voices shouted the fateful word.

Old Lady Luck as usual picked out a favorite as is her wont when a few are gathered together under such circumstances, and one-half of the very few turkeys offered were won by Fortune's favorite. Generously he donated one-half of his well-gotten gains to a few visiting service men.

There was the usual good fellowship and camaraderie, however, and this was enchanced by the warmth and satisfaction that follows a splendid supper well prepared and as well served.

It was learned that the club will observe its usual New Year's Eve party on Dec. 31.

Poultry Offering Unusually Small On City Market

Turkeys again remained scarce on the pre-Christmas market Thursday with practically all which were offered being already ordered with vendors waiting only for customers to pick them up. A few tom turkeys were available, however, with vendors quoting 54 cents the pound. One woman asked $13.25 for a bird weighing over 24 pounds, while one or two others were offered weighing slightly below this.

Also a few geese were offered at 44 cents the pound and were quickly bought up by customers anxious to obtain fowl to grace their holiday dining table. Numbers of chickens were available at prices ranging from 35 cents up to 52 cents per pound. The latter price was for capons weighing in the neighborhood of eight pounds each.

About the only other type produce offered on the market was apples with best grade Spys and Delicious bringing $3 the bushel, and 50 to 60 cents the basket. Combination variety Snows, and McIntosh sold at $2.25, while Talman Sweets sold at 60 cents the peck.

Heavy country roads as result of Wednesday's snow storm and following blow, were responsible for a small market attendance during the early hours with many vendors not arriving until well towards noon.

Lt. Bill Wills Writes of Schelde Estuary Battle

The heroic efforts of the Calgary Highlanders of Canada in the battle for the Schelde Estuary and the eventual opening of the port of Antwerp are graphically described in a letter from Lieut. Bill Wills, son of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. P. H. Wills of this city.

The Calgarians were thrown into the van of the fight for the Beveland Peninsula and succeeded in "taking off the first big bite," Bill writes.

"The fighting was very bitter and the boys were greatly outnumbered. They were up against some of Hitler's best troops. Paratroopers dropped behind us to prevent our cutting off the peninsula gave us some trouble."

The Highlanders were spread out in such a manner that the first night the Germans penetrated their thin line and separated the nearest company from the battalion headquarters.

Bill, who is a signals officer of the battalion writes: "I could not lay my line direct to the boys and was forced to crawl around the Jerries to establish communication. The place we were fighting at was called Hoogerheide and was definitely one of the most important battles this unit has engaged in.

Lost Positions Regained

Heavy Nazi counter attacks pushed the gallant Scotties back several times, but "in spite of this the battalion held and the lost positions were later regained."

After three or four days rest the Calgarians went into action again and were this time responsible for the sealing off of the peninsula. "If the credit could go to any one unit," Bill wrote, "it was the Calgary Highlanders that were responsible for the opening of the port of Antwerp."

Bill exemplifies a fine esprit de corps in his letter and writes that "while I am not much on this war stuff I'm dead certain this unit is one of the best, if not the best in the Canadian Army. I am not saying this because I am one of them but because I know what they have done in this war."

He is anxious to complete his education and realises "it will take a lot of plugging, but it will be worth it."

Speaking of the Jerries, he states, "We are really fighting fanatics but even fanatics cannot stand up to land air power such as we have."

TEACHER WITH BABE GETS POST

London, Dec. 21—(CP Reuters)—A married woman teacher, with an 18-weeks-old baby, was the only suitable applicant when a London headmaster advertised for a mathematics mistress. So he asked her to bring the baby to school, where two girls, preparing for a nursing examination, took charge of it.

Sgt. Dracup, M. M., Reluctant To Talk of Exploits in Italy

Reluctant to talk of his exploit in winning the Military Medal, Sergeant Harold S. Dracup, son of Mr. and Mrs. Selbourne Dracup, 36 Betles Street, who returned home from overseas this week merely stated, "It happened just outside the town of Ortona crossing the Moro River, where a Nazi bullet caught me in the chest."

However, it was learned later that Sergeant Dracup had received his decoration for daring leadership in helping secure a bridgehead made by the Allies.

On Dec. 8, 1943, after the bridgehead across the Moro had been established, the enemy opened a devastating fire at No. 14 platoon of Sergt. Dracup's regiment and foreseeing the danger to the bridgehead, he placed his platoon so as to give him covering fire, and with a few men dashed across flat open country under withering blasts of small arms fire.

He, with his handful of men, reached a house where the enemy was entrenched and with grenade and bayonet cleared the house, room by room, taking 31 prisoners in all. Through Sergt. Dracup's personal bravery and leadership the bridgehead was extended and the path cleared for further successful operations.

Asked what he thought of the Italian people and the Italian campaign, the modest sergeant stated the people were simply "no good" and the mountainous terrain of Italy had impeded Allied progress to no small extent.

The sergeant was met at Kingston on his arrival by a brother, Private Jack Dracup, who himself arrived back from overseas a short time ago. Another brother, Ray, is at present with the C.A.S.C. in Italy.

Record Volume of Mail Handled Here First Three Days This Week

The heaviest rush of mail in the history of the Belleville post office was experienced during the first three days of this week, according to Postmaster J. V. C. Trusisch and members of the postal staff who worked at top speed for many long overtime hours in a vain effort to get rid of mails which constantly kept pouring in.

One quick glance of the scene "behind the wickets" was sufficient for an indication of what the current Christmas rush really meant at the local post office. Starting really in earnest on Monday parcels began to be piled in every imaginable part of the main sorting floor while huge boxes stacked full of Christmas cards and other greetings were to be seen everywhere.

Aided by a considerably increased staff of temporary workers, postal employees saw their first respite from the rush late Wednesday afternoon when outgoing mails began to show a decrease from the unprecedented volume seen earlier in the week. Incoming mails for local delivery still remained high in volume, however.

So great was the volume of mails to be handled that postal employees were forced to silence the telephone. "We haven't got enough help to sort mail let alone answer the phone," commented one postal official. "If we answered all the inquiry calls coming in to this office this week it would mean full time for one man."

Mainly responsible for the terrific early week rush was the volume of greeting cards received. Deadline for mail for local delivery was set for December 19th and as the postmaster put it "it just seemed that everybody saved their cards and then mailed them on the last date."

With the rush now all but over all postal employees are looking for is some rest. "Working from eight in the morning until midnight gets you down if you stay at it long enough," was the comment.

Fire Damages O'Connor Home

Trenton, Dec. 21 (Special)—The home of Mrs. Margaret O'Connor, 39 Lorne Ave., was very considerably damaged by fire on Tuesday afternoon and firemen worked for nearly two hours in the extreme cold before they were able to bring the blaze completely under control.

The house is of frame structure and it is thought the fire started in the attic around the chimney.

Firemen were quickly called and had to break attic and upstair windows to get at the blaze which seemed smouldering in stored household goods in the attic.

Much of the roof and the rear of the house were completely destroyed and extensive damage was done to the inside and the contents by smoke and water.

It is understood a gentleman who boards and rooms with Mrs. O'Connor was asleep upstairs at the time but escaped without injury. A daughter of Mrs. O'Connor was working in one of the dry good stores down town at the time of the fire.

37 Cases in Court.

Trenton Police Court dealt with thirty-seven cases on Tuesday afternoon with Magistrate T. Y. Wills presiding. County Crown Attorney Donnan, prosecuted.

Seven were fined the usual $1.00 for breach of the traffic by-law and four paid fines for breach of the Liquor Control Act. One of these paid $103 for having a permit in a fictitious name, another paid $23 for having two liquor permits while the other two paid the usual $13 for breaches of the Act.

Robert Marshall was assessed $7.50 for careless driving and a similar case was dismissed.

A representative for a Transport firm failed to appear and the case was enlarged for personal service.

Two others paid $10 and costs for breach of the Highway Traffic Act, while another paid $5 and costs for a similar offence.

Howard Tackaberry, charged with assaulting R. T. Terry. The charge was dismissed as the Magistrate was of the opinion there might have been provocation.

Robert Webb, paid $7.50 for using insulting language.

Detlor J. Kleinsteuber for a breach of the Wartime Price and Trade Board (using marked gas in his private car) was fined $5 and $7.50 costs.

J. Goodwin for breach of the Wartime Price and Trade Board Act was fined $25 and $7.50 costs. It is alleged that he made a false declaration to obtain a tire and tube.

Wendell Finger, charged with assaulting Joe Rushnell, got six months suspended sentence and ordered to pay $8.75 costs.

Thomas Gallagher, charged with using insulting language, to Miles Kleinsteuber the charge was dismissed, as one was as much to blame as the other.

A youth was given three months definite and twelve months indefinite on a theft charge.

For having government stores in his possession—to wit—military equipment, another youth was given a year's suspended sentence and ordered to pay $16.25 costs. When he explained to the court that he found the goods in a deserted shack he was told he should have turned them over to the authorities.

David Elliott, charged with non-support has his case enlarged till called on, in order to give the family a chance to get together for the Christmas season.

W. Regan, charged with theft of trees, from the Hydro park at Dam No. 2. Case was enlarged for one week.

Gerald Ellis on two charges of theft was also remanded for one week.

P.O. J. Hart Not Coming Home as Reported

Contrary to a previous report that Pilot Officer Jack Hart of Point Anne was on his way home following completion of his first tour of operations as a Spitfire pilot, the Public Relations Department of the R.C.A.F. at Ottawa has had no confirmation of his return to this country, it was learned this morning. The story which appeared in the Ontario Intelligencer regarding his expected return home was picked up from a Toronto newspaper and with relatives indicating they had received no word of his expected arrival Public Relations Department in Ottawa was asked for confirmation.

ENEMY

From Monschau, the northern shoulder of the German wedge, north along the Roer front to Duren and Linnich the situation was unchanged.

South of the 1st Army sector, the U.S. 3rd Army hacked deeper into the Siegfried Line after penetrating its primary defences by finally clearing the Germans out of all Dillingen three miles north of Saarlautern.

The U. S. 7th Army in slow going, drove the Germans out of two Maginot Line forts, Simserhoff and Schiesseck, one and two miles west of Bitche, and hammered at Siegfried Line defences in the Wissembourg gap near the Rhine after penetrating seven lines of pill-boxes.

Fog-wrapped quiet continued on the fronts of the 1st Canadian and British 2nd armies in northern Germany and Holland.

Time-Table Torn.

There was a feeling here that it may be days before the enemy can be slowed or stopped—weeks before the U. S. 1st Army can regain positions it held in Germany last Sunday when the Prussian generals plunged headlong into a major bid for victory.

From news so far disclosed it appeared the Germans already have torn Gen. Eisenhower's winter campaign time-table to shreds. It was clear that with the 1st Army falling back the strategy of the flanking U. S. 9th and 3rd armies must be altered.

Despite the American reverse—already the greatest setback suffered in two years of fighting in Europe and Africa—there was some tendency among military men to welcome the German attack. A belief prevailed that "this was it"—the big battle that could eventually lead down the road to final victory.

There was no doubt that the Germans were expending vast reserves, and a defeat of the attacking forces could be so decisive as to shorten the war materially. An American officer in the field declared that "the war can be won right here."

Repulse Two Attacks.

The 3rd Army repulsed two German counter-attacks northeast of Sarreguemines. The 7th Army under intense artillery fire, was thrown out of Bundenthal, two miles inside the Palatinate and seven miles northwest of Weissembourg.

The French lost the town of Golshieism, northwest of Colmar, on the Rhine plain. Some 35,000 Germans still in the pocket west of the Rhine in France were believed to be fighting under the personal command of Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler.

The stand of the Germans all along these other fronts had stiffened surprisingly considering the fury they had concentrated into their new drive, and apparently was intended to tie up Allied forces which might otherwise be diverted to the Belgian-Luxembourg sector.

Considerable enemy movement was observed around Linnich and Lindern, north of the 1st Army sector.

Von Rundstedt was throwing in everything he had—from five to six armored divisions specially trained for the break-through task to Volks Grenadiers reported to make up the bulk of the eight to nine infantry divisions following in their wake.

Regain Some Ground

On the north flank Lt.-Gen. Hodges pushed back the Germans who had penetrated Moschau, 16 miles southeast of Aachen and just inside the German frontier and regained the ground in the forest east of the town.

The American line stiffened generally along the rest of the flank guarding Liege and Verviers with fighting apparently proceeding along the Ambleve river which meanders in a general east-west direction through Stavelot, five miles southwest of Malmedy. Stavelot too had been retaken by the Americans.

Twelve miles southeast of Malmedy in the centre of the German thrust the Americans still held St. Vith. But some American units had been cut off in a pincers thrust to within two miles east of St. Vith and to Maspelt, four miles south of St. Vith. Maspelt is just a mile inside the Belgian border and due west of the German town of Prum.

Germans Surrounded

Still farther south in Luxembourg the American-held town of Echternach on the German border was surrounded by Germans who had penetrated four miles southwest to Consdorf 14 miles northeast of the city of Luxembourg.

In a single area due east of Butgenbach, ground forces and air forces knocked out 28 tanks before the weather closed in. But Von Rundstedt's armored formations were still out in strength and operating in groups of 20 and 30.

Fresh massings of armor for new attacks on key objectives were reported this morning.

The Germans intensified their use of V-bombs against Belgian targets to interfere with American supply and reinforcement movements, but the main weight of this barrage fell on Belgian civilians.

Obituary

LATE JAMES N. LANCASTER

The funeral of James Norman Lancaster took place Wednesday afternoon from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Lancaster, 300 Foster Avenue. The service in the home and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Rural Dean A. Beauchamp Payne, Rector of the Church of St. Thomas.

The bearers were Messrs. Wallace Muir, Percy Fry, Harold Carruthers, Benjamin Yanover, Sydney Samuels and Arthur Firth.

LATE ETHAN A. PALMER

Frankford, Dec. 21 —(Special)—The funeral of Roy Howard, formerly of Frankford, who died suddenly in Peterborough as the result of a heart seizure on Saturday, December 16th., took place from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Arthur Howard, in this village on Monday afternoon, December 18th. The service in the home and at Frankford Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. H. H. Lackey of the United Church.

The bearers were Messrs. Delbert Badgley, Judd Sine, George Wannamaker, all of Frankford, and William Weese, Arthur Harris and William Witsell, all of Peterborough.

The late Mr. Howard was born in Frankford forty-one years ago and had lived in Peterborough for sixteen where he was employed in the city public works department for the past ten years. In religion he was a member of George Street United Church in that city.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Elizabeth Rose Hamilton; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Howard, Frankford; one sister, Mrs. H. J. Caldwell and one brother, Frank Howard, both of Frankford.

GEORGE DANIEL WRIGHT
(Murray Township)

Frankford, Dec. 21 —(Special)—The funeral of George Daniel Wright, who died suddenly at his home in Murray Township, Northumberland County, on Tuesday, December 12th., took place from his home on Saturday afternoon, December 16th., under Masonic auspices. The service in the home and at Stockdale Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. W. T. R. Delve of the Wooler United Church.

The late Mr. Wright was born seventy-nine years ago in Murray Township and lived there all his life, being engaged in farming. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wright. In religion he was a member of the Tabernacle United Church and fraternally he was a member of Franck Masonic Lodge at Frankford, of which he was secretary.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Jennie Osterhout; one daughter, Mrs. Elmo Dunn, Oshawa; one son, Earle P. Wright, Hamilton; two brothers, Rev. William H. Wright, Lincoln, Nebraska, and Herbert Wright, California.

ARNOLD EDDINGTON SMITH
(Oshawa)

Arnold Eddington Smith of Oshawa died suddenly shortly after midnight in his room at Hotel Quinte last night. Death was due to a heart seizure and he died before medical aid reached him. He was married to Miss Dorothy Hainer in Oshawa Wednesday afternoon and later in the day he and his wife motored to this city.

The late Mr. Smith, who was sixty-seven years of age, was born at Petworth, Ontario, and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ira Smith. For many years he lived in Oshawa and was employed as a machinist with General Motors in that city.

Surviving him are his wife; two sisters, Mrs. Almira Kerr and Mrs. Luella Hubel of this city, now spending the winter in Napanee; two brothers, Howard Smith, Tweed, and Eugene Smith, Odessa.

In religion he was a member of the United Church and fraternally he was a member of Victoria Lodge No. 299 A. F. & A. M. of Centreville, and Argyll Lodge No. 212 I.O.O.F., Napanee.

Resting at the Pinkston Funeral Home, Church Street at Victoria Avenue; the funeral announcement will be made later.

ENDED "BLACKOUTS"

Wing Cmdr. W. R. Franks, of Toronto, Ont., inventor of the "non-blackout" flying suit which has given the Allied air forces a big tactical advantage. Kept secret since 1939, it is only now announced by the R.C.A.F.

Tokyo Says Iwo Jima Raided by Superforts

San Francisco, Dec. 21 (AP)—Radio Tokyo said today that Iwo Jima in the Colcano Islands, 750 miles south of Tokyo, was raided Wednesday (Japanese Time) by a formation of 15 Superfortresses accompanied by fighters. This is the 13th consecutive daily raid.

Almost simultaneously, radio Tokyo reported a raid by British planes on Sabang, on the northwest tip of Japanese-held Sumatra. The planes, said radio Tokyo, were "probably carrier-based."

The reports were unconfirmed.

News Blackout To Be Extended

Allied Supreme Headquarters, Paris, Dec. 21 — (AP) — It was announced officially last night that hereafter positions of German and Allied armies will be made public once daily — after a sufficient time lag to make sure the enemy will get no benefit from the information.

The decision was announced after protests from almost all the Allied world over recent suppression of news concerning German gains on the western front.

Headquarters explained the news blackout had been imposed because of the fluid military situation and the belief by Allied generals that information on troop positions, even if it were days late, might help the Germans.

It was indicated the time lag in announcements henceforth probably would be between 24 and 48 hours.

Ross Munro Home on Leave

(By The Canadian Press)

Straight from the battle fields of Europe where he has been covering the war for The Canadian Press, Ross Munro has arrived back in Canada on leave aboard a Canadian warship.

In his coverage of war, the tall friendly reporter made five landings with the Allied troops on enemy soil—at Spitsbergen, Dieppe, Sicily, Italy and in France on D-Day.

It is his first visit to his homeland in two years.

Foreign Secretary Answers Suggestion

London, Dec. 21 — (CP) — A suggestion in the House of Commons today that the British government arrange a week's Christmas truce in the Greek fighting brought from Foreign Secretary Eden the sharp retort that "our object is not to stop it for a week but to obtain a final solution of this business."

The Foreign Secretary said his remarks of yesterday, when he said Britain was not trying to impose a King on the Greeks, had been "transmitted to Greece." He expressed hope that his statement would "have the effect that is desired."

"I hope it may be clear to the House," he said, "that our desire is that this business should be brought to a speedy conclusion. That is the decision of the government. But by that decision we stand and by that decision we must hold."

Cigar Shortage Felt in City

There was a day when that phrase was quite conventional, especially around Christmas time. But alas, it is now but a fond memory and becoming more remote every day.

A survey of the cigar situation in Belleville revealed the stock of "weeds" is the lowest in the history of the cigar-making business. "Cigars? Are you kiddin'? Why I haven't even got any for myself this year," remarked one dealer when canvassed.

"I not only am out of cigars, but Wednesday night some sneak thief broke into my store and stole all of my stock of cigarettes, so what are the other dealers crying about?" bewailed John Shannon, Front St. grocer.

"Why don't you buy a pipe and be satisfied?" asked another tobacco store proprietor after a reporter had asked for a cigar today.

"From what I hear the shortage is caused by the lack of experienced cigar makers but in the meantime my customers want cigars," added another dealer. It was also disclosed that it takes three years to learn cigar-making trade and no new cigar makers are available.

"My customers won't wait three years for a cigar," stated a third dealer here today.

In the meantime an under-the-counter hush-hush business in cigars results in regular customers being allotted one "weed" a day. Even at that they go out puffing merrily and happy about the whole thing.

TRAINS DELAYED

Toronto, Dec. 21 — (CP) — Derailment of a car loaded with explosives delayed arrival of several passenger trains at Toronto Union station today by about an hour. Officials said the derailment, due to icing conditions, upset the yard's facilities. Incoming passenger trains were delayed in the yards.

MAN AT WORK ON GERMAN SOIL

Taking life as easily as possible under the circumstances, Cpl. Louis O. Reggia, of Washington, D.C., a radio operator at a forward artillery observation post in Rurdorf, Germany, sends back results to a 105 mm. howitzer battery pounding German command post on the other side of the Roer river.

GETS CITIZENSHIP

Proudly clutching her citizenship papers, Ellen Schwanneke, German-born acress, 29, leaves the Department of Justice in New York, after having become a full-fledged American. Miss Schwanneke first came to international attention years ago when she appeared in "Maedchen in Uniform" on the German stage. Even after thus showing how the soul of a German girl was warped and blinded by militarism, she was deluged with invitations from Der Fuehrer, which she spurned. The toast of Berlin finally fled Germany and came to the United States in 1939.

AT CONFERENCE

Commander of the British forces in Greece, Maj.-Gen. Ronald M. Scobie is shown in Athens shortly after he conferred with Greek factional leaders in an effort to end the civil war raging in the capital at Athens. He demanded the unconditional surrender of the Leftist forces fighting in opposition to the regime of Greek Premier George Papandreou.

ESTONIAN SONGBIRD IN SWEDEN

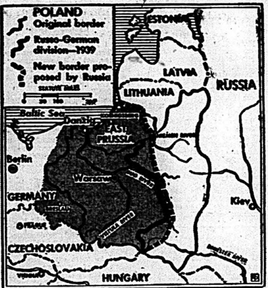
BRITAIN BACKS SPLIT OF POLAND



Before the House of Commons, Prime Minister Winston Churchill endorsed the Soviet Union's plan to demand territorial concessions from Poland. The Russian plan claims a post-war "buffer-state" carved out of eastern Poland for Russia, while in return, the greater part of East Prussia would be ceded to Poland. Churchill suggested that there would be no objection from Great Britain or Russia if the Poles also pushed out their borders into Germany proper. The United States has been tacitly invited to make public its stand on the Russo-Polish dispute.

CORONER'S JURY NAMES RESPONSIBLE

La Malbaie, Dec. 21 — (CP) — 3 men yesterday were held criminally responsible by a coroner's jury for the death of two youths last November who died after they drank a liquid brew.

Testimony given at the inquest showed that the brew drank by Joseph Edouard Dasylava, 18, and Gerard Carre, 16, of nearby St. Fidele, contained salicylate of pure methyl.

The men held criminally responsible are: Gerard Tremblay of Montreal, Raoul Fournier of nearby Clermont, and Adelard Tremblay of LaMalbaie.

Private E. A. "Smokey" Smith, V.C.

Private Ernest Alvia (Smokey) Smith of New Westminster, B.C., is the first Canadian soldier in the ranks in this war who has been awarded the coveted decoration of the Victoria Cross for valor in the face of the enemy in Italy. He is spoken of as "a one-man army" who held a bridgehead on the Savio River. This reference in the citation gives some indication of the spirit and courage of this eighth Canadian to be so honored in the present war with the award of the Victoria Cross.

Private Smith who is coming home for Christmas will be welcomed by Canadians everywhere.

He is a type of the resourceful and spirited Canadian soldiers who have served Canada and democracy on the battlefields of this war and there have given so outstanding a contribution to the cause of world freedom. His companions in the Canadian Seaforths have expressed their pride in the deeds of this one of their number who has brought honor upon them and upon Canada.

With great initiative and inspired leadership Smith led his Piat group to attack an enemy formation that was approaching to attack the bridgehead the Highlanders were establishing under severe conditions of weather. The group was under heavy fire and he planned to use the gun to best advantage. He left one man with the weapon and went with the other man to secure another weapon. His companion was wounded but Smith exposed himself to the full view of the enemy at thirty feet, fired the Piat and knocked out a Nazi tank. Though ten Hun infantrymen then charged him, he stood on the road and fired point-blank at them with the tommy-gun, killing four and driving the rest back. Another tank took up the fight followed by infantry but Smith steadily held his position beside his comrade and fired upon the enemy. He showed supreme contempt for the enemy fire and he finally helped his comrade to shelter, brought medical aid and went back to guard the road. Through his action the bridgehead was consolidated against attack and the success of the operation brought eventually further advance.

It is not to be wondered at that his companions hold him in high honor.

This Season

At this season thoughts turn to others who have been less fortunate and whose Christmas observance would be less happy and perhaps very dreary were it not that they are remembered by friends who in the midst of their own enjoyment and preparations for the celebration of Yuletide do not forget. Many organizations, which include church societies, and also individuals are joined in this kindly dispensation of cheer to those to whom the course of life has been less kindly than it has been to others.

This is in the true spirit of the Christmas festival which has down the ages been marked by the spirit of giving, so that both those who receive and those who give are blessed. To leave them out of mind at such a time would be hostile to the spirit of Christmas and kindly souls and public-spirited bodies act in this mood and bring the cheer which lifts the hearts of those who are unfortunate or unhappy and out of the ordinary ways and brings the light of Christmas into their lives and kindles new warmth in their hearts.

It is true that in these times the need is not so great as it is in times of depression but enough of the need remains to make it obligatory that such people should feel that they are in the minds of others at the Christmas season and that Christmas is meant for them as well as for those on whom sun, good health and fortune shine and that it is a universal feast to which all mankind may come.

So in these days devoted women and men are planning for others' pleasure and joy in the grand old style of Christmas, preparing hampers for the coming feast, so that no one may feel excluded from the riches of the blessings of Christmas Day.

The season kindles a fire in human hearts. It is like no other time. It is the high point of the year in the expansiveness of interest and it takes all within its heart. It has become a part of everyone who has ever heard its message and it cannot pass away. Not even war can banish it or dethrone its interest in the soul of man. Faraway in the corners of the earth it touches those who have ever felt its influence. The warmth of Christmas glows around the world where there are men and women and children. So the celebration is observed wherever its message of goodwill has gone and young and old, rich and poor, hale and unwell feel its cheer. A chorus of happiness goes up from the earth.

It is the way of Christmas that all should feel this. So people cannot deny or restrain this spirit which sends them out to carry cheer to human hearts.

Time a Motorist Saves

(Chatham News)

What does the average reckless motorist do with the few minutes he saves? Is his time so valuable that every minute counts? Ask his wife, or his employer or some friends. Any one of them will laugh at the question.

He may lie in bed a few minutes later in the morning. He may dawdle over his dressing or his breakfast. He may have a little extra gossip when he arrives at his work. But of one thing you may be sure. He never does anything of the slightest importance with the few minutes. All he does with it is to contribute to the long list of motor accidents that rolls up every year. All he does is to help maim or kill innocent persons—and occasionally himself.

Our Common Faults

(Halifax Chronicle)

A correspondent writes in to emphasize that the word is spelled Y-E-S—not "Yeah," or "Yah," or "Yap," or "Sure," or "You bet," or "Uh-Huh."

The point is well-taken. Slang and corruption are rapidly taking the place of English as we used to know it. The comics and not Webster or the New Oxford Dictionary are becoming our authority. We say "nuttin" and "sompin." We feel "good," when we mean "well," and we often declare we "are doing good." when we feel no charitable sentiments whatever. We run into Yiddish when we answer a question by saying "You telling me?" and into Polish when we answer "S'detso?"

What about a campaign to restore the well of English undefiled to its former purity?

Staking the Moon

(Windsor Star)

We have still further indication of the "big" outlook of the United States. Asked for information as to how scientists travelling to the moon might file claims on territory there, the Interior Department issues the instructions, calmly assuming that such lands may be "designated as public domain under the sovereignty of the United States."

No Finer Christmas Gift

(New York Sun)

The Red Cross is correct in saying that "there can be no finer Christmas present than a donation of a pint of blood in honor of a man spending his Christmas fighting overseas." To make the contribution personal it is allowing the donor to designate the person in whose honor the blood is given.

Prediction

(Syracuse Herald-Journal)

Naturally people are wondering if that prediction for Europe of the severest winter in 50 years includes this country—and they wonder on what it is based. Certainly the season got away to a good start. Not knowing what's ahead, let every possibile preparation be made to meet the months to come.

JUST FOLKS

(Copyright, 1944, Edgar A. Guest)

By EDGAR A. GUEST

DECEMBER 21, 1620

Out of all the throng a few
Brave enough God's work to do!
Out of all the many, they Saying: "Better, come what may;
Better in God's cause to die
Than a shameful peace to buy."
So from ancient lands they came,
Keeping freedom's torch aflame.

What if William Brewster then
Heartened not his fellow men?
What if he to them had said:
"Let us live at ease, instead.
Why set forth upon the sea,
Where the perils great will be,
When at home, with little strength,
We may run our lives full length?"

William Bradford had delayed
Freedom had he been afraid.
Had he counseled: "Safety's best!
Why adventure further west?
Here are friendship, comfort, ease,
Why for faith abandon these?"
Freedom's cause had halted then
While it waited stronger men.

Just a few, who dared to be
Stout of heart for liberty,
Landing on a wind-swept shore!
And today, the wide world o'er
A superb, courageous youth
Serving liberty and truth,
Fighting, land and sky and sea,
So that others may be free.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 21st., 1924.

The Y's Men's Club held their first regular meeting last night at the association rooms when the charter was closed as far as taking in charter members is concerned; from now on membership will come in through the usual channels. Mr. Newton Thompson was appointed treasurer and thus becomes a director. At the meeting next week each member will bring a present for a fellow member, the maximum cost to be ten cents. Mr. R. Rofe occupied the chair at the meeting and Mr. R. L. Brown was sergeant-at arms. Mr. Fred Deacon, Jr., will preside at the next meeting.

Mr. Charles O. Greenleaf of the Collegiate Institute staff at Sarnia, is home to spend the Christmas vacation.

Dec. 21st., 1914.

The new organ in Bridge Street Methodist Church was used in the services on Sunday last for the first time. Prof Albert D. Jordan of the First Methodist Church, London, Ontario, was the guest organist for the day and the choir was under the direction of Mr. Dan Cameron. The members of the large choir for the first time appeared robed in black gowns and each lady in addition to the gown wore a Geneva cap. It is of interest to note that the first musical instrument used in the service of the church was a bass viol played by the late Nathan Jones. One of the ministers took strong objection to the use of this instrument and on one occasion opened the service by announcing that "the congregation will now open the service by singing and fiddling the hymn number——". The first organ in the church was built by Mr. Benjamin Nutter whose factory stood near the Balmoral Block on Bridge Street. This instrument had wooden pipes. The first organist was Mr. Nathan Jones. Some time after building the church at the corner of Bridge and Church Streets an organ costing $4,000. was installed. Nathan Jones continued as organist until 1877. Four of the men and two of the ladies who were members of the choir in 1865, the year of removal to the new church building, are alive and they are Messrs. David Price, William Hopkins, James Peard and C. S. Merriday; the ladies are Mrs. David Price, formerly Miss McCurdy, and Mrs. C. S. Merriday, formerly Miss A. Booth. The organists of the church have been Prof. Whish, W. Flint Jones, Miss Minnie Jones, Miss Cassie Jones, Prof. Donnelly, Dr. Davies, Prof. Peters, Prof. Dingle, Prof. Hunt, Prof. Phelps, Prof. Thomas and Miss Elliott.

40 YEARS AGO

Dec. 21st., 1904.

Mr. A. E. Fish has returned home after a business trip to the Pacific Coast.

Mr. Jack Green has left to spend a two weeks' vacation visiting friends in North Bay and London, Ontario.

At the regular meeting of Foxboro Loyal Orange Lodge No. 5, the following officers were elected: G. E. Lloyd, W. M.; James Elliott, D. M.; Samuel Clarke, Chaplain; Fred Pope, Recording Secretary; William Kennedy, Financial Secretary; W. H. Cook, Treasurer; L. A. Juby, Director of Ceremonies; J. B. Gay and J. Farrell, Lecturers; Committee, P. Thompson, H. K. Denyes, R. York, C. Way, and M. Armstrong; Inside Tyler, Dan Carl; Outside Tyler, Charles Johnston.

Mr. E. Guss Porter, barrister, went to Toronto today.

50 YEARS AGO

Dec. 21st., 1894.

Mayor J. E. Walmsley will seek re-election for another term in office at the coming municipal election.

There was a heavy fog this morning.

Fox hunting furnishes good sport at present.

The river is rising very slowly.

Jot this down in your diary for future reference: The schooner Two Brothers passed up the bay under sail on the 21st. day of December 1894. She came from Picton enroute to Brighton and passed the bridge a little before noon today.

Mr. Walter Mills has arrived home from the Conservatory of Music, Toronto, to spend the Christmas vacation.

Musk Ox of Value to Canada

Will herds of musk oxen help to feed the population of Northern Canada in the years to come? Indications that the animal is on the increase bring the possibilities within the realm of practical development, writes C. E. Gardiner in The Vancouver Province.

The war has left the shaggy, placid musk-ox undisturbed on its native grazing grounds in The Thelon Game Sanctuary, and other areas and Archie islands in the North West Territories. Lord of the "barren lands," the creature carries on its bovine existence without knowledge or fear of such things as packing-plants and front-line "rations."

No Check Since 1937

No close investigation of its numbers has been made since 1937, when C. H. D. Carke made a survey of the Thelon region for the Dominion Government. Officials of the North West Territories administration, however, have since kept tab on the progress of the musk-ox in its fight for survival. Their observations point to the belief that the estimate made by Mr. Clarke and his assistants, 1200 of the animals on the Canadian mainland, can be increased.

Occupying a unique position in the animal world as something of a link between the two families of sheep and cattle, "ovibos moschatus" resembles a small buffalo in appearance. In size it equals one of the small breeds of Welsh or Scotch cattle.

As its appearance strongly suggests, the musk-ox is a descendent of pre-historic creatures that ranged over the ice and snow-covered region of the northern hemisphere. Fossilized remains of the animal have been found in fairly recent geological deposits in Siberia, central Europe, France and England, showing that it once roamed over a wide area of northern Europe and Asia, as well as in North America.

Unknown Elsewhere

There is no evidence that living musk-oxen have been found in Europe or Asia within historic times. Only northern Canada and Greenland, it seems, have had the privilege of supporting one of nature's most interesting creatures.

The first published account of the presence of musk-oxen in Canada was given by a French officer in charge of Fort Bourbon (York Factory), on the west coast of Hudson's Bay, from 1697 to 1714. The narrative of an English ship's officer recorded in 1749 that a hunting party from the ship saw "3 buffaloes" on the west coast of the northern half of Hudson's Bay. There is very little doubt that the animals seen were musk-oxen.

Samuel Hearne, who passed through the northern regions of Canada between 1769 and 1772, described the finding of the musk-ox "from within nine miles of Fort Prince of Wales all the way to the Coppermine River."

Earlier Research

Coming closer to the present time, credit must be given to David T. Hanbury, painstaking northern traveler, for his investigation, leading to more recent developments. Setting out from Winnipeg in 1899, Hanbury explored a wide area of the north, which included the region now known as the Thelon Game Sanctuary. He recorded the finding of many musk-oxen, living unmolested in the region.

This was good news, as during the nineteenth century many reports had come in from travelers, telling of "killings" of the animal on a large scale by marauding bands of natives. As a result, it had come to be believed that the musk-ox was meeting a fate similar to that inflicted on the buffalo, and was almost, if not entirely, extinct.

In the year 1900, J. W. Tyrrell, D. L. S., made an exploratory survey of the area covered by Hanbury. He records a journey down the Thelon River, in which "one of the most interesting features met was the occurrence of numerous bands of musk-oxen feeding upon the luxuriant grass or sleeping on the river bank."

Suggested Preserve

On his return, Mr. Tyrrell suggested that the territory between the Thelon and Back rivers should be set apart by the government "for the preservation of the musk-oxen, which may be so easily slaughtered, and are already diminishing in numbers."

Investigation by government officials followed, and, finally, on June 15, 1927, an order-in-council was passed by the Dominion Government establishing the Thelon Game Sanctuary, within which the molesting or killing of any form of wild life was entirely prohibited. The sanctuary had an approximate area of 15,000 square miles.

Today, with the future of the animals assured, the interest of administration officials and northern travelers is centred on the domestic possibilities of the musk-ox. If there is ever to be anything in the nature of animal husbandry in the "barrens," the domestication of the musk-ox might be one of the first steps, they say. No animal could be more easily herded, and the value of a properly utilized carcass would be considerable.

Not True Wool

The "wool" or hair of the musk-ox is smooth and not true wool, and can not be used by itself. The live animal, however, might furnish milk, and, like the yak, of Tibetan fame, might be used as a pack or saddle beast.

Present necessity is to continue the work of preservation, particularly of the large mainland variety, so that the animal will be in plentiful numbers when the time comes for experiment. With the end of the war, fresh and full investigations of the numbers of the musk-ox in all areas and islands of the North West Territories will undoubtedly be made.

BRITISH PRISONERS KILLED

London, Dec. 21 (CP-Reuters) — An official Tokyo announcement quoted by the German Transocean Agency today said 58 British prisoners of war were killed and 159 wounded when a number of bombs were dropped on a prisoner-camp in central Siam during a B29 air raid Dec. 8.

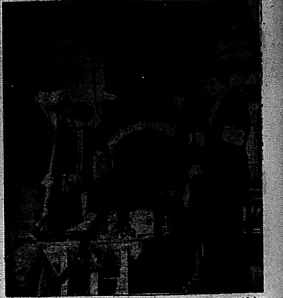
"In the recent American raid on Mukden, in Manchuria, 55 American prisoners were killed," the report said.

STALIN CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Moscow, Dec. 21 (AP) — Joseph Vissarionovich Djugashvili, better known to the world as Premier Joseph Stalin, celebrated his 65th birthday today with a complete absence of official fanfare.

Although the Soviet Union took no formal notice of the occasion, telegrams from all over the country, as well as from many of the world's capitals, poured into the Kremlin.

CREMATORY IN GERMAN HELL CAMP



Mountain patriots of the French Forces of the Interior are examining the furnace in which the Germans burned their dead slaves in the Vosges mountain camp, found recently near the village of Natzwiller, France. Villagers said the Nazis kept about 4,000 prisoners here, herded by S.S. guards. Dental forceps were found beside this furnace, indicating that the furnace-man removed gold-filled teeth from the victims before burning them.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

ONE TOOTH TO A PERSON

A lady from ...... told me you write interesting health articles for the daily paper there and especially she mentioned one article in which you told the value of one tooth to a person. I was in an accident that knocked out one of my front teeth. It is now up for settlement and I have no idea what would be reasonable compensation for the loss of one tooth . . . (H. M. P.)

In the booklet "Save Your Teeth" (for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped pre-addressed envelope) on p. 10 you will see the author's statement that every tooth is worth a thousand dollars. But that is just my estimate. Probably I put a higher value on my own teeth than some doctors and dentists would place on any one's teeth. I know I'd have to be desperately in need of the money, more so than ever in my life — and I have desperately needed money more than once, just enough to pay the rent or buy some groceries or prevent the shutting off of the gas — before I'd give one of my teeth for a thousand dollars. From what readers tell me, I gather that a lot of people would rather have several teeth extracted than spend a hundred dollars for some needed dentistry.

From the number of people who go partly edentulous for the rest of their short lives, once they have lost a number of teeth, I gather that a shamefully large portion of the population of America, after all, are either too ignorant or too stingy or both to have proper dentistry when they need it.

From time to time readers ask whether they should let the dentist pull the last of their teeth, sound teeth, but teeth the dentist deems of no advantage or even a detriment to the patient who must wear plates. I'd leave that decision to my dentist.

Whatever value you or I may place upon a tooth, one's own tooth, should apply to a sound, functioning tooth. When many teeth have been lost the functional value of the few teeth that remain intact declines toward zero, for it is obvious that good mastication and good oral digestion and good salivary digestion (which in a normal person continues for half an hour or more after the food has entered the stomach) depends on a full equipment of good teeth.

So, if H.M.P. had all of his or her teeth working efficiently to keep him or her in good health, at the time the accident happened, I should say a thousand berries would be a moderate compensation to ask for each tooth lost.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS
Lady Likes Iodine

I am 68. A few years ago I started taking you Iodin Ration. It was wonderful. Took away all tired feeling, gave me lots of pep, so I began doing all my own housework and it never tired me at all. I have been able to sleep better, too. What I want to ask is whether I can't take it every alternate month, instead of waiting till every third month.

(Mrs. O. M.)

Answer—No, period. That's the trouble with you girls. On request I am glad to send any reader, who provides a stamped envelope bearing his or her address, "Instructions for Taking an Iodin Ration". That's all, folks. Any other use of iodine than I advise in the pamphlet must be at your own peril.

Vitamins and Reducing

Are vitamin B-complex tablets reducing? My friend started taking them and she has reduced 1 1-2 to 2 pounds a week with little or no dieting, feels and looks fine.

(Mrs. S. C. L.)

Answer—No. But up the vitamin intake and you will reduce more readily by whatever means. You will probably have a less intense craving for excessive carbohydrate. Send a stamped pre-addressed envelope for pamphlet "How to Lose Weight".

Varicose Veins

First our doctor told me a slight varicocele I have is "nothing at all", and then again he suggested an operation. Aside from consciousness that it is there it causes no trouble. I am happily married and have a fine 15 months old son — a Brady Baby.

(B. B. W.)

Answer—It is a vericose condition of veins in the cord, usually causes no particular trouble, requires no particular treatment. Send stamped envelope bearing your address, for pamphlet "Varicose Veins".

ROMAN NUMERALS

Many people are puzzled as to how the Romans added, subtracted and multiplied with their clumsy signs or symbols that we call Roman numerals.

The Romans, like the Greeks, and other ancients, had few convenient symbols to indicate mathematical processes and operations.

Originally every process and operation was expressed in words of full length.

Later the Romans adopted such symbols as I, II, III, and IV, and V and X. They also abbreviated centum (100) to C; mille (1,000) to M, and so on.

I, II, III and IV are of obvious origin. It is supposed that V (5) originated as a sort of hieroglyphic and represented the open hand with the fingers, except the thumb, held together, and that X (10) represented double V.

Figuring was awkward business in the time of Julius Caesar.

Virtually all calculations were performed on the abacus, an apparatus resembling the Chinese "suan pan" of the bead-and-frame affairs now used in kindergarten work.

"Abacus" is derived from "abax," the Greek name for a writing or ciphering tablet, which originally consisted of a slab covered with sand.

The Roman abacus contained seven long and seven short rods or bars. There were four beads on each of the long bars and one on the short ones. The beads on the short bars denoted five. The first long bar was marked I, the second X, the third C, and so on up to millions.

Suppose a Roman wished to write the number 25. He would push up two X-beads and pull down the V-bead on the corresponding bar. If he wished to subtract three from 25 he would push up the V-bead and two I-beads, leaving the two X-beads where they were. There were additional bars for making calculations involving fractions.

The Romans were not reputed to be good mathematicians and they contributed little to the science. In fact all mathematical calculations were clumsy until after the development of Arabic numerals and other symbols.

IF IT'S ABOUT YOUR EYES . . . SEE McFEE

A Few Hints for Blondes

An eyebrow pencil will help to beautify the brows.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN golden hair goes drab, and the owner thereof gets chummy with the peroxide bottle she would do well to remember that maybe a change of make-up is in order. Synthetic aids that glorify the natural blonde may not be precisely and exactly the best selections for the bleached beauty.

Heavy or brilliant make-up is a grave mistake. It should assume a soft cast if it is to be flattering. A dark lipstick will not convey a fresh clear tone as will one of medium coloring. Sometimes a deep cherry is a happy choice. In the evening a lipstick with a golden cast can be used but not in the cruel daylight my light-headed friend.

Applying Rouge.

If rouge is used to form the counterfeit blush it must not be applied below the cheek bone. A light film at temples just below the eyes over the eyelids is about all that the bleached blonde can get away with. The rouge should have a color bond with the lipstick; if it doesn't, the countenance will appear scenic.

Powder should harmonize with the basic skin color. Skillful eye make-up is recommended by beauticians who have made a study of this subject. Short eyebrows should be extended with a pencil of dark brown, never black, which offers too great a contrast to a fair skin.

Eyebrow Treatment

When extending the eyebrows it is best to follow the contour of the eye, so the eyebrows will not look obviously touched up.

If eye shadows are used, green or blue will be found softer for the delicate skin than any of the heavier shades. A smart make-up specialist blends blue, green and brown, claiming that it produces a lovely tint that is companionable to hair that has been subjected to the peroxide bath.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydro Home Economist

Season's Greetings, Homemakers! It is our sincere wish that this may be the last wartime Christmas and that the New Year may bring us the blessing of an enduring peace. May we all realize our cherished hopes as we go forward together along the widening horizons of tomorrow.

Hot Christmas Punch

1 pound cranberries, 4 cups water, 1 tsp. grated orange rind, 1 tsp. grated lemon rind, 1 cup honey, 1 cup orange juice, 1-3 cup lemon juice, 2 cups additional water.

Cook cranberries with the four cups of water and grated rinds. Remove from element. Add remaining ingredients and serve.

Sausage Stuffing

Roast Fowl

Clean and singe fowl. Hold over a candle flame, turning to burn off hair. Scrub, stuff and truss fowl. Put stuffing in by spoonfuls in neck end, using enough to fill the skin so that the bird may look plump when served. When cracker stuffing is used, allow for the swelling of crackers. Put remaining stuffing in body; if skin is full, sew skin.

Cross drumstick, tie securely with string and fasten to tail. Draw neck skin under and fasten back. Place wings close to body and hold them by inserting skewers or turned back and inverted. Rub fowl with cooking fat. Dredge with flour.

Place in deep roast pan and put in pre-heated electric oven at 350 degrees. Allow 15 minutes per pound for 12 to 15 pound bird; 25 minutes per pound for 4 to 8 pound bird. Baste and salt when partly cooked.

Raw Beet Salad

2 cups grated raw beets, 2 tbsps. grated onion, salt and pepper, lemon juice or French dressing.

Combine the raw beet and onion and season to taste with salt and pepper. Add enough lemon juice or French dressing to moisten slightly, and serve on salad greens. Six servings.

Hot Water Pastry

⅔ cup lard or mild flavoured fat, ⅓ cup boiling water, 1½ tsps. salt, 2 cups all-purpose flour.

Cream fat and stir in the boiling water, a little at a time; cool slightly. Add salt and flour, mixing with a quick-cutting motion; do not stir. Chill before rolling. Makes one double crust for mincemeat pie.

Frozen Rum Pudding

2 eggs (separated), 1½ cups milk, ½ cup sugar, 1 tbsp. cornstarch, ½ tsp. cinnamon, ¼ tsp. ginger, ½ tsp. salt, ½ cup sieved pumpkin, 1 tsp. rum flavouring, 1-3 cup of chopped raisins, ½ cup chopped nuts (if obtained).

Beat egg yolks; add milk. Mix sugar, cornstarch, cinnamon, ginger and salt; add milk mixture. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until thickened. Add pumpkin; cool. Add rum flavouring. Beat egg white stiff. Pour into freezing tray of electric refrigerator, set control to coldest degree. Freeze to mush. Put in chilled bowl and beat smooth. Add nuts and raisins. Return to freezing tray and continue freezing. Serves 4 or 5.

Toffee Sauce

1 cup corn syrup, 1 cup rich milk, 1½ tbsps. butter, ½ tsp. vanilla.

Combine corn syrup, milk and butter and heat in top of double boiler until well blended. Add the vanilla and serve warm. Makes two cups.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. J. S. asks: Recipe for devilled sprouts:

¼ cup butter, 1 tsp. prepared mustard, 1 tsp. condiment sauce, ½ tsp. lemon juice, ¼ tsp. salt, dash of cayenne, 1 qt. Brussels sprouts.

Melt butter over low element. Add lemon juice and mustard, condiment sauce, salt and cayenne. Pour over hot, well-drained cooked sprouts. Serve at once.

Mrs. B. K. asks: Recipe for red cabbage pickle:

4 qt. thinly sliced red cabbage, 4 tsps. salt, ½ tsp. pepper, ¼ cup mustard seed, 1 cup sugar, ¼ cup mixed pickling spices (in spice bag), 2 qts. mild vinegar.

Sprinkle salt over cabbage. Mix well and let stand overnight. Drain slightly. Add pepper and mustard seed, mix well, and place in crock. Add sugar and spices to vinegar, bring slowly to boiling point, and pour boiling hot over cabbage. Cover.

TRANSITION

Ah, the wayward lad was I,
Sure that youth would never Take its traps and turn the bend,
Lost to me forever.

Proud, imperious and strong,
Sham and pretense scorning;
Gone the rainbow arching shore,
Gone the magic morning.

Ah, the vanguard years return,
Run their course with sorrow;
While the petal boats submerge—
Life is glad tomorrow.

No Scarcity Of Christmas Trees in Canada

By The Canadian Press

Canadians preparing for their sixth wartime Christmas are not without the customary Christmas tree.

While decorations may be scarce, a survey today by The Canadian Press revealed there were plenty of trees for sale from coast to coast with prices on a par with last year.

Only city where a minor shortage appeared was in Vancouver where it was reported production was cut 25 to 30 per cent below the 1943 total.

Export trade, usually a boon to some in British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec, was on a light scale this year. In most provinces this business was curtailed by the wartime shortage of rolling stock and labor shortage in the woods. However, United States railways provided rolling stock for shipment of more than 1,000,000 trees from British Columbia's East Kootenay district. The total is a little more than half the number exported in 1943.

There appeared to be plenty of trees of all sizes in Toronto, with prices ranging from 75 cents to $4 or more. Salesmen were doing business from corner lots, service stations and some stores. Most trees were brought to the city from district points, contrary to pre-Christmas reports that none would be sold in Toronto due to lack of trucking and railway facilities. The city's record-breaking snowfall Dec. 11-12 hampered early sale. There was little export business from Toronto, but some southwestern Ontario centres shipped a few trees to the United States.

Leading Stoker Bill Yerrow, R.C.N.V.R., has returned to the East Coast, after spending a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Yerrow, Bleecker Avenue. His wife accompanied him as far as Montreal.

Mrs. John Culbertson, Foster Ave., received a cable informing her that her husband, Sapper Culbertson had arrived overseas.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Moynes, 58 Cedar Street, will spend Christmas Day with their daughter, Mrs. Ralph Warren and Mr. Warren, Picton.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Chaplin, 68 1-2 Cedar Street, will have as Christmas guests the latter's sister, Mrs. Lyle Robinson and Mr. Robinson, of Picton.

At St. George's Hall on Wednesday afternoon, a very pleasant euchre party was enjoyed by members and friends. Winners of the prizes were Mrs. W. Collyer, Mrs. P. Welch and Mrs. George Beare. The draw on a pair of pillow cases was won by Mr. Dick Beare. The sum of $10 was donated to the Telegram War Victims' Fund.

Pte. Fred Bardgett has arrived safely overseas, according to word received by his wife, Mrs. T. W. Bardgett, 25 East Bridge Street.

Christmas Concerts

MOUNTAIN VIEW

On Monday evening, the pupils of S.S. No. 11, Ameliasburg, with their teacher, Miss M. J. Huff, put on the annual Christmas Concert in the Sunday School rooms of Mt. View Church with a good attendance.

Rev. G. A. Adamson capably acted as chairman for the evening. Miss Velma Vandewater, music supervisor, assisted with the program, which comprised Christmas songs and carols, readings, drills, a pantomime, a dialogue, a rhythm band and an operetta.

Mr. Jack Keeble, on behalf of the Sunday School, moved a vote of thanks to Miss Huff and Miss Vandewater for the excellent entertainment which they had provided.

Master Robert Barber read an address to Miss Huff and Miss Vandewater who were presented with an electric dresser lamp and a set of Evening in Paris respectively.

Last of all Santa Claus arrived and with the help of the Senior boys unloaded the Christmas tree.

YULETIDE CONCERT BY BEGINNER'S PRIMARY GRADES

Entertaining Program is Given in Bridge St. United Church S. S. Rooms

Pupils of the Beginners and Primary Grades of Bridge Street United Church Sunday School presented a very entertaining Christmas concert in the church Sunday School rooms on Friday evening last. Both the teachers and the parents were delighted with the "burst of enthusiasm" shown by the children in the manner they enacted the various numbers on the program. They all proved "great little artists", and are examples of which teachers and parents can be proud.

Chorus by Primary School—"Long Ago on Christmas".

Reading—Merry Christmas To All, Gwethelyn Cathers.

Reading—I Love Santa, Stephen Conners.

Reading—It Wouldn't Do At All, Douglas Heard.

Song—Bruce Herrington.

Reading—A Letter to Santa, John Tate.

Reading—Our Tree—Barbara Ireland.

Reading—A Present for Pussy, Bobby Denike.

Jolly Christmas Tree—Nancy Osborne, Darlene Sills, Jacqueline Laird, Nancy Sherman, Carolyn Franklin, Nancy Walters, Sharon Thompson.

Song—"Little Old Lady", Darlene Dalyrmple.

The Christmas Story—Bobby Miller, Roger Robinson, John Sherry, Donald Cathers, Douglas Walters, Freddy Hagerman.

SNAPPY HUNTING

Hammonton, N. J., Dec. 21 (AP) —Section Fire Warden John L. Conover told his wife he was going deer hunting. "Be back in a half hour," Mrs. Conover warned, "I'm not going to hold breakfast." In 28 minutes, Conover returned with a four-point buck.

Tailored Elegance

By ALICE ALDEN

NO MATTER how elaborate the season's fashions may be, there are always women who want a simple but beautifully cut casual or tailored frock for wear under a warm top coat for general or busy day wear. Alice Orovan does this elegantly casual one-piece frock in raspberry sheer woollen, marked by intricate seaming on the easy bodice. Cuffed sleeves with easy armhole. A black calfskin belt and a monogrammed black-and-white striped ascot accessorize the costume.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Address Entire Family

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,—

To settle an argument in our family, will you please answer the following question: Is it correct to address the envelope of a Christmas card to be sent to a family "Mr. and Mrs. John Brown and family"?

S. T.

No: Of course it is best, if possible, to address one card to "Mr. and Mrs. John Brown", and individual cards to the individual members of the family.

However, if this is too much a strain on your card-budget you can make a personal bow to every member of the household, either on the envelope or on the card. For example, you may address the envelope to:

Mr. and Mrs. John Brown
Miss Joan Brown
Mr. Thomas Brown

Or, for a more personal touch to your greetings, address the envelope to "Mr. and Mrs. John Brown" and on the card itself, below the message write "Love and a host of Christmas greetings to you and Joan and Tommy", or "Everyone in our house ("Skippy" too) sends loving Christmas wishes to everyone in your house ("Scotty" too)." Or, if the family includes a grandmother and grandfather, you might write, "We all send Christmas greetings to your Mother and Father too".

All of these are simple and gracious ways of circumventing the tabu "and family". And obviously they are the more thoughtful and personal.

Thank-You Note

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

A dear friend of mine, who lives far away from us, sent a beautiful dress for my new baby. Will you please suggest a thank-you note I could write her . . . .the ones I've tried to write do not seem to me sufficiently enthusiastic for such a gift.

Wilma.

Dear Betty,

I can't tell you what joy your thought of my baby and me gave me, and what happiness your lovely gift has given us both. The little dress is exquisite and Cynthia wears it with such pride that I am sure she realizes how pretty she looks in it. The eternal feminine, you see Bless your generous heart for your goodness to us, and deepest thanks.

(The rest of your note might well develop into a letter, for naturally you would chat with her about your new baby, tell her other news, and so forth.)

Introducing Yourself

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When it is necessary for an unmarried woman to introduce herself. Just how does she do it?

Grace.

When the occasion is an informal social one, an unmarried woman usually says, "I am Grace Stewart". More formally, for instance when the occasion is a formal social one or a business one, she says, "I am Miss Stewart".

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Jewelry May Glorify or Bedizen.

You may have noticed that there has been a revival of old-fashioned jewelry. Grandma's treasure box is being looted, old ornaments brought to light, burnished and cleaned, put to use again. Grandma doesn't mind, the sweet old thing. If granddaughter wants anything, it is quite all right with her. In her secret thoughts, the old girl considers the decorations of her young ladyhood much too duddy for her to wear; she's all for modern stuff. Grannies are like that, these days.

There's one rule about every item of dress: if it is not flattering, away with it, take it off. Frumps are the victims of overdressing; they don't know when to stop putting on trimmings. The selection of ornaments calls for good taste, the wise and seeing eye. A woman blessed with dress understanding will know at a glance if an accessory is right.

A dress designer of reputation says that jewels should match the eyes, the frock and the personality. Some big order, that. If the hair is blonde, that too must be taken into consideration. With a golden halo and pink and cream complexion, pearls are the perfect complement. The topaz gets favorable mention even though it offers no contrast to sun-kissed locks.

Blondes have a failing for turquoise, but there's no reason why they should corner the market. For the brunette with clear skin and grey or blue eyes, they are a happy choice, an endearing friend.

Aquamarines, a transparent, pale green variety of beryl, belongs to the redhead. Emeralds, too, bring out the high lights of her titian tresses. But sapphires ? No! unless the eyes are grey and the hair is inclined to carry a copper cast. Coral is not suitable; there should be a dress law against redheads wearing red or pink. Coral belongs to the dark-eyed sisters who can still touch their girlhood days with their pretty fingertips.

There's the pigeon-blood ruby, a precious gem that doesn't care who wears it. It carries an exotic charm; lucky is the girl who owns one.

Time was when the old-fashioned brooch was called a "breast pin". If you have wheedled one away from an honorable ancestor, you can use it for a belt buckle or a lapel ornament; it will be greatly admired.

If you trot from shop to shop, you may find some adorable reproductions of antique designs among the offerings of costume jewelry. But keep in mind this one sartorial truth: nothing is more glorifying than the right ornament; nothing more garnish than that which is cheap and shoddy.

STILL BATTER ENGLAND

London, Dec. 21 —(CP)— The Germans continued to batter southern England with V-bombs last night while pressing their offensive on the Western Front. A government announcement reported both casualties and damage.

Yesterday the press warned that it is possible the Germans may step up their flying-bomb attacks on Britain. Damage and casualties were caused Tuesday and Tuesday night.

Mr. Pearson, who has been Minister Plenipotentiary here since last July, will take over his new duties Jan. 1

MAYOR J. E. LLOYD, HALIFAX, SPEAKS TO CANADIAN CLUB

Social Security Plans Will Answer Problem of Employment

A very successful "blind date" was enjoyed by the members of the Women's Canadian Club on Wednesday evening when Mayor J. E. Lloyd, of Halifax, spoke to them on the subject of "East and West in Canada" and of Social Security plans, in the Bridge Street Church Sunday School rooms Mr. John W. Fisher was to have addressed the club, but owing to unavoidable circumstances, he was unable to attend, but he sent in his place the mayor of the eastern port of Halifax.

Mayor Harry Rollins introduced Mr. Lloyd to the members of the club and on behalf of citizens of Belleville welcomed him to the city. Mr. Lloyd gave the assemblage a very colorful description of the City of Halifax, since the outbreak of the war.

"We in Halifax must look west to the other eight provinces". Mr. Lloyd spoke at length of Social Security plans. He said there must be full employment following the war—everybody must work. In order to keep men working, Canada must utilize its resources to the fullest. Mr. Lloyd painted an economical picture of Canada's nine provinces. The Maritimes have their fishing and lumbering industries. The west is interested in foreign trade. The Prairie Provinces have their wheat. British Columbia has its apple fishing and mining industries, its shipping and its world trade. Quebec and Ontario have their manufacturing industries. You have to make the size of the cake of national output as big as possible. Social Security plans will answer the problem.

Positive Role for Government.

The Government will have to take on a positive role in regards to economic life. We all believe that monopolies are things which tend to kill the free enterprise of people. The British Government has recognized that the world today needs some changes. We must be rational about these things. We cannot run the risk of inflation after the war. We must watch for the possibility of national blocs after the war—this is not good. Our hope for improvement depends on the whole of Canada.

The Government needs a pilot in the economic field. If we are going to build this big cake of national output, a great many things will have to be controlled, but just so far as there will be freedom at the same time. We must have economic statesmanship.

Mrs. J. H. Forrester expressed appreciation on behalf of the club members to Mayor Lloyd for his very fine address.

30 GUARDING HESS

London, Dec. 21 — (CP Cable) — The London News Chronicle said yesterday that Rudolf Hess, Hitler's former deputy who flew to Britain in 1941 with a purported peace bid, has a permanent guard of nearly 30 officers and men and that his "trying moods" including "towering rages" make guarding him "a very trying task."

BABY'S CRY IS NOT ALWAYS TEMPER

DISTINGUISH between your baby's cry of pain and cry of temper. When it's the "pain cry" give Baby's Own Tablets at once. Mrs. May Mundy, of Toronto, finds they work every time.

"I am the mother of nine children, three of them prize babies, and Baby's Own Tablets have been my only medicine in raising them to the healthy children they now are. As soon as my children became a little feverish I at once gave them Baby's Own Tablets and in a very short time the fever disappeared and the children were normal again."

Quickly effective. Sweet-tasting — easily crushed to a powder, if desired. Contain no opiates or stupefying drugs. Each package gives an analyst's report. Get a package today. Sickness often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if you are not satisfied.

WEDDINGS

LEACH—BARNHARDT

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 20, at Grace Chapel, Belleville, when Bernice Barnhardt, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barnhardt, formerly of Deseronto, was united in marriage to Rev. E. P. Leach, pastor of Highway Pentecostal Mission, Liverpool, N.S. Rev. E. A. Wick officiated at the ceremony which took place at three o'clock.

The bride was attractively gowned in a floor length dress of white triple sheer with sequin and embroidery trimming. She wore a matching white hat with short veil and corsage of red roses and fern.

The bridesmaid, Miss Margaret Sullivan, wore gold silk jersey, with matching hat and veil and corsage of pink roses and fern.

Sgt. William Kettles, of Trenton R.C.A.F. Station, was groomsman.

Mrs. E. A. Wicks played the wedding music and during the signing of the register, sang softly "A Marriage Prayer".

For travelling the bride wore a black and red gown, matching hat, with grey fur coat and black accessories. The happy couple will reside in Liverpool, Nova Scotia.

PICTON

Several Boys From Overseas Arrive Home

Picton, Dec. 21—Among local arrivals from overseas reaching home this week were Cpl. Elmer Dunkley, Pte. Recie Selman, Pte. A. H. Heffernan, Pte. Clifford Branscombe, all of Picton, Pte. W. J. Jones of Waupoos and Bdr. A. H. Newton of Consecon.

The homecoming of Gunner Roy Rosseau was particularly sad. His mother, Mrs. Edith Rosseau, passed away last Thursday after a short illness. The funeral at Cherry Valley was postponed from Sunday until Monday in order that he might attend. His wife and two children reside in Toronto and he was reunited with them after an absence of four years, as well as with his sister, Mrs. Norman Pennell, Cherry Valley, who has two sons serving overseas. He had seen action in France and was returned home as he is over military age.

Cpl. Dunkley was wounded on two occasions and received three wounds. He had been overseas since 1939, serving with the local infantry unit in Sicily and Italy. He reverted in rank from C.S.M. to corporal in order to rejoin his unit after wounded the first time. He is the son of County Road Supt. and Mrs. John Dunkley, Picton. His wife resides at East Lake.

Pte. Selman has not yet arrived in Picton, but is in Canada, a telegram informed his wife, who, with several children want to greet a loved one after five years' absence. He served in Italy.

Pte. Heffernan is the son of Mrs. Andrew Heffernan, Picton, and has two brothers still overseas. He was twice wounded.

Pte. Branscombe, Pte. Jones and Bdr. Hewton are also five-year veterans and saw extensive action.

The men speak little of their own experiences but pay tribute to their own and other units. There is lots of fight still left in the enemy, they declare.

"Glad to be home, but only wish that all the boys with long service could have come," was their general comment.

The War Today— Available Nazi Strength in West Seen Committed to Present Effort

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
(AP War Analyst)

The great German counter-offensive appears — as still viewed uncertainly through the partial dimout of the news censorship — seems to have slackened slightly in violence today, with immediate prospects much beclouded.

That's not to say, of course, that the ultimate outcome isn't clear. The vastly superior Allied strength ensures victory in the long run, but it must be admitted that meantime many things can happen in fighting which once more has become fluid and is swirling over a battlefield that covers literally hundreds of square miles.

This giant engagement may be the last clash of such magnitude on the western front. It might even be decisive as regards the whole German war. The Germans apparently are committing their entire available strength in the west to this effort.

The Germans of course are gambling on upsetting Eisenhower's offensive plans and so prolonging the war with the vague hope of securing a compromise peace. They are too good soldiers to have any expectation of winning the war.

The way things look, Von Rundstedt already may have achieved the object of upsetting the Allied time-table badly. There won't be any white Christmas on the fighting front. So far as concerns a compromise peace we know that there's no possibility of such a thing.

Rundstedt may indeed achieve the delay which his masters so eagerly seek. However, we shouldn't overlook a point which he most certainly has uncomfortably in mind: his offensive might boomerang and knock him out completely.

The Germans are flinging everything they can lay their hands on into this great effort. An avalanche of men and supplies is disappearing into the maw of this great battle. True, the cost in terribly heavy for both sides, but the difference is that the Allies can far better stand the losses than can the Nazis.

We are entitled to believe that Eisenhower has a large reservoir of reserves. If he also has the necessary supplies there is always the possibility that he may turn the German advance into a terrific debacle.

However, while we may speculate along this line, and even hope that the battle may take such a turn, we shouldn't do any wishful thinking about the Allies being able to spring a trap on the Germans. The possibility exists, but the Germans are past-masters of the art of getting out of traps.

GERMAN

forces because of the efficiency of air reconnaissance. However, bad weather which has dogged the Allied western offensive since D-Day seems to have played into the enemy's hands once more by restricting air operations severely for weeks at a time in late autumn.

Had Element of Surprise

While our planes were grounded it would have been possible for the Germans to start their buildup with comparative secrecy, which seems to have given them the element of surprise they needed.

At the same time the seasonal uncertainty of the present weather will continue to play into German hands by restricting the employment of the big Allied tactical air fleets, which would be effective in breaking up the counter-attack. Bad weather possibly will prevent the use of Allied air strength with anywhere near 100 per cent effect.

Even though the Germans may have been forced to carry out this attack as the best means of defence their front has been well chosen and the blow is being delivered at a telling spot.

It is near the hinge between the Americans and the British and Canadians. If it achieves great success and travels any great distance westward before it can be stopped it could represent a threat both to Brussels, now an important Allied communications centre, and the port of Antwerp, which is the nearest to the Allied front and one of the best in Europe.

Whereas on the eastern front similar German counter-blows would have to be carried forward long distances to have any considerable effect, the Germans now apparently are little more than 60 miles either from Brussels or Antwerp.

The German operation is under the direction of Marshal von Rundstedt, shrewd commander and victor in the Battle of France in 1940 in which the Germans burst from their border along the same general path the present attack is following.

Restored to Command

Enemy commander in the west at the time of the invasion, Von Rundstedt was dismissed for recommending withdrawal from Normandy, when such a move would have saved the German 7th Army from encirclement and destruction at Falaise. He was restored to his command in late summer, when the Germans adopted their delaying tactics in the defence of the French ports, which undoubtedly have a bearing on the ability of the Germans to make their present offensive move.

The attack represents the strongest German military reaction to the Allied effort in the west since the invasion. That fact recalls a British slogan applied to the Germans during the beachhead battles:—

"The German reacts most violently when he is hit where it really hurts him."

MARMORA

Farmer Loses Tractor, Tools In Garage Fire

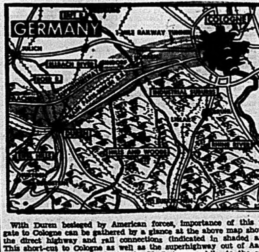
Marmora, Dec. 21—Louis Hulsman of Marmora Township suffered the loss of his tractor, a large kit of tools, parts of machines and a bicycle when the garage in which this equipment was housed became ignited on Tuesday forenoon. Fred Hulsman son of the owner was badly burned on the right hand, necessitating medical attention, as he endeavored to save some of the contents.

The fire was caused by a heater in the garage. An adjacent hen house was also partly burned. Mr. Hulsman who has been employed with the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company for the past twenty-five years, was called from his work and with the help of neighbors the blaze was prevented from spreading. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

SWISS PRESIDENT

Eduard von Steiger, ABOVE, member of the Swiss Federal Council since December, 1940, has been elected president of Switzerland for 1945. Son of an engineer, President-elect Von Steiger was born at Langnau on July 2, 1881. He became a member of the assembly in 1914, served as temporary general district attorney and in 1939 was elected president of the assembly. He is a brilliant orator in both French and German languages, belongs to the Conservative faction of the Farmers' party.

CLOSE-UP OF ROADS TO COLOGNE



With Duren besieged by American forces, importance of this vital gate to Cologne can be gathered by a glance at the above map showing the direct highway and rail connections (indicated in shaded area). This short-cut to Cologne as well as the superhighway out of Aachen is now definitely threatened by the U. S. troops while, to the south, the American 1st Army has begun a drive from Hurtgen toward Bonn, another Rhine river strongpoint on the road into Germany.

Superfortresses Pummel Targets In Manchuria

Washington, Dec. 21 — (AP) — Superfortresses in substantial force today pummeled industrial targets in Mukden, Manchuria, it was announced here.

Up to 60 B29s of the 20th Bomber Command participated in the daylight blow against the Japanese-dominated puppet state.

The War Department announcement said a communique will be issued on the mission when results of operational reports are received from the theatre.

In the 20th Bomber Command's last attack against Mukden Dec. 7 the giant planes netted their biggest bag of enemy aircraft—63 Japanese planes shot down or damaged.

Manchuria — Japan's arsenal of greater East Asia — has many important steel works, shipyards and other war industries, producing such vital raw materials as steel and coal.

Today's smash coincided with the Chungking radio's assertion that a great American aerial offensive is to be launched against Japan.

RECOMMENDED FOR MERCY

Coshocton, O., Dec. 21 — (AP) — Warren Patterson, 31-year-old Ashland, O., machinist, was convicted last night of first degree murder in connection with the drowning of his 18-months-old son, Larry, last Sept. 27. The verdict, which included a recommendation for mercy, carries a penalty of life imprisonment.

Dirigible Route Between Australia And Canada Seen

By JAMES J. STREBIG
(AP Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 21 — (AP)—Australian interests were reported today to have made considerable progress in a plan to establish airship service between Australia and Canada and the United States.

The project contemplates the use of two, and possibly four, lighter-than-air craft already designed by the Goodyear Aircraft Corporation, with a gas capacity of nearly 10,000,000 cubic feet and a payload of 92 tons on flights of 2,500 miles.

J. Landon Smith, president of Smith Wylie Australia, Ltd., investment bankers of Sydney and Melbourne, and Conrad F. Hawley, chairman, are understood to have initiated the project in October and to have obtained the support of a widely-known United States banking firm after conferring with Goodyear officials.

Unless Australia signs the transit or "freedoms" agreement written at the Chicago World Air Conference, she would have to negotiate with the United States for the right to use San Francisco and Hawaii. Promoters of the plan have outlined alternate routes, however.

One would touch Vancouver, B.C., the Fanning Islands (just north of the Equator, Auckland, N.Z., and Sydney. Total estimated time is 122 hours or 5 1/4 days.

The other route would be from San Francisco to Sydney with stops at Honolulu and the Canton Islands. The time is estimated at 84 hours or 3 1/2 days.

No airplane now in construction would have a comparable payload for such distances.

It would be at least two years, perhaps longer, before the airship could be put into service.

RANGERS HOLD FIFTH PLACE BY ONE FULL GAME

Turn in One of Their Better Efforts to Down Chicago 3 to 1

By The Canadian Press

So far, coach Frank Boucher of New York Rangers has done a creditable job of keeping his charges out of the National Hockey League cellar where they wallowed hopelessly all last season.

Stung by three days' shared ownership of last place with Chicago, the Blueshirts turned in one of their better efforts last night to clip the Hawks 3-1 in their own nest. The triumph, their second road decision of the year and their first anywhere since Nov. 30, gave the New Yorkers title to fifth place by a full game.

Hank Goldup, converted forward who does a workmanlike job on the Ranger defence, reverted to the attack to share scoring laurels with veteran Kilby MacDonald. Each registered a goal and assist to manufacture the victory margin after the teams had established a 1-1 tie.

A pass interception by Pete Horeck gave Hawks a brief lead early in the second, with Cully Dahlstrom converting Horeck's relay. Phil Watson, scrappy New York centre, evened it three minutes later when he scooted out of a pileup before the Chicago net to beat Mike Karakas. Ab Demarco and Grant Warwick were given assists.

Goldup, helped by MacDonald, fired the winning shot five minutes before the close of the period, and they reversed roles early in the 3rd to make it certain. Fred Thurier also assisted.

OSHAWA GENS. IN THIRD-PLACE TIE WITH GALT

Score Easy 7-2 Win Over Toronto Marlboros in Motor City

(By The Canadian Press)

Oshawa Generals, defenders of the Memorial Cup, crept into a third-place tie with Galt Red Wings in the O.H.A. Junior "A" race by virtue of an easy 7-2 win over Toronto Marlboros last night at the Motor City. St. Mikes, with 14 points, hold lead position in the standing and St. Catharines are second, four points better than Generals and Red Wings.

For Oshawa, the tilt was more or less a routine contest against the tail-enders who have copped only one decision in nine starts. Generals had a 2-1 edge in the first period, made it 4-1 in the second and rounded out the 60 minutes with three more counters against one additional marker for the visitors.

Sullivan scattered scoring successes throughout the contest with one in the first stanza, a repeater in the second and two more in the third frame for a total of four goals, to equal his previous scoring record for the season. Taggart, Gallagher and Lowe were the other Oshawa scorers. Samanski of Oshawa, who has yet to bag a goal, contributed two assists while other play-makers included Petsura and Matthews.

Paul Kane and Cameron were the Marlboro scorers, with Jack McNabney and Ed Michamik getting credit for an assist each.

Junior Hockey Practice Called For Friday

Aspiring young hockey players will take to the ice at the Hume Arena Friday evening for the initial practice of the Belleville juniors, coach Toots Holway announced today.

"We want every teen-aged boy in this district, who is desirous of playing hockey, to try out with the Belleville juniors this year. We are included in a tough group where the competition will doubtless be as strong as anywhere in the province so naturally we will have to sign the maximum number of players, which is 18," announced Coach Holway. He urged all teen-aged lads to be at the Hume Arena before seven o'clock Friday evening.

Although there are several left-overs from last season's junior hockey squad, no positions are assured any of the players as every position is open to the players making the best of the pre-schedule practices. Among the left-overs from last year are the Wardhaugh brothers, the Meagher boys, Barrett, Moher, Fitzpatrick, Soules, Bishop, Lyall, Rollins, Semark, Day and others. Practice gets under way at seven o'clock Friday night.

This morning the Mountain View "Bombers" held their initial workout of the season prior to leaving on their annual Christmas leave.

TESTIMONY READ INTO RECORD

Toronto, Dec. 21 (CP)—Testimony given by M. A. Sanderson of Reliable Exterminators, Ltd., and George McCullagh, editor and publisher of The Toronto Globe and Mail at the examination for discovery, was read by J. R. Cartwright yesterday, counsel for 16 C.C.F. candidates in the 1944 Toronto elections in the first day of a hearing in a libel action for unstated damages taken by the C.C.F. candidates against the Globe Printing Company, Mr. McCullagh and Mr. Sanderson.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Toronto, Dec. 21, (CP)—Mrs. Vivian Hodge yesterday was committed for trial on a charge of manslaughter in the deaths of two boys from nearby Thornhill. The boys—10-year-old Norris Codo and nine-year-old Henry Wolfreys—were killed when struck by a car as they were cycling, last Nov. 22.

(CP Staff Writer)

Toronto, Dec. 21 — (CP) — Post-war department: If some of the athletes now pastiming in the National Hockey League and other organized sport leagues are wondering what they will do when the war is over, they might take a tip from Paul Robeson, the American singer and actor. Robeson, a member of Walter Camp's 1918 all-American football squad, says that his athletic career helped him a great deal in his stage activities later. Sports helped him build that imposing physique that didn't hurt him in the public's estimation — even though some crooners get by on much less!

There was much wailing last winter when players of juvenile age in Ontario were allowed to play both in their own bracket and in junior circles, so the rule was changed this year to put the two on a twain-never-meet basis. Now there is discord over that. Some junior teams are finding they can't get enough players, since the older boys are enlisting while the juveniles won't play junior and lose their status. The Port Colborne junior "A" club has had to drop out already, and some other teams are in none too happy a position. Which all goes to show that everyone can't be kept satisfied.

Mechanized Blitz:

Suspicion that there are deep-laid plans to end the day of the super star in hockey circles are voiced by Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle. He voices the opinion that the NHL rule makers put their heads together and exploded new rules all over the place to make the game a mass attack instead of a field where individual stars could distinguish themselves. Either that, or else the increasing dearth of players in that super star class since the outbreak of war forced them to do a little camouflage job to keep the willing customers happy.

Remember the Day:

Jimmy Foster, now coaching MacDonald's Airports in the Winnipeg civilian senior hockey league, lists as the outstanding thrill of his career the time he blanked Saskatoon Quakers twice in a row when Moncton Hawks won the Allan Cup for the second successive season in 1934. Next to that is the time he fended off pucks galore as he helped the English Olympic hockey squad down Canada 2-1 in the 1936 hockey world series.

HERSHEY BEARS ARE MOVING UP BEHIND BUFFALO

Second Consecutive Victory Scored Over Pittsburgh Hornets

(By The Canadian Press)

Hershey Bears now stand only four points behind Buffalo Bisons, leaders of the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League, following their second consecutive victory last night over Pittsburgh Hornets 8-3.

Paced by Gooden with three goals and Forgie with two, the Bears came out of a hectic first period with a 2-1 lead. From there on it was Hershey all the way.

Cooper opened the scoring in the first frame for Hershey but Klein evened the count with the first of his two goals for Pittsburgh. During the second period Gooden tallied three and teammate Posso added another while Klein scored the period's only Pittsburgh counter.

Forgie increased the Hershey margin with two goals in the third period after Rossignol had beaten Hershey netminder Damore for the third Pittsburgh goal. A crowd of 1,800 spectators attended the fray.

Simcoe, Dec. 21. (CP)—An estimated 15,000,000 pounds of the 85,000,000 pounds of flue-cured tobacco grown in Ontario in 1944 remains unsold, officials of the Marketing Association and buying companies said yesterday. Principal reason for the slacking off in the market was the severe snow storm last week.

ST. LOUIS CARDS PLACED FIRST FIELDING

Set Two Major League Records and Swept Four Individual Titles

By JACK HAND
(AP Sport Writer)

New York, Dec. 21 — (AP)—Defensive skills of the St. Louis Cardinals, painfully obvious to the Browns in the world series, were officially recognized today in the National League fielding records showing the world series champions set two major league team records and swept four of seven individual titles.

Billy Southworth's Red Birds established a record for both leagues with a .982 percentage and, by committing only 112 errors, erased the standard hung up by Cincinnati in 1940. It was their third successive fielding title to back up 3 straight pennants.

Ray Sanders at first base, Marty Marion at shortstop, Whitey Kurowski at third base and Johnny Hopp in the outfield showed the way in their divisions, leaving to "outsiders" such scattered laurels as best fielding second baseman Woody Williams and pitcher Bucky Walters, both of Cincinnati, and catcher Al Lopez of Pittsburgh. Leadership in all positions, except pitcher, was based on playing 100 or more games.

Sanders' .994 mark was just two points better than Frank McCormick of the Reds. Marion nosed out Eddie Miller of the Reds by one marker at .972, Kurowski's .963 gave him a wide edge over Steve Mesner of the Reds and Hopp showed the way among the regular outfielders with .997, four ahead of the Giants' Joe Medwick.

Williams' nearest rival was Emil Verban of the Cards but the winner had a three-point edge at .971 and Walters was one of 28 pitchers appearing in 10 or more games to field 1,000 but he had most chances, 79.

BROWNS NO. 1 COMEBACK TEAM OF PAST SEASON

Sammy Snead, Golfer, Just Out of Navy, Placed Second

By FRITZ HOWELL
(AP Sport Writer)

New York, Dec. 21 —(AP)— St. Louis Browns, already tagged as having furnished the year's biggest sports surprise in winning the American League flag, landed new laurels today as the No. 1 comeback team of 1944.

So decided 87 sports editors participating in the country-wide Associated Press poll, 20 of whom pointed the comeback finger at Luke Sewell's boys, along with seven other voters who picked 'em for the place or show spots.

On a basis of three votes for first place, two for second and one for third, the Browns piled up 71 points to beat out Sam Snead, golfer, who came back from two years in the navy to win the first tournament in which he played. Snead, with 10 first-place votes, had a 56 total.

Fifty-two individuals and teams came in for comeback attention by the scribes, but the Browns, in boosting their 72-80 won-lost percentage of 1943 into an 89-65 pennant winning mark in '44, were clearly a standout. The Browns, after losing the league lead, swept the last four games from New York to nose out Detroit by a single contest.

Four Goals Help To Win Contest

Lachine, Que., Dec. 21 — (CP) — Bobby Burr's four goals paved the way for a 9-5 victory by Cornwall Cookies over Lachine Rapids in an interprovincial hockey league game here last night. Burr scored two in the second period and two in the third.

Lachine scored the only first-period goal on Amard's shot and in the second frame Abel sent the Rapids ahead 2-0. Burr's first two counters tied the score and Bernie Lauson and Andy Perron put the Cookies ahead 4-2 before Trigg drew a third for Lachine.

In the final period, Bobby Carragher, Derocher and Proulx added goals with Burr bagging his second brace. Boucher and Abel scored the other goals for Lachine.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Intimation that the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union would operate next fall was made yesterday at Ottawa when J. J. McCaffrey, manager of the Ottawa football club, applied to Board of Control for playing dates and practice facilities at Lansdowne Park. McCaffrey said the "Big Four" was preparing to operate in Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto and Hamilton and that a meeting of the league executive had been called for Jan. 20 in Toronto.

In the meantime, Ottawa Trojans of the rival O.R.F.U. have an application for dates at Lansdowne Park next season. It was suggested by McCaffrey, however, that the clubs would co-operate in arrangements.

The death in action in Normandy July 21 has been reported of Pte. Norman R. Morrison, 26, of Galt while serving with the Essex Scottish. Prior to enlistment he played for Galt hockey teams in several O.H.A. series and also for an army sextet in England last winter.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

Had His Own Way.

A number of loyalist prisoners in the Spanish war were detained at one of the military camps under conditions much less unpleasant than those to be found in the ordinary military prison. Most of them appreciated their comparatively good fortune, but one young fellow continually taunted the insurgents about the battle of Guadalajara.

The insurgent soldiers, when they could stand it no longer, reported the matter to their general, who summoned the prisoner.

"I understand," said the general, "that you are continually insulting the men with reference to the battle of Guadalajara. They have borne with you long enough and I'm going to give you a choice of two things. Either you take the oath of allegiance to the insurgent cause or be sent to a military prison. Choose."

The prisoner was silent for a moment, then said in a resigned tone:

"I'll take the oath."

The oath was duly administered. The chap then asked if he might speak.

"Yes," agreed the general. "What is it?"

"I was just thinking general," he stated. "They certainly did give us a licking at Guadalajara."

Schedule Released.

On Wednesday convener S. R. Burrows released the O.H.A. schedule for group No. 2 in the Junior "B" series of the O.H.A. announcing a 30-game tie-up for the six teams affiliated in the loop. This simply means each team will have five home and an equal number of road games during the regular schedule, to be followed by the post-schedule play-off.

As for Belleville the locals pry off the lid versus Jerry Quinn's Tweed kids in Sam Curry's igloo on the evening of Jan. 3rd. and return home for their inaugural at the Hume arena on Friday, Jan. 5th. In all the local juniors have two Thursday night fixtures and three Friday night home stands. Hastings is slated to open the season here on Jan. 5th, Trenton will be here Jan. 11th., the Stirling "Combines" invade the Market Street arena on Jan. 19th, Tweed is here on Jan. 26th and Campbellford on Jan. 30th., so all-in-all it looks like a big season of junior hockey for the district.

Practices Start.

FO. Jimmie McCaa had his Mountain View "Bombers" out to practice at the Hume arena this morning and with a splendid sheet of ice at the disposal of the pucksters the Belleville juniors take to the ice for their initial workout and limbering up exercises Friday evening at seven o'clock. Coach "Toots" Holway hopes to have Dan Cowley help him with the front line tutoring this year. It was announced by Secretary Wally Berry today that every teen aged lad in the community is invited to try out for berths with the 1945 edition of the Belleville juniors. "No position is secure and the team will be selected from the players making the best of the club's practices from now until we open at Tweed," added Secretary Berry. And by the way public skating will be ushered in at the Hume arena tonight.

A few of the Bombers' old guard were out limbering up their legs at the Hume Arena this morning including Dan Cowley, Jock Roy, former Portland, Ore., forward and Ken Thompson, another westerner. Of course the old 'Quebec Aces' line of Frank Aube, Duke Duquette and Lou Boudreau were also on hand to give the Bombers a little extra scoring power.

This and That.

After reviewing last week's major league baseball conclave in New York City, Windsor Doug Vaughan tells why there weren't any too many headline trades made. He says: "One of the reasons that the major leagues baseball meeting of last week in New York failed to produce so little in the way of trading action is that too many of the managers weren't on hand to make any deals ....Right now there are no less than six of the big league pilots doing U.S.O. jobs overseas....They include Mel Ott of the Giants, Steve O'Neill of the Tigers, Luke Sewell of the Browns, Leo Durocher of the Dodgers, Frankie Frisch of the Pirates and Fred Fitzsimmons of the Phils....On top of that the venerable Connie Mack is vacationing in California....All rumors to the contrary, it is not likely that baseball will let down the bars against racing men like Bing Crosby and the Whitneys who made attempts to buy major league teams when Judge Landis was living....A lot of people had the idea that it was only Landis who was so strongly opposed to the idea that racing and baseball couldn't be mixed.... That may be true, but the fact still remains that the Baseball magnates still think so much of the late high commissioners' judgment and integrity that it is a safe bet that they will stick by his ruling....Landis booted Hornsby out of the major leagues because the Rajah, as manager of the St. Louis Browns, defied his order to quit betting on the ponies, or else....There is no doubt that Hornsby was then, and still is, a mighty smart baseball man..But, even with Landis gone, it is a 100-to-1 bet that he will never manage a major league baseball club again."

Remember When.

James (Tod) Sloan, regarded as the world's greatest jockey in the 90's died at Los Angeles eight years ago today. Fifty-nine years old and originator of the "monkey crouch" Sloan died a pauper after having gone through a fortune.

Things to Come.

Don't be surprised if, before the winter is very far advanced, a deal is made between the New York Yankees and the Boston Red Sox ....The Yankees want an outfielder and the Sox are badly in need of a first baseman....Several National League clubs are reported to have made overtures for Al Javery, star of the mound staff of the Boston Braves.....The Cubs have offered Clyde Passeau and several other members of the Chicago club for his services without results....The Brooklyn Dodgers are also known to be in the market for Javery's services.

Horse Sense Bridge

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

This is a brief fireside chat on the state of the nation of bridge players. I quote. My friends, bridge players are in a terrible state. End of quote.

Take this hand:

♠A J
♥A J 8 6
♦K Q J 4
♣A Q 10

What should be the opening bid with that hand? Should it be one heart, one diamond, one no-trump, two no-trump, two hearts, two diamonds, or what?

Whichever you say it is, how do you know? If somebody else says it should be something else, how do you know it is not so? Let's not fight about it. Let's prove it.

Partners in a bridge game try to reach their best final contract. They can do so only by combining the values in their joint hands. So they tell each other what they have. They do so with bids.

Each bid has some particular meaning. You use a certain bid in a certain spot to mean a certain thing. That same bid in the same kind of a spot should not be used to mean something else.

An opening bid of one in a suit would say: Partner, I have at least five tricks, more than my average in high cards and sure tricks, and this suit is biddable.

With the above hand, if the opening bid was one heart, it would have all that it said and more. If the bid was one diamond, it would have all that it said and more. But which would be more correct?

With two biddable suits of equal length, bid the higher ranking suit first. Strength has nothing to do with it. Only length and rank should be considered in choosing which suit to bid first.

Thus, an opening bid of one heart is more correct than an opening bid of one diamond. An incorrect bid of one diamond might not change the final result in this case. But the correct bid results best most often.

TOBIN OF BOSTON PITCHED 28 COMPLETE GAMES

Mort Cooper of St. Louis Hurled Seven Shutouts During Past Season

In arranging the National League pitchers of 1944 in order of their effectiveness, it was found expedient to classify them into three groups, the same arrangement that has been followed for the last thirty years. The first group embraces those who bore the brunt of the campaign and pitched at least ten complete games; the second, those who participated to some extent in a minimum of ten games; the third, all others who took part in a championship contest.

The percentage of games won and lost is given, with the notation of the relative position of each pitcher, this special record being supplied in order that a comparison may be made with the official earned run rating.

Edward B. Heusser, Cincinnati, for the first time in his career, led the pitchers in earned run rating with 2.38.

Ace T. Adams, New York, for the third consecutive year pitched in the most games, 65, and finished the most games, 44. Since coming to New York in 1941, Adams has been in 234 games in four years.

William S. Voiselle, New York, started most games, 41, pitched most innings, 313, faced most batters, 1,327, and struck out most batsmen 161.

Kenneth D. Raffensberger, Philadelphia, lost most games, 20, and allowed most sacrifices, 26.

Theodore Wilks, St. Louis, had highest won and lost percentage, .810, winning 17 and losing 4 games.

Morton C. Cooper, St. Louis, pitched most shutouts, 7.

Henry W. Wyse, Chicago, allowed most hits, 277.

Harold Gregg, Brooklyn, hit most batsmen, 9, allowed most bases on balls, 137, made most wild pitches, 10, allowed most runs, 142, and most earned runs, 120.

James A. Tobin, Boston, pitched two no-hit games the past season, blanking Brooklyn 2-0 on April 27, to become first Boston pitcher to do this since Thomas J. Hughes did it against Pittsburgh on June 6, 1916. Lonnie Warneke, St. Louis, was the last major league hurler to turn in a no-hitter, hurling it on August 30, 1941, against Cincinnati. Tobin pitched his second no-hitter on June 22 against Philadelphia, a 5 inning affair which was called on account of darkness.

Clyde M. Shoun, Cincinnati, hurled a no-hit game on May 15 against Boston. Oddly enough, James A. Tobin, who had pitched hitless ball against Brooklyn on April 27 was his opponent, and was the only man to reach base against Shoun via the bases on balls route in the third inning.

Brooklyn pitchers tied National League record by issuing 17 bases on balls to New York in first game of double-header April 30, and six of these were consecutive which also ties the record.

New York and Chicago, by using 14 pitchers in a game on July 23 (2nd game) established a new major league record. Old record of 12 held by Chicago and Cincinnati on August 9, 1942 (1st game)), 18 innings. Seven pitchers used by each club tied a National League record.

Theodore Wilks, St. Louis, had the longest winning streak, 11 games, starting July 2 against Brooklyn and did not lose until he faced Pittsburgh on September 2. The streak established a National League record for a rookie pitcher.

Harold Gregg, Brooklyn, suffered the longest losing streak, 9 games, being defeated by Boston on June 11, and did not win again until he defeated St. Louis July 31.

CENTRAL FIGURE

GERMAN OFFICERS RIOT

London, Dec. 21 — (CP) — Hundreds of German officers rioted and 13 escaped Monday night from a prison camp near Penkridge, Staffordshire, it was disclosed last night. The prisoners were believed to have been inspired by news of the German counter-offensive. All but one of those who escaped have been recaptured.

ADMIT VIOLATIONS

Hamilton, Dec. 21. (CP)—A $1,500 fine was imposed on McLaren's, Ltd., here yesterday after the firm admitted violation of Prices Board regulations. The company was charged with having obtained sugar without ration coupons from eight district grocers.

Whitehall Notebook

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(CP Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 21 —(CP)— Britain's fighting men are gradually coming home to help govern their country and already a few of them have been called to high administrative offices.

Scores have been chosen to represent the various parties as candidates in the general election which Prime Minister Churchill has virtually promised for late next year.

The latest to get a big government appointment is Cmdr. R. A. Brabner, D. S. O., D. S. C., of the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve. At 33, he was become parliamentary undersecretary for air. The appointment came as a surprise to many politicians for three years ago in his maiden speech he attacked the government for what he termed inefficiency in leaving British forces in Crete defenceless against the invading Germans.

Lieut. Alan Lennox-Boyd, 40, of the R. N. V. R., left the command of a motor-torpedo boat a year ago to become parliamentary secretary to the Aircraft Production Ministry.

And 36-year-old Capt. Richard Pilkington, who became the first member of parliament to win a decoration when awarded the Military Cross while serving with the coldstream guards in France four years ago, was appointed in 1942 as civil Lord of the Admiralty.

Maj. William Philip Sidney, who won the Victoria Cross at Anzio, recently was returned unopposed in a Chelsea by-election and was chosen to propose the address in reply to the speech from the throne when the new session opened.

"It is the appointment of these Brabners, Lennox-Boyds, Pilkingtons and Sidneys," said the Daily Express, "that suggests that there is a bright future in the government of their country for men returning from the fighting fronts."

Maj. Sidney is the second V. C. to help express the commons, Thanks to the King. The first was Cmdr. Peter Dean, Conservative member for Blackburn who won his award at Zeebrugge in 1918. In the next year he seconded the address in reply.

Maj. Sidney, 34 and banker son-in-law of Lord Gort, V. C., was elected by acclamation as conservative member for Chelsea, and his address after parliament's opening was his maiden speech.

His seconder, Tom Fraser, 43-year-old miner representing Hamilton Constituency in Lanarkshire, is recognized as one of the brighter lights in the Labor Party. He worked underground in the coalfields from the time he was 14 until he entered parliament about 18 months ago.

CONVICTIONS UPHELD

New York, Dec. 21 — (AP)—Convictions of seven men charged with attempting to extort more than $1,000,000 from the motion picture industry under threats "to close every theatre in the United States" were upheld yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Modern Magicians Enlisted for War

(By Neal Stanford in Christian Science Monitor)

On The Texas Gulf Coast

How seawater is turned into magnesium, and petroleum becomes synthetic rubber, is a mystery to me, though those things were done right under my nose by chemical scientists, i. e., magicians, who I am quite confident were trying to enlighten rather than confuse me. I have always enjoyed the artists who could pull rabbits out of hats. But I have never really believed they did it.

Down here at Freeport and Baytown, where along with some 25 other Washington newsmen, I visited Dow Chemical's magnesium plant and Humble Oil's synthetic rubber plant, we saw them perform incredible feats of magic. We saw. But not one of us, I am sure, understood what happened. In contrast with the rabbit-producing stunt of the magician (which even I know is an illusion), this production of magnesium out of seawater and rubber out of petroleum is, I can assure you, actually occurring.

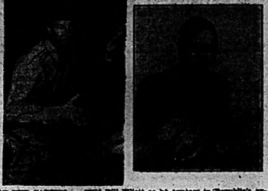
And it is not being done with mirrors, or wand-waving, but with pipes, tubes, tanks, vats, filters, boilers, furnaces. It is being done with such a nonchalant yet inspiring display of intelligence that the layman cannot help but marvel though he doesn't understand. The alchemist of the Middle Ages, I am persuaded, would have been more than satisfied to perform these transmutations, particularly the seawater-to-magnesium trick — for in that process you can, if you want, get a little gold from the seawater. There are billions of dollars worth of gold in the oceans, Dow says, but it's not worth the trouble or expense of recovering, particularly since all the Government would do with it is to take it out of the sea and put it into the ground at Fort Knox. It's the magnesium Dow is taking out of the ocean that is helping win the war—not the gold.

Simply (perhaps too simply) this is how Dow does it: It takes ocean water right out of the Gulf (that's one of the neat tricks about it, for ocean water is as free as air and almost as inexhaustible), mixing it with a lot of oyster shells which have been burned to lime (old oyster shells, by a remarkable coincidence, are also a drug on the market in this region). Next some hydrochloric acid is added, then the solution dried out. Finally it is electrolysed, or, as I understand it, shocked with an electric current.

The result is molten magnesium. Undoubtedly, there are innumerable minor steps along the way. There must be, from the miles of pipe, tanks, towers, machinery we saw. But the end result is this silvery lightweight metal—lighter than aluminum—which literally has been distilled from the sea and has been conscripted for war production. It is used in building military aircraft. The Army's air-borne rocket gun is constructed almost entirely of magnesium. You find it in the new jet-propulsion engine which powers the Bell jet-propulsion fighter. After the war, Dow hopes to put it to peacetime use, in the building of carpet-sweepers, wheelbarrows, and pancake griddles.

At Baytown, where Humble Oil is turning petroleum into synthetic rubber, a completely different though equally complicated process is occurring. Before we could get by the armed guards to the spick-and-span $25,000,000 Government-owned butyl plant, we were given a half-hour's post-graduate course in chemistry, physics, and superfractionation, which were among the simpler terms bandied about by the company's head chemist. By means of seven large colored diagrams, which to me looked like the latest in technicolor Rube Goldberg art, he showed what happened to the petroleum going into one end of the plant and coming out rubber at the other. Such terms as butadiene, isoprene, catalyst, isobutadiene I can recall as being most important in his explanation.

Since it is all done inside vats, tubes, tanks, furnaces, you have to take their word for what's going on.



AT THE CAPITOL — Wild Bill Elliott as he appears in Republic's exciting new western, "Mojave Firebrand," and George Formby in a new wave of laughter "Bell-Bottom George," the added hit, now showing at the Capitol.

It's quite a shock, though—at least it was to me—to find that synthetic rubber, at the first stage you can really see it, looks exactly like boiled rice. Later, it's put through wringers and pressed out into sheets which somehow gives it a golden hue. It is then put to a wide variety of uses. But at its first appearance in public, it looks like nothing more nor less than boiled rice. I still don't see why. No one had warned me. This is to warn you.

Little Benny's Note Book

I started to read my new lyberry book, saying, Hay pop, hay ma, how would you like me to be a critic when I grow up and write about books to tell people what's the best things for them to read and what's the worst?

It's probably not bad work if you can get it, pop said, and ma said, As a matter of fact I've always thought that litterary critics must lead very interesting lives. They get plenty of reading done without ever having to feel they're neglecting their work, she said.

Well G, it must be a great sensation to be able to tell people what's good for them and have them believe you, I said, and pop said, That's a small and selfish view of a high profession. The litterary critic feels amply repaid for his labors by the thought that he steers his fellow men clear of great piles of rubbish and guides their footsteps to the real flowers of the mind he said.

Well jimminy, pop, suppose he makes a mistake and guides your footsteps to a bum book? I said, and pop said, Well, when in doubt, you might consult a couple of critics.

G, pop, that's just what I did before I took out this lyberry book, I said, and pop said, The dooce you did.

Sure, pop, both the critics wrote what they thought right here on the first page, I said. One guy wrote, This book is punk, and the other guy wrote right underneath, You're crazy, this is a swell book. So now how do I know whether to read it or not, pop? I said.

It's an intricate problem, pop said. The only thing I can suggest is to go ahead and read the book and make up your own mind which critic was correct, he said.

Being what I'm doing, both of them so far seeming to be partly right.

AN APPLE FOR EVE

By Kathleen Norris

CHAPTER 18

"If you hadn't been her I would have been really frightened by Harris," she admitted thoughtfully She was tired, she said, and Chris said he was tired, too, but they sat on lazily in the warmth for a while, talking sometimes and sometimes silent. "It's after ten. I'm going up. I'll leave a light in Hugh's room," she said later.

"I'm coming." Chris rattled the poker in the grate fire, followed her as she went along extinguishing lights. He tried the front door. "He won't get in tonigh,t anyway," he said.

"D'you want to be waked, Chris? Breakfast any time, but I'm always down early with the children."

"Better give me a call." He caught her toward him for a light kiss on the temple before closing his bedroom door.

Loveday went in to settle the baby off for the night, pulled warmer covers over the sprawling twins. Branches were crackling and tossing outside in the dark.

She went into her own room, loosening the heavy cornet of her braided hair. The dressing-table light made a little oasis in the gloom. Loveday turned to open her bed, stopped short, rooted to the spot.

The adjoining twin bed had an occupant. The covers were bunched up in a manner entirely familiar to her, outlining a long, hunched body. And on the pillow were visible an angle of hard brown cheek and chin and the untidy mop of Larry Ingersoll.

Larry slept soundly through the night, hardly changing his position. But Loveday, if she slept at all, lost consciousness only for brief intervals. Her mind milled ceaselessly upon the conversation she must have in the morning with Larry.

Toward morning she must have fallen asleep, for the alarm at half-past six awakened her as usual. Instantly full recollection rushed back; she silenced the clock instinctively, looked fearfully toward the neighboring bed. Larry did not awaken. He muttered an annoyed "Damn!" gathered the covers closer about him, hunched himself deeper into bed. Loveday dressed noiselessly—anything to defer the hour of encountering his anger—and slipped from the room.

With the children she allowed herself all the usual commotion. Chris presently ran downstairs. As Loveday set his long glass of chilled fruit juice before him he greeted her cheerfully.

"No excitement in the night? But I'd make pretty sure today, if I were you, where Harris is."

"No excitements," she agreed cheerfully, "but Larry's home."

"Larry is!"

"Yes. I didn't wake him because he told the girls he wanted to sleep. She managed a natural air as she poured the coffee.

"When'd he come in?"

"Last night sometime. I'm not sure when."

"He didn't send you a wire." Chris commented. It was almost as if he were criticising Larry, and Loveday, too, for the omission. He was annoyed, though he tried not to show it; the atmosphere of the breakfast table change.

Time went by; the clocks struck the half-hour after eight; Chris said that he must go. Loveday tried for a protest, knew it to be unconvincing. And then of all pleasant and unexpected developments Hugh came into the dining room.

"Say Loveday, I'm operating at ten. But I had to tell you. I've found Delia Dillon!"

"Oh, you and your clues, Hugh! And does she know anything about Grandfather's money?" She could laugh aloud in sheer relief.

"I don't know; I've not seen her Father Burke came to the hospital yet. She lives in Portland. to see a fellow who's pretty sick. The minute he heard my name he spoke of Grandfather Gurney and the odd chance that I had found out who I was—he knew all about it, of course. It suddenly came to me that he might know Delia. So I asked him if he remembered a nice Irish maid my grandmother had, and he said at once that he remembered her perfectly; she had married and gone away. I said that she hadn't left any traces that we could follow, through the post office and all that, and he said that she had been afraid of some man here who had been worrying her—"

"Harris. She'd sworn Father Burke into not telling anyone except a member of the family where she was, but he has her name and he telephoned it to me this morning. So I've written her in Portland."

"And Larry's here, Hugh," Loveday said as Chris appeared not to have heard. "Came in late last night."

"Larry, hey?" Hugh looked immensely pleased.

"What's the news with him?" he asked.

"I don't know. He was terribly tired and he's still sound asleep. Going Chris?" The endless meal was over; Chris was on his feet; they all went with him to the door and down to the drive. Hugh got into his car and sped away; the children foraged among the shrubs and paths. Chris stood by his car looking down at the rough old driving gloves he was pulling on his hands, his face a thundercloud.

"What's the matter?" Loveday asked, her heart sinking.

"Everything," he answered with a brief glance.

"Not my fault," she said very low, hardly knowing what she said.

"Not your fault? Whose fault is it that you haven't had an understanding with Larry, that you haven't made this sort of thing impossible?" the man beside her demanded. "You know how I feel. You know how any man feels who loves a woman would feel to have him walk in here."

"Chris, Chris," she pleaded. "You must understand that nothing's settled yet—that after all, he's my husband."

"He isn't giving me much chance to forget it!" he added, "I'm sorry, Loveday but what on earth am I to do? Joke and laugh over his coming back, breaking up all our plans? You told me that he left you in a fury, told you that you could get a divorce if you wanted one. I tell you, Loveday, you've let one of us down, him or me!"

"I did tell him you and I cared for each other," Loveday protested, her cheeks flaming, "but how could I say that while I was married to one man I was planning to marry another?"

"Why couldn't you? Isn't it done every day? I'm sorry," he broke off to say sulkily. "I'll write you; I'll see you; I'm all upset. I'm crazy, I guess. But I happen to love you. Will you please make things definite today, have an understanding with him, let me know where I stand?"

Then Chris drove off. She went back into the house and presently she heard a sound from Larry that was half a shout and half a moan and, entering her own room with a fast-breaking heart, saw that he had rolled over on his back and was staring sleepily toward the door.

"Hello, Loveday!" he said easily. "Lord, I can feel it's late! What time is it?"

It couldn't be that he was going to be good-natured? That there need not be a scene?

"It's only a little after ten. Go back to sleep if you want to; Annie Lum's keeping the coffee hot."

"Oh no," Larry said on a long yawn, "I'll get up."

"When did you get home, Larry?" What brings you and how long can you stay?"

"Back to where? Toronto?"

"Nope. I'm in our service now. Transfered with a hell of a lot of red tape! Commissioned as an ensign in our aviation corps."

"Oh, and are you glad?"

"You bet your life I'm glad. I've been down in Pensacola right where I started. Only," Larry said with a little touch of grim significance, of relish, "things are different now!"

"You mean you really are a flier now ...a good one, and they know it?" Loveday supplied eagerly.

"I always knew I was," he said simply.

"And you're on your way — where?"

"To Norfolk. That is, unless there are other instructions waiting for me at San Diego."

Presently, dressed and downstairs at breakfast, he began to talk of his work and of the men with whom he was associating. Loveday waited on him, sat opposite him at the table, listened. This was his world now—a world that talked of airports, types of ships, Lockheeds, and Douglases; he was absorbed in it. He told her of plans and ambitions she was entirely unable to estimate, of personalities of whom she got but shadowy impressions, of jokes that to her were not funny, though she smiled appreciatively and sympathetically as she heard them.

"You'll stay in the United States, though, Larry?"

"Well, I don't know. Nobody knows anything. We expected a Pilot-friend of mine — named McNally, to go back with us the last time, but he went on."

"Went on where?"

"We don't know—all very hush-hush."

"Might they send you away?"

"Well, su-u-ure they might. He was enjoying his breakfast; he spoke of the coffee, the corn bread.

"Your daughters and son gathered the eggs no later than yesterday; Owen carried a brown egg all the way home from the windmill." She supplemented his comments.

"I'll bet they're a handful!" he said amusedly. "Have much trouble with them?"

"Oh no, but they're lively."

"It's a full-time job," he said musingly, "but this is a swell place for them to be." She refilled his cup, and he doubled a wedge of corn bread over a lump of butter and put it in his mouth.

"I didn't hear you come in. What time did you get here last night?" It was asked at last.

"'Bout — I don't know — half-past nine maybe. You and Chris St. George were sitting in there by the fire. But I was too dog-tired to bother with him—his kind of talk kind of makes me sick, anyway—so I beat it up to bed. What does he do, stop here every time he goes up to the city?"

No suspicion, no jealousy, no resentment! She felt as if a shower of cold water had fallen over her; she caught her breath.

"You kind of like his line, don't you?" Larry asked in mild curiosity. Loveday with a keen recollection of his last visit at home, when she had actually proposed to him that she get a divorce to marry Chris, looked at him in stupefaction. He had bitterly implied that the easiest way out of the mess was for him to get himself killed as quickly as possible. But today he was apparently unconscious of anything irregular. He finished his breakfast with a great sigh of satisfaction, observed that there was no food like home food and that she must have cooked the eggs herself because they tasted different from any others, and walked out to the terrace, breathing complete satisfaction in every aspect of his being. "Lord, I love a morning like this," he said, looking up at the windy sky, "but I don't know about the planes. I'd better telephone the airport."

Hugh came back for lunch, and the conversation about Larry's aviation training camp in the East, Hugh's hospital camp at Indian Hill, their speculations as to other camps, military movements, naval action, armament production, and and air defense reduced Loveday to the position of listener. She served a good meal; the children were by this time asleep, and a fire in the little-used dining-room grate made the general effect of hospitality and cosiness accentuated by the wild winds outside.

"You're going to stay in this neighborhood, Hugh?" Larry asked.

"I don't see why not."

"Well, I hope you do. In case of any emergency or illness here, I'd like to feel that Loveday had you to turn to."

"Oh, I look 'em over every few days," Hugh said with his pleasant smile. "Even if I can't get home every night!"

"Before winter I wish we could get that furnace straightened out," Larry went on. "We fired it up a couple of times last spring, but there's something wrong. Has anything been done about partitioning off an apartment upstairs? Loveday was talking about that last summer

This gave Hugh a chance to embark upon the subject of the lost Gurney fortune; he expatiated upon clues, leads, suspicions, hopes. If they found the money they would have the whole house done over and start the hospital as well. Loveday could see that Larry put small faith in their ever ending that particular quest.

"What I was thinking," he said, "was that if you put a mortage of —say two thousand—on the place and rented the apartment for—what could you get, d'you suppose?"

"Two thousand!" Loveday protested. "Two hundred is more like it."

"You could get a good rent, Larry," Hugh said, "because there's not half enough housing in Indian Hill for the families of the men who are pouring in here. Captain Payre's wife pays eighty-five for a miserable little place."

They fell to figuring. Once Larry asked Loveday where she planned to put the bath in th new apartment. "I'm like a secretary," she thought, answering briefly.

"You see, Hugh," Larry said finally, "in two years it would be paid for. Then with rent and what she could raise on the place, and you right here to keep an eye on things, she'd be fixed."

"But Larry," Hugh said, "there is always the chance of our having much more!"

"Yes, all right, go ahead and find it!" he conceded good naturedly. "Well," he went on, "there's the furnace then that ought to be fixed. And get an estimate on this apartment business; this is the time to do it. And another thing—Mr. St. George is still sending you fifty or seventy-five or what-ever it is every month, isn't he, Loveday?"

"From the estate," Loveday said.

"From the estate!" Larry repeated in the tone of male superiority that she hated. "All right. But of course that stops," he said to Hugh, "if anything happens to the old man. That's just his generosity."

"You don't know that!" Loveday said.

Tired Out at End of Day— Just Wanted to Sit Down

"I Felt as If I Had No Energy Left," said Mr. Boyd. Nervous; Dizzy; Digestion Bad; Tells of New Feeling of Health by Taking Sytone.

"During the past few months I felt so tired and rundown that when I got through with my day's work I just wanted to sit down in a chair until bedtime." said Mr. Lorne Boyd, 710 York Street, London, Ontario, in a recent statement.

"I just felt that I had no energy left. My nerves were bad and after I got to bed I'd roll and toss and couldn't sleep. Then in the morning I was dull and unrested. At times I got awful dizzy spells with black spots floating before my eyes. I didn't feel like eating because even the lightest foods would lay heavy in my stomach. I'd belch up hot, sour liquids and have a lot of gas, bloating and shortness of breath.

"I took so many things without getting any better that when a fellow worker told me about Syntona I didn't think it would help me.

"But after a while I decided to try it and now my only regret is that I didn't get it sooner. From the first bottle my food began to digest better. I wanted to eat regular meals again and I was enjoying them.

"Then as I kept taking Syntona the dizziness and spots before my eyes stopped troubling me. Now I get sound sleep at night and feel fully rested when I get up in the morning. I don't get tired on the job as I used to. I have plenty of energy when I am through for the day and I don't know when I felt better."

Syntona is made from 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots. It acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels .. aids in the elimination of excess acids and poisonous waste matter and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Frankford

Frankford.—The December meeting of the Evening Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. H. H. Lackey, a week earlier than usual. The President, Mrs. J. Finnigan, had charge of the program which opened with a worship service of carol singing interspersed with scripture reading, and a candle-lighting service conducted by Mrs. Finnigan assisted by Mrs. Arnold Stickle, Mrs. Harry Montgomery, Mrs. L. M. Coutts, Mrs. Lackey and Mrs. Chas. Bennett.

The business of the month was then conducted.

A reading 'Is there a anta Claus' was given followed by a song 'I Heard a Bird Sing' in which everyone took part. Readings were given by Mrs. Montgomery and Mrs. Coutts. An 'ate' contest was conducted by Mrs. Stickle, Miss Hazel Mikel was the winner.

Lunch was served and the meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Friends of Miss Marybelle Rogers will be sorry to learn that she was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital, Tuesday morning. All hope for a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cory, of Belleville, called on their daughter, Mrs. George Spencer, on Tuesday.

The members of the C.G.I.T. of the Frankford United Church held a special candle-lighting Christmas service at the evening service on Sunday.

GIRL MUST RETURN RING

Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 21 — (AP) — When a marriage is annulled, the husband gets the wedding ring if he obtained the annulment, Judge Michael E. Zimmer ruled yesterday. As a result, Miss Beatrice Davis must return a diamond-set ring valued at $500 to her former husband, Harvey Nagle. An annulment of their marriage was granted No. 17, 1943.

Lord Faringdon Sharply Criticizes Greek Situation

London, Dec. 21 (CP)—Lord Faringdon, sharply assailing Britain's armed intervention policy in Greece, warned in the House of Lords today that "mutiny" may arise among British troops detailed to quell civil strife in that troubled land.

Cries of "monstrous" greeted his statement. Lord Faringdon once served on committee to investigate Britain's non-intervention in Spanish civil war.

"I should not be surprised if our commanders had not already met with cases of men who show greatest unwillingness to fight Greeks and who may have refused to bomb Athens", said Lord Faringdon, a former member of the Fabian League executive.

"It may be this will go further and we shall have a mutiny among men in Greece and a refusal to fight the Greeks".

Lord Samuel said there would be "universal condemnation" of Lord Faringdon's speech, and added:

"Such language ought not to be used in this House".

Lord Samuel, leader of the Liberal Party in House Lords, declared "I am sure on further consideration Lord Faringdon will regret he has been betrayed into these remarks".

Lord Faringdon had suggested that the "King of Greece did not deserve and was in fact an unsuitable recipient of the respect and authority with which British government invested him".

"I think there can be no possibility", he added, "that the King has hardly any personal support in Greece. The Greek people inevitably hold against him that it was he who brought in dictatorship in Greece and who maintained Dictator Metaxas in power".

Lord Samuel said Britain probably would have to restort to some sort of "inter-Allied action" to settle the Greek situation and said "there is no reason why Great Britain should be called upon to bear this burden alone".

"They are terms of surrender", he said. "I hope he may be directed to withdraw these terms and offer terms which are more acceptable".

Britain Increases Foodstuff Production By Seventy Per Cent

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, Dec. 21 (CP)—By plowing up grass land, reclaiming waste areas and specializing in crops for human food, Britain during the war has increased her production of foodstuffs by at least 70 per cent in both calory and protein value.

Now the aim is to maintain that high production into the peace, to save foreign exchange for other purchases abroad and help provide employment in a stable, prosperous agricultural industry.

Statistics in a government White Paper on Britain's war effort showed that land in crop or fallow increased from 8,800,000 acres in 1939 to 14,600,000 this year and temporary grassland increased from 4,100,000 acres to 4,800,000.

But permanent grassland was cut from 18,800,000 acres to 11,700,000. Thus the total area under crops and grass was reduced only 600,000 acres despite the vast areas taken over for military purpose and the land actually farmed increased by 6,500,000 acres.

Production of wheat, potatoes, sugar beets and vegetables for use as food have been sharply increased. In 1943 the quantity of both wheat and potatoes harvested was more than double the pre-war average and sugar beets and vegetables were up more than 30 per cent. Larger quantities of fodder crops also have been grown at home but output of meat, poultry and eggs has nevertheless had to be curtailed considerably.

LARGE WOLF SHOT

Guelph, Dec. 21 — (CP)—Believed to be the marauder sought for wholesale killing of sheep in Eramosa township, a large wolf was shot yesterday by two brothers, Wellington and Arthur Stumpf. In addition to the provincial bounty, they will receive $55 offered by township authorities for every wolf shot in the township.

PROCLAMATION CIVIC HOLIDAY BOXING DAY

In accordance with a resolution passed by the Municipal Council of the City of Belleville, I hereby proclaim Tuesday, December 26th, 1944, a public civic holiday for the Municipality of the City of Belleville and would respectfully request that it be observed as such.

Frigate Swansea In Rescue Role

Ottawa, Dec. 21. (CP)— The story of the rescue of eight British navy and army men by the crew of the Canadian Frigate Swansea from a sinking caisson of one of the pre-fabricated ports erected on the French coast after D-Day was revealed today.

The great concrete caisson was one of many being towed to Normandy to form part of a harbor, the navy said in a press release.

Swansea, in command of Cmdr. A. L. Layard, began rescue operations in mid-afternoon. Run after run was made past the listing caisson, but lines shot by coston guns each time were caught by the wind and dropped into the sea.

With the eight men huddled on a ledge and the caisson wallowing deeper in the water, Swansea decided to make a try with her sea boat. The whaler was lowered under command of Swansea's executive officer, Lieut. John T. Band of Toronto, now acting captain of the ship, with a six-man boat's crew, but his attempt was unsucessful.

With adarkness approaching Swansea had to get the men off the caisson before she could pick up the boat. It took another hour of cautious edging through the seas before, going slow astern, the frigate backed alongside the towering concrete shell. The boat had been out nearly two hours before Swansea came alongside and picked it up.

Other members of the boat's crew were Petty Officer George Ardy, London, Ont.; Leading Seaman John Berryman, London, Ont.; LS. Stanley Millions, South Porcupine, Ont., and Able Seaman Arthur Concart, London, Ont.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 21 (CP).—Moderate gains were boarded by all index groups in the early session today while trading moved at a dull tempo. Volume was 226,000 shares for the first three hours.

The Abitibi 7 per cent preferred stocks jumped 20 points on a report that a settlement had been reached regarding the position of this stock in the proposed new capital set-up. The 6 per cent preferred advanced more than 2 points and the common was down slightly. Other paper issues held firm.

The golds were strong generally. Giant gained 40 cents to $9 and minor gains were posted by O'Brien, Bear, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Wasa Lake and Donald. Smelters was stronger and Steep Rock was off 5 cents. Other Base Metals showed little change.

Western oils held steady in the main. Home weakened 5 cents and British-Dominion was up a cent.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Dec. 21 (CP)—A small run of cattle was cleared at strong prices up to mid-session on the livestock market here up to mid-session today. Weighty steers were $12-$13, a few butcher steers and heifers $9-$11, butcher cows $7-$9 and fed yearlings $12-$13.50.

Veal calves were steady at $9-$16.

Lambs were steady at $12.50-$13 for good ewes and wethers with culls downward to $8.

Sheep were steady at $2-$4.

Hogs were steady at $18.35 for grade A dressed with sows $13.25 dressed.

Receipts by the Dominion marketing service were: Cattle 200, calves 50, hogs 400, sheep and lambs 200. Unsold from yesterday were 200 head of cattle.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—Scattered rails and industrials exhibited mild resistance to further liquidation in today's stock market although many leaders lacked recovery power. The ticker tape was more or less sluggish near the fourth hour and trends were no worse than irregularly lower.

Grumman Aircraft was an isolated stoing spot, along with Texas and Pacific Railway, both at 1944 highs. Occasional gainers included Southern Railway, Great Northern, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, United Aircraft and International Harvester. Canadian issues were nchanged to fractionally lower, Lake Shore a firm spot, up 1-8.

Smoky Smith V.C. Against Promotion

Regina, Dec. 21 (CP) — Pte. Ernest Alvia (Smokey) Smith, 30-year-old Seaforth Highlander from New Westminster, who won the Victoria Cross for single-handedly holding a vital Italian bridgehead against German tanks, self-propelled guns and infantry, had a "complete disregard for promotion," Gordon Cameron, a war veteran pal of his, said here yesterday.

Cameron, now a Regina newspaperman after serving with the Seaforth Highlanders in Italy, termed "Smith a right guy to have near you in a scrap."

"It seemed a natural thing for Smokey to win the V.C.," he said. "I well remember his devil-may-care grin, his nonchalant attitude, his complete disregard for promotion, and his open-handedness to all his pals. Nothing ever rattled Smokey. He was everybody's friend."

FROST CONFERS WITH DUPLESSIS

Quebec, Dec. 21 — (CP) — Hon. L. M. Frost, Ontario Provincial treasurer, conferred yesterday with Premier Duplessis, provincial treasurer Gagnon and Mines Minister Robinson, at the legislature today. No statement was issued following the meeting.

TWEED

Christmas Story Enacted by CGIT

Tweed—In Tweed United Church on Sunday morning, December 17, during the Sunday School hour the Canadian Girls in Training put on a dramatization of the Christmas story. In the afternoon at 4.30 the annual Vesper Service of the C.G.I.T. was held in the auditorium of the church and was conducted by Eleanor Adrian and Barbara Johnston with Miss Audrey Dales at the piano. Several Christmas carols were sung. The Christmas story and responsive Scripture readings were given. The Canadian Girls in Training Movement was founded upon the pattern of the Life of Jesus as it is described in the Gospel by Luke: "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man".

The service closed with the candle lighting ceremony. Both services were well attended and enjoyed.

The C.G.I.T. is under the capable leadership of Miss M. Donaldson.

Cultivating Christmas Berries

(By Archie H. Wills, in C-I-L- Oval)

"Don't send me a present; send me a box of holly."

That is a common request many residents of Victoria, B. C., receive from their friends and relatives in Eastern Canada when thoughts of Christmas are uppermost in our minds.

Holly grows profusely in Victoria because of the soft, mild climate, but even there Christmas is not complete without sprigs of the shiny green, prickly leaves and the red berries peeking out from vases on the piano, from the mantel, or the pictures on the wall. And it most surely will stand in all its glory atop the Christmas pudding when it is paraded to the dining room table.

Huge holly trees are found in some of the lovely old gardens of Victoria. They were brought as seeds or small trees from England 60 and 75 years ago by the pioneers who came around Cape Horn in sailing ships. From the old garden the holly tree has developed into the decorative scheme of Victoria and expanded into a lucrative commercial business.

Most of Victoria's streets are boulevarded and certain sections have special types of trees. In the James Bay district, one of the first to be settled, several streets have holly trees. These are nearly 30 feet high and their narrowly pyramided tops give the streets an attractiveness to be found nowhere else. In winter, when they are alive with red berries, they are truly Christmas trees.

On the Prairies and in Eastern Canada, however, holly is a luxury. It costs but 35 cents a pound in Victoria, but sometimes brings as much as $4 on the Toronto or Montreal retail market.

* * *

Holly is grown commercially in orchards, on farms or on plantations. Government inspectors usually call the holly-growing areas plantations. You will find most of the orchards in the vicinity of Victoria, Duncan, Mill Bay, or Nanaimo, if you seek them on Vancouver Island.

On the British Columbia mainland they are to be found not more than 40 miles inland from salt water; beyond that the trees cannot survive the colder weather.

Let's visit a typical Victoria holly farm, the two and one-half acre plantation of Barrett Montfort, which boasts some 500 trees of varying size and age. The trees are set out about ten feet apart, allowing room for cultivation and cutting. Holly trees grow slowly and cannot be cut commercially until they are 12 to 15 years old. Some trees that are 60 years old grow to a height of 40 feet and will produce 200 pounds of cutable holly annually.

Holly lives to a great age in favorable climates and some trees in England are 200 to 300 years old.

Holly may be propagated by seed cuttings, layering, budding and grafting. Seeds do not germinate until the second year. The trees take a tremendous amount of nourishment from the soil, and in order to feed them properly and to insure the heaviest possible growth, most commercial growers apply commercial fertilizers in the spring at the rate of one to twelve pounds per tree, depending upon the size and needs of the tree.

* * *

All the berry holly comes from the female trees. The male trees, of which there are only a few in an orchard, look out of place, much like the human male at an afternoon tea party. They stand in the orchard for the sole purpose of fertilizing the female trees.

The holly berry turns from green to a lovely red in late October and November, and commercial cutting usually begins about a month before Christmas. In the ordinary garden, the owner of one or two trees does his own cutting, endeavoring to ship off the sprigs with the best berries and yet maintain the generally rounded lines of the tree. In the commercial orchard cutting is done scientifically. Six cutters are employed on the Montfort farm, assisted on the ground by a number of girls who gather the sprigs and pack them.

The cutters work from high ladders and wear rubber gloves, not only to protect their hands from the sharp points of the leaves, but to avoid bruising the leaves. The cutter pries in between the heavy foliage and takes care to remove only last year's growth, leaving this year's shoots for cutting in 1945. The tree is not stripped, as might be supposed. About half of the berried wood is left.

Most of the Victoria holly, which came originally from Holland and France, has prickly leaves from the lower limbs clear to the top, unlike the more common type which is prickly to the height of a cow and then smooth to the top.

The reason for this, so the story goes, is to prevent cows, which have a fondness for holly, from stripping the trees. Bossie backs away from the prickly leaves and can't reach the smooth ones.

WIND SAVED VILLAGE

Shelburne, Dec. 21. (CP)— A strong west wind yesterday probably saved the village of Honeywood, 12 miles north of here, from destruction as fire destroyed one home and damaged two others. The village, isolated by snow-blocked roads, could not be reached by firefighting equipment from nearby communities.

C.W.L. Will Pack Clothing To Send Overseas

Marmora.—The December meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in the vestry at Sacred Heart Church after Mass on Sunday. Mrs. E. D. O'Connor presided over a good attendance. It was decided to send Christmas boxes as usual to sick members of the parish and members were asked to contribute home made cooking and candy for the purpose. It was also decided to pack a box of used clothing for overseas and members were requested to donate articles. Arrangements were made for a card party to be held in Sacred Heart School on January 8th.

MAIN GERMAN THRUST INTO BELGIUM BLUNTED

ALLIES ASSURED OF HUGE RUSSIAN WINTER DRIVE

Eisenhower Says Hun Offensive Will Completely Fail

Allied Forces Swing Into Action on Enemy Flank

By JAMES M. LONG, AP STAFF WRITER

Paris, Dec. 22—(AP)—The main force of the German thrust deep into Belgium has been blunted, field dispatches announced today, and Gen. Eisenhower called upon Allied armies to swing into action and destroy the enemy.

Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt had come out of his fixed defences in a last great gamble on a winter counter-offensive, Eisenhower said in an order of the day.

Declaring Von Rundstedt's offensive "will completely fail," Gen. Eisenhower said the enemy's sally from behind strong fixed defences "may give us a chance to turn his great gamble into his worst defeat."

Wedge 32 Miles Deep.

Although the main enemy drive had been turned aside and slowed, the counter-attack broke out in a new sector 20 miles south of the city of Luxembourg Thursday night.

A battle involving 10 tanks and two companies of infantry was fought at dusk Thursday night on a newly-active front some 20 miles south of the city, field reports said. The Germans were repulsed.

After six days of slashing assault in which German forces had driven a wedge 32 miles into Allied lines by Tuesday noon, Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's columns in Belgium have been turned aside in some sectors and forced to a slower pace in others, said a field report timed at 8:35 a.m. today.

Along the 32-mile German north flank, veteran Allied forces had swung into action after speedy marches across snow-topped mountains. Fierce tank battles had been fought in head-on collisions with German armor, and cool veterans of river crossings all the way from the Volturno in Italy to the Moselle in France had mowed down waves of Germans attempting to force the turbulent Ambleve. This flank was firm.

Situation Improved.

Along the southern flank of the bulge the Allied situation also was improved, but still confused.

However, the initiative still was in the hands of Von Rundstedt and groups of 20 to 30 German tanks still made slashing penetrations here and there and roved behind Allied lines.

Both sides were pouring tens of thousands of men into the critical phase of the battle every few hours as the intensity of the conflict in the fog-shrouded cauldron mounted.

Except for a few field dispatches, however, there was no new word as to the depth of the German penetration.

Not until 4 or 5 p.m. E.D.T. was Allied supreme headquarters expected to make a new announcement of positions. This announcement was expected to cover the situation only up to Wednesday night under recent security decisions.

(The German radio said the German high command also had adopted a policy of secrecy and called it a "battle of silence.")

St. Vith, four miles from the German border, with two German wedges driven far past it on either side, was still held by the Americans despite the frontal attack of a full German S.S. division.

Fighting through fog, snow and mud, American fighting men were cutting down Germans by the hundreds and taking heavy losses.

Fifty-five enemy tanks were destroyed along the northern flank of the German thrust yesterday, field dispatches said, when groups of roving armor were trapped here and there.

However, these roving armored groups often were doing much damage.

The tenor of front line dispatches suggested that the German foray south of Luxembourg was one such roving mission. Third Army dispatches, however, said 60 German planes were spotted north of Metz last night.

The main axis of the German thrust apparently was still westward, with the Germans vainly endeavoring to curl their armored spearhead northward.

Unless Von Rundstedt succeeds in fanning out behind the main part of the 1st Army to the north shortly it is possible he will be confronted with a great weight of men and material bearing down on his right flank.

Cut Nine Miles Into Salient

(The Germans said the Allied front opposing the German push still was not "coherent", but suggested they already were feeling the effects of 1st Army reinforcements rushed from the north, and 3rd Army action from the south.

(One Berlin broadcast said the 3rd Army bridgehead across the Saar at Ensdorf, near Saarlautern, had been abandoned. This was without any Allied confirmation.)

Already one Allied counteraction in the Monschau area, northern hinge of the German line, had cut nine miles into the German salient, reducing its base to 4 miles.

This attack had cut across some of the German supply lines from the road centre of Schleiden. But the lines to the likely main bases of the German drive, such as Stadtkyll, Prum, Bitburg and Trier, were intact.

More Parachutists Dropped.

More parachutists were dropped by the Germans, this time a few miles southwest of Habiemont, westernmost point of penetration so far officially reported, the Allied communique said. This may have been near Werbomont, where dispatches said an enemy force had cut the Liege-Bastogne highway.

One pocket of 500 parachutists was wiped out near a vital road junction after five days of fighting. The parachutists had expected to be reached by German armor in 24 hours.

Illustrating the ferocity of the German drive, one front correspondent said the commanding general of an S.S. Division had instructed his troops to take no prisoners during the offensive except a few officers for questioning.

Netherlanders Hide From German Conquerors for More Than a Year

By MARGARET ECKER
(CP War Correspondent)

Somewhere in Holland, Dec. 22—(CP)—In a straw hut in the centre of a pine forest, somewhere in Holland, a valiant band of Netherlanders hid successfully from the German conquerors of their country for more than a year.

German soldiers sometimes passed within a few feet of their sentry boxes. The refugees themselves took and held prisoners in the compound of their camp. In the last few days before the liberation of this part of Holland, they sallied forth to commit acts of sabotage against the harassed Germans.

A young civil servant, one of the founders of the camp, guided us through mud-choked back roads and winding forest trails to the hut in the pine trees. It seemed small, like a hut a woodsman might use to store his tools.

Inside it proved to be large, comfortable, with three wings.

"Here I cooked," said the young Hollander as he pointed to the rusted stove and tables. Another wing was a dormitory, with 24 bunks made of rough hewn pine wood. All the furniture was hand hewn by the men.

The third wing was a lounge, furnished with rustic furniture the men in hiding had made themselves.

In the courtyard behind the hut was another, a smaller hut. This was the prison where eight pro-Nazi Netherlanders were kept prisoner.

One, two at a time they had been seized and carried to the forest hideout. They didn't even know where they were until the day of liberation when they were handed over to the Netherlands military administration.

The story of the camp in the pines is a story full of gaps that cannot yet be completed. All that can be told about these men is that they hid, chiefly, to escape the Gestapo, or to escape being sent as slave laborers into Germany.

Their daily life was a fight not only to remain hidden but to keep their moral equilibrium.

Every man stood guard duty, two hours on, four off.

A farmer who lives perhaps a mile from the hideout provided the refugees with food and equipment.

Power for the radio and the field telephone was supplied by a dynamo operated by a static bicycle which the prisoners pedalled in shifts.

CANADIANS TAKE BAGNACA VALLO ON BOLOGNA ROAD

In Slashing Advance Infantry and Tanks Drive Ahead 3 Miles To Cross Munio Canal

By DESMOND TIGHE

Rome, Dec. 22 (CP-Reuters)—Canadian units of the British 8th Army, by their capture of Bagnacavallo, about ten miles northeast of Faenza, on the Ravenna-Bologna Road, after two days' hard fighting, have knocked a key stronghold out of Field Marshal Kesselring's Po Valley defence system.

Although only a small village, Bagnacavallo was vital to the enemy along the Adriatic as a road and railway link with Bologna to the northwest and Lugo and Ferrara to the north.

The 1st Canadian Corps under Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes of London, Ont., and Victoria, B.C., also have reached the river Senio on a broad front opposite Fusignano which, 12 miles west of Ravenna, stands on a secondary road linking the main highways from Ferrara to Ravenna and Faenza.

In their slashing advance, Canadian infantry and tanks drove ahead more than three miles to cross the Munio Canal, where they previously held a narrow bridgehead. The German lines were penetrated two miles west of Villanova, located on the Lamone river about four miles northeast of Bagnacavallo.

This flanking threat forced the Germans to give up their powerfully-held positions in Bagnacavallo where they had used church towers as observation posts and erected street barricades.

The Canadians entered the town from the northeast yesterday after what appeared to be a rapid flight by the Germans.

Large piles of booty and equipment also were found.

The Germans also pulled back south of Bagnacavallo, reducing the wide salient notably under continuing smashing pressure from troops driving northeast from Faenza.

Capture of the road hub marked another forward step in the present Canadian corps offensive which has seen the Canadians share in the seizure of Ravenna Dec. 4, smash across the Lamone river in a surprise operation Dec. 10, and gain and expand a bridgehead over the Naviglio canal to threaten Bagnacavallo for the past several days.

Today's Allied communique said: "Unrelenting pressure by Canadian troops of the 8th Army has broken enemy resistance north of Bagnacavallo."

It reported the Canadians had gained a broad front along the Senio opposite Fusignano, about 2 1-2 miles north of Bagnacavallo, which lies on the Ravenna-Bologna highway.

Even prior to their latest advance, the Canadians' Naviglio bridgehead formed an upper jaw of an Allied pincers threatening to clamp tight on the enemy's entire Lamone river salient north of Faenza.

'By Rushing Out of Fixed Defences Enemy May Give Us Chance To Turn His Gamble Into His Worst Defeat'

—Eisenhower

Allied Supreme Headquarters, Paris, Dec. 22—(CP-Reuters)—Gen. Eisenhower, in an order of the day to all members of the Allied Expeditionary Force, warned today that the Germans were making a supreme effort to break out of their desperate plight.

His order said: "The enemy is making a supreme effort to break out of the desperate plight into which you forced him by your brilliant victories in the summer and the fall.

"He is fighting savagely to take back all you have won and is using every treacherous trick to deceive and kill you," the order said.

"He is gambling everything but already in this battle your gallantry has done much to foil his plans.

"In face of your proven bravery and fortitude he will completely fail.

"But we cannot be content with his mere repulse.

"By rushing out of his fixed defences the enemy may give us the chance to turn his great gamble into his worst defeat."

General Eisenhower concluded:

"So I call upon every man of all the Allies to rise now to new heights of courage, resolution and effort.

"Let everyone hold before him the single thought — to destroy the enemy on the ground, in the air, everywhere—to destroy him.

"United in this determination and with unshakeable faith in the cause for which we fight we will, with God's help, go forward to our greatest victory."

SUPERFORTS RAID JAP INDUSTRIES ON HONSHU ISLAND

Home Production Centres Hit by "Sizeable Force" From Saipan

The aerial task force was "in sizeable force", indicating that up to 100 of the big planes participated.

The attack was carried out by B29s of the 21st Bomber Command based on Saipan, a war department communique said.

Additional details will be announced later.

Today's blow was the second in five days by Saipan-based Superforts against this principal island of the Japanese Archipelago. Gen. Hansell's planes bombed an aircraft factory at Nagoya Monday.

On Honshu are located the key shipping and war production cities of Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagoya, Kyoto, Kobe and Osaka.

Hundreds Pass By Bier of Lupe Velez

Garbed in a white robe, the former star wore golden slippers and a diamond bracelet with gold links, the lone selection from her vast array of costly jewelry. Her head rested on a pillow of white gardenias and a gold crucifix was entwined in her fingers.

Floral pieces included gardenias from Harald Ramond, European actor named by Lupe in a suicide note as the father of her unborn child. The casket was encircled by white gardenias and chrysanthemums and topped by a cross of white carnations.

Chief mourners were Lupe's mother, Senora Josefina Velez Y Villa-Lobos of Mexico City; a sister, Josefina, and the latter's husband, Pte. Gordon Anderson, San Antonio, Tex.

The mother, weeping uncontrollably carried a prayer book and crucifix. "Hijita mia," (my little daughter) she sobbed.

Lupe will again lie in state today until the funeral, which is scheduled for 3 p.m. The body will be sent to Mexico City for burial.

DOG GIVES WARNING OF FIRE

Toronto, Dec. 22—(CP)—The barking of a dog gave warning of a fire which destroyed a highway supply depot north of the Queen Elizabeth highway near Port Credit last night. Damage was estimated at $40,000.

Otto Hanstead, owner of the dog, rushed from the boiler room where he was working, and drove a truck right through the wall to save it from the fire. Another truck also was saved.

20,000 LEFTISTS MOVE INTO SECTOR HELD BY GUERILLAS

3,000 Prisoners Already Taken Moved to an Undisclosed Destination

By STEPHEN BARBER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Athens, Dec. 22 (AP)—An E.L.A.S. army 15,000 to 20,000 strong was reported today to be moving in on territory held by Rightist guerillas of Gen. Napoleon Zervas' E.D.E.S. in strife-torn Greece.

Zervas informed British authorities that the Leftist E.L.A.S. forces already had entered his territory in Epirus and were massing on Dhriskos ridge, overlooking the town of Yanina, which has been his headquarters.

The British said Zervas charged that Albanians were among the force threatening the E.D.E.S. territory.

Evacuation of 3,000 E.L.A.S. prisoners by sea to an undisclosed destination was reported earlier by British headquarters while Lt.-Gen. R. M. Scobie's toops were mopping up the port of Piraeus.

British troops were reported extending the area under control in southern Athens against light resistance.

Another 1,000 E.L.A.S. prisoners remained under guard. British headquarters emphasized that the total of 4,000 military captives included only those taken in battle.

Weed Out Civilians.

Greek police, under British supervision, were weeding out some civilians from additional groups of prisoners.

Unloading operations at the port of Piraeus started again. British headquarters said 700 union stevedores were employed and an official added that "numberless" applicants volunteered to help Tommies unload.

Recruiting for the Papandreou government's new National Militia commenced in Piraeus this morning. Officials said 2,000 enlistments were anticipated.

These developments came as a new assault landing was carried out across the main harbor on western Piraeus and reinforced troops swept through the dockyards.

BULLETINS

21st Army Group Headquarters, Dec. 22—(AP)—The German offensive has penetrated 40 miles at the point of its greatest depth, but has lost a great amount of its momentum in the last 48 hours.

Rome, Dec. 22—(AP)—American fighter-bombers destroyed 29 locomotives, 18 railroad cars and 37 vehicles in German-occupied northern Italy yesterday and made 21 cuts in railway tracks in the Treviso and Udine areas, and two more on the Brenner Pass line.

U.S. Financial Budget For Year 1946 Is Nearing Completion Says President

Washington, Dec. 22—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today the best way fighting men could be assisted on the home front is by people sticking to jobs which maintain the steady output of needed supplies.

Mr. Roosevelt began a news conference by declaring that several persons had asked him to say how Americans at home in this Christmas season can most help the fighting forces.

All should resolve, he said, to stick on the job.

The President also asserted that his financial budget for the 1946 fiscal year was nearing completion, but he said the new German offensive in Belgium had not caused changes in it.

The budget, Mr. Roosevelt said, has to be based on assumptions that the war will last a certain time and that is being worked out now. He added parenthetically that he was one of the few persons that had not made a prediction as to when the war would end.

Mr. Roosevelt had nothing to add on plans for another Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin meeting. He said Tuesday that time of a get-together was highly speculative.

25,000 MASSACRED RECENTLY

New York, Dec. 22 (CP)—The recent massacre of more than 25,000 Jews in five German camps in Central Poland was reported today by the Polish Telegraph Agency in a London dispatch. The news reached London from the Central Committee of the underground Jewish Bund inside Poland.

Several thousand Jews were "exterminated" in Plaszow, near Cracow. The remainder were liquidated in Skarzysk, Starachowice, Plonki and Ostrowiec, the dispatch said.

PRAVDA ATTACKS ARGENTINA

Moscow, Dec. 22—(AP)—Pravda attacked Argentina today as an "asylum of Hitlerism," declaring its rulers continue to aid Germany against the United Nations.

"This aid can be seen in the incessant supplies of food and war materials sent via Spain to Germany, as well as the freedom of action given Hitlerite agents and spies in Argentina," said the article, spread over five columns on the Communist party newspaper's foreign page.

"Hundreds of millions of dollars already have been transferred to Argentina by German criminals," Pravda declared.

Montreal-Based Liberator Nears End of Round-the-World Flight

Montreal, Dec. 22 (CP)—The Commando, famed Liberator AL-504 of the R.A.F. Transport Command, has arrived in San Diego, California, on the last leg of the first round-the-world flight ever to be made from Canada, it was announced today at Transport Command headquarters at Montreal airport at nearby Dorval.

The Commando was the plane which flew into the French battlefield in 1940 and rescued Gen. Sikorski, Polish commander-in-chief, and his staff, when they were hemmed in by the enemy, and also carried Prime Minister Churchill on his flight to Teheran, Iran, for the conference with President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin.

On the round-the-world flight from Montreal airport, the aircraft has covered a distance of 24,652 statute miles in an actual flying time of five days, one hour and nine minutes. The average ground speed was slightly more than 203 miles an hour.

From Montreal, the plane flew to London and thence to Cairo, Ceylon, Perth, Australia, Sydney, Auckland; New Zealand, Fiji, Honolulu, and San Diego.

The Commando was commanded by Wing Cmdr. W. H. Biddell, R.A.F., of East Grinstead, Sussex, England, and Montreal. Other members of the crew were: PO. Aubrey N. Brodie; R.A.F., of Birmingham, England, and Montreal, co-pilot; FO. John G. McArthur, R.C.A.F., of London, Ont., and Montreal, navigator; Flt. Lt. W. P. Garnham, R.A.F., of Osterley, Middlesex, England, and Montreal, radio officer; WO. Douglas J. Spence, R.C.A.F., of Vancouver and Montreal, flight Engineer, and Victor I. Bennister, London, England, and Montreal, flight clerk.

The hop from Ceylon to Australia is the longest over-water flight in the world, while the trip from Cairo to Ceylon, made non-stop, is considered one of the most hazardous flying operations anywhere.

Throughout the entire flight across five continents and six oceans, the Commando carried a maximum payload of government-sponsored passengers, war freight and mail, on all stages. From the Antipodes the aircraft brought back passengers for Washington and Ottawa and others to connect at Montreal with the R.A.F. Transport Command's Service to Great Britain, the Middle East and India.

In a telephone report today from San Diego, Wing Cmdr. Biddell said the flight had been uneventful and of a routine nature.

Flt. Lt. Garnham, the radio officer, said the aircraft always was in "constant and clearest" communication with the R.A.F. radio station at Montreal airport. At the farthest point from Canada—12,500 miles—while crossing the Australian desert from Perth to Sydney, reception of messages was "of the highest quality".

Will Hurl 3 Army Groups Against The Eastern Front

Route Likely to Be Across Polish Plain into Germany

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Dec. 22 (AP)—Soviet Russia has promised to meet the rising Allied demand for Red army action by hurling some three army groups against the Germans on the eastern front.

The forthcoming offensive as it expands probably will involve up to six army groups and its route may well be across the broad Polish plain directly into Germany.

The Red army high command has informed Britain and the United States of the offensive's starting date, Soviet sources in Washington said. This could not be confirmed in military quarters here but there is evidence that the Allies are counting on the coming winter drive.

Informed sources said the projected drive will disclose newly-aligned Red army forces. Since last summer, when the Leningrad front, three Baltic, three White Russian and four Ukrainian fronts were in action, the line-up of Russian armies has been a mystery.

Russian military activity in the Balkans has been confined to single fronts or army groups. Farther north, Soviet armies already far advanced from the White Russian, Baltic and Leningrad regions have been reforming.

(A new Russian offensive aimed at taking Budapest, Hungarian capital, from the rear and opening the most direct invasion route to Vienna, Austrian capital, was announced yesterday by Berlin. Moscow did not confirm the new drive.)

Though mounted to speed Germany's defeat, the promised Red army drive probably will not affect immediately the western front where the Wehrmacht in a slashing counter-offensive is advancing into Belgium.

The Russian offensive has been delayed, it was said, by the fact that the Polish plain freezes later than the Russian steppes.

JAPS GIVING UP N. W. BURMA

Calcutta, Dec. 22—(CP)—Front line reports supplied mounting evidence today that the Japanese are giving up Northwest Burma as a bad job and falling back on a defence arc around Mandalay.

Russians Wedge Deeper Into South Slovakia

Moscow, Dec. 22—(AP)—Russian shock troops wedged deeper into southern Slovakia today while new operations by two powerful Russian army groups threatened to seal off beleaguered Budapest from the west.

Units of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine Army drove to within 14 miles east of the big Slovak rail city of Losonc (Lucenec), seizing 30 more localities, including the important communications centre of Rimaszombat, on the Kassa-Losonc highway.

Fall of Rimaszombat opened an important gateway into the Matra mountains and brought relief within sight for an isolated force of Slovak Patriots estimated at 25,000.

The Germans admitted alarm over the resumption of Soviet pressure on the west side of the Danube in the vitally strategic zone between Budapest and Lake Balaton, where Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's 3rd Ukraine Army paused early this month to build up greater striking power.

The new onslaught by Tolbukhin's forces, already linked with elements of the 2nd Ukraine Army, would be pointed to blast through the German flank riveted on positions southwest of the Hungarian capital and on the fortress city of Szekesfehervar.

The Germans also confessed anxiety over Red army attacks in the vicinity of the Great Bend of the Danube northwest of Budapest, where the river veers west toward Austria.

(Berlin announced yesterday that 100,000 Soviet troops had hacked out gains on a 40-mile front southwest of Budapest in a new offensive aimed at taking the Hungarian capital from the rear and opening the most direct invasion route to Vienna. The Nazis said Szekesfehervar already was menaced.)

In northern Hungary, other units of Malinovsky's troops captured 80 localities on a winding 50-mile front southeast of Losonc, gaining up to 12 miles from previously-reported positions.

Malinovsky's troops took 1,400 more German and Hungarian prisoners Wednesday, making an announced total of 42,794 in the last 42 days.

CAR AND $50 BOND STOLEN IN CITY

Car thieves stole a 1938 model Dodge convertible coupe in Belleville Thursday. The vehicle is the property of Gerald Radford, R. R. No. 5 Belleville and had been parked in the downtown area before being stolen. There were six gallons of gasoline in the tank and a $50. war bond in the glove compartment, Mr. Radford told police as he reported the theft.

PROPERTY DAMAGE RESULTS TO TRUCKS

Property damage resulted to trucks in a two-truck rear end crash on Highland Ave. Thursday when a truck driven by C. A. Mitchell, 169 Yeomans St., skidded into the rear of a large truck operated by Elmer Adams, of Oshawa. Police investigated and were informed that both trucks were proceeding in the same direction with Mr. Mitchell in the rear. As he was about to attempt to pass the Oshawa truck Mr. Mitchell observed traffic approaching from the opposite direction and moved back into the line of traffic. At this point Adams suddenly stopped his vehicle to pick up a hitch hiker, without indicating his intentions. Mr. Mitchell immediately applied the brakes of his truck, but the speed of the vehicle caused it to skid on the city pavement and crash into the rear of the lead truck. Considerable damage resulted to the front portion of his truck.

GROCERIES TAKEN FROM PARKED CAR

It may not be the most orthodox manner in which to obtain Christmas groceries, but it proved rather effective.

On Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Percy McGuire, of this city, completed her pre-Christmas shopping of groceries and placed her parcels in the family automobile parked in the downtown area while completing her day's shopping tour. When she returned the groceries were found to be missing. Sneak thieves had apparently observed Mrs. McGuire place the groceries in the vehicle and merely awaited for her to leave the scene.

"It is advisable to lock automobiles when articles of value are left in them", warned city police officials after learning of the activities of the sneak thieves.

MONEY IS FOUND IN MARKET BUILDING

City police are in possession of a sum of money that was found in the city market building yesterday. Miss Kathleen Galbraith, 267 Charles Street, appeared at the police station with the money, which she informed officials had been found on the floor in the market place. It is being held for identification.

VEHICLES COLLIDE NEAR HEAD-ON

Extensive property damage resulted to two automobiles near Bayside early Friday morning, when the vehicles collided nearly head-on as the left front wheels of both cars locked. Traffic Officer Chas. Sipls investigated and was informed the vehicles locked near the centre line of an ice-covered highway. Extensive damage resulted from the impact as the front portion of both cars were damaged. Tow trucks were needed to pry the vehicles apart. The investigating officer stated charges were pending in the matter. One of the vehicles was being driven easterly by John Fletcher R.R. No. 2 Trenton, and the other in a westerly direction by Arthur Hallowes, of the Trenton R. C. A. F. Station.

Illegal Fishing Charge Remanded

The greater part of Thursday's county police court session, held before Magistrate T. Y. Wills at the Court House, was devoted to the hearing of charges of alleged violations of the Game and Fishery regulations preferred against Donald Dempsey of Rednersville. The charges were preferred by Game Warden McDonald of Point Anne and charged that Dempsey has been allegedly fishing with gill nets, contrary to regulations.

Mr. Charles A. Payne K.C., appeared for the defendant, while Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., prosecuted the charges. Considerable contradictory evidence was heard on both sides before Magistrate Wills adjourned the matter until Jan. 4th when a judgment will be given.

In the traffic court Colin K. Lax, of Montreal, Albert Burry, Toronto truck driver and Cpl. P. J. Kelley of the R.C.A.F. all paid minimum fines, after admitting to minor infractions of the traffic laws. Other charges against Hiram Staley of Toronto, Burry and William Bains, were dismissed.

Appearing as special prosecutor for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Mr. E. O. Butler, presented three cases of alleged infractions of the tire regulations and obtained convictions in all. Gordon Sanford was given a suspended sentence upon the payment of costs. B. Bolton was fined $10 and costs for the illegal purchase of a tire, while H. G. Blakely paid $30, after being convicted under similar circumstances.

Mr. Butler pointed out the above cases were not of a serious nature, but in the future heavier penalties are about to be sought by the Board in order to curb petty infractions of the regulations.

Officers and Members of Crew Of Corvette 'Belleville' Send Christmas Greetings to City

From a winter-embattled Canadian port comes a cheery warm Christmas greeting to the people of the city of Belleville.

Thanks to the generosity of the people of this city, the officers and men of the HMCS "Belleville" will spend a homey Christmas.

And appreciative of this, the ship's company from the commanding officer down to the galley boy have forwarded autographed holiday greetings to their "foster parents" of this city.

"Dear People of Belleville:

May I extend to you on behalf of the officers and men of HMCS "Belleville," all best wishes for Christmas and the New Year.

We hope your Christmas is a very merry one and that your New Year is happy and prosperous.

We shall think of you at Christmas time as we enjoy your Christmas cheer so kindly sent us.

The best of everything to you all.

Sincerely,

J. E. Korning, Lieut.
Commanding Officer.

Accompanying the greeting are two handsome Christmas cards signed by the officers and crew. The card depicts on its front the plaque of the "Belleville" while inside is a fine picture of the trim little corvette under full way with her battle and signal flags flying. The greetings were signed by each member of the ships' complement, and were received here by City Comptroller Harold Bateman, secretary of the Corvette Committee.

Crop Improvement Assoc. Elects Officers for Year

Convening at the office of the Department of Agriculture in Stirling for their annual meeting and election of officers, members of the Hastings County Crop Improvement Association elected J. C. Sills of West Huntingdon as their president for the forthcoming year.

Other officers elected included Mr. John McCaffrey of Madoc, as honorary president and Wilfred Forestell of Madoc, as vice president, H. Lynn Fair, Stirling, is secretary and H. R. Parnell, Belleville, treasurer.

Guest speaker for the annual conclave was Mr. R. E. Goodin, of the crops, seeds and weeds branch, Toronto, who stressed the importance of maintaining fertility in soils. He pointed out the humus or organic matter was very important as it assisted in retaining moisture and in maintaining soil fertility. He stated this organic matter in the soil could be built up by plowing in green crops and through avoiding a crop rotation extending over too long a period.

Secretary of the organization, Mr. H. Lynn Fair discussed the crop improvement program as carried on during the past season giving out mimeographed reports of the result of tests made during the year.

Directors appointed included— Sidney—W. E. Tummon, Lawrence Ketcheson and Fred Campbell, all of Foxboro; Thurlow—Chas. Treverton, Plainfield and Clifford Ketcheson, Holloway; Tyendinaga, Fred A. Robinson, Corbyville, and Clare Shannon, Plainfield; Rawdon, Clayton Thompson and George Sutherland, Stirling, and Lorne Haggerman of Harold; Huntingdon, Sam Pergay, Elmer Post and J. C. Sills, all of West Huntingdon; Hungerford, Harry Foster and Bernard Hunt, Tweed; Marmora, Irwin McCoy, Marmora; Madoc, Wilfred Forestell and William Stewart, Madoc. Auditors appointed were Barton Haggerty and Ralph Campbell.

J. C. Sills and Clem Ketcheson were appointed delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario Crop Improvement Association, while Fred Campbell was appointed as the crop improvement representative on the Hastings County Agricultural Committee.

FINAL WARNING GIVEN MOTORISTS

Magistrate Wills Speaks of Increasing Menace of Violation of City Traffic Rules

Orders to double police court fines against all offenders found in violation of city traffic regulations, especially in the downtown area, were issued by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city police court today.

"These cases of obstructing traffic by double parking downtown are becoming all too frequent in this court. Apparently the penalties are not sufficient or adequate to warn the driving public of this increasing menace. Therefore I suggest you double the present fine whenever violators appear at the police station desirous of pleading guilty prior to court proceedings", Magistrate Wills sternly warned as he heard pleas of guilty being read in several such cases.

"If this practice is not curtailed I may have to ask for the maximum penalty, which is $50 and costs. This business of double parking along Front Street only tends to create a bottleneck in traffic and cause congestion", added Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., in further comment.

"Well, I can assure you there will be no further warnings to motorists charged with violations of the city traffic regulations in this court. The offenders will be fined without exception when convicted", concluded His Worship in final warning.

Mechanical Break Cause of Delay In Paper Delivery

Old Lady Luck, possibly needing a change of character dropped a figurative monkey wrench into the machinery of The Ontario Intelligencer yesterday afternoon, and caused a delay of newspaper delivery that approximated two hours.

It all happened when a large casting on what is termed in newspaper parlance the mat-rolling machine, suddenly snapped.

This machine is but an integral part of the newspaper mechanical wheel, but when it stopped to function, well—that meant the whole system was held up.

The mat-roller is about as important to the production of a newspaper as a wheel to an automobile or the propeller to a steamship.

Its function is merely to produce the newspaper mats from the forms of metal type. These mats in turn are taken to the pressroom where the semi cylindrical press plates are made.

The first edition of the newspaper had been run off, and the usual function of preparing the city run was well on its way about 12.30 p.m. when the big casting split in two.

Seven pages to go and deadline but two hours away.

Things began to happen.

Linotypes clicked merrily on, for in the newspaper business as on the stage, the show must go on.

In keeping with the traditions of the fourth estate, the paper had to go to press.

Forms of metal type weighing 150 pounds each, were made up ready for matting. Staff automobiles were called into service and the heavy forms with their load of precious type were whisked away to Trenton, where with the kind cooperation of the Courier Advocate management there the mats were rolled.

The cars returned to the city where the mats were "cast" into plates and within a comparative short time the presses were rolling.

At five forty-five the first copies of the second and third editions rolled off and patiently waiting newsboys and girls got their quotas and dashed away on belated deliveries.

Thanks to the mechanical efficiency and timely co-operation of Mr. Errol Greenleaf and his staff, repairs to the damaged machine were effected at noon today.

POLICE COURT

"How long do you want, Billy" asked Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan of 61-year-old William LaRue, of this city, who appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills on a charge of vagrancy here today.

"Oh, maybe six months," was the surprising answer received.

Inspector Hayes told the court LaRue had come to the police station in a partially intoxicated condition, but was noticeably suffering from the cold and exposure.

"No doubt he would be better off in the county jail where it is warm. After all he's been there frequently before and is a good cook for the inmates," commented Mr. Donnan. His Worship complied with a three months jail term and every person concerned seemed quite satisfied.

E. E. Follwell presented a Wartime Prices Board charge as special prosecutor and gained a conviction that resulted in a minimum fine of $25 being collected.

Staff Dinner For Employees Of Batawa Held

With approximately 400 officials and employees of the company present, the fifth annual staff dinner of the Bata Shoe Company was held in the plant cafeteria on Friday night when accomplishments of the firm at its site in the Frankford district were reviewed by the various speakers.

The dinner was prepared and served by members of the cafeteria staff and included all the good things such as turkey, cranberry sauce and plum pudding. The setting enhanced by the colorful decorative scheme adopted for the occasion by the decorating committee. Personnel Manager Dave T. MacDonald acted as master of ceremonies while Arthur Baldwin led in lively community singing.

Proposing a toast to the employees Mr. W. W. Perry, K.C., of Toronto, reviewed the progress of the company since its establishment in Frankford during 1939, declaring that the production accomplishments were the result of united effort on the part of the employees, which in the future would carry forward to greater things.

Anthony Cekota, director of public relations for the company, delivered an instructive address on "Security and How to Get It," displaying a wealth of economic knowledge gleaned from years of political experience in several European countries as well as in Canada.

Sometimes Misunderstood.

He pointed out that post-war planning was a phrase which might easily be misunderstood with many people looking upon it as something to be determined by governmental powers, while in truth it remained the duty of the individual. Only future planning can create the security of life and work desired by everyone.

As an example he pointed to the efforts of the founder of the company, the late Thomas Bata, Sr., whose dream of security which had its birth in the post-war days of the last war, was partially realized in the establishment at Batawa.

The soundest advice to Canadian young people in their efforts to make safe the days to come was stated to be the development of complete knowledge of their present work and to enlarge that knowledge by studies in other fields wherever possible.

Toast to Company

Toast to the company was proposed by James Day of the purchasing department with response by the firm's vice president, Dr. Karl Herz. In his remarks Dr. Herz indicated the Canadian birth of the company as being six years ago, when the firm was known as the Bata Import and Export Company. He reviewed Canadian activities of the firm indicating that in 1945 a new chapter would be started, characterized by transition from wartime to peacetime production. This, however, would be a gradual change dependent entirely upon the progress of the war.

Future objective of the firm was held to be production at reasonable prices on a competitive market, not only on the Canadian market, but on a world market as well.

Difficulties of building up an export market were outlined to the employees with the importance of quality of product being stressed.

Reviewed Accomplishments

Mr. Herz reviewed the accomplishments of company employees in the purchase of Victory Bonds indicating an investment of approximately one half million dollars, while in their attendance of blood donor clinics they have consistently been leaders.

Fun was added to the program with contributions by Arthur Duncan, editor of Batawa publications, whose story telling ability is well known in the district, while the evening was climaxed with dancing in the recreation hall, where music was provided by the R.C.A.F. orchestra from Trenton Air Station.

Gratitude to the cafeteria staff and to other workers, whose efforts contributed to the enjoyment of the occasion was expressed by Toastmaster Dave MacDonald, while a 36-pound birthday cake centring the head table was officially accepted on behalf of the employees by Miss Kellar, who in turn donated it to the Salvation Army Christmas party for underprivileged children in Trenton.

Mrs. Cecil Merritt Recipient Of Choice Beef Cuts

"From Canada's Grand Champion animals to one of Canada's Grand Champion soldiers."

That is the unique tribute paid to Lieut. Col. Cecil C. Merritt, Canada's first V. C. winner by the Canada Packers Ltd., through its president, Mr. J. S. McLean.

Accompanying the tribute were three packages of the choicest meat Canadian animals can produce. They included a large roast of beef, prime bacon and large steaks.

The package and greeting was sent to Mrs. Cecil Merritt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jamieson Bone and who resides in this city.

"The enclosed samples of meat," the communication said, "are from the grand champion animals sold recently at the live stock show. It is therefore appropriate that they go to one of Canada's grand champion soldiers.

Obituary

MRS. IVY MAY ROBINSON

(Union Settlement, Eldorado)

Madoc, Dec. 22—(Special)—The death occurred on Thursday, December 21 at her residence at Union Settlement near Eldorado of Mrs. Ivy May Robinson, beloved wife of George Robinson. The late Mrs. Robinson had been in ill-health for the past two or three years.

A daughter of the late Joseph Blackburn, and Mrs. Blackburn, the deceased lady had lived in the Eldorado district all her life. She was a valued member of the Union United Church and was an active member of the W.M.S. and other church organizations.

Surviving besides her husband are four daughters, Mrs. J. Tatterall, New York City; Mrs. Gordon Ashfield, Toronto; Mrs. Marie Wills, at home and Mrs. H. Payne, Picton; and three sons, Leslie, Belleville; Edward, Malone, and Cecil at home, and one brother Arthur Blackburn, Picton. Fourteen grandchildren also survive.

The funeral notice appears elsewhere in this edition.

WALTER TUCKER

Madoc — After an illness of some duration Mr. Walter Tucker, a former resident of Madoc village, passed away at Kingston General Hospital on Tuesday, Dec. 19. Mr. Tucker will be remembered by the older residents of Madoc village, having been employed in the post office at Madoc as a clerk and latterly entering the Civil Service in Ottawa. After his retirement he moved to Kingston to reside. His wife, formerly Miss Boyd, principal of Ottawa Ladies' College, predeceased him about two years. A niece, Mrs. Frank Sharpe, of Madoc, and Mrs. Tom Tucker will attend the funeral which took place in Kingston on Thursday afternoon. Interment at Cataraqui Cemetery.

(An Appreciation)

There passed away from this life to his eternal reward, in the death on Dec. 7th of Reuben Pringle, of Tyendinaga near Shannonville, one who will be long remembered by those who knew him as a Christian gentleman quiet and sincere. His occupation as a farmer did not find him too busy to keep in sympathetic touch with whatever was of community welfare.

He was for about 40 years an active member of the Shannonville Methodist, afterward United Church and for 16 years or more was the superintendent of the Sunday School. Many young men and women have found in his leadership encouragement to learn and live the great teachings of the Bible. The sincerity of his own spirit and interest led him to recognize the good in others by whatever name they might be called. A kind neighbor, he had in return many friends. Remaining unmarried, he and his sister who passed away during the past year lived together exemplifying in their daily life the words of the poet Van Dyke:

"Let me but do my work from day to day
In the field or forest at the desk or loom
In roaring market place or tranquil room
Let me but find it in my heart to say
When vagrant wishes beckon me astray
This is my work my blessing not my doom
Of all who live I am the one by whom
This work can best be done in the right way.
Then shall I see it not too great nor small
To suit my spirit and to prove my powers
Then shall I cheerful meet the laboring hours
And cheerful turn when the long shadows fall
At eventide, to play and love and rest
Because I know for me my work was best."

LATE MRS. HARRIET ANNE GAY

(Ameliasburg)

The funeral of Mrs. Harriet Anne (Adams) Gay, widow of John W. Gay, Ameliasburg, took place from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, on Thursday afternoon. The service in the chapel and at Albury Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. G. A. Adamson, pastor of Ameliasburg United Church.

BIRDS COATED WITH OIL

St. John's, Nfld., Dec. 22 — (CP Cable) — Smothered in heavy oil, thousands of sea birds are reported dead or dying along a section of the Newfoundland coast. (The St. John's cable made no mention of the source of the oil nor did it identify the area.)

11.8 Below Zero Registered Here

True to the weather prognosticator's forecast of colder weather in the offing, Old Jack Frost visited the Bay of Quinte district in no mistaken quantity on Thursday evening with thermometers dropping to a low of 11.8 degrees below zero.

And temperatures had moderated but little by mid-morning with the official thermometer at the pump house still reading seven below at nine o'clock.

In the face of frigid temperatures and with older residents digging out ear muffs, mufflers and other winter wearing apparel, the teen-aged bobby-soxers still tripped blithely along the street apparently oblivious to the cold. Even the sight of these bare-legged girls skipping along on their way to school sends chills up the backs of more warmly clad elders. But unlike their older sisters the bobby-soxers have no worries about the current shortage of stockings.

DIED

The funeral will be held from the late residence at Union Settlement to Fox's United Church, Eldorado, for service at 2.30 p.m. Sunday, December 24. Interment Fox's Cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late John W. Wilson desire to convey to friends and neighbors their sincere thanks for kind expressions of sympathy extended to them in their recent bereavement, also a very special thanks to the men who so kindly opened the road to Eggleton Cemetery.

Synthetic Plant At Politz Fired By RAF Bombers

London, Dec. 22 — (CP)—R.A.F. bombers set fire to a large synthetic oil plant at Politz, 85 miles north-east of Berlin last night, following three attacks on German cities — in one of which Canadian bombers participated — used as supply bases for Field Marshal Rundstedt's offensive.

Trier was raided in dense fog late yesterday afternoon while R. A. F. Lancasters and Canadian Lancasters and Halifaxes bombed Cologne soon after dark while R.A.F. planes raided Bonn. Three British bombers are missing from the four operations but all Canadian planes returned, the R.C.A.F. said.

Announcing Canadian participation in the Cologne raid, the RCAF said immediate observation of the results was difficult owing to thick cloud.

British-based American bombers were idle again yesterday but Italy-based bombers smashed rail facilities at Rosenheim, Germany.

German Offensive Seen Last Desperate Gamble To Stave Off Defeat

Berne, Dec. 22 — (AP) — Swiss press comment on the German offensive in the west reflects a belief here that the drive is a last desperate gamble by the Germans to stave off impending defeat. A lead editorial in Die Weltwoche of Zurich described the offensive as "a retarding movement" that can only delay but not alter the outcome of the war.

GIVEN NEW CONTRACT

Ottawa, Dec. 22 —(CP)— The Defence Industrials Limited plant at Montreal, war operating subsidiary of Canadian Industries, Limited, is expected to be given a contract for 250,000,000 rounds of .30-calibre ammunition which is being let by the United States, it was learned here last night. It was understood that the entire contract would be given to D.I.L.

Entire Current Slate of Officers Returned by Club

Indicative of the confidence in which they are held by members of the organization, the entire current slate of officers for the Ladies' Club of the Canadian National War Veterans Association was returned for another year, when their annual meeting was held at the home of Mrs. A. R. Newman, Charles Street.

President of the club is Mrs. E. Pigden, with Mrs. A. R. Newman as vice president, Mrs. J. Gallagher as secretary and Mrs. S. Carther, as treasurer.

A report of the year's activities was given by the secretary while the treasurer presented the financial report showing that during the year the club had contributed to the C.N.R. War Veterans cigarette fund a total of $440. This amount resulted in 132,000 cigarettes being sent to boys overseas with the armed forces.

Larry Amo, president of the C.N.R. Veterans was present at the meeting and expressed his appreciation to the ladies for assistance rendered during the past year. He indicated that their efforts had been a wonderful help toward the success of the Association.

The War Today—

Nazi Push Now at Stage of Test Of Manpower, Weapons, Supplies

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP War Analyst)

The great German counter-offensive hasn't yet reached its crisis but remains in that nerve-torturing, betwixt - and - between period of uncertainty which tries the morale of generals and anxious home-fronts alike.

Probably the climax won't long be deferred, for Supreme Commander Eisenhower is pouring weight into the crucial sectors. However, the enemy continues to hold the initiative, as would be expected at this stage of a drive of such magnitude, and the battle grows in intensity as it mushrooms out over a vast area of open country and becomes more fluid as it spreads.

Present Situation.

As this was being written a bulletin arrived from the Western Front reporting that the German offensive force appeared temporarily blunted and compelled to slow down. That's encouraging, but in assaying its significance we should take into account the fact that the drive has arrived at the point where it naturally would lose momentum somewhat. The time has arrived for German consolidation of position in some freshly-acquired places, and the problem of making supplies keep pace with the advancing troops is becoming hourly more difficult for the enemy.

Element of Surprise Past.

German military commentators say the offensive has reached the phase which they characterise as the battle of material. That covers the situation fairly well. The element of big-scale surprise is past and now comes the test of resources —manpower, weapons, supplies. Field Marshal von Rundstedt struck with his full weight when he launched his great gamble, throwing his opponent off balance. However, the Allied superiority in all categories of resources is increasingly making itself felt, and even Berlin and Tokyo commentators are warning their publics against over-optimism at this crucial stage.

Danger Points.

The danger points for the Allies in the German offensive are in two great wedges which Rundstedt has driven into the U. S. 1st Army front. One of them, on the north, has penetrated some 30 miles into Belgium in the general direction of the fortified city of Liege. As previously pointed out in this column, Liege is the main supply base and distributional centre for the extensive 1st Army front.

Loss of Liege would be very grave indeed, but word today is that the American northern flank is holding firm against the German onslaught.

The second great German thrust is on the south in the direction of Sedan. Here again, today's report is that the American position seemed somewhat improved, though confused.

"Thank You for Wonderful Job" Army Thanks 'Typhies' for Assistance

By MARGARET ECKER
(CP War Correspondent)

At an Advanced R.C.A.F. Airfield in Holland, Dec. 22 —(CP)— Flt.-Lt. Joe Lyall of Winnipeg and Banff, Alta., put down the phone in the intelligence caravan of this Typhoon fighter-bomber wing the other day and said over the wind howling around the tent:

"That was the army, boys; they phoned to say 'Thank you for a wonderful job.' Now you've cleaned up that pocket of Nazis which was holding them up the advance towards the Rhine can go on."

Canadian pilots standing around in furred Irvine jackets, some still with radio headphones around their necks, grinned a bit and went to look for a cup of coffee. Once more this R.C.A.F. squadron, working in close co-operation with the army, had cleared the way for the men on the ground. Anyone who had been on this advanced airfield that day when the clouds were low in the cold sky and a high wind was sweeping the runways knew the difficulties through which the pilots had fought their way to give the army a hand.

At the briefing that morning Canadian pilots, among them Flt.-Lt. Johnny Carr of Morrisburg, Ont., were standing around a detailed map of the Western Front while position of enemy anti-aircraft was outlined.

"We like to work with the army," said Flt.-Lt. Carr, "though our first ops this morning was lots of fun." He told how a flight of the squadron had set out to bomb a rail intersection only to find an ambulance train painted with red crosses there.

"We cut the rail line behind the ambulance train but let it go on into Germany. Then we went train hunting and caught a freight train going west. We pranged it pretty well and it sure wasn't going any place when we left it."

Then came time for the operation and the pilots went out into the wind-driven rain.

About an hour later they were back with a story of blasting the Germans from their strongpoint and the phone was ringing with the army's commendation for a job well done.

Maj. Gen. Foster New Commander Canadian Division

Rome, Dec. 22 (CP)—Maj.-Gen. Harry Wickshire Foster, who commanded the Canadian-American operation against Kiska in the Aleutian islands in 1943, has been named commander of the 1st Canadian division now in the front line in Italy, it was announced today. He succeeds Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes of Winnipeg and Ottawa.

There was no immediate indication of Gen. Vokes' new post.

Early in the new year it was announced that Gen. Vokes has succeeded Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds of Kingston, Ont., now a corps commander on the western front, as divisional commander in Italy.

A permanent force officer, Gen. Vokes plodded through a routine professional career until the Sicily campaign found him in charge of a brigade. He led his men against the western hinge of the German Etna line in Sicily, an action which smashed strongly entrenched enemy defences and led to the collapse of resistance in the island. He was awarded an immediate D.S.O. by Gen. McNaughton, then Canadian army commander.

Gen. Vokes led the veteran 1st division in the attacks last spring that helped break the Gustav and Hitler lines in the Cassino area.

Road to Mandalay Shortened By Capture of Kawlin

Kandy, Ceylon, Dec. 22 — (CP - Reuters) — The road to Mandalay has been shortened by eight miles with the capture of Kawlin, on the railway from Myitkyina, by troops of Lt.-Gen. Sir William Slim's 14th Army.

On Gen. Slim's flank troops of the 38th Chinese Division, also driving towards the capital, have been consolidating their gains between Bhamo and Namhkan.

Far to the southwest, naval guns were today aiding the 15th Corps in the pass down the Arakan coast strip by bombarding the port of Rathedaung, on the Mayu River between the Mayu range and the coast.

Forward troops on the Chindwin front were today 17 miles east of Shwegyin, on the Shwegyin-Yeu road.

QUINTE SKATING CLUB TO HOLD ANNUAL CARNIVAL

Efforts Also Being Made to Secure Services of Professional Instructor

Anticipating a banner season of outdoor recreation the Quinte Skating Club held their annual meeting recently at which time Enos David was re-elected president for 1945. Other committees were also named.

During the meeting President David announced that efforts were being put forward to procure the services of a skating professional to tutor the younger skaters in basic figures. The meeting also voted to stage another of its annual ice carnival extravaganzas which have become so popular as a winter entertainment at the Hume Arena. The annual ice carnival staged by the Quinte Skating Club will be held sometime in February. The matter of flooding the club rink has been taken care of with a basic foundation already in evidence. Club officials hope to open their Dufferin Ave. rink sometime between Christmas and New Years. The club is open for membership.

The officers elected for 1945 were as follows:

President: Enos David.

Vice-president—Clare (Mike) Ridley.

Secretary treasurer—Kaye Martin.

Recording secretary—George Wishart.

Skating committee: Mrs. Olivia Weese, Miss Lillian Sprackett, Miss Barbara Bews along with the secretary and president.

SERVICE DISRUPTED

St. Thomas, Dec. 22 — (CP) — A break-down in the main power line on the London and St. Thomas railway, south of London last night resulted in a complete interruption of railway service between St. Thomas and London. Railway officials said linesmen were attempting to repair the break, cause of which was not known immediately.

'Vets' Receiving 'On Job' Training To Be Reimbursed

Toronto, Dec. 22 (CP)—Veterans who receive "on the job" training under Ontario rehabilitation plans will receive wages under a method whereby the employing company will be reimbursed from public funds for part of the amount, Premier George Drew of Ontario said last night in an address broadcast over a provincial radio network.

"It is recognized that beginners receiving instruction in this way cannot earn full wages during the training period," he said. "For that reason the employing company will be reimbursed from public funds for part of the trainee's wages, worked out upon a diminishing scale as his usefulness increases."

"Under this plan travelling supervisors and field representatives will be appointed to visit the trainees regularly so that their progress may be followed and their rights protected."

He said that vocational and academic training is being given to war veterans in Ontario on a basis never before attempted in Canada.

Reviewing the work the province has done for veterans in co-operation with the Dominion government Premier Drew spoke particularly of the Ontario training and re-establishment institute in Toronto, first of a number of similar training centres to be opened throughout Ontario.

The training was divided into two sections. One provided training in many different trades and included an arrangement under which men would be trained in industry. The other was academic, providing studies leading to university entrance.

A Busy Season

One of the busiest of pre-Christmas seasons is drawing to a close. It has been an active time to which the weather conditions have added interest and handicap. Now the Christmas buying is finished and the last hours yet bid fair to be extremely busy as they always have been. Every postal clerk, every salesgirl, every salesman, every businessmen, every trainman, every railroad conductor, knows how busy the past few weeks have been and how sustained has been the interest in planning for this sixth Christmas during the war. While the stores will soon close, there remains yet a big task for the men on the trains to transport the members of the armed services in Canada to their homes from so many parts for Christmas. Postal staffs are still very much engaged with handling the vast quantities of mail which have been posted and delivered to every part.

Christmas entertainment is in the very air the children breathe. The schools have closed for the holiday season with a flourish and emphasis upon the merry time of Yule and for the period of the vacation the thousands of boys and girls will be observing the season as only children can observe it with the fullest expression of joy and happiness.

Universal Appeal of Christmas

Year after year the world celebrates Christmas and it never loses its irresistible appeal for young and old. Long in advance of its approach people begin to plan and for months and weeks the preparation goes on and as the time slips away the appeal becomes more and more intense. It is first of all the festival of childhood. Long do they think and talk of that night when Santa Claus will come and of their joyous waking to the sight of the rich stores of gifts which he has brought them. It is especially their day, is Christmas, and the night before Christmas is that charmed romantic, fairylike period of time which is only childhood's and the domain of the parents who are planning the child's Christmas. These, the children, their parents and their friends and Santa are the characters in the unfolding story of Christmas Eve, the night of wonders which the mind of children cherishes and on which child thoughts dwell with fervent wonder and thrill.

Those who have left childhood's stage never lose the spirit of childhood's approach to Christmas. It lives with them and inevitably as the turn of the year approaches they make sure that children will feel their bounty and so they add to the joy of childhood everywhere.

Back of this irresistible and universal appeal is of course the great truth of the Christ Child who has so enriched life and has blessed and sanctified all life throughout the world.

So nothing, neither war, nor sorrow, nor the loneliness of separation can rob Christmas of its meaning and of its memories. In spite of carnage of war which brings losses, the time-old message of Christmas returns with its hope and faith indestructible. In this spirit all look forward to the coming Christmas. With ancient faith undimmed, all can keep another Christmas. With many there will be less joyousness and merriment but there will be a deeper awareness of the real significance of the festival. It means so much in the lives of men, women and children.

Christmas is the day when the children are supremely happy for it is their day. As those who are older have memories of the richness of Christmas, they feel it their duty to make live again the memories of Yuletides in the lives of the happy young. So the children will have their playthings, there will be the rich colorings of the season, all shall hear the carols sung as they were sung generations ago for these things are a part of everyone and every age.

Christmas is a tie which links across the separations of space, the link that binds home with loved ones far away who, serving their country abroad and the spirit of Christmas in the world, think again of the home they have fought to keep secure from every foe. It will be a brave and happy Christmas.

Canadians Praised

While the deepest interest is shown in the counter-offensive of the Germans on the Western Front, the Canadians have been battling against the Germans in northern Italy and winning distinction by the manner of their defence of the bridgehead across the Naviglio Canal near Faenza. The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and a Maritime regiment smashed up thirteen German assaults in nine hours and won as a result the high praise of the British commander.

It Takes a Wooden Shovel

(Christian Science Monitor)

There was elation in our hardware man's voice when he called the other day to tell us at "long last" he had been able to get a wooden snow shovel. Contrary to what one would expect these days, there are a number of metal shovels or scoops available. But we are not interested in those, despite the sales talk that they'll last for 50 winters.

Why all wood, then? Well, first of all, we had our first lesson in cutting a wide path to the barn with a "straight edge" wooden snow shovel. You just can't cut out neat blocks with those metal shovels, the snow sticking the way it does. And who is going to become a human snowplow and attempt to push out a path with one of those scoops? They may be all right for a city sidewalk, but not for a path from woodshed to barn. And in the second place those metals shovels weigh a ton, plus the heft of a good-sized chunk of snow.

Clearing a path with a wooden shovel is a quiet and restful procedure. There is just the mellow clunk as the blade strikes bottom and a gentle scrape as it slides under the snow. Then the white block comes out as clean as a whistle and as light as a feather. That is, the first time—everyone knows the snow gets heavier by the hour.

Yes, we'll probably have to buy another shovel next winter—if we can get it. But there's nothing like the satisfaction of a proper tool.

Welcome Praise

(Montreal Herald)

The value of a tribute depends on its source. That is why Canadians welcome with particular satisfaction praise of their fighting 1st Army voiced by Field Marshal Montgomery.

Sir Bernard stands high in their esteem as a soldier. They know that when it comes to a fighting job there could be no better judge. They know that he is sparing of commendation—that when he says a thing he means it.

The bitter month-long battle for the Scheldt has been recognized as of vital importance to the entire Allied plan in the western theatre. It has been recorded as one of the most arduous actions of the entire campaign.

The 1st Canadian Army came through that test with flying colors. Its losses were heavy, its sufferings great, but it kept on slugging until the job was done. Its performance amid the swamps and mud of the Lowlands had already been noted by Prime Minister Churchill.

Now that the great soldier under whose command our army fought adds his tribute, Canadians will be greatly gratified, their determination to maintain our front-line fighting power strengthened.

Heroic Malta

(New York Times)

Malta held out when the Mediterranean was so dangerous that supplies for the British 8th Army were being carried around the Cape of Good Hope. One would think it might have been taken by paratroopers and glider troopers, as Crete was. The attempt was not made.

If we want to find the spot where the tide began to turn, Malta is as good a spot as any. If the British had been capable of surrender, they would have surrendered there. If they had surrendered there, Mussolini might still be in Rome and Hitler still free to wash his red hands in the waters of the English Channel.

The United States might now be fighting a defensive war. But the flame did not go out. It spread.

CHRISTMAS IN FOX HOLES

If unto shepherds angels came,
Can they not do for them the same
Who watch in fields with warfare swept
That Christmas Day may still be kept,
And from the heavens sing again
Of peace on earth, good will to men?

Tonight, in fox holes dark and grim
Their thoughts will turn again to him,
Born in a stable far away
Upon that first glad Christmas Day,
Who taught mankind of brotherhood,
And gave His life to doing good.

Come down, bright angels, as of old
And let once more the news be told
That there shall come, as they believe,
For all a happier Christmas Eve,
And set a star of hope for them
Like that which shone o'er Bethlehem.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

20 YEARS AGO

December 22nd, 1924.

Mr. Samuel Leslie of this city is today celebrating the eighty-ninth anniversary of his birthday and many friends will be pleased to extend to him congratulations and good wishes.

It was cold here yesterday—very cold—and the thermometer registered 25 degrees below zero. The temperature moderated today and the probabilities are higher temperature with more snow.

Mr. R. Lloyd Hale, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hale, (formerly Miss Minnie Lloyd of this city), Sault Ste Marie, is here to spend Christmas with his aunt, Mrs. R. R. Hanna, Charles Street. He is a second year student in Arts at Queen's University.

30 YEARS AGO

December 22nd, 1914.

A Prince Edward County farmer named Cross was driving a team across the bay last evening when the horses broke through the ice and were drowned.

Ald. Panter and ex-Ald. A. Robinson have announced themselves as candidates for the office of mayor of this city for next year.

Many citizens are of the opinion that the assessment rolls should be published and the city council is giving the matter consideration. The Mayor and City Clerk will report at the next meeting with regard to the petition received asking that the citizens be given an opportunity to express their opinions in the matter.

40 YEARS AGO

December 22nd, 1904.

At a meeting of Court Quinte, Ancient Order of Foresters, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: George Grills, P. C. R.; George Dulmage, C. R.; J. A. Watts, S. C. R.; E. T. Cherry, Treasurer; W. Rodbourne, Secretary; W. Crysler, S. W.; F. McIntosh, J. W.; W. G. Watts, S. B.; William Kane, J. B.; Trustees, H. Corby, A. I. Bird and J. Laremer; Auditors, J. Goodsell, George Grills and W. S. Detlor; Physician, Dr. W. W. Boyce; Organist, R. J. McCoy.

Rainbow, formerly of this city, has left the Toronto St. George's team and will play hockey this season with the Marbolos.

Mr. John Martin of Winnipeg, formerly of Belleville, is here to spend Christmas with friends.

50 YEARS AGO

December 22nd, 1894.

Mr. Arthur E. Lewis has disposed of his hardware business in Souris, Manitoba, and has returned to Belleville. He will take over the hardware business of his father, John Lewis.

The market was crowded today and it was difficult to get through. Turkeys sold all the way from fifty cents to two dollars each according to size; some really fine turkeys sold at seventy-five cents and one dollar each. Geese sold at forty cents to seventy-five cents; ducks brought sixty cents to eighty cents a pair; chickens sold at thirty cents to fifty cents per pair; butter sold at seventeen cents to twenty cents, and eggs sold at seventeen cents to eighteen cents per dozen.

Messrs. H. McKeown, H. Walker, John Doyle, Ed. Pope, and E. Praleck have arrived home from Queen's University, Kingston, to spend Christmas.

TIDAL WAVES

Ocean waves are produced by the action of wind. An ordinary wave is not a forward motion of water, except when it "breaks," but the advance of a mere form. Objects floating on the surface of the sea are not carried along by the waves except when they are struck by loose masses of water from breaking crests.

A ship may be in the hollow of a large wave one minute and on the crest the next, and wave after wave may rush under her, but she is not driven from her course unless the waves break and the water beats against her.

Ordinary waves may travel at the rate of 50 miles an hour without increasing or decreasing the speed of a ship. Only the heaping up and breaking of waves is perilous to vessels.

But waves may break against a shore with terrific force. The most powerful "breakers" occur on the coast of Guinea, in Africa, where there is a continual westerly swell from the Atlantic.

Tidal waves are not so called because they are influenced by the tides, which they seldom are, but because they rush from the sea toward the land like tides.

Popularly the term is sometimes applied to a great rise in water along a shore due to exceptionally high winds. The flood that destroyed Galveston, Texas, in September, 1900, was such a tidal wave.

More often, however, the term is popularly applied to great sea waves that follow an earthquake. Meteorologists call this type of tidal wave a "seismic sea wave." It is a gravitational water wave propagated outward in all directions from the surface centre of a submarine earthquake.

As they sweep into shoal water such waves may pile up a wall of water 80 or 90 feet high. Tidal waves of this type may travel at the rate of 1,000 miles an hour and when they strike the shore they wreck virtually everything in their path.

French-Russian Alliance Sent To French Cabinet

Paris, Dec. 22 — (AP)—The new French-Russian 20-year alliance was sent to the French cabinet today for what was expected to be certain ratification following its approval yesterday by a unanimous vote of the consultative assembly.

At the conclusion of yesterday's debate on the pact, which is designed to contain Germany between continental Europe's most powerful post-war countries, Gen. Charles deGaulle declared France was determined to help form a world peace organization.

The consultative assembly adopted a resolution calling for companion pacts which would build up to the world security organization.

"The world is beginning to realize," Gen. deGaulle said, "that it is impossible to settle the great problems of the world without France. Perhaps she is also beginning to realize that victory cannot be gained without France. In both spheres France assumes full responsibilities."

Earlier, Foreign Minister Georges Bidault told the assembly France intends to help mount guard on the Rhine after the war to keep the Rhineland and Ruhr industries out of German hands. He also declared France intends to help Poland expand westward into Silesia.

During the recent conferences in Moscow which culminated in the alliance, the French were reported to have promised to support the Russian demand for the Curzon Line frontier in Poland.

American Pincers Snapped Shut On Japanese on Leyte

Advanced Southwest Pacific Headquarters, Dec. 22 — (AP)—American pincers have snapped shut on the Japanese on northwest Leyte, and pocketed enemy troops are being destroyed while American planes range over the Philippines from a new base on Mindoro, less than 150 miles south of Manila, headquarters reported today.

Climaxing a laborious fight north and south along the Ormoc corridor road, the U.S. 10th and 24th Army Corps fought to a juncture near where a supplementary road forks west to the enemy escape port of Palompon.

On Mindoro, on the western side of the Philippines where torrential rains do not fall as they have on Leyte, the air base completed there in five days already is demonstrating its importance. The communique told of Mindoro-based planes downing 11 of 20 enemy raiders Wednesday at a cost of one plane. No sizeable enemy ground resistance there yet has been reported and today's communique specified inactivity.

A 6,000-ton Japanese freighter-transport was spotted off the northwest coast by a reconnaissance bomber which set the vessel aflame.

Luzon's Batangas airdrome was attacked by fighter planes; other fighters ripped into airdromes on Negros; and Cagayan airdrome on Mindanao was raided.

PHOBIA, PHOBIA, WHO HASN'T A PHOBIA?

Our son aged 15 months is afraid of darkness. So until he decides to go asleep we have to keep a light on, not only before bedtime but in the night if he awakens. He was frightened terribly one night by a dog. The naval doctor pronounced it a phobia and said there is nothing we can do about it. But it is getting on our nerves and we wonder if you could help us. I have tried turning the light off, but the baby only screams until we turn it on to keep the neighbors from complaining.

(Mrs. ....)

Ask your son to accept the sympathy (believe it or not) and the understanding (now you know I can't be serious) of Ol' Doc Brady, for I, too, have a fair assortment of phobias, haven't you?

A phobia is any reasonable, insane or morbid fear or dread. It is not, say, fear of snakes, for as a rule that fear is readily overcome by education — the child or adult who knows something of snakes always fears them less than the ignorant child or adult. Nor is it fear, say, of leprosy, tuberculosis or other "dread" disease — physicians, nurses and others who know about such diseases fear them less than ignorant people.

When I say ignorant of course I mean ignorant.

In passing I beg to state that cryophobia (fear of cold, fear of freezing) is a reasonable fear, whereas psychro-phobia (fear of weather, change of weather, dampness, drafts, exposure not involving frostbite or freezing) is morbid, irrational, unreasonable.

Now one of my phobias is fear of height (acrophobia) or fear of precipices (cremnophobia) — one rung up the ladder above the second floor ((in this country) or the first floor in England — well, I positively dare not do it, so thell with the screens, storm sash or awnings we can't reach with a nice low step ladder.

From the language this mother uses in describing the baby's fear of the dark I infer that the baby is not the only one in the household who has a phobia. The baby was "frightened terribly one night by a dog." May it not be that mother was frightened by the dog too, and her fear frightened the baby?

The naval doctor is right — there is nothing much you can do about a phobia, but try to grin and bear it.

Keep a wee light in or near the baby's sleeping place always (I mean if the baby seems afraid of the dark). No tricks. Let every one ignore the baby's phobia. Never, never speak of it or permit any discussion of it in the child's presence. The thing is to submerge the phobia and carry on without making a fuss about it.

Show me a human being who has no phobia and I'll show you a good actor.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Stupid Habit

I hear you have a small pamphlet on constipation habit which shows victims how to break the habit. I'll certainly be grateful for a copy. I inclose 25 cents—if it is less, buy yourself a cigar or some pipe cleaners.

(F. J. S.)

Answer—For copy of the booklet "Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene" send ten cents and stamped pre-addressed envelope. No, no, I couldn't think of squandering ten cents on a cigar, and as for pipe cleaners, if you maintain a proper flock of pipes you don't need pipe cleaners. When a pipe goes stuck on you, you just pull and blow at it a while, then toss it in the file marked "Deferred business" and get out a fresh one.

So There is a Penn Yan

Penn Yan is as real to me as it is to you. My father was born there, and my aunt, Mrs. .... died there many years ago. We read your articles in our daily paper with great interest and delight.

(Mrs. G. F. P.)

Answer — Still, some people refuse to believe there is such a place. I have further evidence in the form of a sack of Prize Buckwheat Flour which just arrived, from the Birkett Mills in Penn Yan, N.Y.—now if I could only find someone in this cookless community who remembers how to make yeast-raised buckwheat pancakes — but, shucks, one might as well wish for a drive out the Bath road and over to Keuka in the Whitfield buggy with the mud spattered top. If your father happens around this way I hope he will drop in and gossip a bit between games here at the bowling green.

THREE ESCAPE

St. Jerome, Que., Dec. 21—(CP)—Three men overpowered a guard in the jail here last night and escaped in sub-zero weather into the foothills of the Laurentian mountains, 40 miles north of Montreal. A general alarm was sounded and provincial police began to comb the surrounding countryside for the fugitives. The men wore only prison clothes.

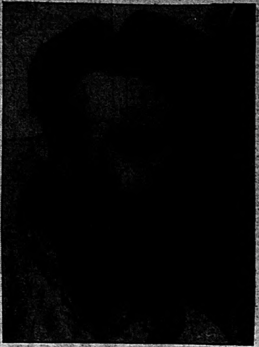
The Quick and Clever Facial



Janet Blair enjoys a quick facial before applying make-up

By HELEN FOLLETT

WITH A shortage of woman power in beauty shops, the professoresses of pulchritude are specializing in facials that are limited to twenty-five or thirty minutes. Convenient and helpful to the career girl who has a little time between the office closing hour and the moment when she is to meet her best feller for dinner. Dust of the day will be removed, fatigue lines will vanish, the cash customer will have a sense of well being. Also she will probably get a swell make-up job that will put ideas into her head.

First there will be a cleaning with a thin cream that is pleasantly cool, and then a wipe-off with a pledget of cotton or gauze saturated with a flowery freshener. Then new pads are used, patted from chin to ear lobes, from collar bones to forehead, over the back of the neck, imparting to the flesh a sweet fragrance and stimulating the blood streams.

Next, a generous amount of rich cream is smoothed over the face and gently molded into the flesh, after which there are brisk hammering movements of the operator's trained finger tips. This treatments puts the skin into a glow without stretching. A special cream is used around the eyes. An astringent lotion removes all oil, and then comes an exciting session with the make-up kit.

Powder is applied lightly, patted in. A tiny brush with bristles touched with brilliance is used for removing powder from the eyebrows and along the forward hair line.

Rouge is fluffed on lightly, placed high to give animation to the countenance. More powder is necessary to blend the first application with the rouge.

Lips are outlined carefully with the pencil so there will be a clear-cut contour. A few drops of perfume on the earlobes supply the finishing touch.

Mrs. Jack Ross, Geddes St., received flowers from her brother, Pte. Leslie Benedict, in Holland together with the wish for a joyful Christmas.

WEDDINGS

LESLIE—EVERETT

A marriage of local interest was solemnized on Thursday, November 23, at 2.30 o'clock in Liphook Church, in Bramshott, England, when Lieutenant (N.S.) Ardith B. Everett, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Everett, Halliday Street, Brockville, became the bride of Lieutenant J. Bryson Leslie, Canadian Army Overseas, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Leslie, of Belleville, Ont.

The bride was given away by Capt. R. Dingwall, R.C.A.M.C., and wore the dress uniform of the Nursing Sisters. She carried a white Bible.

The young couple were attended by Lieut. (N.S.) MacDermitt, who wore her Nursing Sister uniform, and Lieut. (N.S.) MacDermitt, who wore her Nursing Sister uniform, and Lieutenant A. Pettigrau.

A reception followed the ceremony in the Officers' Mess, at No. 22 Canadian General Hospital Unit, C.A.O. The bridal couple left by train on a honeymoon in London.

GIBBONS—LINCOLN

At Croxton, England, on November 4, the wedding took place between Irene May, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Lincoln, The Kennels, Croxton and LAC Harry Gibbons, R.C.A.F., son of Mrs. Gibbons and the late Mr. J. Gibbons, of Belleville, Ontario, Canada. Rev. A. G. McL. Pearce Higgins officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. A. F. Lincoln, wore an ensemble of blue Harris tweed with burgundy accessories, and carried a spray of white chrysanthemums, and ivory bound prayer book.

Her bridesmaid, Miss K. Seymour, was in dusky pink with matching accessories.

LAC. Alec Matheson, R.C.A.F., was best man.

The reception was held at the home of the bride where about fifty guests were entertained.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a gold wrist watch and the bride's gift to the bridegroom was a gold signet ring.

Women's Activities

SHANNONVILLE W. M. S.

The December meeting of the Shannonville Women's Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. A. McDonald with a fair attendance. The president, Mrs. Frank Doxtator, was in charge. Satisfactory reports were given from the secretary treasurer and flower committee.

Group Leader Mrs. Sam Elliott followed the Christmas program in the Missionary Monthly, assisted by Mrs. Stanley McDonald and Mrs. Saul McFarlane.

Past President — Mrs. F. Doxtator

President — Mrs. H. Shelter

1st Vice President — Mrs. S. Elliott

2nd Vice President — Mrs. L. Lasler

3rd Vice President — Mrs. S. McDonald

Treasurer — Mrs. E. Stratton

Secretary — Mrs. S. McDonald

Flower Committee — Mrs. R. Wescott and Mrs. (Rev.) Lougheed

Missionary Monthly — Miss S. Stickney

Temperance — Mrs. F. Barlow

Peace — Mrs. C. Liddle

Group Leaders — Mrs. E. Stratton, Mrs. L. Lasler, Mrs. S. McFarlane, Mrs. A. Houston, Mrs. S. Elliott, Mrs. D. Hinchey.

The retiring president was given a hearty vote of thanks for her splendid work for the past three years.

ST. ANDREW'S W. M. S.

Members and friends of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church gathered in the church hall on Tuesday for the final meeting of the year. The president, Mrs. Fleming, presided and Mrs. Sharp had charge of the program. A beautiful Christmas message from "Glad Tidings" was used for the opening number and the spirit of Christmas was further demonstrated in the choice of hymns and Scripture lesson. During the business session a survey of the year's work was given by the secretary, Mrs. Parsons, in the reading of the minutes. Detailed reports were given by the conveners of the various departments, which demonstrated much interest in the work as well as the magnitude of the missionary enterprise. A vocal duet by Mrs. Barlow and Mrs. Brown was much enjoyed and the presentation of a Life Membership Certificate was also a pleasing feature of the meeting. The presentation was made by Mrs. Fargey with the recipient being Mrs. Sharp.

The officers for the coming year include:

Honorary President — Mrs. Graham

President — Mrs. Baragar

1st Vice President — Mrs. W. McCullough

2nd Vice President — Mrs. A. Cameron

Secretary — Mrs. Parsons

Treasurer — Mrs. Diamond

Home Helpers Secretary — Mrs. Pigden

Library and Literature Secretary —Mrs. Mantle

Flower Secretary — Mrs. Wood

Glad Tidings Secretary — Mrs. Bell

Mission Band Secretary — Mrs. Vernon Weir

Welcome and Welfare Secretary —Mrs. Hornsby

Supply Secretary — Mrs. Baird

Press — Mrs. Fargey

Pianist — Mrs. Mantle

Birthday Secretary — Mrs. Bell.

Two Types Of Fashions Noted

An examination of the changes in fashion that have taken place this season reveals the endorsation of two types of clothes — the slightly theatrical simply expressed and the simple with stimulating touches. Both are a decided shift from last year's basic styles with glamorizing accessories.

Seeing the collection of one of Montreal's foremost dress designers brings to mind the overworked term elegance, but those who wear fashions of this type will never be overdressed if they link them with the right costume complements.

Drama at this couturier's is developed with color contrast, clever draping and trimmings of an eye-arresting character. There is plenty of evidence, in both one and two-piece fashions, that the designer has been lying awake nights dreaming up unusual ideas for new sleeve and skirt silhouettes. Currently favored features include the deep-armhole sleeve, the dropped shoulder, soft draping and emphasis on a small waistline.

A stunning dusk-and-after dress has a peplum tying into a side bow. The wide-armhole sleeves are short and exciting, the contrasting lining folding back into a cuff several inches deep. There is a sheer blouse with ruffle showing demurely at high round neck and the same ruffling appearing at the wrists of the long full sleeves.

Another lovely style has a cowl on a low square neck. Sequins skilfully and flatteringly spaced gleam all over the dress.

According to this fashion designer, black predominates in fashion. But many new shades have won a big following, notably Cossack Steel, a brown inspired by the gallant courage of Russian soldiers. Brazil Coffee is another war-inspired brown. Among the bluish reds, Marcella is proving an enchantress. Framboise, slightly darker, also has wide appeal. Blues feature Acanthus, popular with all ages. It is a medium shade with a touch of green and lots of grey. Forest green and electric greens are on the fashion calendar. Color contrast teams colors harmoniously, often strikingly. For instance, Marcella red with black and chartreuse with Cossack Steel.

CONVICTION QUASHED

Toronto, Dec. 22 — (CP) — Judge James Parker yesterday quashed a conviction against a used car salesman in a Prices Board case, expressing criticism of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police methods in the case. The salesman, Charles C. White, had been fined $500 by a police court magistrate on a charge of selling a motor car above the ceiling price.

WOMAN IS GUIDE IN MOVEMENT OF AID TO RUSSIA

Mrs. Eve Gersh is Traffic Manager in Charge of Transport of Tons of Relief Supplies to Soviet Each Month

By ADELAIDE KERR
(Associated Press Writer)

New York, Dec. 22 (AP) — The solicitor for a trucking company walked into the Russian War Relief traffic manager's office, asked to see the boss—and came face to face with a good looking blond. For a few seconds he stared into the face of Eve Gersh, amazed to find a woman in the chair of a traffic manager who moved a million and a half dollars' worth of merchandise a month.

Then he recovered himself and went on with his business.

When the interview ended he hesitated a moment, then hauled two cigars from his pocket and stuffed them into her hand.

"Here," he said, "take 'em anyway. Give 'em to your husband."

Eve Gersh kept her face straight. She learned to do that long ago in a job which requires her to move 800 tons of freight a month from dozens of small towns thru'out the country, into New York and on to Moscow.

She has to see that drugs, vitamins, seeds, shoes, watches, musical instruments, art material, technical books, medical apparatus, laboratory equipment, blankets and foodstuffs are moved from the places where people have collected them, assembled in warehouses in New York or Portland, Ore., and from there dispatched to Russia. She also is responsible for the shipment of other material purchased by Russian War Relief.

Plenty of Trouble

Plenty of trouble flows across her desk. Messages concerning shipping permits that are held up, shipments delayed en route, ships too crowded with war material to carry relief supplies. But no matter how hot it gets Mrs. Gersh preserves the same unruffled telephone tone. Here's her secret:

"I know I just mustn't lose my temper," she says with a little grin. "So I keep it smooth 'til I've hung up the receiver. And then I just sit there, where no one can hear me, and tell the walls what I think. When I have it off my chest. I go back to work again."

Mrs. Gersh is good-looking; clear skin, sea grey eyes, butter-scotch blond bob. In private life she is the wife of Emmanuel Gersh, a civil engineer. They have a 14 year old son.

Mrs. Gersh spends most evenings quietly at home with the family. Two evenings a week she studies Russian.

Her job inherits a lot of extra-curricular problems. For instance, a philanthropic organization bought an ambulance for Russia and then disbanded. Its representatives dumped the problem of shipment in Mrs. Gersh's lap. She made a series of telephone calls. The seventh person who came on the wire said:

"I know just the person to help you. Call Russian War Relief and ask for Eve Gersh."

Natural Beauty Is Post-War Aim

London, Dec. 22 (CP)—New cosmetics invented as substitutes during the war are going to change women's ideas on make-up when beauty aids can again be manufactured freely, executives of cosmetic firms say.

Two factors are involved:—

1. Women have had to do without perfume during the war and are almost used to it.

2. Protective creams used in many war factories have made British women more conscious of the healthful properties of cosmetics.

"Our post-war cosmetics are going to aim at bringing out natural beauty," said Stanley Picker, managing director of one leading cosmetics company.

"Every manufacturer has some new ideas up his sleeve and we're all taking advantage of these few months to get ready preparations which will make the post-war girl more beautiful."

It is expected cosmetics prices will not be much higher than before the war.

HOCKEY PICTURE WEST OF LAKES VERY PROMISING

Stand-Out Team in Junior and Senior Series Leading Each League

Winnipeg, Dec. 22—(CP)— The hockey picture today from the Lakehead across the prairies of Manitoba and Saskatchewan to Alberta and the Rockies generally shows a stand-out team leading each of the various junior and senior circuits. There is one notable exception — in the Southern Saskatchewan Junior League.

Senior hockey at the Lakehead—home of Port Arthur Shipbuilders, who lost out to Quebec Aces in the Allan Cup final last season — still awaits the season's opening whistle.

The Juniors are well away, however, and the undisputed leaders so far are Port Arthur Flyers. They played the nine games of the series and final without a loss, and only one game ended in a tie.

In the Manitoba Inter-Services Senior Loop, it is Winnipeg's R.C.A.F. Bombers again. With 13 points they have lost only one game and drawn one.

In the Junior set-up, the story is the same. Winnipeg Monarchs have gone undefeated in four games in the Manitoba Junior League South Division, and Winnipeg Esquire-Red Wings have turned in the same performance in the North Division.

Farther west, in the Southern Saskatchewan Junior League, competition for league leadership is keener. Moose Jaw Canucks are well ahead, but Regina Commandos are conceded a chance of overtaking the leaders with nine games to go.

In the three-team Alberta Services Senior League, the Calgary Army Club from Currie Barracks has scored four victories in five starts. Calgary Air Force, with three triumphs, is second, and Calgary Navy third.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Two racing secretaries, John B. Campbell of New York and Charles J. McLennan of Pimlico and other tracks, yesterday gave their combined choice to Traffic Court, Miller and Burger's six-year-old mare, as "the greatest comeback of 1944." After spending 27 months on a breeding farm, she scored eight victories, including four stake races, during the past season.

Roy and Earl Mack, sons of Connie Mack, revealed at Philadelphia yesterday they planned to create a baseball museum at Shibe Park with exhibits consisting of their father's diamond relics including autographed bats and balls, pictures of every Mack team since 1901 and the original proclamation for the annual observance of "Connie Mack Day" in Pennsylvania on May 17.

Jockeys John Pollard of Butte, Mont., and Ernest Barber of London, Eng., were seriously injured in a three-horse spill at Gulfstream Park, Miami, yesterday. Charlie Chaffin, on the third mount, was uninjured. Pollard's horse, Good Ante, was the first to go down and the two others fell over him.

With reference to the move to revive the Interprovincial Football Union in 1945, reported from Ottawa, President F. M. Hatch of the Hamilton Football Club said last night: "If the Big Four operates next year, Tigers will field a team and we are ready to go at any time, providing the war is over." This would be the official stand of the Hamilton Tigers when the matter is discussed at the Big Four annual meeting in Toronto Jan. 20, he added.

Albert Smoke, 60, former Indian long-distance runner, died suddenly yesterday at his home in Lindsay from a heart attack. He created much attention in track and road circles 25 years ago and was a member of the Canadian Olympic teams which participated in the revival of the Olympiad in 1920 at Antwerp.

TIE CAUSE OF DEATH

West Fell, Corbridge, Northumberland, England, Dec. 21 —CP)—Francis G. Common stretched out for a nap on the sofa here the other day and didn't loosen his tie. His head slipped over the side and the coroner who later examined his body rendered a verdict of "death from asphyxia accidentally caused by a tight necktie."

SPORTS ODDITY OF YEAR, INJURY TO LINESMAN

Football Official Caught Between Back and Two Tacklers

(By FRITZ HOWELL)
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Dec. 22, (AP)—It was an earth-shaking, once-in-a-lifetime feat, but Ernie Lombardi, molasses-footed catcher of the New York Giants, did not contribute 1944's No. 1 sports oddity, the day he beat out an infield hit against Boston Braves.

The majority of 88 coast-to-coast sports editors participating in The Associated Press poll agreed today the queerest quirk of the campaign came in the Army-Notre Dame grid game when headlinesman Dr. Dave Reese of Dayton, Ohio, was caught between Cadet fullback Doc Blanchard and two Irish tacklers.

Reese, one of the country's top officials, suffered a broken arm and was forced to leave the game, the score of which—Army 59, Notre Dame 0—was another well-backed oddity. The Reese episode, already voted the football oddity of the year, now moves to the top among all sports.

But there were plenty of other screwy situations.

For instance, three horses raced to a dead heat in the $10,000 Carter handicap at Aqueduct; Tulsa's football team scored 67 points in two straight games—and lost both; Jim Ferrier used his mashie as a pool cue in making a golf shot out of a tree, and lost the San Francisco open by a stroke; Illinois had ten touchdown runs called back; four false starts and two gun recalls disqualified all six starters in the National A.A.U. 100-metre dash; the Hume brothers, Michigan milers, Bob and Ross ran nine consecutive dead heats.

CAPITALS WIDEN LEAD IN SECTION

By The Canadian Press

Cleveland Barons broke a 4-4 second period deadlock in Providence last night to wallop the Reds 8-5, scoring a similar triumph to that of Sunday in which they defeated the Reds 6-5. In the other American Hockey League game last night, Indianapolis Capitals turned back the Buffalo Bisons and widened their lead in the western division.

Earl Bartholome's three goals paved the way for the Barons' victory, with Dan Sprout, Bartholome and Les Cunningham sending Cleveland ahead 3-0 in the first period. Goals by Forget, Lavoie and Bergeron in the second period forced a deadlock which was advanced 4-4 on goals by Cunningham and Bellemare.

Tom Burlington, Ed Speaker and Bartholome added other tallies for Cleveland in the final frame with Lavoie adding the last goal for Providence.

Indianapolis' victory was the 9th in a row on home ice, but the Bisons put up a bitter fight before 3,368 Indianapolis fans. Tony Bukovich scored three of the Caps' goals with Dick Kowcinak netting the fourth. Pargeter and Emerton were the Buffalo scorers.

Glancing Backwards Over 1944 Sports in Canada

By SYD THOMAS
(CP Staff Writer)

Hockey and other major amateur sports in Canada during 1944 reeled under a blow the pessimists calculated would scuttle the ship when the services banned blue and khaki-clad players from competing in inter-district play-offs. But they staged a major recovery to [illegible] up a most successful season from the standpoint of spectator interest although from a quality viewpoint the war brand of game left much to be desired in many cases.

The same thing was true in double measure for the National Hockey League, which proved conclusively that when Gus Phan has plenty of jingle in his pockets he will turn out for games no matter who is playing. Attendance records are being shattered and threatened all along the line, although the big league has lost dozens of its top players to the services and replaced them with youngsters who in pre-war days would be hanging wistfully over the rails dreaming of the distant future when they too might crack the big time.

When the R.C.A.F. and the Army, followed in slightly less drastic fashion by the Navy, banned its athletes from taking part in any competitions leading to Dominion championship play, it looked like quite a blow, especially since the two Allan Cup finalists in 1943 were service teams, and the cup winners in 1942 were R.C.A.F. Fliers.

But the servicemen were dropped from the teams, the service squads played in their own bailiwicks and everything turned out fine. There weren't many senior civilian hockey squads in Canada, but those left put on quite a show with the powerful Quebec Aces winning the Allan Cup in three straight from Port Arthur Shipbuilders.

Basketball produced a strange situation in 1944 as a result of the service sport ban. The logical champions of the west were R.C.A.F. Patricia Bay Gremlins, 1943 senior men's champions but they were unable to get permission to travel east for the finals, although at one time they offered to travel on their own time if they all could get leaves together. This fell through, however, and a team they had beaten, United States Army Engineers from Edmonton, went east to fall before Merritton Hayes Steel of St. Catharines, three games to one.

Mann Cup to Ontario.

Championship play in other sports saw St. Catharines Athletics topple New Westminster Salmonbellies, 1943 titlists, in the Mann Cup senior lacrosse finals, while Montreal Navy proved the exception to the rule as it captured the Dominion football title and the Grey Cup. The combined team from H.M.C.S. Donnacona in Montreal and H.M.C.S. Ste. Hyacinthe won the navy its first major championship in sport, strange contrast in a year which saw service teams in other sports take it on the chin.

The greenbacks rustled through the parimutuel windows at a merry pace as horse racing enjoyed one of its most successful seasons, although there wasn't much in the way of record-breaking. Bets totalling $37,082,190 were placed during 298 days of racing at 35 meets, with all centres except Montreal marking up substantial increases over 1943. This was nearly $4,000,000 higher than wagering in 1942, and just under $1,000,000 less than the previous high mark reached in 1930, at the end of the golden boom era.

King's Plate.

Far-reaching changes were made in regulations governing the historic King's Plate at Woodbine Park in Toronto, won this year by H. C. Hatch's Acara. For the first time the race was thrown open to all Canadian-bred and owned three-year-olds instead of being restricted to Ontario horses as in previous years. Larger purses for future runnings also were assured as nominations closed in November for the 1945 and 1946 races, with the 1946 stakes expected to exceed $17,000.

Montreal Canadiens roared through the N.H.L. season and play offs smashing records right and left to bring the Stanley Cup to the Forum. They humbled their long-time rivals, Toronto Maple Leafs, rubbing their noses in the dirt with an 11-0 trouncing in the last game of the semi-finals then mowed down Chicago Black Hawks four straight.

The military situation intruded itself in the professional league as a rule was introduced barring any players who had been deferred from military service on any grounds except physical disability. At the time this was considered an attempt to "get" Canadiens, who were believed to have many players on war job deferments, but the season opened and they lost only two men because of the rule. Other teams weren't seriously affected either, and the 1944-45 season got underway with the fans again jamming the turnstiles in record proportions.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Toronto, Dec. 22 (CP)—Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs certainly don't seem to be imbued with the Christmas spirit to any extent, the way they are handying around the pleasantries, but it makes a very interesting—if not edifying—spectacle.

If hockey attendances weren't already at a high level, the suspicious might say the whole thing was a frame-up to create interest in the doings of the N.H.L. boys. There isn't much point to that, however, because if they pack many more customers into the arenas they will have to do a little roof-lifting.

The boys seem to be quite serious about the whole thing, in a manner reminiscent of the good old days when Conn Smythe and Art Ross were waging some of their pitched battles. Tommy Gorman of Canadiens and Hap Day of Leafs have been getting quite hot under the collar this week, and sports writers in both cities are taking up the cudgels.

The Montreal Star in a story bearing no by-line has branded Mr. Day the champion cry baby coach of the season for his recent vigorous complaints about hockey doings at the Montreal Forum. Among actions he decried were the reported tossing of an ice cream container at Babe Pratt, and the mysterious dousing of the lights over Leafs' goal at a crucial point in their last game.

The Star quotes an unnamed official of Canadiens as saying the lighting trouble was due to a faulty transformer. The same official suggests Leafs are "playing the most uninteresting hockey in the N.H.L. They simpy grab the puck and shoot it up the ice."

The Star story that adds that it is passing strange that all letters from Leafs to the N.H.L. officials are signed by Hap Day instead of Frank Selke, and says that Canadiens "see the hand of a former leader of the Leafs behind the recent moves, including their refusal to include French-Canadian players on their team."

The last reference, which has been circulated before, apparently refers to Toronto's refusal to trade two of their brightest stars—Gaye Stewart and Bob Goldman, now in the navy—for goalie Paul Bibeault. The clubs reached an impasse over that deal after Montreal spurned a very chunky cash offer for the Bibeault hockey property.

The Montreal story also hints that Leafs aren't too happy about the fact that Canadiens are tripping along at the top of the league despite that much-discussed non-deferment rule which was expected to wreck the Canucks.

After all this, people are going to be very, very disappointed if the gore and teeth don't fly far and wide the next time Day's "blood-and-iron" Leafs meet Gorman's aggrieved athletes.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
(AP Sport Writer)

New York, Dec. 22 —(AP)— During the last year this dept. has at various times reported efforts on the part of organized baseball to encourage kids to play ball . . . The results appeared rather discouraging after the recent Minor and Major League meetings when the Majors failed to string along with the Minors in appropriating money to support a series of "clinics" projected by the High School Committee and all hands fought shy of imposing penalties for signing high school kids to professional contracts . . . But we can't get pinched for trying, so here's another suggestion for baseball and other sports bodies that want to stimulate junior competition.

Leaders Wanted.

This column's suggestion is that baseball (and the same goes for golf, tennis, hockey and so on) should establish some sort of "scouting" system to find the places where the game is neglected, both in and out of the schools . . . Then a special effort should be directed toward those places (finding one enthusiastic leader is the first important step.) . . . Once the kids start play, the job is to teach them to play to the best of their ability, and that's where coaching clinics can come in . . . Finally, organized baseball could provide an even wider competitive program than is offered by recreation projects . . . There's nothing like a shot at a title and a trip out of town with the gang to keep a boy's interest alive.

BIG SEVEN

(By the Canadian Press)

Syd Howe of Detroit collected one point to move ahead of Clint Smith of Chicago and hold fifth place in hockey's big seven as the Red Wings trounced New York Rangers 11-3 in the only scheduled National Hockey League game last night. Howe was the only player appearing in the big seven who was active and thus other leaders were held scoreless.

A colored preacher was exhorting his flock to more honest ways of living. He said that lifting pullets was a very bad offense:

Preacher—But a greater crime is that of stealing watermelons.

A big Negro in the back of the church arose, smacked his lips and snapped his fingers and sat down.

Preacher (shouting) — Brudder Johnsing, is you guilty?

Around the Town.

Enos David will again head the Quinte Skating Club for 1945 . . . The local fancy skaters are seeking the services of a professional tutor for weekends to teach the younger skaters basic figures . . . The Quinte Skating Club will stage another of their ice carnival extravaganzas along late in February . . . They've been making ice with regularity at their Dufferin Avenue rink and hope to open by Christmas . . . Owing to the holiday rush period the weekly gals' basketball games played at the "Y" each Thursday night have been abandoned for the time being . . . Ed. Shortt says he will resume the girls' cage schedule next Thursday, however . . . At present Arlie Gilbert is up on top of the scorers in the loop . . . Barney Wright, who played juvenile hockey here before enlisting in the Navy, is back on an extended leave home and will turn out for the Junior O.H.A. practice at the Hume Arena tonight . . . Coach Toots Holway expects a goodly turnout of aspiring puck talent tonight, railbirds also.

Old Time Grudge.

For some 30 years now referee Art Donovan, well known Bronx boxing referee, has borne a grudge against old Mike Gibbons, the ex-pugilist, for these long years back.

A long time ago — about 1910 — Art kept a few dimes jingling in his kilts by fighting. Then in 1914, he ran up against Mike Gibbons, assassin of many a ring hopeful.

"Mike nearly killed me," Art explained while in a refereeing tour through Alaska and the Aleutians. "I never laid a glove on him. The referee saved my life."

After that Art became a referee.

In his 34 years in the fight game, Art rates Mike Gibbons as one of the greatest fighters. And Art has been in the ring — as a referee — with the best of them — Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney, Benny Leonard, Harry Greb, Joe Louis and Harry Wills.

So, some day, if a couple of old men kick up a lot of dust swatting each other around, don't call the cops.

This and That.

A lot of Pittsburgh people won't like it, but just the same Windsor Doug Vaughan reports that "Beans" Reardon names Marty Marion as the greatest shortstop he ever saw . . . Of course Beans wasn't around when Hans Wagner was in his prime . . . Reardon, who has been a National League umpire for 19 seasons, picks his all-star N. L. lineup: Bill Terry, Giants, first base and manager; Rogers Hornsby and Frankie Frisch, both of the Cardinals, second base; Martin Marion, Cardinals, shortstop; Pie Traynor, Pirates, third base; Zack Wheat, Dodgers, left field; Terry Moore, Cardinals, centre field; Mel Ott, Giants, right field; Gabby Hartnett, Cubs, catcher; Carl Hubbell, Giants, Dizzy Dean, Cardinals, and Dazzy Vance, Dodgers, pitchers . . . He calls Marion the greatest shortstop he ever saw . . . A lot of minor league baseball officials favor Billy Evans as successor to the late Commissioner K. M. Landis if one is chosen . . . Evans, a Cornell University graduate, is a former newspaperman, an American League umpire for a quarter of a century, general manager of the Cleveland Indians for a number of years, creator and director of the Boston Red Sox farm system and now president of the Southern Association . . . With that kind of experience it is doubtful if there is a man in baseball today better qualified for the job . . . One Col. Ted Bank, who had charge of the U. S. Army athletic program from the start of the war until just recently, says that in the space of three years approximately $40,000,000 in equipment was bought for the soldiers, most of it for overseas shipment . . . "Volleyball equipment is most in demand over there," says the Colonel, "the reason being that the game can be played in a small area and no elaborate equipment is needed." According to Bank, softball is even more popular with American soldiers in England and Italy than baseball . . . He also added that the Chinese are showing great aptitude for basketball and probably will be an international power in the sport after the war.

Remember When . . .

William T. Tilden refused an offer of $60,000 to turn professional and play a series of tennis exhibitions in the United States and Canada 18 years ago today. However, he finally entered the "moneyed ranks" of the net game in 1931 at the age of 38, but is now out of competitive tennis altogether.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 584
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Eva Tyme uses a hash bid. Nobody knows what it is made up of. It is a mystery to her partner. One time it may contain this. The next time it may contain something else.

Use this hand:

♠A J
♥A J 9 6
♦K Q J 4
♣A Q 10

This hand contains all the ingredients needed for an opening bid. It has seven tricks, six high cards, four sure tricks, a biddable heart suit, and a biddable diamond suit.

With that hand, you have enough to make an opening bid of one heart. You also have enough to make an opening bid of one diamond. You also have enough to make an opening bid of one no-trump.

Thus, any player could prove he had enough to start with a bid of either one heart or one diamond or one no-trump. But the most correct bid is the one that tells the most truth.

An opening bid of one no-trump promises five high cards with two sure tricks. Which that hand has. But it denies having a biddable suit. So, one no-trump would be a lie.

An opening bid of one in a suit promises five tricks with four high cards and two sure tricks. It also says the named suit is biddable. Which that hand has.

But if a hand contains two biddable suits, partner must be told in due time the length of each. So a careful player will name them in the order that reveals their respective lengths.

With different length suits, bid the longer first; the shorter next. With same length suits, bid the higher ranking suit first; the lower next. Thus, the second suit is never longer.

So, as between one no-trump or one diamond or one heart, which is the most correct? The one heart bid, of course.

One good bid deserves another.

Detroit Wings Back on Trail Of Canadiens by Displaying Real Power in Beating Rangers

Move Into Second Place Three Points Ahead of Leafs

By The Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings, after straying momentarily last week-end, today were back on the trail of Montreal Canadiens sounding a new and louder menace.

Underlining their threat with a crushing display of offensive power, Wings smothered New York Rangers 11-3 to move within three points of the league leaders, take a three-point margin over Toronto Maple Leafs in the second-place argument, and equal the team single-game scoring mark for the season. Leafs scored 11 to Black Hawks' five in downing Chicago Oct. 29.

Bill (Flash) Hollett, one of the finest rushing defencemen in the game, put on one of the year's top individual displays in firing three goals, two unassisted, and drew a pair of assists as well. Other standouts in the scoring avalanche were Mud Bruneteau with two goals and two assists, Joe Carveth with one and two, and Steve Wochy with two goals.

Their second straight triumph after Sunday's damaging 3-1 reverse by Chicago assured the Detroiters of a Christmas present of second place. They can go a long way towards settling the question decisively in a two-game series with Toronto Saturday and Monday.

Win In First Period

Jack Adams' men clinched the decision in the first period when they hammered in four scores against the visitors' one. They turned it into a rout by scoring five times without reply in the second and then shared four goals in the third.

Threats of sweeping player shake-ups came from two league officials last night as Art Ross of Boston Bruins and Bill Tobin of Chicago Black Hawks expressed dissatisfaction with their clubs' showings.

Ross was particularly irked by his charges' inability to defeat his circuit's top teams, Montreal and Detroit, to whom they have lost 7 decisions in as many starts. He mentioned no names, but emphasized that "certain changes must be made."

Tobin announced that Johnny Harms and Harvey Fraser would be sent to Providence of the American League while Joe Papike has been sold to Cleveland. He said a new player would join the last-place Hawks for Saturday's game with Canadiens in Montreal, and added that the club would open a new hockey school in western Canada next spring.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop started to shake his head to himself while he was drinking his 2nd cup of coffee this morning, saying, Oh well, what's a use?

Why William, I never heard anybody sound so mournfull, ma said. What do you mean, what's a use of what? she said, and pop said, Well, if you want me to elaborate, what's a use of anything?

Now William what's on your mind? I insist on your telling me this minute, ma said, and pop said, Oh, I was just sitting here thinking of a few of the many things that dont seem to make any sense. The floor of the ocean is full of sailers who never learned to swim, and the land is burdened with lawyers who have no real sense of justice, he said.

Well my goodness everybody knows perfection is an unreached state, but is that any reason it should afflict you so personaly so suddenly? ma said, and pop said, There are thousands of artists who cant draw a straight line and who skoff at the people who can. There are innumerable people who willfully sit in drafts and wonder what makes them sneeze. There are countless nursemaids who have no patience with small children, he said.

But for land sakes why should you let the troubles of the whole world roll so heavily off your shoulders? ma said, and pop said, Because I have a presentiment that any moment now you're going to cap the climax by asking me with apparent seriousness what I'd like to have for dinner, and when I answer with equal seriousness that I'd like liver and onions you'll immediately tell me that I must be out of my mind.

Now William of all the crazy ideas, I had liver and onions for you yesterday and there's some of the cold remains still taking the tail in the refrigerator right now, ma said, and pop said, There, you see.

CHAPTER 19

"I thought, if we found my grandfather's money, Loveday could very tell him that she did not need it any more," Hugh said. Loveday's face turned red. "Uncle Warren," more, and I imagine he'd like to Hugh went on, "isn't young any retire one of these days."

"Well, keep the home fires burning," Larry said when the time came for him to go and Hugh had offered to drive him to the airport. "Oh, and by the way, Loveday—"

They were on the outer steps below the front door. Hugh had gone down with the children to the car. The wind was still whirling leaves about madly; the air was wild and sweet and soft.

"As far as Chris goes," he said, "he's the sort, I imagine, who's always hanging around other men's wives. I don't know, of course; you know him better than I do. But I don't worry about you; women like you can fool around a lot and get letters and wish they had the nerve to get away with things, but they're too scared to get very far. You're a good starter, but you don't want to get in too deep any more than he does.

"Now, about divorce," he added in a businesslike tone. "I talked to my mother—"

"You talked to your mother!"

"Yep. Why not?"

"Well, because — because what business is it of hers?"

"The kids are her business!"

"The children are my business!"

"Not if you're leaving them to marry someone else."

"Larry, you said when you were last here—you said yourself," Loveday began breathlessly, "that you couldn't take them, that they belonged to me! Children those ages always go with the mother."

"Not always they don't! Things are different now, anyway. I'm getting paid; I'm in a job I can stay in, war or no war. Yep I talked to Mom, and she talked to Marge. My father's not going to live very long; he's washed up, and Mother'll be awfully lonely. She'll have something, a couple of rents, and I'll be able to help out, and she wants the kids."

"Well, I like your mother, and she's always been nice to me," Loveday began with tight lips, "but if she or anyone thinks for one minute I'd let them go—But it's ridiculous!"

Larry's tone was not argumentative.

"Mom would want them most of the time, schooltime," he said. "They're so little now it doesn't matter. But afterward it's bad to keep jumping them in and out of schools."

"That's a silly way to talk," she said coldly. But she was shaking.

"Well silly or not, that's the situation. You work it out. And Hugh'll get some figures on partitioning the house and making that apartment and see that they overhaul the furnace. That may cost you four or five hundred, but whatever it is a mortgage would cover that too. It isn't," Larry concluded in a kinder tone than he had been using, as they both went down the steps, "it isn't that I don't trust you. I know what you're made of. But I wouldn't trust Chris St. George as far as you could throw him with one hand.

He kissed the children, waved a hand to her.

"Behave yourself now and don't give your mother any trouble!" he called back from the front seat as he and Hugh drove away.

Her mind and senses a jumble of fear and anger and amazement, Loveday went automatically back into the house and took the children up to her mother's old room, now their playroom.

"Please dress my doll for me!" Betsy pleaded. Loveday looked thoughtfully at the tiny slippers and bath wrapper; she tied the fine cord neatly. Martha came up injured and jealous with her own bath doll. Owen seized the opportunity to toss all the furniture out of the doll's house. The three children trailed with their mother through the five connected rooms on the other side of the hall. The rooms were cool and clors; the damp air smelled of matting and draperies; Loveday tried to concentrate her thoughts upon the subject of the new apartment.

"This would be their sitting room and this the kitchen," she said half aloud. "As if anyone," Loveday added, "could possibly get my children from me!"

Suddenly, desperately, she needed Chris.

Larry had humiliated and threatened her; had given her a bad fright. Even now her heart was beginning to conquer the moment of fear. After all, she had more resource and initiative and imagination than Larry and Larry's whole family! It was not for Larry and Hugh to talk oves her head of matters that concerned only herself! She could say to a judge—"Ensign Ingersoll deserted me, your honor, left me to care for these children single-handed. He did not have regular work for months at a time. He went away without telling me where he was going. The children have never been with anyone but me."

But of course it wouldn't come to that! Little children always went with their mother. Someday perhaps the twins and Owen could visit their father's mother.

Now if only Chris wasn't angry! In the cool stormy dusk Loveday heard the telephone ring sharply and ran downstairs with her heart beating fast with apprehension.

It was a telegram. She asked the man to repeat it. It seemed too good to be true that Chris had been as hungry to see her as she had been to see him.

"May I come over on Sunday?" it read. "Must settle everything now. Much love." Signed "Chris."

Chris came every Sunday, and Loveday, with a heart that trembled and soared, lived through the weeks looking forward to that day.

Sometimes they lingered over luncheon until the children came downstairs from their naps. Loveday would feel tired and languid and utterly lazy; it was an effort to get play suits and socks and little shoes adjusted. Unless the day was unusually bright she would protest against outings.

"Oh, let's stay in where it's warm and comfortable! There's a terrible fog coming over the hill. This is my holiday, anyway," she would say to Chris. "I never waste time like this when you're not here."

"As if you ever wasted a minute! Doing everything in this big place that old slow-freight Annie Lum doesn't do!"

Hugh and Warren St. George had arranged a mortgage. The changes upstairs were being made. The carpenters' and plasterers' work fascinated the children, and on Sundays Chris and Loveday usually inspected the rooms; doors had been cut through, windows closed or enlarged; the sewing room showed great gashes in the plaster where pipes had been placed; the furniture and curtains had been packed away in the old laboratory.

"Agnes Fayre asked me what the rent was to be yesterday, Chris," Loveday said one Sunday, "and when I said seventy-five—because that's what Uncle Warren suggested—she said seriously that then she wanted to move in herself. It seems the place they have is noisy, radios going all around, and they've no storage space where here they could have rooms for it. She wants to get out all her China stuff that is packed away; she adores this house, and of course it's paradise for the children."

"Don't go on making plans as if I weren't in the picture," Chris said. "In any case, how'd you like having her here all the time?"

"I think I'd like it. Until Captain Fayre comes back we women might as well stick together. Both our husbands are away on duty."

"What on earth do you gain by waiting until Larry come back? Isn't the sensible thing to get our affair settled and out of the way? I hate the role you're making me play, Loveday. You're the most wonderful woman in the world, and one of the bravest, but you're playing a regular woman's game. It's pleasant for you here with your children and brother and friends, but it's hell for me. I have to go back to the East right after the new year—that's a month from now. That just gives you time to go to Reno, get your divorce, and follow me to New York. I'm horribly in earnest, darling, and I realize—what I'm afraid you don't—that the sooner we get all this finished the sooner everyone'll stop talking about it and begin to take it for granted."

"It's the children, Chris."

"How could he possibly do anything about taking away the children if, as Hugh says, he's flown to Honolulu?"

"Not this minute, no, of course not. But it would be hanging like a sword over my head always—every time the telephone rang I'd think it was some lawyer telling me that Ensign Ingersoll had put the case into his hands."

"He couldn't afford it, for one thing, Loveday. Children are expensive, and yours will get more and more so."

"That wouldn't worry Larry's mother. To her children only mean bread and peanut butter and public schools and ten cents for the movies every Saturday. She'd jump at the chance."

"She'd take them to spite you, you mean?"

"No, I don't think that. She was always kind to me. But she would resent my leaving Larry, getting a divorce when he was away on duty and couldn't contest it."

"If we get into this war it may be years before Larry comes back," Chris offered.

"Yes, and he may never come back," Loveday added quietly.

"I want to say something to you," he said in a sudden angry tone, "and now is as good a time as any. We've said a thousand times that we love each other, that our lives together would be one long heaven. But we don't love each other the same way! Perhaps a man and a woman never do; I don't know. But you've got strings on your love, other things to think of, reservations. I haven't!"

Tears had sprung to Loveday's eyes; "I have children, Chris. You haven't."

"I know you have, dear," he said more gently, "and they would be as precious a responsibility to me and my own—and I want my own too! could possibly be. But this is the difference. When I'm with you I'm mad with restlessness and impatience to have you come to some decision, make some plan, take the first step that will bring you nearer. And when I'm away from you I'm tortured to see you again. It's no use to tell myself that you're just a woman like any other and that I can someday forget you. That's not true. You're in my skin and my brain and heart and spirit and eyes; every minute of my life I'm seeing you and hearing you. And I can't stand it, Loveday; it's got to be one thing or another."

"Chris, can't we be patient?"

"No, I can't be patient," he said grimly.

"Tell me that you'll write Larry tonight!" he said.

"That's an awful letter to write a man who is far away, risking his life, perhaps."

"How risking his life?" Chris demanded scornfully.

"Well, he's in the navy, flying planes," she offered simply.

"Will you write him tonight?" Chris asked inflexibly.

"I'll think about it; truly I will. I'll let you know, Chris."

"You'll let me know now, this minute, or you'll never see me again."

"You—you don't mean that," she said, a little pale.

"I do mean it," he said, opening the door, turning to look at her over his shoulder, "and I think you know it! Good-bye Loveday."

He ran down the steps to his car without a backward glance.

Phrases in a hundred possible letters went through her mind; she did not write one. She could not promise to write Larry the news that would anger and embitter him. Until she could promise that, to summon Chris would be mere coquetry would justify his accusation that she was playing a woman's game.

Says Nazi Successes In West 'Only Of Tactical Significance'

Moscow, Dec. 22 (CP-Reuters) — Red Star, official organ of the Red Army, said today the German successes in the west are "only of tactical significance."

San Francisco, Dec. 22 (AP)—The Tokyo newspaper Asahi told its readers today that they must not become "too elated over the German success" in Europe.

The current German counter-attack has been hailed in all quarters of Japan, said the editorial, broadcast to the controlled Asiatic press by the Domei Agency, but the Japanese must not "sit back and relax."

The broadcast editorial, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, exhorted the Japanese to exert every effort, and to "join hands with Germany and open the road which will lead to victory."

GOEBBELS HAPPY

London, Dec. 22 (CP)—No. 1 Nazi propagandist Paul Joseph Goebbels, wrote yesterday in his periodical, "Das Reich" that the British-American offensive in the west had failed "and now threatens to turn against them."

Nazis Massacre 55 Inhabitants Of Italian Town

New York, Dec. 22—(AP)—Fifty-five men, women and children of the 200 inhabitants of the Italian village of Madonna Dell Albero, five miles south of Ravenna, were massacred by German Elite Guard troops Nov. 24, according to an overseas dispatch reported today to the Office of War Information.

The dispatch said Lieut. H. N. Acker of Toronto, a signals officer of the 1st Canadian Division, had revealed the massacre after talking to the remaining villagers. Acker, the dispatch said, had arrived at the village as the last 31 of the victims were being prepared for burial.

The Germans were angry, the villagers said, "because they suspected some of the men had gone to the Allied lines with information."

King's Horses Return to London

London, Dec. 22, (CP) — The King's horses returned to old London town and the good citizens saw it as a victory omen that the King's men wouldn't be far behind.

The team of four stately bays, carrying cockaded postillions and a coachman and drawing a brake, stopped people short when the first pranced from Buckingham Palace mews after a five-year absence on the royal farm at Windsor. But it became an almost daily occurrence as the horses stepped through their paces preparatory to the day when the King once again will drive through the streets in state.

Trudeau Motor Sales Staff Enjoys Christmas Party

Employees of Trudeau Motor Sales from the two Belleville branches and from Tweed and Stirling, along with wives and sweethearts and firm executives convened in their annual Christmas party at the Station Street plant on Thursday evening when approximately fifty persons enjoyed a bountiful dinner and a happy social time together.

Welcomed upon arrival by the firm proprietor, Mr. Jack Trudeau, dressed in conventional Santa garb, employees from the various branches of the firm and guests renewing acquaintances, heard from their employer financial operational figures from the firm's records of the past few years and topped off the evening with a spot of dancing and card playing.

Acting as master of ceremonies Mr. Trudeau officially welcomed his guests at the dinner table and following a witty introduction of employees by stock room foreman Tom Lynch, reviewed the history of the firm since its inception back in 1927.

Tribute Paid Employees.

Tribute to employees for their loyal service was paid by Mr. Trudeau as he outlined the principles of sound business organization. He pointed out the necessity of adequate capital when starting a business and the advisability of complete knowledge of operational activities. He stressed the importance of the firm dealing with, or handling, a good product, of the necessity of competent executives, and of adhering to well-defined business policies. Proper location, efficiency of production and a loyal and skilled staff were also important matters.

Factors contributing to a loyal staff were held to be fair treatment of employees, fair wages, permanancy of employment and good working conditions. Trudeau Motors had endeavored to meet these conditions stated Mr. Trudeau as he quoted operational figures, which went to prove his point.

"Our business is essentially a service," concluded Mr. Trudeau. "If we fail to render this service then we fail to complete the job expected of us. We have been able to continue this service thanks principally to the co-operation shown by our staff members."

Appreciation Expressed.

Appreciation of staff members to their employer was shown during the party when Mr. Frank Sherman presented Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau with a coffee percolator and hostess tray. Stenographers on the office staff were also suitably remembered. Welcome to the ladies was expressed by Mr. Stan Trudeau of Tweed, with response being made by Miss Grace Campbell.

Guests at the meeting included Lorne Vaughan of Keyes Supplies; A. D. McLean, Imperial Oil; Claire Riddell, Cities Service, and Bill Race, service representative from Chrysler Motors. Expressions of regret at their inability to attend the annual party were tendered by Pat Conway of Chrysler Motors, and by Mr. Sinclair and Mr. Beattie of Allis Chalmers, and by Mr. Fred Douglas of Garage Supplies.

Quotes Brig. Moss On Govt. Policy On Conscription

Montreal, Dec. 22 (CP) — The Montreal Gazette in a dispatch yesterday from Ottawa quoted Brig. James Mess, who resigned Nov. 27 as deputy adjutant-general of the Canadian Army and Director of Recruiting, as saying in an interview that his position had been made "entirely untenable" by the government's policy of limited overseas conscription.

Such a policy, designed to meet only immediate, pressing needs for infantry reinforcements, failed to assure a sustained, adequate flow of trained soldiers to the battlefronts as long as they may be required, and left an open question as to whether future shortages would be promptly met, Brigadier Mess said.

The only effective way in which the continuing needs overseas could be fully met was immediate and unlimited conscription with complete equality of service. Holding such views, he felt he could not honorably continue to serve as recruiting director in implied support of a partial conscription policy which he did not endorse.

British Wren, Lifeboat Crew Saved 7 Lives

London, Dec. 22 — (CP)—Building two floating harbors and transporting them to Normandy cost many lives — among them men of the Canadian corvettes Regina and Alberni, sunk while convoying the ports — but this is the story of seven lives saved.

A 80-mile gale, a fast-driving British Wren in a purloined staff car and the nine-man crew of a small lifeboat combined to make one of the classic sea-rescue stories of the war.

Seven men were working on a concrete caisson for one of the 'Mulberry' artificial ports when the gale began. Because the work was vital to the invasion, they stayed on the job. The caisson snapped its mooring and was blown up the English Channel, pounded by 30-foot waves.

A Wren on duty nearby saw what happened but all telephone lines were down. She jumped into the nearest staff car and raced to the home of Sidney Cann, 44-year-old fisherman and coxswain of the lifeboat, Violet Armstrong, 21 tons.

With eight volunteers he put to sea in the worst storm to hit that area in almost 50 years. Eight hours later, just at nightfall, the caisson was sighted, rapidly crumbling under the pounding of the gale.

It took smart seamanship but a line was thrown across and the 7 men were pulled aboard the lifeboat. Not one was seriously hurt.

Sweepers' Crews Are Commended

Ottawa, Dec. 22. (CP) —Crews of the Canadian minesweepers Guysborough and Georgian have won commendation for "loyal and devoted services" in operations off the coast of France after D-Day, June sixth.

A navy press release said the tribute came from the senior officer of the Royal Navy's 14th flotilla, in which the two Canadian sweepers served. The ships have since rejoined a Canadian group.

The tribute said in part:

"You have been a credit to the Canadian naval service and the spirit which has animated this flotilla has been in accordance with the best tradition of the British navy".

Guysborough's commanding officer is Lieut. B. R. Russel, of Halifax and Red Deer, Alta., and Georgian is commanded by Lt.-Cmdr. D. W. Main of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Starting sweeps before D-Day, Georgian was the first Canadian ship to dispose of a mine during the flotilla's assault sweep. She had the greatest number to her credit—six in all.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 22 —(CP)— Index gains were boarded by the mining groups and the industrials in the early session today and the western oils held unchanged. Volume was small at 220,000 for the first three hours.

Better prices ruled for the utilities, steels and miscellaneous issues and other industrial groups were steady. The golds posted a margin of gains, the strong issues including Macassa, Giant Yellowknife, Donalda, Bear, Beattie and Transcontinental Resources. Frobisher firmed to 7.50 for a gain of 35 cents. Steep Rock, Noranda and Hudson Bay were base metal gainers.

The western oil share market was steady on light trade. British-Dominion and Mid-Continent were up narrowly.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Dec. 22 — (AP) — A brisk rally in rails and selected industrials pulled the stock market out of the doldrums today and scattered favorites touched new 7-year tops with gains running to more than 2 points. Principal inspiration for resumption of the upswing was the belief the Nazi thrust in Europe would prolong the war and bolster carriers and other issues in the armament category.

Extreme advances were trimmed here and there near the fourth hour as dealings slackened.

TRENTON

Fire Damages E. A. Simmons' Store at Trenton

Trenton, Dec. 22 —(Special)— Fire which broke out in the furnace room, allegedly caused by overheated pipes, of the E. A. Simmons Drug Store in Trenton shortly after noon today, caused a great deal of damage. The blaze was soon brought under control but damage caused by smoke and water was considerable, an estimate is not yet completed.

The Simmons family reside over the store and Mrs. Simmons, who has been ill, was removed from the apartment before any danger existed.

HOGS

Toronto, Dec. 22 —(CP)— Prices were unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting today. Dressedweight, Grade A, delivered, London, Barrie and Hamilton $17.50; Hull $17.75.

Weekly Livestock Report

Toronto, Dec. 22. (CP)—Cattle, Sheep and Lamb prices were unchanged in trade on the Livestock Market here this week. Calves gained 50 cents to $1 cwt. and hogs were 25 to 35 cents cwt. higher.

Some 600 fresh cattle loaded before last week's embargo became effective were on the opening market along with 2,700 common cattle left from last week. The supply was cleared by Tuesday and the embargo was lifted on Wednesday. Subsequent arrivals were fairly well cleared at steady prices.

Cutter and canner cows were $5 to $6.50 with butcher cows $7 to $9. Boner steers and heifers were $6.50 to $7.50, a few butcher steers $9 to $11.50, heifers $11 downward, medium to good weighty steers $11 to $12.35 and some choice steers reached $12.85. Fed yearlings were $12 to $13.50, a few culls $6-$8.50. There were no sales of any account on stockers. Good milkers and springers were $130 to $150 each.

Calves worked higher on a moderate run closing $15.50 to $16.50 for choice with occasional tops $17, common to medium vealers $9 to $15. A few grass calves were $6 cwt.

Hogs closed $18.25 to $18.35 Grade A dressed, $17.85-$17.95 B1.

Lambs were $12.50 to $15 cwt. Bucks were $1 cwt. Discount and culls $6 to $9. Sheep were $2 to $5.

Receipts for the week were:— Cattle 1,965, calves 1,136, hogs 4,475 and sheep and lambs 2,042. Receipts for the year to date were: Cattle 260,805, calves 104,051, hogs 173,816, sheep and lambs 162,373. Receipts last year from Jan. 1 totalled, cattle 229,647, calves 94,770, hogs 170,787, sheep and lambs 125,894.

French Industries Supply Many Items To Allied Air Forces

Paris, Dec. 22 (AP)—Reviving French industries now are supplying hundreds of needed items to the Allied air forces on a reverse lend-lease basis, Col. Milvin C. Smith, chief of the Air Service Command procurement section, said today.

Smith disclosed strategic and tactical air forces already had received 2,225,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas for use in weather squadron drift balloons, and 3,500,000 feet of film for wing cameras.

French factories also have supplied the air forces with mattresses, stove pipes for pyramid tents and various items of radio equipment and electrical appliances.

DENIES REPORT HESS IS INSANE

High Official Source Says However He Suffers Fits of Depression

London, Dec. 21 (CP Cable) — A high official source denied today a report that Rudolf Hess, Hitler's former Deputy, now a prisoner in England, was insane but said he suffers fits of acute depression and occasional outbursts of rage.

Otherwise, he said, the man who flew to Britain in 1941 with a purported peace bid, is quite "all there."

Hess continues to be treated as a high-ranking prisoner of war, although he is accorded no special privileges.

Meanwhile the London News Chronicle reported that Hess has a permanent guard of 30 officers and men and that his "trying moods," including "towering rages" make guarding him a very trying task."

ROCKETS AGAINST THE ALLIES — FROM THE NAZI SIDE

This photograph, coming to us through neutral sources is one of the first from the Nazi side showing the launching of rockets against the Allies. The Nazis say, "Rocket weapons are launched against Anglo-American forces, from secret hiding places in the woods." The launching place is hidden by a screen of trees. The only visible traces of the rockets are their paths of vapor arching into the sky.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

With the R.C.A.F. Overseas, Dec. 22 (CP) — Shuttle-bombing was employed for the first time by the R.C.A.F. Typhoon fighter-bomber wing in Holland when it attacked and destroyed lock-gates on two important inland canal systems.

Nearly fifty Typhoons swarmed over the two targets after leapfrogging their way from their base to the first target, back to a midway airfield, then on to the second target and back home.

Two full squadrons acted as fighter cover and anti-flak escort but not opposition of any kind was encountered.

One set of double locks was at Sneek, northeast of Zuider Zee, and the second at Grijpskerk, connecting two inland lakes on the northern coast.

Airmen participating in the attacks included FO. Walter Ward of (29 East St.) Toronto; Flt. Lt. Donald Banting, Fort San, Sask.; FO. Dean Washburn of Fernie, B.C.; FO. Bob Spooner of Victoria; Flt. Sgt. Robert Fox of Regina; FO. Nicholas Rassenti of (2069 Hampton Ave.) Montreal; FO. Bernard Swingler of (351 Wolseley St.) Port Arthur and FO. Ivan Smith, Calgary.

Now the Iroquois Squadron has converted to Canadian-built Lancasters the unit's unofficial mascot —"in a fever of excitement" as the R.C.A.F. puts it—has taken to flying on "ops" with the boys.

The mascot is a Red Indian ragamuffin doll. Her name is Minnie Simcoe, the surname from the Ontario town which is the Iroquois' sponsoring organization.

Minnie has her own logbook. She has flown as second pilot twice, wireless operator's mate once. She attends briefing before an operation and interrogation afterwards.

Billy Poag of Listowel, Ont., had to work underground in a mine to earn money to learn to be a flier. Today he is Wing Cmdr. W. F. Poag recently appointed commanding officer of an R.C.A.F. anti-submarine squadron in Iceland.

His work in the mine gave him enough money for an aviation course and finally he won his commercial pilot's licence.

"Then I bothered Algoma Air Transport so much they gave me a job flying prospectors and supplies to remote lakes from their base at South Porcupine, Ont.," he said. "I started bush flying with only 110 hours on my log book."

Roaring down the slopes of 3,000 foot mountains in Norway, rocket-firing Beaufighters of the RCAF's Buffalo squadron in Coastal Command led by FO. Louis Boileau of Port Francis, Ont., attacked five enemy ships in a fjord. An explosion occurred aboard one medium-sized ship; another was badly damaged; and one of three coasters was left burning.

"It was just like tobogganing back home." was the way FO. A. E. Foord of (290 Salem Ave.) described the attack.

Aussie Nurses Help Wounded in Pacific

Canberra, Australia, Dec. 22 (CP) —Australian nurses, member of the Medical Air Evacuation Transport Unit, are doing splendid work in New Guinea, carrying patients of all arms of the services in co-operation with United States medical services.

A day in the life of these sisters begins at 2.30 a.m. when they get up, have breakfast, and are in the planes by 4.30 a.m.

They fly in the big transport planes, taking goods and machinery up to the front lines. There they pick up wounded, fly them back to a hospital and then return to their own base. They are flying all day.

The girls wear flying jackets lined with lamb's wool, navy forage cap, khaki slacks, gaiters and shirts and army boots. They live under canvas and are based near Nadzab. Gardening is their chief hobby.

"We've grown wonderful gardens in five weeks," said one. "Radishes grow in three days, and we have zinnias too.

"Gardening is so simple. We go out into the jungle, dig up a six-foot hibiscus, bring it back, put it in our gardens, and next day it's out in bloom."

Have a "Coke"= Merry Christmas

. . . adding refreshment to holiday cheer

The spirit of good will rules the Christmas season. It's a time to get together with friends and family . . . a time when all we mean by home in its graciousness and friendliness is at its peak. In such an atmosphere Coca-Cola belongs, ice-cold and sparkling with life. There's a whole story of hospitality in the three words Have a "Coke"— three words that express a friendly spirit the whole year 'round. Yes, Coca-Cola and the pause that refreshes are everyday symbols of a way of living that takes friendliness for granted.

"Coke"=Coca-Cola

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called "Coke". 517

Two Members Attack British Policy Toward Baltic States

London, Dec. 21. (CP)—Two Conservatives attacked British policy toward the Baltics in the House of Commons today but George Hall, undersecretary of State for Foreign Affairs, declined to agree with a contention that the people of Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania had been "left in the lurch".

Sir Herbert Williams asked whether Russia's absorption of the countries was "inconflict with the principles of the Atlantic Charter and our agreement with the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics". He also asked the government to explain "why we have left these peoples in the lurch".

"I don't know that it can be said that they have been left in the lurch", Mr. Hall replied. "Since 1940 no government in these territories has sought or indeed been accorded recognition by the government".

He did not answer when Maurice Petherick, another Conservative, said the three Baltic countries had been under Russian domination for something under 100 years, and asked whether "you will see to it that what is condemned in the case of Germany will not be condoned in the case of Russia".

Admiralty Searches Into Secret Files

London, Dec. 22 — (CP)—British Admiralty officials dug into their secret files today to determine whether the three British wireless operators who transmitted the historic Atlantic Charter memoranda from the battleship Prince of Wales were living or dead.

The battleship was sunk by Japanese planes off Malaya Dec. 10, 1941

Besides President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, their aides and handful of high-ranking naval intelligence officers, wireless operators were the only persons to see the actual series of memoranda signed by the two leaders and known as the Atlantic Charter.

The President told a news conference in Washington Tuesday the Charter never had been drafted into a document but existed as a series of memoranda which was turned over to radio operators for transmission at the time of the conference at sea.

LAST CLASS IS HELD

St. Catharines, Dec. 21 —(CP)— The last class of R.C.A.F. wireless operators to train here graduated yesterday from No. 4 Wireless Flying School. The school will close about Jan. 1.

For the first time since the school was opened in October, 1940, as an elementary flying training school, a formal graduation ceremony was held. More than 125 were in the class.

USE FOUND FOR EMERGENCY COFFIN

Long Buckby, Northampton, Dec. 21 —(CP)— In 54 years as an undertaker Josiah Charles Luck made 1,700 coffins, including an abnormally long one which he told his wife was for an emergency when he might be unable to make it. When he died at the age of 80 the emergency coffin was found just the right size for himself.

GERMAN FORCES WITHIN 29 MILES OF SEDAN
REDS OPEN DRIVE ON LATVIAN POCKET, REPORT

Enter By-Passed Belgian Road Key Town of Bastogne

U.S. Losses Believed Serious Both in Men and Material

By JAMES M. LONG
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Dec. 23 (AP).—A powerful German armored smash hammering more than 40 miles across Luxembourg and into Belgium had reached within 29 miles of historic Sedan by Thursday noon, and Germans had entered the by-passed Belgian road key of Bastogne, it was disclosed today.

Allied supreme headquarters said the strong central wedge of the German counter-offensive had careened 12 miles beyond Bastogne to St. Hubert, 29 miles northeast of Sedan, scene of the 1940 break-through, two days ago.

A field dispatch said the Germans had entered the surrounded city of Bastogne, four miles inside Belgium, and had won control of Wiltz, 10 miles farther east inside Luxembourg. These actions also occurred Thursday.

Events of the last 48 hours were cloaked in the security news ban.

Deepest Penetration.

The plunge to St. Hubert marked the deepest penetration by the Germans, sweeping clear across Luxembourg and 20 miles on into Belgium. It has sprung from Vianden near the Reich frontier.

The Germans' northern wedge also was reported about 40 miles into Belgium in the area west of Hablemont and Malmedy.

Headquarters said that up to noon Thursday the garrison in Bastogne still were holding out, and reported Wiltz overrun, with no word of the fate of the garrison there.

But information given correspondents in the field said Bastogne had been entered, and the Germans had taken control of Wiltz.

Bastogne is on a main highway running south from Liege. Farther south a third enemy wedge was reported threatening Arlon on the same highway.

St. Hubert is 12 miles southwest of Laroche, an area where the enemy had crossed the Ourthe River at one place.

The allied command gave no word of any further progress by a German column which veered 12 miles northwest of Bastogne and reached as far as Laroche and crossed the Ourthe River, nor by a second formation which branched to the south west and cut the road south from Bastogne to Arlon.

By latest accounts, the stiffened defence was holding on the northern penetration front in the St. Vith-Stavelot-Malmedy wedge. The Allied communique said all three towns still were in American hands.

Associated Press war correspondent Hal Boyle reported the tip of that northern wedge which had penetrated as far as Hablemont and Werbomont had been cut off by Americans along the narrow Ambleve River a short distance west of Stavelot.

Pour in More Armor.

Into the whole wedge, however, the Germans had brought up supporting artillery in an attempt to blast out the lines of infantry who had fought Field Marshal von Rundstedt's first steel wave to a stop. The Germans were pouring in more armor for a second try.

New German attacks east of Malmedy near the villages of Faymonville and Bullange were fought to a standstill.

The Germans had lost 200 tanks in five days' fighting around Malmedy.

Both flanks along the German break-through — at Monschau on the north and near Echternach on the south — still were regarded as firmly held.

Supreme Headquarters maintained silence on German radio reports that the U. S. 3rd Army had been thrown into counter-action against the lower end of the German drive.

Writing from 21st Army Group headquarters, Associated Press war correspondent Roger D. Greene said it would be premature to say that Von Rundstedt's scheme had failed, if he hopes to sweep across the Meuse river, some 65 miles west of the Belgian border, in the first rush.

"But it was clear," this dispatch continued, "the Allies were gaining important time, and that with every passing day Gen. Eisenhower's counter-measures were growing stronger."

LEFTISTS STAGE STRONG ATTACK IN N. W. GREECE

The announcement asserted the attack was in violation of an agreement signed by the opposing Greek forces of Caserta before Allied forces landed in Greece to drive out the Germans.

The official communique said 'a deep penetration into the Rightist territory had been made by the E.L.A.S. It was reported unofficially that these ranged up to 20 miles. The E.L.A.S. forces are commanded by Gen. Sarafis.

British forces landed this morning on the north side of Piraeus harbor, the communique said, and have made good progress in clearing out the insurgent forces. Progress also has been made in Athens in subduing the E.L.A.S.

25-Minute Truce.

A 25-minute truce silenced a section of Athens last night while an E.L.A.S. messenger delivered a reply to Lt.-Gen. R. M. Scobie, British commander, on his cease-fire ultimatum. The contents of the note were not immediately revealed.

Firing resumed after the truce was ended and there were indications the E.L.A.S. were unwilling to agree flatly to Scobie's terms.

(A Cairo broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission said that E.L.A.S.' headquarters already had been removed outside Athens in accordance with Scobie's first condition, and that there were reports the E.L.A.S. had accepted almost all the British commander's terms.

(Ankara radio said it was believed the E.L.A.S. had agreed to evacuate Attica, that E.L.A.S. troops in Athens and Piraeus would be disarmed, and that a new national unit government would be formed.)

Small arms fire still echoed through Athens today as Scobie considered the reply to his ultimatum. The E.L.A.S. apparently were withdrawing from the southern suburbs to the north.

A British warship bombarded E.L.A.S. concentrations north of Piraeus in the clearing operations which continued throughout yesterday on the west side of the main harbor. Stiff opposition was encountered by the British north of the Kallipolis Peninsula.

U.S. HEAVIES OUT FOR FIRST TIME IN 3 DAYS

British Bombers Raid Railroad Yards At Coblenz and Bingen Behind Nazi Lines

London, Dec. 23. (CP)—United States heavyweights and fighters swept out from England for the first time in three days today and bombed targets in Western Germany.

Taking advantage of better weather which has held Allied air forces fog-bound for days while the German offensive proceeded, the big bombers hit their targets before 7.30 a.m.

However, the size of the attack was not comparable to some of the heavy blows landed in past weeks. The targets were not named immediately.

British Lancasters and Halifaxes also took advantage of the first clear night to raid railroad yards at Coblenz and Bingen, on the Rhine behind German spearheads.

Six German fighters were shot down and three British planes were lost in the night operations.

R.A.F. Mosquito fighter bombers also got in several licks at German transport behind the Belgian battle-front last night. One freight train loaded with ammunition "blew up from end to end," the Air Ministry said. One pilot shot down a Junkers bomber near Verviers, Belgium.

Although a supreme headquarters communique said continued adverse weather yesterday again prevented the weight of Allied air power from being thrown into the fight, British fighters and bombers flew 300 sorties, mostly over the U.S. 1st army front.

American fighter-bombers operating farther south shot down six German interceptors but lost four of their own in a dogfight east of Freiburg.

Prime Minister Given $50,000 From Mulock Will

Toronto, Dec. 23 — (CP) — Sir William Mulock, who died Oct. 1, aged 101, left $50,000 to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, it was disclosed today when his will was filed for probate.

The will of the former chancellor of the University of Toronto disposed of an estate of $2,500,000.

Sir William was responsible for introducing Mr. Mackenzie King into public life when, while Minister of Labor in 1900, he selected the then young student as his deputy minister. They were close friends until Sir William's death.

$10,200 IN CASH TAKEN

Montreal, Dec. 23. (CP)— A lone armed bandit entered the home of Joseph Ducas, elderly horse dealer, last night and robbed him of $10,200 in cash, Ducas reported to police.

However, the bandit failed to take $1,814 which he had in another pocket.

R.C.N. Expected To Quickly Adapt Itself to Pacific War

By FRANK LOWE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, Dec. 23 (CP)—That second great war baby, the Royal Canadian Navy, which found its sea legs on the North Atlantic and developed its punch in hard-hitting English Channel surface actions, will have to pick up some new tricks when it moves into the Pacific. But, with the resourcefulness it has shown through five war years, it soon will get the knack.

In fact, from reports heard here it seems that the young men who skipper Canada's fighting ships and the desk-bound strategists who plot their actions are rapidly getting set for the war of "ghost" fleets in the vast reaches of the Pacific.

They call it the war of "ghost" fleets because the navies hammering at Japan will have to sail without any visible means of support. They will appear out of the mist thousands of miles from any land bases, deliver their blows, then vanish again.

It is hoped that this type of warfare, something new to Canadians but already an old story to United States and Royal Navy craft, will so chop up Japan's waterborne supply lines that her armies now flung around the perimeters of her stolen Empire will collapse.

It is taken for granted by navy men here that Canada's navy, or the one-third of her 85,000 men and nearly 700 ships which probably will make up our far eastern effort, will soon get the swing of it.

In fact, their preparations are already underway. The secret of this long-range warfare is supply ships—navy ships that sail with the fleet equipped to do everything from fix a broken propeller to refit it with guns.

Such floating bases now are in production in Canada. Pictures of the first ones being launched from St. Lawrence and Pacific coast shipyards have already been released.

And, the splashes they make as they wet their keels are milestones marking a new era in Canadian naval expansion as well as cold water douches on the hopes Japan once had for world domination.

Christmas Thoughts

Merry Christmas . . . the familiar greeting that in times of peace carried its full literal meaning, but in these dark days of war is one that is tinged somewhat with sadness . . . and remembrance. We should remember as little children shout their Christmas morning joy; as sleighbells tinkle merrily in the snow, and as we sit safe and comfortable before warm hearth and cosy fire, those people of ours and of others who will not see or experience them until the dawn of peace breaks over a war-torn earth.

On the far-flung fighting fronts of the world, where the crusaders of civilization are battling in a struggle to the death, Christmas Day will be just another twenty-four hours of blood and sweat, suffering and pain. There will be little or no respite for these heroes. There will be little Christmas joy. But they, too, will pause to remember that back home someone is thinking of them.

There will be many vacant chairs in Canadian homes this Christmas. Some will never be filled. Christmas for those mothers, wives and sweethearts whose heroes rest in a foreign soil, will be tinged with sorrow — and yet with pride. In millions of homes little children will wish the picture of a daddy, some of them as yet not seen, a Merry Christmas.

We all have faith that we shall be victorious in this struggle even though news of the past few days has been anything but heartening. We, too, often forget, however, that the time until final Victory is not measured in days, hours or minutes but rather in the blood and suffering of the boys over there. Every delay, even of a minute, means brave men die, because we falter.

Let us then, this Christmas Day reaffirm that faith and decide that we shall not falter nor fail, but firmly resolve that from this Day we shall think only of efforts toward final and lasting Victory and Peace. We must drive through the Valley of Death to the sunshine of a world of peace, good will toward men; a world not of oppression and tyranny but of liberty and justice where all men may live in harmony.

This is the sacred duty bequeathed to us by those who have died and who are dying in all corners of a war-ravaged globe. We must keep faith that they may sleep in the knowledge that they have not died in vain and that some day in the very near future all peoples of the earth will unite in saying to each other in the true sense of the word . . . A Merry Christmas.

Nearly 700,000 Persons Including British And U.S. Prisoners, Slain

London, Dec. 23 — (CP) — The Moscow radio said today an extraordinary Soviet commission had established that nearly 700,000 persons, including an undetermined number of Britons and Americans from German prison camps, were tortured and slain in the Nazi extermination camp at Lwow.

The broadcast, recorded here by the Soviet Monitor, said an additional 200,000 persons were killed in another Nazi camp at Janow, and that children were slaughtered in target practice.

The broadcast did not make clear whether the Britons and Americans were prisoners of war or civilians and did not state their number.

Relating eyewitness descriptions of the most horrible terror-tactics, the broadcast said the commission had established Heinrich Himmler's direct participation in the Lwow atrocities. It said the Gestapo chief visited Lwow, in the eastern part of what was prewar Poland, several times. It was overrun by the Russians some time ago.

The broadcast said the commission's report was confirmed by numerous statements of Soviet citizens, as well as by French prisoners who were liberated by the advancing Red Army in Lwow.

Used as Target Practice

"Children were selected and given to detachments of Hitler youth as targets for shooting practice," the commission said.

Many Frenchmen and Englishmen also were killed by slow degrees in a camp at Rava Russkaya, the report said. A Frenchman was quoted as saying that when he arrived at the camp in September, 1942, there was only one water tap for the use of 12,000 persons, and the prisoners were allowed to use it only a few hours a day.

The commission's report said a typhoid epidemic was introduced in one camp by deliberately putting typhoid sufferers among healthy prisoners. It took 8,000 lives, the commission said.

The report described special measures taken on Himmler's orders in June, 1943, when thousands of corpses were exhumed and burned and the ashes sifted by special machines. By this means, the report said, 110,000 kilograms of gold was recovered and sent back to Germany.

The commission said a special school had been established at Lwow to train cadres for exhuming bodies and burning them. Later the sites were camouflaged with trees and bushes.

25,000 Troops Left B. Columbia In Seven Months

Vancouver, Dec. 23 (CP)—Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, General Officer-Commander-in-Chief, Pacific command, announced yesterday that 25,000 troops have left British Columbia in the last seven months, destined eventually for service overseas.

Gen. Pearkes said 15,000 men left B.C. in the last month and 10,000 troops in the six months before that. The figures included home defence troops moved to new training camps in eastern Canada.

Under a recent Order-in-Council up to 16,000 home defence troops were made available for service overseas to swell the flow of volunteer reinforcements.

OFFICER SHELL-SHOCKED

Leeds, England, Dec. 23 —(CP)— An American army officer just back from the Western Front, was taken to hospital suffering from shell-shock last night after he had barricaded himself in a hotel room with a Sten gun for six hours and threatened all who attempted to enter.

Take Rapid Advantage Of Break-Through At Naviglio Bridgehead Near Baganacavallo

Rome, Dec. 23 (AP) — Canadian troops of the British 8th. Army have established a six-mile front along the Senio River northeast of Faenza, in the face of stout German resistance, it was announced today.

Backed up by armor which pushed across the Fosso Munio under cover of a heavy smoke screen, the Canadians spread out along the east bank of the Senio for six miles. This advance placed them in the area of Alfonsine, 7½ miles north-northeast of Bagnacavallo.

Mezzano, three miles northeast of Faenza, was captured while a push to the north was clearing German rearguards from east of Naviglio and south of Bagnacavallo.

The Senio is the next water-barrier facing the Canadian Corps following their crossing of the Lamone River in a surprise attack on December 10, their breaching of the Naviglio Canal defences — where fighting raged fiercely for days, and their seizure of the vital road hub of Bagnacavallo, announced yesterday.

Capture of Bagnacavallo— eight miles north of Faenza—marked the third communications centre taken by the 8th. in its current offensive since Lt.-Gen. Foulkes' corps went back into action December 2. Two of them—Ravenna and Bagnacavallo—fell to Canadian troops.

It was reported today that United States troops of the Allied 5th. Army had made local gains south of Bologna. near Monte Belonte.

German Women Used in Battle

London, Dec. 23 —(CP Reuters)— English-speaking German women, equipped with knives, are being dropped by parachute inside the American lines, according to the Daily Telegraph's Paris correspondent quoting "reports from an area near the 1st Army front" today.

Seven are said to have been arrested and to have confessed that their mission was to seduce American soldiers and then kill them, the correspondent added.

30 Nazi Divisions Pocketed Against the Baltic Sea

Moscow, Dec. 23. (AP)—An official Soviet announcement of the destruction of 101 German tanks in a 24- hour period ending Thursday night gave support today to German reports that the Red Army's great winter offensive is getting under way.

The fact that the long eastern front now lies under hard, firm snow, with deep freezes, offers the Russians just the kind of weather needd for their slashing attack. Throughout the war they have always commenced their biggest winter operations in just such weather and temperatures.

The Soviets are better equipped than the Germans and the record shows conclusively that they are consistently able to outfight them when the cold sets in.

The Russian high command did not say where the Nazis suffered this huge loss of panzers. The Germans, however, reported that a mighty force of 270,000 winter-hardened Russian troops was on the move in snow-swept Latvia, where an estimated thirty Nazi divisions are pocketed against the Baltic.

Further official reports of these huge tank losses would mean that a terrific panzer battle is going on somewhere and the sector is not likely to be Slovakia, for it is mountainous country not suited for tank operations.

Large-Scale Fighting.

There was a livelihood that large-scale fighting was taking place in the five-mile-wide strip between the Ipoly and the Gran rivers north-east of Budapest, although the high command was saying nothing about it.

Berlin broadcasts described the Soviet surge in Latvia as "a big push of extreme operational importance".

Reports here early today said the long eastern front was stirring into action.

Red Army units at the southern end of the front drove to within nine miles of the important Slovakian rail centre of Losonc (Lucenec), threatening to engulf a sizeable force of Germans pushed from the Hungarian Matra Mountains by another Russian drive up from the south.

The communiqeu announced the capture of seven Slovak localities east of Losonc and ten others in Northern Hungary southeast of the city, including the six-way rail junction of Kistey. In this area the Russians took 1,755 prisoners Thursday, the bulletin said.

Allied Soldiers on W. Front To Spend Christmas Fighting for Their Lives

London, Dec. 23 (CP — A heavy snowfall along much of the western front has guaranteed a white Christmas for many Allied fighting men, but in that respect alone will it be like the traditional Yuletide.

A great proportion of them will be fighting for their lives.

Some have the prospect of spending Christmas surrounded by Germans, others of wielding guns in counter attacks designed to drive the enemy back into Germany.

Turkey has been taken to the front but not all will get it on Christmas Day. Most of those in the line will eat the usual canned rations. Their turkey will be saved and they will have Christmas dinner when they come out of battle—if they come out.

Some Germans may feast on American Christmas turkey, too, for they have captured much material in their Winter offensive and it is probable that Yuletide items were included in the booty.

Hundreds of thousands of Christmas parcels from home already have reached the troops in France.

The Christmas dinner planned for each soldier of the British 2nd. Army consists of canned chicken, fig pudding, a box of cigarets and candy, and a small flask of rum.

In his annual Christmas message to his British and Canadian troops, Field Marshal Montgomery told them that "together, you and I, we have achieved much. And together we will see the thing through to the end."

The soldiers themselves are playing Santa Claus in a big way. An example is one U.S. hospital where the patients have donated their own candy and other gifts for a party at which 700 British youngsters will be feted. Similar events will take place in France. Belgium and Holland.

6-POINT PROGRAM PLANNED TO EASE HOUSINGSHORTAGE

Ottawa, Dec. 23 — (CP) — The federal government now is awaiting the response of municipal authorities to its proposal that emergency shelter administrators be appointed in certain areas, to be specified shortly, where serious congestion exists so that the best use may be made of available housing accommodation in such localities.

The government yesterday announced a six-point program designed to assist in overcoming the housing shortage and providing for the appointment of administrators of shelter so that hardships may be prevented and alleviated.

Finance Minister Ilsley, whose department includes the Prices Board, under which rental regulations are placed, has written provincial governments advising them that the board will be prepared to appoint shelter administrators and that the appointments will be made unless the municipalities concerned oppose them.

Co-operation Imperative

The regulations, which have been passed by order-in-council, provide that every person in a congested area must co-operate with shelter administrators; that no landlord, except by permission of an administrator, may refuse to rent to tenants on the ground they have children; that without the concurrence of the administrator no premises such as barracks, hostels, houses, apartments, rooms or flats may be closed or their use for dwelling purposes restricted.

They also provide that field surveys and registrations will be taken in congested areas as part of the effort to make spare rooms available, and that administrators may prescribe how any premises capable of being used as a dwelling shall be used or take possession of and use any shelter or require any person to rent any shelter. All listings of available shelter will be centralized in the local administrator's office.

Use of Available Accommodation

Mr. Ilsley said the government felt it "imperative" that the best use be made of available accommodation, "and, working with the authorities concerned, we intend to provide an administrative organization to help alleviate the problem."

City and District News

AUTO RECOVERED BY CITY POLICE

City police announced today they had recovered a motor car reported stolen here on Thursday. The automobile is the property of Gerald Radford, R.R. 3 Belleville, and was stolen from the downtown area doubtless by joy riders. Left in the vehicle was a $50 war bond that was in the glove compartment at the time it was taken.

PARKED CAR HIT BY HIT-RUN DRIVER

A hit-and-run motor crash resulted in damage to a parked motor car at the intersection of Victoria avenue and William street on Friday. Mrs. Robt. Graham, Sidney Township, parked her automobile at this point while visiting friends. When the woman returned she found the left rear fender damaged and the tail light broken off as the result of being struck by a hit-and-run motor vehicle. No noise was heard indicating an accident had occurred, Mrs. Graham reported to police.

EMPSON McCORMICK HEARD IN BROADCAST

Empson McCormick, son of Mr. Ernest McCormick of this city, and now director of the United States Navy School of Music in Washington, was heard over the air Friday night in a broadcast of the Navy Choral Group over a coast to coast network.

Mr. McCormick, himself a distinguished musician, directs the large chorus of male voices of the Navy and will lead his group of talented singers at the official lighting of the huge Christmas tree at the White House, Washington, on Christmas Day.

At the regular meeting of the Knights of Columbus which was held on December 20, Grand Knight George O'Brien caused quite a little flurry among the members present when he announced that he had received a $100 war bond for the Council sent by an anonymous donor as a token of appreciation of the wonderful work the society was doing, especially among the boys in the armed forces. Grand Knight O'Brien said he had no idea as to the donor's identity. All he could gather was that the person was a non-Catholic.

A short discussion ensued as to the proper allocation of the bond. It was finally resolved that the bond be bought by the Council at face value and the proceeds put aside for charity work.

The Grand Knight also announced that in conforming with the recent resolution of the Council to repeat last year's gesture, he had sent a one pound note to every member of the Council serving in the armed forces; remittance having been made early enough to reach the boys in ample time for Christmas.

Purse Snatcher Active in City

Knocking 70-year-old Mrs. Helen Lewington, 15 Everett street, to the pavement, a purse snatcher successfully made off with the elderly lady's purse containing over $19 and identification papers early Friday evening.

Mrs. Lewington told police she was walking along Everett street, near the intersection of Jane street, when a strange man approached from the rear and pushing the elderly lady into the snowbank snatched her purse and ran easterly to disappear along Jane street. After recovering from her shock Mrs. Lewington was assisted into Kellaway's grocery store from where the police were notified. P.C. Evans responded, but the elderly lady's assailant had had ample time to escape.

Police were afforded a meagre description of Mrs. Lewington's assailant, who was described as being short in stature, wearing a black overcoat and a peaked cap. The immediate area about Jane and Coleman streets was scoured in anticipation that the purse snatcher had removed the cash from the purse and thrown it away. The search proved futile, however. Fortunately Mrs. Lewington did not suffer any serious injuries as she was pushed heavily into the Everett street snowbank.

Florists Report Record Business This Christmas

A rose at any other price would smell as sweete, but what does price matter when the little woman, or the girl friend wants flowers for Christmas.

And they will get them. Florists of the city report the largest business in years, one that would be even greater if the supply could meet the demand.

The popular trend was toward roses, and the lads paid plenty of coin of the realm to get their favorite flowers. Today there wasn't a rose in town, and about the only flowers available were cauliflowers and they were scarce.

Potted plants also were in heavy demand and many ladies of the city will awaken on Christmas morning to find a lovely bloom on her breakfast table.

But some will be disappointed and over-worked florists, despite their efforts to secure sufficient stocks were forced to turn away a lot of lucrative business.

Two Accidents Due to Roads

Snow-covered streets were attributed in some measure to two motor vehicle crashes in the city on Friday. Early in the day an automobile driven by Harry Fenn, 53 Cannifton Road, was in collision with a truck driven by Herb McCabe, 102 Chatham Street, resulting in extensive body damage to the lighter vehicle. Mr. McCabe was backing his truck out of a private driveway as Mr. Fenn was proceeding south on Chatham St.

Friday evening a Ford roadster driven by Francis Hunt, of Read, skidded into the rear of a city bus at the upper bridge stop. The bus was proceeding north on Front St. when it was necessary to make a regular stop near the upper bridge. Following behind was Hunt in the roadster. He could not bring the lighter car under control before it collided with the rear of the bus. Police stated today a traffic charge would be preferred against Hunt.

Otherwise in police circles officials were busied Friday night warning pre-Christmas celebrants who had tilted the elbow too freely. In the majority of cases only a word of caution was necessary to have the parties realize their position.

Obituary

MISS R. LILIAS BARKER
(Picton)

Picton, Dec. 23 — Member of one of Picton's oldest families, Miss Rose Lilias Barker, passed away in hospital here following a short illness. The funeral was held at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Publow, Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Hope Swayne officiated. Interment in Glenwood Cemetery. The pall bearers were J. deB. Arnaud, J. deC. Hepburn, G. T. Walmsley, H. B. Tully, E. A. Pearce, R. B. Small.

Miss Barker was born in Picton, daughter of David John Barker and Rose Jellett. A lover of flowers, the garden at her residence "Old Grange," was one of the town's beauty spots. She was a life-long member of the Anglican Church. She was an ardent golfer.

Survivors are two sisters, Mrs. C. A. Publow, Picton and Mrs. David G. Robertson, Ottawa.

MRS. MATILDA WILLIAMS
(Trenton)

Trenton, Dec. 23. (Special)—The funeral of Mrs. Matilda Williams took place on Thursday morning from her late residence, 20 Nicholas Street, to the Church of St. Peter-in-Chains where Requiem Mass was celebrated. Interment took place in Mount Calvary Cemetery.

The late Mrs. Williams, who died on Dec. 18, was born eighty-three years ago at Lachine, Quebec. Her husband died some years ago and she is survived by three sons and one daughter.

MRS. ROSE ALKINS
(Trenton.)

Trenton, Dec. 23. (Special.) —The funeral of Mrs. Rose Alkins, widow of Reuben Alkins, took place on Monday morning last to the Church, St. Peter-in-Chains where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father O'Neill. Entombment took place at Mount Calvary Cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. Charles McGaughey, Leonard McGaughey, John Barr, Philip Blondin, James Barr and Henry Barr.

The late Mrs. Alkins, whose home was at 52 Bondhead Street, Trenton, died on Dec. 14, at the home of her sister, Mrs. William Barr, 33 Pelham Street, Trenton, after an illness of one year's duration. She was born fifty-four years ago in Trenton and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles LaBelle. All her life was passed here and she was well esteemed. In religion she was a member of the Church of St. Peter-in-Chains and in connection with the parish she was a member of the Catholic Women's League.

Surviving her are one daughter, Miss Jean Alkins, at home; six sisters, Mrs. L. McGaughey, Mrs. W. Barr, Mrs. F. J. Blondin, Miss Lena LaBelle, all of Trenton, and Mrs. Ernest Tranquille, Woodlands, Quebec and Mrs. Lewis Tranquille, Montreal.

MRS. VERA (COOKE) DANIELS
(Formerly of Belleville)

Mrs. Vera Daniels, widow of F. A. Daniels, and formerly of Belleville, died suddenly at her home, 46 Queen Street, Worcester, Mass. on Friday, Dec. 22.

The late Mrs. Daniels, who was in her 54th year, was born in Belleville and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. L. Cooke. The greater part of her life was passed in this city and for the past eighteen years she made her home in Worcester, Mass. When residing here she was a member of Bridge Street United Church. Old friends will regret to learn of her death.

Surviving her are four sons, Archie Daniels, now serving in the South Pacific; Horace Daniels, now serving in the South Pacific; James Daniels, now serving with the RCAF overseas, and Major Earl Daniels in India; four sisters, Mrs. H. M. Broughton, Mrs. Hope Cummings, Miss Mary Cooke, and Miss Queenie Cooke, Reg. N., all of Belleville; two brothers, Archie Cooke, Belleville, and John Cooke, Montreal. Her husband died in April of this year.

Upon arrival at Belleville the body will rest at the Martin Funeral Home, Church street; the funeral announcement is made in this issue.

Few Turkeys Seen on Market

The pre-Christmas market provided a disappointment for many Belleville residents in their search for their Christmas turkey when they met with an almost complete blank. As was prophesied by poultry raisers in the Bay of Quinte area very few turkeys were offered and many customers went home disappointed.

The occasional tom turkey was available at about 50 cents the pound while in other cases where the birds were not already ordered vendors asked the ceiling price of 54 cents the pound. A few geese sold at 44 cents the pound while ducks brought up to 42 and 43 cents the pound. Chicken fetched anywhere from 35 to 42 cents the pound with a number of fine birds being offered.

Egg prices held firm with firsts selling at the usual 40 cents, mediums at 35 cents and pullets at 32 cents the dozen. Specials brought 45 cents the dozen.

Potatoes sold $1.75 per bag and winter vegetables such as carrots, beets and parsnips at 25 cents the half peck. Sauerkraut was 15 cents the quart, popcorn 330 cents and beans 25 cents the quart.

H. & P. E. Regt. Highly Praised In Recent Action

By WILLIAM BOSS
C.P. War Correspondent

With the Canadian Corps on the Adriatic, Dec. 23 (C.P. Cable) — The achievement of the 1st. Canadian Infantry Division—and two of its battalions in particular — in the fight for the Naviglio Canal bridgehead during the last ten days has been commended in official handouts from headquarters of the Allied armies in Italy.

The commendation is a notable distinction for the division in one of its first actions under command of Maj.-Gen. Harry Wickshire Foster of Winnipeg and Picton, Ont., who has replaced Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes of Winnipeg and Ottawa.

The units singled out for praise were the Carleton and York Regiment from St. Stephen, N.B., and the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment of Picton, Ont.

(A Rome dispatch Thursday disclosed that Lt.-Gen. Sir Richard McCreery, commander of the British 8th. Army, commended these units for their "splendid achievement" in withstanding 13 German counter attacks December 13 in a bridgehead across the Naviglio canal north of Bagnacavallo within 9 hours.)

The Allied headquarters' tribute was for the same exploit. The feat emphasized the unit with which men of both regiments, with their back to the canal dyke, refused to quit their narrow bridgehead.

Overseas Five Years

The commanding officer of the Carleton and Yorks, himself from St. Stephen, came overseas five years ago with the unit as its pay sergeant.

Gen. McCreery, 8th. Army commander, in a personal message to the commanders of the two regiments, said: "Since December 4 the elements of four different German divisions have been thrown in to oppose the advance of the 1st. Canadian Infantry Division. Their attack has taken the Canadians across four major water obstacles and more than a score of minor ones. Seven hundred and thirty-seven prisoners have been taken and ten enemy tanks and self-propelled guns destroyed.

"Divisional artillery alone fired 72,000 rounds of 25-pounder ammunition weighing 915 tons this month. Divisional engineers worked under intense fire to put in bridges which allowed tanks and supporting arms to reinforce the successive bridgeheads.

"The first objective taken in this operation was Russi (nine miles west and slightly south of Ravenna). The toughest fighting has been for the Lamone River and the Canale Naviglio bridgehead. On the Naviglio the Germans put in 13 counter attacks in nine hours. Each failed."

Women's Shops No Longer Hold Any Terror for Shy Male Buyers

Time was when the mere male of the species at this time of the year, paused before a ladies' shop, looked quickly both ways ducked inside and once there changed character to that of a schoolboy caught stealing jam, when a trim clerk approached him.

He stuttered, and blushed like a freshly boiled lobster if the clerk suggested gloves. He stood with downcast eyes and nervously twirled his handkerchief if she mentioned ear-rings. And he stood wild-eyed poised for flight if by accident she mentioned the thing he came to buy—a pair of stockings.

Brother, that happened years ago. It just isn't being done any more. Now the figurative shoe is on the other foot.

Today, the lads no longer fear the hitherto too intimate interior of a ladies shop.

Come Direct to Point.

Today, the experienced clerks feel a slight surge of pink rise to cheek, when the lads, present-bound barge into their sanctum and without benefit of eloquent by-passing verbiage come direct to the point and ask for what they seek.

In other words the "unmentionables" which the hitherto Christmas gift buyer sought but was afraid to ask for, are now mentionable, and in no uncertain terms.

For instance, the other day a husky sergeant of the R.C.A.F. strode into one of the better "shoppes" and demanded bruskly, "What have you got in black sheer nightgowns?"

The clerk found the atmosphere a bit warm at this direct frontal attack, and managed to stammer that they had sold the last that very day.

She did, and the sale was made. The sergeant paid up and walked out with the same nonchalance as if he had bought a pound of dog food.

Nothing Too Good.

A casual survey of the women's shops in the city revealed that no longer are the young Lochinvars or the experience of years of shackling by ball-and-chain, afraid to enter the gals' dress and accessory emporiums.

To be truthful about the matter, it must be said the greater majority by far of the male invaders of milady's clothing sanctums are of the age when love is in bloom, the pay cheque is substantial, and nothing is too good for the little girl.

They are going to get what they want—or bust. And nothing can stop them, except perhaps a fitting of a garment, or dress, and some of them might do that if it contributed to the Yuletide happiness of next Spring's missus.

And they are buying everything in milady's dress and accessory calendar, and asking for it without turning a hair.

But perhaps they are establishing a family precedent. Some day, who knows, when love in bloom has blossomed into the fullness of near middle age, and the wife yells down stairs to the second-in-command to "drop in at so and so's and get me a girdle size forty-three", he might regret the foolhardiness of his youth, when he invaded realms he hitherto had shunned. But what can he do about it. After all, "life can be beautiful."

Many Reeves of South Hastings Municipalities Receive Acclamation

Practically all reeves from the different municipalities in South Hastings will have another term at county council without the formality of going through an election it was decided at nomination meeting held in the various centres on Friday afternoon. In some instances there is a strong possibility of an election for council or for school board but in every instance reeves were returned by acclamation.

Reeves in Sidney, Thurlow, Rawdon, Madoc township and in the villages of Stirling and Frankford were all returned by acclamation, while there, also, was possibility that the reeve for Tyendinaga would be chosen without an election. Here Reeve Joseph Ferestell intimated he wished to resign his post. Deputy Reeve Kenneth Vivian and Bartley Walsh were nominated for the office.

Nomination meetings in the three south townships drew small attendance from taxpayers as result of heavy roads following recent snowstorms.

In Sidney township Reeve Fred J. Wilson was returned to office although Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, Clem Ketcheson and Sam Nicolson were nominated. Sam Nicolson received acclamation for the deputy reeveship with Ben Bleecker withdrawing after being nominated. Councillors returned were Sam Danford, Ben Bleecker, and Fred Campbell.

Thurlow township also saw acclamation for all offices with Geo. MacDonald being returned as reeve and Harry Harrison as deputy reeve. Harrison was nominated for the reeveship and Seldon Homan for the office of deputy reeve but both withdrew. Last year's council of Arthur Clazie, Fred Mitchell and Cecil Ketcheson were returned.

W. J. Tanner was returned as reeve for Rawdon with J. Morrison as deputy reeve while the present council of Wilfred Spencer, Albert Cook and Ed. Bateman also receiving acclamation. Other nominees for the council positions, Clarence Fitchett, Gordon Bailey, Reginald McKeown and Barney Heath withdrew.

In Stirling Bill West received acclamation for the reeveship, while six were nominated for council, including present members. Nominated were Earl Bailey, Gilbert Thompson, Walter Elliott and Harold Wells, also James Holt and Mr. Burgess.

An election for council and for school board appeared almost definite for Frankford village. George Montgomery was returned as reeve while the present council of J. M. Dafoe, Ross Turley, S. Ousterhout and O. E. Farrar, and Floyd Ketcheson were nominated. Five were nominated for school board including Charles Butcher, H. J. Carter, Harry Montgomery, James Whittock and Harold Terry.

Although two were nominated for the reeveship in Tyendinaga, it seemed all but certain that Kenneth Vivian, the present deputy reeve would receive acclamation for the office, while rumor had it that Bartley Walsh would get the deputy reeveship by acclamation, although James Handley was nominated for the post. Nominated for council were the two present members, Percy Moore and Dan Gaffney with Jack Meagher, Ed. Lazier, Charles Bates and J. Walsh also being named.

Hungerford council members also went back by acclamation with Charles Rush being returned as reeve and Harry Coulter as deputy reeve. Last year's council of Stafford Hopkins, W. E. Bateman and Edward Goulah were also returned by acclamation.

In all cases those nominated to run for the various offices have until this evening to qualify.

Britain To Raise 250,000 More Men For Her Armies

Ottawa, Dec. 23 — (CP) — While no official comment could be obtained last night upon a London dispatch saying Britain had moved to raise 250,000 more men for her armies by ordering a new draft, transferring men from the R.A.F. and navy and "combing out" so-called "desk soldiers," it was not expected here that comparable measures would be taken by Canada for three reasons:

1. An order-in-council has already been passed making up to 16,000 N.R.M.A. (home defence army) soldiers available for service overseas;

2. Under the recently-announced reduction of the British Commonwealth air training plan, discharged R.C.A.F. personnel are subject to call-up by the army if they do not volunteer for that service;

3. Reinforcement officers have already "combed over" military establishments in Canada for soldiers fit for overseas service, particularly for the infantry arm.

Canada's call-up regulations were extended this year to cover all men born in 1926, though they are not required to report for training until they reach the age of 18 1/2 years. Previously, the regulations applied to all men born in the years 1913 to 1925 and to single men born in the years 1906 to 1925 provided they had not passed their 38th birthday.

RAN HEAD-ON INTO ENGINE

Hamilton, Dec. 23 — (CP) — A runaway horse which dashed four miles along a Canadian National Railways track in the east end, ahead of a freight train, was killed last night in a head-on collision with an oncoming freight engine. The horse was a gray gelding owned by Wilfred Nie, of Hennon.

IN MEMORIAM

BABCOCK — In loving memory of our dear father, William Nelson Babcock, who passed away December 26, 1942.

Dear father, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more.
Still in memory you are with us,
As you always were before.
—Sadly missed by his son Russell and family.

KNOTT — In loving memory of our dearly beloved mother, Emma Knott, who died suddenly, December 23, 1932.

Twelve years have passed dear mother,
Since you were called away;
How well do I remember that sad and weary day.
You suffered much, you murmured not,
We watched you day by day;
We cried and prayed that your dear life
Would not be taken away.
—Ever remembered by daughters Florence and Alice.

MADOC

Farm Residence Of Thomas Ashe Burned to Ground

Madoc.—On Wednesday morning, the farm residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ashe, who resides in the Scotch Settlement about five miles west of Madoc, was burned to the ground with a complete loss. Mr. Ashe was awakened in the early morning and smelled smoke. He managed to arouse Mrs. Ashe and their little grandson, who managed to reach safely. Mr. Ashe had over $100 in his trouser pockets in a room downstairs but failed to get it out. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Pte. Roy Holland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Holland, of White Lake has returned home from overseas. Pte. Holland saw active service in France and was wounded at Falaice.

Candle-lighting

On Dec. 18th., the regular meeting of St. Peter's Mission Band took the form of a Christmas candle-lighting service which was held in the club room of the church. "Beautiful Savior", played softly, was used as the call to worship. A Christmas prayer by John L. Hill was read by the leader. The worship centre was placed before a starry background with a basket of Christmas green and 'mums with white candles in formation. The Bible and a copy of the Book of Praise completed it. The seven small candles were lighted as members of the Band read in turn seven Old Testament promises of the coming Birth of Christ. Two larger candles were lighted, one for God the Father, one for the Son, Jesus Christ the Saviour. Two stanzas of "It Came upon the Midnight Clear", were sung by all, after which the Gospel lesson was read by the minister of the church. Four carols "Why do bells at Christmas ring", "Dear Little Stranger", "Bethlehem Lullaby", and "Silent Night", were sung by the band. Preceded by the old choral response, the offering was received by Gerald Reid and dedicated with prayer by Mr. Larsen. Miriam Spencer delighted the audience with Phillips Brooks' "Christmas Everywhere". The singing of "O Come All Ye Faithful", prayer and benediction brought the service to a close.

SO NEAR . . . AND YET, SO FAR

Eager youngsters peer at the dolls in a Christmas showcase divided from the toys by a sheet of glass. The youngster in centre seems to be stricken with the maternal yearning.

Foreign Yuletide Custom

In Canada, the word Christmas conjures visions of steaming plum puddings (wartime style, of course) and golden brown fowl. Norwegians, Netherlanders, Poles and Russians who are now living in the Dominion have an entirely different conception of Christmas, at least as far as customs are concerned. Wherever national groups gather this Christmas season, old country customs will more than likely be the rule of the day. These will help young men and women who are homesick for their lands bear the burden of separation until their countries, or portions of their countries, are freed from the Nazi or Nipponese yoke.

Norwegians regard rice puddings as a very important part of their Christmas feast. In Toronto and in the Muskoka district of Ontario, where young Vikings are training for big jobs ahead, the men will gather in the messes for dinner, after church services on Christmas Day.

The first item on the menu will be rice pudding with an almond put in only one serving. The lucky person who finds the nut in his dish wins a prize. During the dinner, Aquavit, a popular Norwegian drink, is always served. As Christmas is a time of rejoicing and hospitality, the Norwegians include the birds in their celebrations. Grain is scattered for the birds outside each Norwegian dwelling.

According to Polish workers now living in the Dominion, Christmas in Poland is celebrated on Christmas Eve and no food is ever cooked on the day itself. Guests are invited to dinner parties in odd numbers—three, five, seven, and so on. Then a vacant place is set for any stranger who may come to the door.

To recall the manger in which the Christ Child was born, hay is spread under the tablecloth and guests pull out straws, judging by the length of the straws the length of their lives. Following the custom of Slavic countries, the meal is served when the first star appears in the sky. And no festival is complete without "BaBa". This is a kind of sweetbread associated with the Christmas feast.

In the Russian Ukraine, the customs at Christmas are closely akin to those in Poland. The Ukrainians' meal on Christmas Eve is composed of 12 courses in commemoration of the 12 Apostles. In the centre of the dinner table is set a bowl of "Kutya," a traditional dish of the Ukrainians. This dish, served only twice a year, is a combination of wheat, honey, ground poppy seeds, pecans or other nuts.

The dish of "Kutya" is left in the centre of the table throughout the night. When the table is cleared several clean dishes are placed beside the dish. The legend has it that any departed spirits who may return during the night will be able to partake of a special feast.

In Holland, if the mist rises on St. Nicholas' Day, December 6, the saying is "St. Nicholas is baking for Christmas." Before the war, special St. Nicholas spiced cakes were made. These cakes were given to the young men and women of the Dutch towns and villages in the hope that they would all have sweethearts.

Harry Langdon, Comedian, Dies

Los Angeles, Dec. 23 (AP)—Harry Langdon, veteran comedian of the stage and screen, died after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage. Langdon, who was 60, had been ill for several weeks.

Langdon, former Mack Sennett comedian and recently a film writer, attained to a $1,000,000 film contract in 1925 from a beginning as an amateur vaudeville actor at the age of 12.

He played in carnivals, circuses, tent shows, vaudeville and musical comedies and made his film debut in 1923 with Sennett. First in two reelers and then in feature length films, he rose to fame on the silent screen.

With the advent of talking pictures, he returned to vaudeville but returned to pictures later.

Married five times, Langdon once blamed his marital affairs for his troubles. His ex-wives, he said, "keep me from being funny every time their attorneys remind me of my alimony arrears."

He is survived by his widow, Georgena Langdon, whom he remarried in 1938 after they had been divorced a year; a daughter Virginia, and a son, Harry, Jr., nine the child of his third wife, Helen. Langdon was born in Council Bluffs, Ia.

MARMORA

Christmas Tea Held at St. Paul's

Marmora—The annual Christmas tree and entertainment of St. Paul's Sunday School held in the town hall on Wednesday evening before a fine sized audience sustained the good reputation of former years. Rev. J. M. Brownlie was chairman. After introductory remarks the National Anthem was sung. The curtain then rose for the presentation of a picturesque Indian play "Little Scarface". This concluded with an Indian carol. The school then sang "O Come All Ye Faithful" and "Good King Wenceslas." The primary classes for their contribution chose "Away in a Manger" with action parts.

Next came a playlet "The King and the Miller" the characters being "King", Ivan Lavender; "Miller", James Hickey; "Courteer", John Wells. Marjorie Brownlie then played "The Chimes" as a pianoforte number. Very effective was the tableau arranged by Roy Smith, teacher, wherein his boys represented soldiers overseas reading letters from home. Succeeding this number was a sacred solo "I Cannot Tell" by Rev. Mr. Brownlie. The senior girls under Mrs. W. M. Regan followed with a pretty drill. Santa Claus then renewed acquaintance with folks and soon had them hilarious over his carious pranks. He assisted the rector and teachers in the distribution of prizes for best attendance and presents from the tree. Those receiving prizes were:

Class I: Margaret Ann Smith, Betty Harris.

Class II: Kenneth McInroy.

Class III: Helen Lummiss.

Class IV: Ivan Lavender, Donald Davidson.

Class V: Audrey Lummiss and Dorothy Lummiss.

Class VI: Glen Phillips.

Candies and oranges were next distributed and soon after the happy gathering dispersed. Pianists for the evening were Mrs. L. R. Rundle, Mrs. H. Rennie and Miss Marjorie Brownlie.

Christmastide

Once more it is Christmastide with its beautiful setting, the lisping by children of the Christmas story and the wondering of the child mind, the laughter of the youngsters at play with their new toys, the music of carols filling the air, the spirit of good will on every lip with the message of brotherhood, its festivities, its snows and its cold—in this land— when, whether or not the winds howl and the snow without beats, all is warm, kindly, peaceful, cordial and friendly within. The spirit of Christmas and of Yuletide is over the land.

No other season so wraps up in one bundle of absorbing interest all the ideals of man, woman and child as Christmas does. It fills the need of human hearts and places the little child at the centre and heart of the festival in the name of the Child of Bethlehem, whose coming gave the world Christmas. About the child are the parents, the brothers, sisters, aunts, uncles and cousins, and even grandparents and great grandparents if the child is so blessed as to have these older generations in the family circle. The festival takes the form of a celebration by the family group and the interweaving of families about the fireside and also brings in the guests to make one great family circle.

The message of the First Christmas in Bethlehem will never die, it is being carried through the world and though its full impact upon human society is not yet felt, it will continue to grow, as across nineteen centuries it has been the great inspiring power and influence for unity of mankind.

Today whole peoples have in their constitutions the principles of life and society enunciated over nineteen centuries ago in Palestine by Him in whose name this hallowed time is observed and how ever short of the riches of His teachings peoples and individuals may lag, there remains the golden rule or measure of life for society, ideal and practical.

The spirit of Christmas is given a true test in the world today and it endures. Boys and young men from home in the armies fighting for the liberation of Europe and for the very ideals which are at the basis of the observance of Christmas carry in their hearts the Angels' song of peace to men of good will. Thoughts of Christmas are in the minds of all these service men and women abroad on their mission of humanity and it is the hope and prayer of all those at home who are at this time that these may be back in the familiar scenes before another festive season comes around and that the peace which will be achieved may endure among men.

To Those Abroad

Belleville, Hastings and Prince Edward Counties are represented in the fighting forces of the United Nation by as gallant young men as ever sailed the seas, fought on land for freedom and security, or drove the Hun from the air.

Many thousands of young men from this district are to be found on every front and in every theatre of the war. There are many young women of this community also serving in the armed forces and doing a noble task.

To these defenders of everything that is precious to the way of life that the people hereabouts at home know, the people of this community have long since sent their blessings and good wishes that they may enjoy the pleasures of this season and in these days about Christmastide the prayers of the home folk will ceaselessly go forth for the security and welfare of these young men and women.

Belleville, Hastings and Prince Edward Counties do wish them all the season's wishes and blessings.

From Corvette "Belleville"

Belleville people's generosity in what they have done by their gifts for the officers and members of the crew of the Corvette "Belleville" named after this city has brought from their commanding officer, Lieut. Commander J. E. Korning, cards on their behalf and signed by the officers and crew, thanking the donors of these comforts as the vessel goes about her imperial mission on the great sea routes of the world.

These cards are token of the spirit of appreciation of the officers and men for what has been done for their wellbeing and comfort and for the kindly interest that this community takes in their welfare and happiness.

The men who fight the battles of freedom are the very spirit of generosity. They come from homes like the homes in Belleville, the homes of free men and free women. These boys in the Royal Canadian Navy are appreciative and their best wishes for Christmas and the New Year will be treasured by the citizens of this community.

Knowledge that their gifts are going to be of such benefit to those on the corvette "Belleville" is a great satisfaction to the Belleville contributors and they will follow with warm interest the career of this ship and of the gallant company by whom she is manned while she performs her stern duties for King and Country and Freedom wherever her duty calls her.

The best wishes of the people of Belleville were voiced in the impressive ritual of the scenes which took place when the ship was commissioned and the continued prayers of the people of this city will go out for the ship and her officers and crew.

Saint Nicholas

(Elinor Yale Smith in The New York Times)

Saint Nicholas is the patron saint of New York, as well as of children, navigators, sailors, virgins and wax chandlers. Probably no saint in history was ever credited with more good gifts and good works than Saint Nicholas. He is also the patron saint of Russia, and while there seems to be some obscurity about his origin, he was undoubtedly a bishop of Myra, Asia Minor, about 300 A.D. The early Dutch in New Netherland, and the Pennsylvania Germans gradually corrupted his name to Santa Claus.

Owing to the custom of bestowing gifts on Saint Nicholas Day, December 6, and on Christmas Day, December 25, the days became confused and the names likewise. In New Netherland and later in New York, the Dutch and Walloons celebrated Saint Nicholas Day and the English celebrated Christmas Day. The Dutch name for the Christ Child was "Christ Kinder," and applied by them to Saint Nicholas became "Kriss Kringle" by corruption, largely because there was a strong aversion by the members of the Dutch Reformed Church to saints. The Dutch, seeing the beneficial effect of Kriss Kringle upon their children's behavior, evolved the distinctive character we know today as Santa Claus.

Even though the early Dutch had an aversion to saints, they named the first church on Manhattan Island the Church of St. Nicholas, a name which it still bears after some 300 years.

Appeal of the Stocking

May the children whose stockings hang up so invitingly on Christmas Eve draw from the bounty of Santa Claus' great sack of gifts whatever will please every good little boy and girl. All children know of Santa's kindliness and generosity and loving care for little boys and girls and they have faith and absolute confidence in him. That is the assurance to them that he will come in that wonderful night of Christmas Eve when he traverses most of the earth with his lightning-footed reindeer to distribute cheer and all good things to the youngsters of so many lands.

The appeal which they make by their stockings is an appeal that Santa will not disappoint for he loves the boys and girls who have faith and believe.

India's Foreign Trade

The outstanding features of India's foreign trade in 1943-44 were an increase in the total foreign trade of the country; increased favorable balance of trade, increase in trade with non-Empire countries; decline in the exports and increase in the imports of grains, pulses and flour, decline in the relative importance of manufactured articles as compared with raw materials and articles partly or wholly unmanufactured in the import trade; and slight increase in the relative importance of manufactured articles over raw materials and articles partly or wholly unmanufactured in the export trade.

FIRST CHRISTMAS EVE

"'Tis far to Bethlehem," Joseph said,
"And oh, the tiresome trip I dread!
But, Caesar's orders all obey
And we must start at break of day.
God grant, ere Mary's pains begin,
We shall have shelter at the inn."

But when they'd come to Bethlehem,
The landlord had no room for them.
Beholding her, he shook his head.
"The inn is crowded full," he said,
"But in the stable, straw you'll find
And shelter of a humble kind."

Still shines a bright star overhead,
But all who filled the inn are dead;
No name remembered. All forgot!
Wealth, fame and station mattering not,
But all the world adoring them
The crowd kept out at Bethlehem.

MARK HOPKINS

Mark Hopkins sat on one end of a log
And a farm boy sat on the other.
Mark Hopkins came as a pedagogue
And taught as an elder brother.
……………………………
No printed word nor spoken plea
Can teach young hearts what men should be,
Not all the books on all the shelves,
But what the teachers are themselves.
For education is making men!
So is it now, so was it when Mark Hopkins sat on one end
of a log,
And James Garfield sat on the other.

—Arthur Guiterman.

According to a well established tradition, James A. Garfield, in a Williams College Alumni address delivered in New York City in 1872, said something to the following effect:

"My definition of a university is Mark Hopkins at one end of a log and a student at the other."

The quotation does not occur in the speech as it was recorded at the time and its exact phraseology varies with the recollection of several of those who heard it.

Another version is: "A pine bench, with Mark Hopkins at one end of it and me at the other, is a good enough college for me!"

Mark Hopkins (1802-1887) was one of the ablest and most successful educators of the old type. He taught moral philosophy and rhetoric at Williams College in Massachusetts from 1830 until his death, and from 1836 to 1872 was president of that college. He was distantly related to the founder of the college, Col. Ephraim Williams.

Many of his students besides Garfield testified to his skill as a teacher and the profound influence of his personality. They particularly liked the stress that Hopkins placed upon the development of the individual student.

In 1877, four years before he was elected 20th President of the United States, Garfield said in an address in Washington:

"If I could be taken back into boyhood today, and had all the libraries and apparatus of a university, with ordinary routine professors, offered me on the one hand, and on the other hand a great, luminous, rich-souled man, such as Dr. Hopkins was twenty years ago, in a tent in the woods alone, I should say give me Dr. Hopkins for my college course rather than any university with only routine professors."

First Squadron Of R.C.A.F. Flies Over Burma

With the R. C. A. F. Transport Squadrons in Burma, Dec. 22—(CP Cable)—The first R.C.A.F. squadron to fly over Burma carried out its first operations Friday, crossing the Chindwin river in North Burma to deliver 75 tons of food, gasoline, ammunition and other supplies to troops near Pinlebu.

Canadians in R.A.F. squadrons have been flying in Burma and India since the beginning of the war but today's was the first operation by an all-Canadian squadron with Canadian ground crews.

The squadron is one of two Dakota transport units which left Canada last September and arrived at an airfield here yesterday after 13 hours flight from a station in India where the air crews received final training.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

TWO-CHILD STERILITY

Offhand I can't cite an authority for it, but in medical parlance there is a familiar phrase, "one-child sterility" which is significant to the physician if not to the layman. It suggests that the primipera (woman who has borne one child) has suffered, weeks or months afterward, one or more attacks of inflammation in the pelvic region, in consequence of which the Fallopian tubes have become obstructed, occluded, shut off by scar tissue, and hence the woman has become sterile. This is not the place to discuss the causes of such inflammation and consequent one-child sterility, nor can I make even an approximate guess about that in any instance from reading a description of the individual case — indeed I could offer no more than a guess about it even if I had all the data a doctor can obtain by examination and study of the patient. So dunt ask me.

So much for one-child sterility. Now what is two-child sterility?

It is what this correspondent thinks she wants:

Dear Doctor:

I am 24 and have two children. There is only 19 months' difference in their ages. Now when my baby is 14 months old I'm expecting another baby. I am not healthy enough to take care of any more. I have broken veins in one leg so that sometimes I can hardly walk.

I want your opinion about being sterilized...

(Signed) ....

There you have it folks. Yankee two-child sterility in the spirit of our times.

Had this "birth control" racket been so unashamedly promoted when our parents were raising families as it is now, many of us who were not first or second born would not have been born into this vale of fears.

This young woman may be really ill. All I know about that is what she says—that she is not healthy enough to take care of more than two children. That has a familiar sound. A lot of badly educated young people about to marry or recently married assign "poor health" or "not strong" as their excuse for childlessness and a lot more are hard-boiled about it—they say they want to have some fun for a few years before they become tied down raising kids, or something to that effect.

This is no attempt to pass judgment on the moral or ethical aspect of the matter. I am speaking simply as a physician and a health adviser, if you please. After all, you should remember, health is happiness, and you're a damned fool if you think you can find happiness without health. Ask any old fool who has tried it.

As for varicose veins ("broken veins"), I invite readers who have such trouble to send a stamped pre-addressed envelope and ask for a pamphlet on Varicose Veins.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Lightweights

My husband is 33, 6 feet high, weighs 127 pounds. I am 25, five feet four inches high, weigh 106 pounds. Doctors found nothing wrong with my husband. But he has night sweats and is constantly tired. I'd feel fine if I could only put on a little weight. (Mrs. C. A.)

Answer—Send stamped pre-addressed envelope for pamphlet "How to Gain Weight."

Keep Your Teeth

Our dentist looked at my teeth and said on account of my age (45) they should be extracted. When I said I wanted to save them he became insulting and said I should have an X-ray. I paid him ($$$$) for an X-ray, and he showed me the film but made no explanation. I might as well have looked at a Mickey Mouse film (Mrs. J. L. H.)

Answer—Evidently you consulted a dental quack. Certainly a patient's age is no excuse for extracting teeth. Perhaps your family physician will recommend a reliable dentist in your neighborhood. I'm sorry I have no data on dentists.

Ambulant Treatment for Hernia

My husband on our recommendation had Dr.—— give him the ambulant treatment for hernia, with complete success and we are grateful for your advice and for all of your teachings. (Mrs. G. W. T.)

Answer—Your husband is one of a great many patients of Dr.—— who have been cured of hernia under his treatment. He is recognized as an authority on hernia—I don't know him personally but my files bulge with letters from patients he has cured with ambulant treatment.

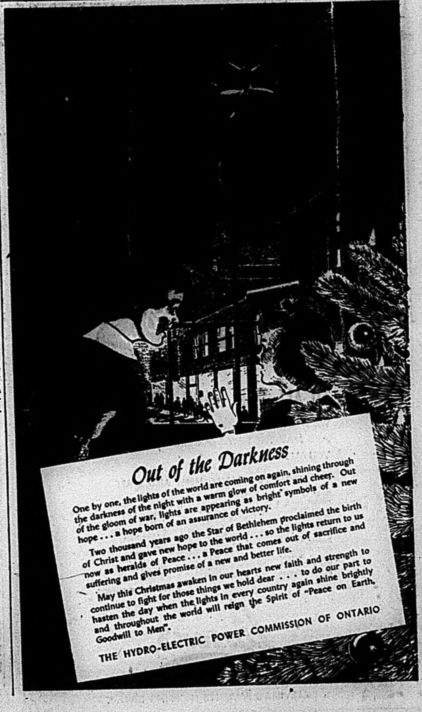
INDESCRIBABLE SUFFERING

Washington, Dec. 23 (CP) — The Germans are carrying off or destroying all food and burning all buildings as they retreat from northern Norway, the Norwegian Ambassador, Wilhelm Morgenstierne said yesterday. In that sub-polar climate, "indescribable suffering" has resulted for the population.

U.S. CABINET MEETS

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt and his cabinet held an unusually lengthy meeting yesterday, but there was no indication to what extent the German counter-offensive figures in the deliberations.



Out of the Darkness

One by one, the lights of the world are coming on again, shining through the darkness of the night with a warm glow of comfort and cheer. Out of the gloom of war, lights are appearing as bright symbols of a new hope . . . a hope born of an assurance of victory.

Two thousand years ago the Star of Bethlehem proclaimed the birth of Christ and gave new hope to the world . . . so the lights return to us now as heralds of Peace . . . a Peace that comes out of sacrifice and suffering and gives promise of a new and better life.

May this Christmas awaken in our hearts new faith and strength to continue to fight for those things we hold dear . . . to do our part to hasten the day when the lights in every country again shine brightly and throughout the world will reign the Spirit of "Peace on Earth, Goodwill to Men".

NO ROOM IN THE INN

The infant lay on a manger bed,
 Soft sleeping on the hay,
The Virgin Mother knelt beside
 The manger bed to pray.
The ass, the ox and sheep stood 'round,
 With fear and awe they looked at him,
The Baby mild, the Holy child,
 For there was no room in the inn.

But o'er the stable manger rude
 A great star shone its light,
It guided wise men from afar
 To that lowly spot that night.
The wise men three in reverence stood,
 They knelt and bowed to Him.
How could men say, to a Babe on the hay?
 "We have no room in the inn."

The shepherds were tending their flocks on the hills
 When an angel appeared to them,
Then the sweet Angelic chorus broke forth
 Peace on earth, good-will to men.
Outside the great star beamed its light,
 But in the stable dim
Gifts of gold, were brought I am told,
 For there was no room in the inn.

Let us remember that Jesus lay
 In swaddling clothes on a bed of hay,
A baby gentle, sweet and kind,
 Sent to bring peace to all mankind.
No room in the inn, on that dark night,
 Let our hearts be inns for him tonight.
Let us welcome the flutter of angel wings,
 Let us welcome the Stranger, the King of Kings.

GORE

Mrs. Earl Fox Heads Ladies' Aid

Gore—Mrs. A. Pulver opened her home on Tuesday afternoon to entertain Centre Ladies' Aid.

It was opened with Mrs. Earl presiding and all singing "Silent Night, Holy Night" followed with prayer by Rev. S. Lovelace.

All enjoyed the exchange of Christmas gifts.

Following the business part of the meeting, the meeting was in charge of Mr. Lovelace for election of officers and Mrs. Arza Pulver and Mrs. Douglas as auditors for the books ending 1944. Collection $3.90. President, Mrs. Earl Fox; 1st vice president, Mrs. Kenneth Green; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Donald Spencer; secretary, Mrs. Winston Pulver; treasurer, Mrs. Elmor Young; buying committee, Mrs. Ray Fox, Mrs. R. Redner and Miss Minnie Howell; flower committee, Mrs. Arza Pulver.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess assisted by some of the ladies.

Farm Forum.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vancleaf entertained the Forum on Monday evening with a fine number in attendance. It was review night and following the usual broadcast, the remaining part of the evening was spent in contests and the playing of bingo with all taking part.

Mrs. Vancleaf served a lunch consisting of sandwiches, pickles, cake, tarts and tea.

All enjoyed a social time after and then departed for home thanking their host and hostess for the very enjoyable evening.

Personals.

The large caterpillar tractor ploughed out al the country roads in this vicinity on Monday which were blocked with snow since the recent blizzard.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Fox were tea hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Green and family on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fox and Leo entertained on Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Pulver and Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vancleaf, Allan and Lyle.

Mr. Morris Pulver and Mr. Earl Fox spent Friday in Tweed.

The pupils of Centre School with their teacher Miss M. Walters are very busy practising for their Christmas entertainment.

Those who attended the Women's Institute at Mrs. Harry Adams' on Thursday evening of last week were Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Brickman, Miss Audra Brickman, Mrs. Earl Fox and Mrs. Ray Fox. There was a splendid turnout and everyone enjoyed the Christmas meeting followed by a lunch served by the hostess and her assistants.

Girl's False Story Cause of Man's Death

St. Albans Vt., Dec. 23 — (AP)—A Swanton girl lied, a state investigator said last night, when she said she had been attacked by a man who died, the official explained, after the girl's brother had struck him.

State investigator Almo Franzoni said Eleanor Hoague, 16, had confessed to him she had torn her stockings on a wire fence and was afraid to tell her folks, fearing punishment.

Instead, Franzoni added, she told her brother, Earl, 22, she had been attacked by Fred Wanzer, 42.

Franzoni said Earl Hoague struck Wanzer who fell and suffered a fatal skull fracture. Earl was arrested on an open charge and his case is scheduled to go before the Grand Jury.

Franzoni said the girl told him the "real story" in the course of his investigation. No charges were placed against the girl, he said.

Women's Activities

IVANHOE W.M.S.

On Monday, December 18, the Ivanhoe W.M.S. held an afternoon meeting at the church. Owing to road conditions and to the Christmas rush, the meeting was held one day earlier than usual. Vice President Mrs. George Wood, took charge of the meeting, which was the Christmas program found in the monthly. The Scripture reading was a Christmas story read by Doris Twiddy. The roll call showed nine members present. Business was discussed and Mrs. S. Prest thanked the society for the lovely plant which was sent to her during her illness in the hospital. Mrs. S. Prest opened the remaining part of the meeting. Those taking part in the program were Mrs. George Wood, Miss Doris Twiddy, Mrs. Lovibond, Mrs. Wagar, Mrs. Thomlison, Mrs. Palmer and Mrs. Clifford Mitz. Several Christmas carols were sung and a chapter of the Study Book "West of the Dateline", was taken by Mrs. Wagar. A vote of thanks was extended to each member who had helped to make the meeting successful.

Marsh Hill Christmas Tree

The annual Christmas Tree was held at Marsh Hill on Dec. 20. Due to the heavy roads the attendance was small but those who came received a treat. The program prepared by the school teacher, Miss V. Benns, assisted by the Sunday School, was truly a success.

Rev. Mr. Cooke as chairman called on the following numbers:

Recitations, Charles Demill, Donnie Hannah, Joan Campbell, Douglas Detlor, Ralph Parks, John Meale, Raymond Ross; song, Joyce Hannah, Joan Campbell; gifts, Cameron Sine, Ralph Parks, Carman Dafoe, Douglas Detlor, Allan Dafoe; piano solo, Gena Vanderwater; reading, Mrs. Bonter; rhythm band with Douglas Detlor as conductor played two numbers; recitation, Mrs. P. Meale; monologue, Lois Mitts; recitations, Allan Dafoe, Alma Parks, Cameron Sine, Joyce Hannah, Joan Hannah, Ralph Hannah; monologue, Gena Vanderwater; dialogue, Mrs. Ross, Leonard Marisette, Garnet Searles; song by juniors; dialogue, Verna Sine, Lawrence Dafoe, Carl Dafoe; recitation, Carman Dafoe, Winnifred Parks, Ralph Titterson; songs by seniors (solo parts by Gena Vanderwater, Carman Dafoe, Mrs. Vanderwater at the piano); recitation, Miss Benns; two-part songs.

Tableaus — "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks By Night,, and "Away In a Manger". Music was supplied by Mr. B. Johnston, Mrs. R. Vanderwater and singing by the girls.

As Santa couldn't get through, the gifts and candy were distributed.

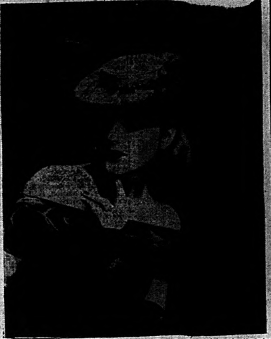
Flattering Afternoon Frock

By VERA WINSTON

GRAY, the ideal background color, continues to be a sartorial favorite. A delicate shade of gray is used for this flattering afternoon frock, which has the square neckline and side cascade drapery that appear in so many frocks. The drapery forms the wrapover that gives interest to an otherwise straight silhouette. Draped to one side and tied in a bow at the side waist.

Lace and Leather



By ALICE ALDEN

There's seemingly no end to the fascinating fabric partnerships possible in the world of fashion. Now, Helene Garnell teams up lovely lace and leather for one of the season's most attractive hats. It is a sailor of pale pink suede, its brim covered with a ruffle of delicate brown lace. The brown tones with the dress of brilliant brown satin, with matching mitts designed by the milliner especially to show off the marquise ring and bracelet, a Van Cleef and Arpels creation.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Families Should Meet

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

1.—Our daughter recently became engaged to a young man who lives in a city not far from our home, and last week she received her engagement ring. My husband and I have not met his mother and father as yet. Please tell us whether it is our place to write them first, inviting them to visit us? Or if this isn't proper, what is?

2.—My daughter and her fiance do not expect to marry for a year. Is it proper to announce an engagement when the marriage is to be that far distant?

E. F.

1.—Although you say you and your husband haven't "met" the parents of your daughter's fiance, you didn't tell me if they have written to your daughter, telling her of their happiness about the engagement and welcoming her into their family. This is the really proper thing for them to do. . . to make the first social move . . . .by call or letter. If they have made no move toward this natural and polite gesture, undoubtedly they don't realise that this is what is expected of them.

In this circumstance of silence, I suggest that you and your husband be realistic, forthrightly face the fact that they don't realize their social obligation, decide not to stand on ceremony, and take matters into your own hands. That is, if I were you, I would write a mother-to-mother letter to the fiance's mother, telling her how pleased you and your husband are about the engagement, how much in love your daughter and their son are, how devoted you and your husband are to their Bill. Then chat about their future plans, and saying how much your family want to know Bill's family. Then either in this preliminary letter or in a succeeding one (after their answer to you), invite them to come to visit you, at a definitely specified time.

2.—Yes, if your daughter and her fiance wish to announce their engagement now. And this is probably what they do wish to do, since she has her engagement ring and can't wear it in public until the engagement has been publicly announced.

Proper to Send Greetings

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My mother-in-law died last month.

Would you please tell me if it is proper for me at this time to send Christmas cards? My husband's sister would also like to know the proper thing for her to do about Christmas cards?

M. B.

Whether or not you send Christmas cards this year depends entirely on your own feelings . . . and this is true, too, of your husband's sister. There is no impropriety in your sending cards to wish your friends happiness . . . . cards of a conventional type, most carefully-chosen. Naturally it would not be in good taste for either of you to send cards to mere acquaintances.

Favors For Guests

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I am planning an informal Christmas party for our Sunday school. Would it be permissible for me to have a small favor for each guest?

A. O.

Yes indeed it would be permissible. This would be a gala addition to your party, and a remembrance for each guest to treasure.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Why Not Make Someone Happy With a Poor Man's Fruit-Cake?

Thirteen years ago at a church bazaar, they were doing a land-office business in selling recipes for Poor Man's Fruit Cake at ten cents a piece.

Since then I've improved on the recipe by steaming it for the first hour and adding several extras. Once it could be made for about ten cents a pound; now it costs a few cents more. But it's worth it, for the delicious Christmas-y smell it sends through the house while baking. If there are children in the family, this spicy odor is well worth giving them as a holiday prelude.

Delightful letters have been written me about this cake made in hundreds of kitchens, and incidentally it's been productive of many interesting things in the lives of those who learn to make it expertly. Ten years ago a young widow began taking orders for it and selling these cakes, at first among her friends. Since then she has branched out into a very successful Family Kitchen catering business, in which mothers, and sometimes fathers, working in a nearby defence plant, leave orders for food as they go to work in the morning and stop for the ready-cooked dinners on the way home.

And the cake has had a good deal to answer for as matchmaker. The bashful suitor has been asked to assist in the baking of the cake (which takes three hours). And doubtless the delicious fragrance has stimulated his imagination with such pictures of blissful domesticity that he's popped the question then and there.

Thousands of these cakes have been sent to soldiers at different Army posts in this country, and have been highly appreciated. It's hardly rich enough to keep moist for an overseas trip, even if it were not too late now to send one.

One Christmas, I had a letter from a man who had recently lost his wife. He said: "My two little boys of 10 and 12 and I are going to try to put across one of those Christmas cakes. Mother always made a big fruitcake for us, and the boys said it wouldn't seem like Christmas unless they could help, and smell the cake cooking." I've often wondered how that cake turned out.

I should be glad to send this recipe to anyone who will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Sorry, but can't send the recipe unless the stamped envelope accompanies your request.

PATROLS THRUST BACK

At 21st. Army Group Headquarters, Dec. 23 (C.P.-Reuters)—German patrols 30 to 40 strong swarmed across the Maas at more than half a dozen points in daylight yesterday and during the night.

The crossings were made in assault boats along the northern stretch of the Maas and at Venlo. All were "baiting parties" sent to learn Field Marshal Montgomery's position and strength.

All the patrols suffered casualties and were thrust back across the river.

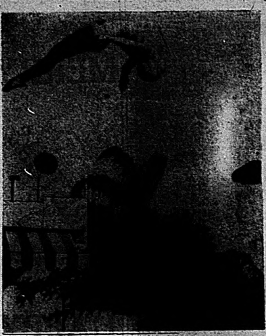
DIVE MOMMA IN ACTION



Remember Dorothy Poynton who won just about every diving title that was hanging around loose a few years ago? Here she is back at her old tricks. This time as director of women's recreation at the North American aviation plant at nearby Inglewood, Calif. She is doing a difficult back cutaway here. Dorothy — now Mrs. Dorothy Poynton Teuber — was the youngest member of the U. S. Olympic teams in 1928. She was in the 1932 and 1936 teams also and is the only girl in swimming history to win two Olympic championships.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Dec. 23 (CP). — Just proving what everyone has always known — that nationality doesn't make a particle of difference in the sport world, President Gerry Martineau of Quebec Aces at a recent banquet in Montreal emphasized the friendly feeling existing between English-speaking and French-speaking players in Quebec. . . . As reported by Al (Montreal Herald) Parsley, the Quebec sportsman said it didn't matter how bitter the game might be, "after it was all over there was none of that sectional feeling which is so evident throughout Canada in political circles and in bitter arguments over national issues."

Biting The Hand?

Frank Selke of Toronto Maple Leafs has the feeling that Dick Irvin, former Leaf coach and Toronto favorite, is behind the current Leaf-Canadiens name calling affair, and he is quite upset over it. After all, Irvin was the pride and joy of the Toronto hockey establishment at one time, and if this is true he will be sorely berated by the good citizens of that city. However, Dick being the mild-mannered chap he is, it seems more likely that he is merely letting Tommy Gorman carry the ball — probably covering his ears meanwhile.

Labor Note.

The night editor of the Regina Leader-Post, imbued with the spirit of Christmas, contributed a guest sport column for Dave Dryburgh the other day, and proposed an interesting training scheme for athletes. Knowing their liking for the proximity of steaks and such, he suggested facetiously they might help the restaurant labor shortage by doing their training behind a counter or waiting on busy tables. But what torture that would be for men accustomed to doing much more to a sirloin than looking at it.

Incidentally.

Jack McGill, who showed rare class as a rookie with Boston Bruins before he enlisted in the RCAF, is back in Edmonton now awaiting his discharge. He just graduated as a sergeant bombardier from the Portage, Man., air training station. . . . If the Big Four and Intercollegiate football loops revive next fall there will be considerable overcrowding in pigskin circles, suggests J. P. Fitzgerald, of the Toronto Telegram. You can safely take a guess though that the ranks of good players won't be a bit overcrowded unless the war is over and a number of servicemen are back.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALLAN NICKLESON
(CP Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 23 — (CP)—Jackie Paterson, that wee fellow from Glasgow who wears the world flyweight boxing crown, took steps toward adding the British and British Empire bantamweight championships to his awards by signing a bout in his home town next Jan. 12.

Jackie, surprisingly defeated recently by Danny Webb, young Montreal Negro in the Canadian Army here, will meet Jim Brady, another Scotsman from Dundee and Brady's Empire bantam title will be at stake.

The winner — and experts call Paterson to be that — will fight King's British bantam crown.

Brady took the Empire title at Dundee three years ago after a great battle with Kid Tanner, British Guiana Negro who, under the rules of the British Boxing Board of Control, can hold an Empire championship but not a British title because of his color.

Tanner always has rated one of the best boxers of his weight to show in Britain. He is a member of the British merchant marine and his Bristol defeat at the hands of Webb a couple of months ago brought about a non-title bout for Webb with Paterson. Paterson, besides the world fly championship, also holds the British and British Empire flyweight titles.

Joe Louis had best look out. Big Boy Roberts is on his trail.

Never heard of Big Boy, eh? Well, that's not surprising because Big Boy never has appeared in the ring. But, at the age of 32, he wants to start and has been asking Matchmaker Jack Solomons for a spot in a London fight card.

Big Boy said in a letter to the promoter: "I am as fit as a fiddle and as strong as a lion. I want to go in and meet all comers, even Joe Louis . . . You won't regret it if you give me this chance."

For the first time in sports history, seats for world-famed Wimbledon were sold at public auction. Two "B" debentures of the All-England-Ground Company, Ltd., sold for $2,320 in a London auction market. Their normal value on issue is $225. The purchaser stayed anonymous.

With the two debentures go the right of allotment, free of cost, of two seats in the Centre Court at the next eight lawn tennis championships at Wimbledon.

Ten thousand spectators will be able to see the British amateur boxing championships next year because, for the first time, the championships will be staged in London's Wembley Empire Pool. The date will be May 19 and they will be London's first amateur championships in six years, and the first big sporting event at the Pool since the Red Cross ice-hockey there in 1940.

Fielding Features National League In 1944 Released

National League fielding records for the 1944 season are divided into two groups, the first comprising players who served at one position in 10 or more games, and the other showing those in fewer than 10 games. Leadership in each position is based on participation in 100 or more games.

Woodrow W. Williams, Cincinnati, headed the second basemen with .971.

George J. Kurowski, St. Louis, topped the third basemen with .965.

John L. Hopp, St. Louis, had the best mark among the outfielders, .997.

Alfonso R. Lopez, Pittsburgh, led the catchers with .994, and by catching 115 games, tied the National League record of Charles L. Hartnett, Chicago, for catching 100 or more games in 12 years.

Arnold M. Owen, Brooklyn, had the most passed balls, 11.

Ray C. Mueller, Cincinnati, by catching all his club's games, 155, set a National League record for games caught in a season, bettering the mark of 150 set by George Gibson, Pittsburgh, in 1909. Mueller's 155 consecutive games gave him co-possession of the major league record in that respect. By ending the 1943 season with 62 consecutive games, Mueller brought his ironman record to 217 successive championship games, a new major league mark for a catcher.

Damon R. Phillips, Boston, set a modern league record for third basemen by making 11 assists against New York on August 29.

Roy J. Hughes, Chicago, tied the major league record for third basemen on August 29, 2nd game, against Pittsburgh, by accepting 13 chances. He had 7 putouts and 6 assists.

Miscellaneous.

Following are the official total bases on hits, slugging percentage, runs batted in, and other miscellaneous records of National League players who participated in 10 or more games during the 1944 season.

Stanley F. Musial, St. Louis, for the second consecutive season, led in slugging percentage with .549.

William B. Nicholson, Chicago, led in runs batted in with 122, the second straight year he has led in that department.

August J. Galan, Brooklyn, for the second year in a row, drew the most bases on balls, 101.

Vincent P. DiMaggio, Pittsburgh, for the third successive season, struck out most often, 83.

Daniel W. Litwhiler, St. Louis, was hit most often by pitchers, 10.

Melvin T. Ott, New York, on April 30, 1st game, equalled his own modern National League record of 5 bases on balls. It was the fourth time he had walked five times in a game. Ott increased his National League runs batted in mark to 1,777 and his bases on balls record to 1,629.

New York, by batting in all of its 26 runs in the first game of April 30 against Brooklyn, established a major league record for runs batted in in a game. New York tied a National League record by receiving 6 consecutive bases on balls in the second inning of the same game. New York also equalled the National League mark for walks in a game, one club, 17, in that game. Philip Weintraub, New York, by batting in 11 of his club's 26 runs, fell one short of the major league record held by James L. Bottomley, St. Louis, Sept. 16, 1924.

St. Louis scored the most shutout victories, 26, the best record since Chicago won 32 in 1907 and also in 1909.

CONNIE MACK 82 YEARS YOUNG

Los Angeles, Dec. 23 —(AP)— Connie Mack is 82 today and his one great ambition is to win one more pennant with his Philadelphia Athletics, "maybe in 1945." He is spending the winter here.

It is the first time in 44 years that the veteran baseball manager has been absent from Philadelphia on his birthday. He wired his greetings to fans there:

"Your splendid support makes me all the more determined to give you a team you will be proud of. I am in hopes this can be accomplished in the near future."

Bill Nicholson Most Feared Man At the Platter

New York, Dec. 23 (AP) — Bill Nicholson of the Chicago Cubs, was just about the most feared man at the plate in the National League last Summer and official figures released today tell the reason why.

Although Stan Musial of the Cardinals won his second straight "slugging" title, figured on the ratio of total bases to times at bat, Nicholson was only four points behind at .545. The Cub swatter gained the added distinction of becoming the first senior circuit player to double as R.B.I. and home run leader for two years in succession.

Nicholson, a 30 year old clouter from Chestertown, Md., drove home 122 runs and hit 33 homers. Although Augie Galan of the Dodgers drew the most bases on balls, 101, big Nick was up there close with 93. He bounced into only three double plays, a department led by Ernie Lombardi of the Giants with 22.

Manager Mel Ott of the Giants equalled his own modern league record by drawing five walks in one game, lifting his lifetime total to 1,629 bases on balls and 1,777 runs batted in.

Large Turn-out Seen at Initial Junior Practice

If numbers and enthusiasm are any indication of the future success of Junior O.H.A. hockey in Belleville the 1945 Junior hockey team here will command a goodly following when they pry off the puck lid versus Hastings on Jan. 5th., next.

Interspersed with a goodly showing of newcomers, some of the old guard were on hand for practice under Coach "Toots" Holway at the Hume Arena last night. The only goaltender to put in an appearance on the ice was Dick Fitzpatrick and there was a noticeable absence of youthful defencemen as only Dick Rossetti, Doug. Green and Billie Holway of the old guard were on hand, although several new faces added to the potentiality of this department.

Aspiring for forward line positions were a score or more keen teen-aged lads with plenty of ambition and hopefulness. These included Ross Soule, Doug. Day, Harry Wardaugh, Jerry Moher, George Reeves, "Cue" Bishop, Cliff Doyle, Bill Greatrix, Ed. DeForge, Bob Little, Doug. Waite, Don Adams and Barney (Sailor) Wright, who is home on leave for the next month. There were a dozen or more other new faces who showed sufficient promise to be invited back for the next practice.

Today Secretary Wally Berry announced the Belleville Juniors would hold their next practice on Tuesday night.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press.)

The total available manpower for the Major Baseball Leagues in 1945 is 572 players, exceeding by 69 the 1944 list, of whom 293 are with National circuit clubs and 279 with the American loop, according to a survey of The Associated Press. Young recruits and discharged veterans more than offset the loss of many ball artists to the armed forces although some of the newcomers in the big time are still in the 17-and-18-year-old class.

A matched race, unique in turf circles, is being staged today at Gulfstream Park, Miami, in a quarter-mile dash in which the starters are "Joe Palooka," a range horse used for cattle roundups, and Tiger Call, a thoroughbred ridden by Ted Atkinson of Toronto, 1944 jockey champion.

Fair Grounds track at New Orleans opens its 75-day meeting today with the running of the $2,500 Pontchartrain Handicap. More than 1,000 horses are stabled at the park, it was announced last night.

A member of Ottawa Commandos in the Quebec Senior Hockey League for two seasons, Hank Blade, has been signed by the Chicago Black Hawks of the N.H.L., it was announced last night by President Bill Tobin. Blade has had no pro hockey experience.

COAL CRISIS AVERTED

Sydney, Australia, Dec. 23 (CP)—The coal crisis which had threatened a widespread stoppage in Australian pits was averted yesterday as executive officials of the miners federation ordered all miners to return to work following the Christmas holiday on Jan. 2, acceding to a government demand that the holiday be cut from 16 days to 10.

MAURICE RICHARD SCORING GOAL A GAME AT PRESENT

Habitant Player, if He Maintains Pace, Will Easily Break Record

By BOB NEILSEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Maurice (Rocket) Richard, blazing along at a terrific goal-a-game pace, leads a small but formidable group of record-breaking aspirants as the National Hockey League season moves into 1945.

Montreal Canadiens' spectacular wingman need only maintain his rate to eclipse the modern goal-scoring mark of 43 in 44 games established by Cooney Welland of Boston in 1929-30.

This year's N.H.L. race isn't likely to witness anything like the unprecedented record-breaking orgy of last season, when fifteen team and individual marks were shattered, but several besides the Habitant luminary have good chances to set new highs.

Boston's venerable Bill Cowley, probably the greatest playmaking centre of his era, is out to recapture the assists record he lost last year to Clint Smith of Chicago. He has 22 and needs 28 in 30 games left to topple the Hawk centre's mark of 49.

Both Cowley and Toe Blake of Montreal, each with 33 points, figured to exceed the total-point high of 82 set last year by Bruins' Herbie Cain.

Meanwhile, Coach Hap Day of Toronto Maple Leafs announced yesterday that Wally Stanowski, former star defenceman who recently appeared in two games, would be in the Toronto lineup tonight. Stanowski looked in poor physical condition in his first showings since his discharge from the R.C.A.F.

Cornwall Cookies Battle to 4-4 Draw

Cornwall, Ont., Dec. 23. (CP)—Valleyfield Braves and Cornwall Cookies battled to a 4-4 deadlock in an overtime interprovincial hockey league game here last night, the teams continuing in a tie for first place in the league standing. The Braves came from behind in a goal by Anderson to force the draw.

Derocher's goal early in the first period sent Cornwall ahead, but Freddy Gibbons matched this with a counter less than a minute later. Bobby Burr renewed the Cornwall lead but goals by Connolly and Brennan lifted Valleyfield to the fore before the period ended.

Herbert and Gravel set the Cookies' head a third time during the second period but Anderson's goal ended the scoring after 16 minutes of the middle stanza. The third and overtime periods were scoreless.

"MERRY CHRISTMAS"

* * *

HOW TRUE.

If nobody smiled and nobody cheered, and nobody helped us along,
If each minute looked after himself, and the good things all went to the strong;
If nobody cared just a little for you, and nobody thought about me,
And we all stood alone to the battle of life, what a dreary old place this would be.

NO SANTA CLAUS?

The most widely read editorial ever written appeared 48 years ago in the New York Sun, has been reprinted by the Sun annually at Christmas time ever since and has been quoted in a score of languages the world over. Some years ago we received a request to reprint it in these columns and here it is:

The world-famous "Santa Claus Editorial" was an answer to the following letter:

Dear Editor: I am eight years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Please tell me the truth.

—Virginia O'Hanlon.

The editorial writer, who was assigned to reply to Virginia's letter, at first disdained the task as trivial and was about to cast it off with the old indifferent reply. However, he soon found himself warming up to a real opportunity and finally completed the words that millions since then have read. Deviating slightly from sport on this Christmas of 1944, we give you that editorial:

Virginia, your little friends are wrong.
They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age.
They do not believe except they see.
They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds.
All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little.
In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect,
An ant, in his intellect,
As compared with the boundless worlds about him,
As measured by the intelligence capable of grasping
The whole of truth and knowledge.

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus.
He exists as certainly as love and generosity and Devotion exist, and you know that they abound
And give to your life its highest beauty and joy.
Alas! how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus!
It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias.
There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance
To make tolerable this existence.
We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight.
The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.
Not believe in Santa Claus!

You might as well not believe in fairies!
You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys
On Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus.
But even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down,
What would that prove?
Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus.
The most real things in the world are those that neither
Children or men can see.
Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn?
Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there.
Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are Unseen and unseeable in the world.
You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the Noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen
World which not the strongest man, nor even the united strength
Of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart.
Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside
That curtain and view and picture
The supernal beauty and glory beyond.
Is it all real?
Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.
No Santa Claus!
Thank God! he lives and he lives forever.
A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO 565

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Forcing two bids have cost bridge players enough cocoanuts to float a battleship. Such bids are not at fault. The players are. They have had the wrong slant on what such two bids promised.

Get ironed out on this forcing two bid business. There is not much you need to learn about it. Learn that little and save grief and friends.

Keep in mind that a jump bid is a signal for saying: "Partner, I can see tricks enough in our combined hands to make a game. No matter what you have, help me reach a game."

You can always begin with a bid of one. Which is simply your way of telling partner your pair can make a game in something.

Your partner has not yet bid. So far as you know, he may not have a trick. Therefore, your jump opening says you expect to make a game with what you have in your own hand.

However, a player will seldom have an absolutely trickless hand. So, you may assume that partner has one trick. Thus, an opening of two in a suit promises a minimum of nine tricks.

Look into this hand:

♠A J
♥A J 9 6
♦K Q J 4
♣A Q 10

How many tricks can you count in this hand? Seven. That alone tells you not to start with a forcing two bid. Because it is two tricks short of such a bid.

Nor is it an opening of one no-trump. Because it has a biddable suit. Nor is it an opening of one diamond. Because it has a higher ranking suit of the same length. It is an opening of one heart.

If partner passes your one heart bid, save your tears. If he has not enough for a response to a one bid, you have no game.

Don't starve with a loaf of bread under your arm.

NON-SUIT DENIED

Toronto, Dec. 23 — (CP) — A non-suit motion to throw out of court a libel suit against M. A. Sanderson of Reliable Exterminators Ltd., the Globe Printing Company and George McCullagh, publisher and editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail, was denied yesterday in assizes court by Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay, who said he would send the case to the jury.

EASE HOLIDAY TRAVEL

Ottawa, Dec. 23 — (CP) — The Defence Department moved last night to ease the holiday season travel rush by announcing that service personnel going on ordinary leave will have to "take the same chances as civilians" in obtaining transportation accommodation.

TRENTON

Two Trenton Men Take Part In Raid on Duisburg

Trenton, Dec. 23 — Two Trenton men were mentioned in a Canadian Press cable yesterday as having taken part in Sunday night's raid on Duisburg in the Ruhr, when more than 300 Canadian Lancaster and Halifax bombers took part in the raid as the R.A.F. Bomber Command sent out 1,300 planes to raid this and two other cities.

FO. Francis S. Pinner, 24-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Pinner, North Scott St., Trenton, was a bomb-aimer with the Bison squadron and said: "We were the first to bomb. Clouds were up to 8,000 feet and there also were clouds above us."

FO. Pinner has seen considerable action against the enemy having completed one tour of operations last March, when at that time he served with the Moose squadron. Since that time he has been an instructor in night vision in England. His parents have been expecting him home at any time and his mention in Sunday night's raid came as a bit of a shock to them. It seems quite possible that he may now be starting a second tour of ops instead of coming home as they expected.

FO. Pinner enlisted in 1940 and after training at Montreal and Mountain View where he received Muntain View where he received his wireless air gunner's wing in November, 1941. He left for overseas two weeks later as a flight sergeant and after spending some time in England took a bombing course.

A brother, Warrant Officer Cecil Pinner, age 26, is also serving with the R.C.A.F. and has been on operations over Italy, France and North Africa, completing his first tour of operations last summer. He is now instructing in wireless gunnery at Cairo.

Enlisting on the same day as his brother, Francis, he trained at Debert, and received his wireless air gunner's wing at Paulson in February 1942, going directly overseas as a sergeant.

Wing Commander F. R. Sharp, also of Trenton, was on Sunday night's raid, his first trip with the Goose squadron which he has recently taken over. He reported seeing concentrated explosions and said two in particular were very large. "The weather was against us," he said, "for as soon as we hit the French coast we were in clouds."

Wing Commander Sharp's wife, the former Betty Weaver, and their small son, live on Queen St., in the Weaver Apartments.

SOLDIER KILLED

London (CP).—Brig.-Gen. William George Thompson, 73, of Warminster, Wiltshire, was fatally injured by a bus here. He retired in 1920 after 30 years in the army.

PEACE ON EARTH

The Winter world is robed in white
The tranquil earth is still,
The sunshine spreads a golden light
O'er lake and vale and hill;
And in our hearts we catch the strain
By herald angels sung—
"Peace, Peace on earth, Good-will to men"
When all the world was young.

But blare of trumpet, beat of drum,
Have drowned the peaceful song,
The martial tread, the victor's shout
Have ruled our spirits long;
O! that the Prince of Peace tonight
Might heart and spirit thrill,
And in the glorious Christmas light
Bid warring hearts be still.

CHAPTER 20

"But, Hugh, the money is somewhere. In a few days," Loveday said anxiously, rubbing her cheek against his sleeve, "you'll be talking clues and leads again, and you'll be on a fresh trail. Money just doesn't vanish. If Grandfather was queer enough to hide this one, he was queer enough to hide another! We'll find another clue."

But even as she said it she thought: "Money does vanish; it's about the quickest thing in the world to vanish, one way or another."

"It could have been stolen," he said; "it could have been put into some bank under another name, some name he made up when his poor twisted mind thought it was so smart that it could outwit anyone. But the chances are that it was thrown away, buried in some damp hole where it would rot, stuck up some chimney or down some culvert. Well, there go my dreams! I think I'll take a walk—" He broke off suddenly. "I think I'll try to walk some of this off."

"I'll keep lunch hot for you," Loveday said.

"No, don't do that. I had a late breakfast. Chris here?" Hugh asked, glancing about.

Loveday had for a few minutes completely forgotten Chris. She brought her thoughts back to him, and with the memory of him came the familiar ache, the dreadful feeling of sinking into blackness.

"No, no, he's not," she said, swallowing.

"I thought he came over most Sundays."

"Well, he did. He does." She smiled gallantly, and Hugh without comment went off for his walk.

The rumpled wrappings of the box were lying on the library floor; she and the children gathered them together and carried them away. The box she lifted by its two iron handles and set on a side table in the hall. Chris had not come. The odor of baked potatoes drifted in from the kitchen regions. Owen, who was slow about talking, said plainly, "More din-din?" and the twins burst into fretful crying: "Mommy, we're hungry!"

"Yes, come along," Loveday said. She stopped in the hallway long enough to glance down the drive. No car was twinkling its way up among the eucalyptus and poplars. No Chris. Life was heavy upon her, like a bar of iron, as she went out to give the children their lunch.

She and Hugh lunched together after all. For when he came in again at two o'clock she was sitting in a deep chair in the library, staring vaguely into space, and in answer to his questions admitted that she had forgotten the meal completely.

Annie Lum was gone. Sister and brother investigated the icebox and pantry, and she filled the coffee pot. They sat down in the kitchen, and Loveday put out her hand and laid it on his. Hugh blinked at her through his strong glasses.

"It made me feel very close to you, Hugh, that disappointment today. I've known, of course, what you planned to do if ever we found Grandfather's money. But I realized for the first time how you love children, how you hate them to suffer, and that you saw this whole place turned into paradise for them!"

"No, no," he protested, disclaiming sympathy; "it was just at that first moment—it was just because I'd been fool enough to be sure that money was there stacks and stacks of it. It was only for a minute that it was bad."

"Hugh"—Loveday cut herself another sliver of the chicken aspic that had been made yesterday in the thrilling hope that Chris would come to share it— "you said something about Nini," she said. "Do you mind—will you tell me — did you like Nini?"

"Yep," Hugh answered with a brief glance. He put another slice of brown bread into the toaster. The good smell of burning crumbs floated on the air. "Yep, from the beginning," he said.

"I never knew it!" Loveday exclaimed. "But she's—she's not good enough for you!" she said loyally.

"Spoiled," he contributed in a tone that took the meaning out of the word. "Changeable, whimsical, affected. Wonderful."

"Did she know you cared?"

"I think she did. I know she did, though I never told her. Girls like Nini know all those things."

"You never told her? You should have told her!"

"No use. There was always someone else. Joe Lippincott and Buddy Hawes—and then Martin Lancaster."

"But—you mean at her wedding last month you felt all that and nobody knew?"

"I didn't want anyone to know. Our family," Hugh said mildly, "doesn't seem any too fortunate in its love affairs, in this generation, anyway. Let's hope the twins and Owen have more luck."

"You'll find someone much finer than Nini, Hugh."

"Maybe. But I don't think so. I wish—I wish," he said hesitantly and wistfully, "that you were going to be here, Loveday. I'm so comfortable in Grandfather's old quarters, I hate to have the old place closed again!"

"I think I am going to be here, Hugh," Loveday said very low. She looked away, faintly frowning, into space.

"Quarreled with Chris?"

"No. Though he's angry to me. He wants me to write Larry that I'm through," she said, the blessed easement of her being able to talk to someone about it, to someone who loved her and would understand, beginning to flood her heart with infinite relief. "And I can't. I thought I could, but I can't."

"So Chris thinks you don't love him?" Hugh surmised.

"Oh, exactly, Hugh! And he doesn't understand; he can't seem to grasp that there are other things—other considerations — no matter what one feels! It's made me so miserable this week."

"And you want to make Chris happy; you want to make yourself happy," Hugh mused.

"Doesn't everyone, Hugh?"

"You'll find that money yet," she assured him gallantly.

"If I don't I'm not going to let it make any difference," he said. "I've a new plan, a new plot."

"With clues and leads," she suggested, returning his smile. "Oh, Hugh, it's pleasant to sit talking with your brother!"

"No, no clues and leads this time," Hugh said seriously, "except this clue: that happiness can be a danger and unhappiness a great safeguard, a great security. After the war I'm going to come back here, if you go; I'm going to live again in my grandfather's old room, and before I die—and I may live to be as old as he was—I'm going to start the hospital, get the cornerstone laid. And meanwhile I'll stop worrying about all the rest. It may take me fifty years—I'll be about eighty—"

The dark little face with its mixed-up features and flashing of glasses beamed at her, and Loveday felt tears in her eyes as she smiled back.

"If we could only learn to do without happiness!" she said. "But isn't it like food? Can we do without it?"

"Do without one happiness and have all the others," he said.

"But happiness spurs one—happiness is tonic," she offered uncertainly.

"I've been watching you for all these months," he said, "and I'm your big brother after all. I wish you'd let me say—" He stopped short.

"There isn't anything you can't say to me, Hugh."

"It's this," he said. "You're built on the Gurney lines; you're head and shoulders over me, physically and every other way. I'm small—Mother wasn't big, was she? I'm like her people. But you're big, like Grandmother Gurney; you're the American girl, Miss Liberty Type. I'm not flattering you; I've just been thinking it out. There isn't any question that you could get away with divorcing Larry and marrying Chris. That's what thousands of women do every year, when they realize that the first marriage wasn't any too well considered or too wise, they pick a smarter mate, and you've picked a big one!"

Loveday faced him steadily. Her cheeks had colored a little as she listened; now her eyes grew misty.

"Chris," she said simply.

"Chris. He's liked you ever since the old days in Aunt Laura's house —Lord, how long ago they seem! And you're the natural mate for him—the real wife. Merle never was. And Chris is magnificent, Loveday! don't you ever fool yourself about that. He wants you now, and men aren't themselves when they're fretting for some woman who fills the whole sky. But Chris is fine. And he'd give you everything in the world a woman could want. He'd play fair with the children too — he really loves your children."

"I know he does," she breathed.

"So that it would mean shopping with Chris on the Avenue for a—what was it Merle was always wanting?—a mink coat," he said, "and it would be little dinners with distinguished men and women, Chris at his happiest; he's a wonderful host. And someday, when there's any place to go, it would mean travel—London and Paris and Rome—"

"London and Paris and Rome, with Chris," she said.

"You'd get away with it," he said. "There'd be very little interest in that group in what you had been before. 'The children are hers by a first marriage'; that's all anyone would say. It would be happiness, wouldn't it?"

"Oh," she said simply and was still. But her eyes were stars.

"So that's one kind," Hugh went on. "The other kind is here. No legalities, everything here belongs to you without any explanation or apology. It was your grandmother's home and your mother's; now it's your children's. You don't have to have any unpleasantness with old Mrs. Ingersoll; she can come up here now and then and see them, talk about them; no trouble there. You have the farm, the chickens, and cows; you'll get a tenant who'll help with the rent, and when Larry gets home he'll find his wife and children waiting.

"Larry's never meant to you what Chris means. But Larry's your husband; you've had children by him; you've cooked his breakfast and eaten it with him, talked about his bills and children's colds, spent six —more than six, of the most vital years you'll ever know—with him. All that's deeper in your blood than you think. It would come back to you—far away from here in a totally different place—the memory of those cold mornings in that cottage where I saw you in Bakersfield, and of Larry's worrying about a job, and about Owen's being born.

"Balancing the one thing against the other," he finished as she continued to look at him steadily and did not speak, "which is your way? Here with your queer little brother and your kids and your husband—oh, call him unsatisfactory in some ways if you like, but there's a lot that's lovable about Larry!—and your neighbors and your influence—"

He stopped, his half smiling, half troubled eyes upon her.

"And my soul," Loveday said in a half whisper. There was a silence.

"And your soul," Hugh repeated.

"Never to have to explain," she said. "Never to have to part with the children or tell them why they were going away from me." She looked into space, her eyes narrowed, her lips suddenly trembling. "And never Chris to take me places," she went on in a low tone, as if speaking to herself; "never the being-proud. Proud of him and of what he had given me!"

And then after a long time during which neither one moved or spoke she asked:

A week dragged by, and on the following Sunday, lingering always near the front of the house in her morning occupations so that she would not miss him, she heard a car coming, and the quiet November morning seemed to break into sparkles and to tremble like something made of impalpable shining mist.

But it was Hugh's car, and it was Hugh, hugging a roped black box, who came panting up the steps. His little dark face was funnier than ever because his eyes were beaming behind his strong glasses. "Look!" he shouted; "Do you know what this is?"

The children gathered eagerly about. Christmas was three weeks off, but anything in the way of a mysterious package was already interesting.

"This", he cried, "is the Owen Hugh Gurney Memorial Hospital!"

"Not Grandfather's money!" For a moment she could forget her own bitter disappointment.

"What else?"

The box was securely roped with crossties and knots; Loveday brought a rusty old scissors from her gardening box and cut the cords.

"Where'd you get this?"

"Della Dillon. She sent it. "She said that Grandfather had taken this to her himself, all the way up to Portland, and put it in her attic. He told her that it was valuable and that only a member of the family must have it. I suppose she half forgot it all these years; it was just some old junk of Dr. Gurney's to her. She says he said it was 'papers.' Papers—ha!" ejaculated Hugh in joyous scorn as he tore the last of the binding cords free and pulled open the brown-paper wrappings that were underneath the thick layers of newspapers.

"You don't think it's the money?" Loveday asked, awed. "The actual money?"

"What else?" The newspapers and the paper, old and yellowed, were thrown aside, and a black leather box, reinforced by wooden cleats, came to view. Hugh pried away cleats and the loosely-hinged top was pushed up. Both he and Loveday were breathless. "This Loveday whispered, "is a momentous event in our lives!"

The box was almost filled, but not with money. In it were bundles of old letters, tied with tape, old blank books, two or three shabby diaries in Russia leather of different shapes and sizes.

Loveday's and Hugh's fingers explored the mass. They turned up more letters, papers, books. Everything was in order. Slips of paper tied in with the letters gave some idea of their age and contents.

"Diary of Martha Loveday Fry, 1865-72." "Letters of Eliz. Gurney Halliwell to her mother, Catherine Gurney." "War Diary of Samuel Joshua Freeman." "Alice Freeman's account of a Journey Round the Horn in the Ship Alleora, 1849."

"No money, Hugh." Loveday looked at him blankly. The box was lined with wallpaper. There were weather streaks through it here and there. There were no pockets, crevices, thickened spaces.

Hugh's color and animation had faded as if wiped away by an erasing sponge. He spoke in a whisper, as if it was difficult for him to frame words.

"It had to be here!"

Her hands were still slowly churning through the papers. Her brother's consternation frightened her. For the first time Loveday realized how much this quest had meant to him.

"Oh, I'm sorry!" she said.

"That money meant big sunny rooms for kids and specialists to study them and help them," Hugh said slowly, as if talking to himself. "It meant long gardens reaching down from here to the highway slides and swings and lawns for them to play on. He wanted it so! It's not fair that just a physical thing—an accident—when he was old should affect his mind, change him, rob them of everything he planned to do! I've thought—I've thought ever since I knew who I was, Loveday, and what he was to me, that that was what my life was meant for—that the disappointments didn't matter—Nini—everything—"

Loveday was stricken silent; she had never seen him so stirred. She could only look at him stupidly, wondering at the depth of passion that lay underneath his usual cheerful manner.

His voice thickened and his face worked. He got up and walked to the window, staring out at the winter garden and the somber, fog-weatherd trees. The children looked at him, awed and fascinated.

After a moment she went to stand beside him.

"It doesn't mean that the money isn't somewhere still, that we won't find it after all! We're no worse off than we were."

"Oh, no, no," he said, quite unashamedly wiping his eyes. "This was my last hope—Della Dillon. When she told me, when I telephoned her Thursday, that there was an old box of papers, I was so sure!"

"Perhaps there's another box."

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper pop got up to turn off the radio so he could read better, and he looked at himself in the mirror on his way back to his private chair, ma saying, My, William, what makes men so conceeted? and pop said, If that's a general allusion to the particular fact that I just happened to glance at my reflexion in the glass, there's an error in your reasoning. I merely paused unselfishly to adjust my necktie and thus save strangers from the embarrassment of seeing a man with a crooked tie, he said.

What strangers, you're not going out, ma said. And if you were only thinking of others, why did you have to give yourself such a cocky look combined with a loving expression? she said, and pop said, The expression you refer to was a look of tolerant pity. I was saying to myself, "You poor worm, maybe if you stick out your chest nobody will ever suspect what a low opinion you have of yourself."

Oh yes, that reminds me, ma said. I was looking over the photograph alban and I noticed that in 9 tents of your snapshots you were smirking in a bathing suit. Well now if you really had such a humble idea of yourself you would of realized that your thin legs made a much better public spectable inside a pair of well creased trousers, she said.

That was stil another proof of my excessive modesty and unassuming frankness. My attitude was, "If you want me, take me as I am." And you took me, didn't you, my dear? And can you deny you got the greatest bargain of your life? he said.

Oh keep quiet and hush ma said. Every word you say in your own defence is a point against you, so if you want to show your ignorance, go ahead and laugh, she said.

Which he did.

Belgians Cheer And Wave to Trucks Moving to Front

By HAL BOYLE
(AP War Correspondent)

In elgium, Dec. 20 — (Delayed)—(AP) — This is Belgium today, with her tidy industrial towns and rolling hills once again threatened by German attack:

You can see the fear of the Teuton in almost every eye. Women, young girls and old men cheer and wave to each troop truck and tank moving toward the front. When a convoy is headed the other way they glance at each other with mute, questioning looks that seem to ask without words, "Have the Germans broken through?"

In most cases the troops just shake their heads silently without answering. They have been warned of spies and enemy agents who might be trying to pick up information this way.

The troops have lost much of the boyish exuberance with which they chased the Germans across Belgium three months ago. They ride to battle now with grim and serious faces. There is little talk now of how soon the war will end, and jests about "home by Christmas" bring only tired smiles.

Capital Closeups

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 23 — (CP)—Standing on the Commons order paper, to be answered when the session resumes in January, is a question by T. L. Church, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Broadview:—

"Who is the anonymous person called Mr. A. Spokesman, in the Department of Defence (Army), who is sending out interviews across Canada daily, and who instructs him?

What is his rank; has he served in the combatant army overseas, and where?

"Who authorizes his remarks?"

Spokesmen had no comment on the question.

Success: A delegation of Nova Scotia miners who were in Ottawa this week, whether or not they were successful in their submissions, could report they had brought down the House.

The delegation appeared before the National War Labor Board, and reported afterwards that they had mistakenly thought an Ottawa office building would be free of the physical hazards they might expect in a coal mine deep beneath the Atlantic.

The hearing had just started when ceiling blocks, newly installed to improve the acoustics of the board room, started to fall. The miners offered to "timber up" the ceiling but then agreed to the suggestion of the chairman, Mr. Justice M. B. Archibald, that safer quarters be sought until the blocks had been securely installed. The hearing was delayed while stenographers were hurried out of another room to make it available to the board.

Food: Strife-torn Greece continues to have the benefit of Canadian relief wheat, just as it did in the days of German occupation. Officials say that the grain is carried from Canada in Swedish ships and distribution in Greece has been in the hands of a Swedish-Swiss commission.

Some 15,000,000 bushels have been shipped under the program.

In Manhattan

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 23 (CP) — Note to prospective playwrights: If you want to turn out a drama that will lay Broadway by its hardened old ears, better write a book first; if possible lay the scene somewhere in what readers with poor memories may choose to regard as "the good old days."

The public in New York—and in most urban centres—is eager to escape current war news and its attendant nerve strain. Successful shows about the war are exceptional here, and even those with present-day home-front themes are in a minority.

But the shows that nearly always lay the Manhattanites in the aisles—even if they're intrinsically second-rate material—are the ones made over from fiction, with plenty of hoop-skirts, stiff collars and an aroma of the family album's dusty tintypes.

Notable among this season's hits are "The Late George Apley" and "I remember Mama," both based on previously successful fiction and both replete with family portraits of another era.

The perennial "Life With Father" and the second-rate "Chicken Every Sunday" are further examples of the same trend. "Father" and "Mama" started out as series of short stories and were converted, as was an earlier Broadway smash, "My Sister Eileen." "Apley" and "Chicken" first appears as novels.

All down the line, the trend repeats itself: Write them from made-over fiction and be sure they're "nostalgic"—and then start worrying over the income tax.

The Guthrie McClintic-Raymond Massey production of "Mr. Tutt"—in which the Toronto actor was to have portrayed the Arthur Train character who first appeared in The Saturday Evening Post—is off, after being listed among coming attractions for more than a year. The announcement of cancellation of its slated February opening said merely the move was made "by mutual agreement of those concerned."

POST-WAR PLAN

New Mosquitos Fly Beyond Range of Guns

By ALLAN NICKLESON
(CP Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 22 — (CP Cable)—Special anti-aircraft guns installed by the Germans to keep versatile Mosquito aircraft from Berlin have been thwarted through a new type of this "plywood wonder" which operates at a height of nearly six miles, it was disclosed today.

The latest Mosquito, known officially as the Mark XVI has been used in ever increasing numbers against the German capital since the first attack by these planes last March. It operates at a height of more than 30,000 feet through use of a pressure cabin.

Night raids against Berlin by 50 or 60 of these light bombers, each carrying one 4,000-pound bomb or six 500-pounders now are quite common.

Of all Allied aircraft, Berliners are reported to dread most the fast, highly manoeuvrable Mosquito, which they call "the menace raider." The city's special guns fire flak to twice the height at which bombers usually fly but the new type is beyond the range of the guns.

So great has been the destructive effect of Mosquito raids that one expert said if bombing strength was increased to 1,000 of these planes there would be choas inside Germany.

Already Mosquitos have dropped 12,000 tons of explosives on Germany. They also "mark" for heavy bombers or help divert enemy defences through fake attacks on as many as 12 towns in a night.

The new "Mossies" are designed for a night striking force which is a part of the pathfinder force under command of Air Vice Marshall D. C. T. Bennett, probably the world's greatest all-round aerial navigator.

Air crews for these Mosquitos, including many Canadians, were first tested in a chamber which reduced the air pressure until it equals that at a height of seven miles.

MADOC JCT.

Societies Elect 1945 Officers

Madoc Jct.—The December meeting of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. was held on Thursday afternoon last at the home of Mrs. Carl Bridges with two visitors and eight members present.

Mr. Stewart read the Scripture Lesson and offered prayer.

Mrs Lake gave a devotional reading "The Christmas Spirit".

Another reading "Christmas Customs" was read by Mrs. Harlow.

Mrs. Russell Stapley gave a paper on "Tithing".

Mrs. Bruce Stapley gave a report on Dr. Mott's address.

Mr. Stewart then took charge for the election of officers for 1945, as follows:

Meeting closed with prayer.

The hostess served a delicious lunch.

Sunday School Social Evening

The December monthly social evening of the Sunday School was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Reide with a fair attendance.

Mrs. Harlow presided over a program which had been prepared by Mrs. Bruce Stapley and Mrs. Clarence Fitchett.

The meeting opened with singing Christmas hymns with Rosella Fitchett as pianist. Mrs. Forde Stapley read the Christmas Lesson from St. Luke. A devotional paper was given by Mrs. C. Fitchett. There was a duet by Helen and Joan Stapley. A reading was given by Miss Helen McMullen. A piano solo by Mrs. Bruce Stapley was much enjoyed.

Margaret Madill and Helen Stapley each gave short readings. Hymn and Mizpah benediction closed the meeting.

Lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

Personals

Miss Lorena Haight was a recent guest at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Chambers.

Miss Keitha Stapley, Reg. N., of Toronto, spent a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russel Stapley.

Mrs. George Eggleton spent a day this week with Mrs. W. Harlow.

Brown Christmas For Boys in Holland

By CHARLES LYNCH
(Reuters War Correspondent)

With the 1st Canadian Army in Holland, Dec. 23 — (CP-Reuters)—It will be a brown Christmas in Holland. That is the color of the mud in which the Canadian and British soldiers are living and that mud is No. 1 item in their lives on Christmas day or any other of these bleak winter days along the Maas river.

With a few variations Monday will be just another day in the lives of these men who keep watch on the Maas. For most of them food will be a little better, memories of home a little brighter and faces a little sadder.

There will be extra whisky to warm the stomach for those who are off duty. There will be no question of a Christmas truce.

Wherever possible army tradition will be observed. N.C.O.'s will take tea to other ranks in the morning, and other ranks will drink it before they get up. At noon officers will serve N.C.O.'s and other ranks at lunch.

Behind the lines many Netherlands families will share their meagre Christmas dinners with the Canucks and Tommies. On Christmas eve the sentries by the riverbank or the men huddled around the little stove at platoon headquarters will be thinking of home. That will be Christmas at the front in 1944.

Boots for the Colonel

A SHORT STORY

By GEO. H. CARVER

It was a typical Canadian winter, and the little village lay partially buried beneath a heavy canopy of snow. Street lights flickered like winking fireflies as the large flakes fluttered slowly to the white-mantled ground. Coated figures, heads lowered against the storm, hurried along the street, bent for cosy hearth and a warm fireside.

Lighted windows exuded a glow that suggested warmth, welcome and the spirit of Christmas inside. Occasionally an opened door flashed a long spear of light athwart the whiteness of the outside, giving a glimpse of gaily decorated Christmas trees, red bells and the sound of laughter.

In the cosy living room of a small house on the main street, sat a man and his family. The greying hair of the father gleamed in the softness of subdued lights. Near him sat his wife, a lady in her middle forties. There was a distinct atmosphere of pride and happiness in the room and occasionally the woman's eyes strayed to where a stalwart young artillery sergeant sat with his legs stretched out to welcome the warmth of a glowing log fire.

On his left epaulette was the famous Crusader's badge of Montgomery's Eighth Army. On the upper part of the sleeves of his worn battle dress gleamed the Red Patch of the First Canadian Division. The ribbons of the Military Medal, 1939-43 Star and others shone on his left breast. Two slim gold stripes adorned the lower part of his left sleeve.

He stretched lazily, reached for a cigarette, lit it and watched the blue smoke curl slowly upwards. He looked at his father.

"Well, dad," he said, "I've told you a lot about this war and what we have gone through. We had some of those old sweats that you were with in the last show, but they did not tell us much about it. Guess they were too busy fighting this war. Now, come on old timer, tit for tat. Wasn't there something amusing happened while you were dry-nursing mules and nags on the forward end of an eighteen pounder" in that brawl that you old guys still like to call a war way back in 1914-18?"

His father stirred, and knocked the dottle from his pipe. His eyes wandered toward the ceiling, squinting as they followed an imaginary line. Then looking at his son, a smile slowly wreathed his face.

"Yes, my boy, some amusing things did happen in that show, and some serious ones, too. However, this is Christmas and I'll tell you of a strange but funny thing that occurred in France about Christmas of 1917."

"It happened like this . . .

* * *

Corporal "Nobby" Clark was not happy. Since his battery had pulled into action on the Bapaume Road, north of Albert and its Leaning Virgin, his mental status had been anything but normal. Now it was near Christmas and the guns were in an isolated position farther south. And "Nobby" had a problem.

He was an "original" and had been with the guns since the division's arrival at St. Nazaire in February, 1915. He had seen bloody action at Ypres during the terror of the first gas attacks. He had fought his guns at Festubert, La Bassee, Amiens, Givenchy, Lens. He had watched them blast the Hun lines at Messines and at Ploegsteerte. He had had his share of everything this war could give him.

But "Nobby" was unhappy.

And his bete noir was none other than that "blankety-blank pot-bellied son of a so-and-so" of a sergeant major "Tubby" Atkinson.

"Tubby" had taken a violent dislike to "Nobby" as far back as Valcartier in Canada. If it hadn't been for the "big tramp" "Nobby" would now be wearing the three hooks of a sergeant. He had made life miserable for the little corporal and all "Nobby's" bag of tricks had been thwarted. His vengeance had yet to be satisfied, and he was sore about it.

In the little dugout to the rear of Number 4 gun "Nobby" swore savagely and ground the butt of his cigarette beneath a muddy heel.

"I'll get even with that big tub of wind if it takes till Kingdom Come" he grated through clenched teeth. "Tellin' me to get the Colonel his pair of German boots and get 'em quick because he is goin' on Christmas leave. Whatinhell does he think I am, a blinkin' liaison bloke between the German quartermaster stores and the Canadian artillery. T'ell with him."

"And he tells me, "Nobby" Clark, a full corporal in this man's artillery, to be sure and get 'em full in the legs because the old man is set up like a member of the Floradora sextette."

"Nobby" spat disgustedly.

His head drooped and his mind wandered back some two months ago when he had been on forward observation duty and he had, during the advance, managed to capture a Fritz officer. That worthy wore a fine pair of shiny German jack-boots worth at least a couple of hundred francs Canadian pay, and which would buy beaucoup biere for "Nobby" and the Number Four gun gang. "Nobby" had brought back the Hun but when the ill-assorted pair had reached the prisoner of war cages, the German prisoner had sandbags on his feet, three packets of Canadian cigarettes in his pocket, while "Nobby" had the jack-boots safely cached for future reference.

For two days he had dreamed of the period of battery rest and the joyous whoopee of biere Belgique, pomme de terre frise and plenty of d'oefs. But that dream had exploded like the roar of a five-nine when he discovered the battery major sporting a fine pair of German jack-boots; the sergeant major wearing an opulent look and occasionally throwing glowering glances "Nobby's" way.

"Nobby" had rushed posthaste to the limber of the gun where he had hidden the boots and his worst fears had been realized. They were missing.

The next day, "Tubby" had wandered up from the horse lines and puttered around the gun position.

"Great day, corporal," he smiled. "Great weather for boot hunting."

"Nobby" had waited until the sergeant major had strolled away then quickly overtook him. Throwing a hurried glance over his shoulder to make sure no one was looking or could overhear, "Nobby" spun the sergeant major around with an angry hand on his shoulder.

"So, it was you, you big chuck. You pinched my boots and sold 'em to the major. I should knock those store teeth of yours down your throat and make you chew your own liver, you big hunk of unlovely tripe. And for two francs I'd go it and give you the change."

The sergeant major had straightened up. "You're under arrest, Corporal Clark. Y'know what this means, striking yer superior officer."

"Nobby" had sneered. "So I'm under arrest am I? Where's yer witnesses? It's your word against mine, and I've got ten of the best gunners in this man's army to swear I never left the gunpit. Now go ahead and put me in the clink, you big overbloated barrel of blubber. Go ahead."

"Nobby" had won that round. But he hadn't reckoned with the sergeant major. A few weeks later when the brigade commander visited the unit, he had admired the major's gleaming jack-boots and made enquiries. Judicious answers on the part of the sergeant major had involved "Nobby" a-plenty. So much in fact that he had received instructions to secure a pair for the brigade colonel as soon as possible. Of course the sergeant major had seen to it that "Nobby" received the orders.

"And don't forget to get 'em full in the legs because the colonel ain't no skinny guy, see?" had pointed out the S.M. to the disconsolate "Nobby."

The corporal lit another cigarette and paused as a five-nine whined overhead on its way to the Albert brickyards. Then he swore and hurled the match to the ground. His problem was a big one—one with a dual purpose. To get the colonel his boots and to get even with "Tubby." "H-m-m-m, full in the legs, eh?" he muttered.

The next day the guns went into all-out action. They laid down a heavy barrage over the battery zone and the following morning the infantry went over.

That evening Gunner Tommy Johnson, "Nobby's" pal, who had been on observation duty up front, sought him out and whispered a few words in his ear.

"Nobby's" face lightened. Then as the full import of the message struck, he slapped a thigh, executed a jig and hugged his battery mate. "'Elp me, two birds with one stone. I should get the V.C. for this," he shouted.

There was music in "Nobby's" voice the next morning when he greeted the sergeant major. That worthy eyed him suspiciously and growled a perfunctory "g'mornin'."

"Tubby," "Nobby" smiled almost sweetly. "I have the boots for the colonel."

"Tubby's" face lighted up. This was easier than he had expected. Well, the little runt wouldn't get the credit. He ("Tubby") would deliver the boots to Brigade and get the nod and maybe something else from the Old Man.

"Well, corporal, you have done well. Send the boots over to me and I'll see they're delivered."

"No you don't, sergeant major! I'll deliver the boots myself."

"Tubby" bristled. "Do as you're told, Corporal Clark. That's an order," he shouted.

"Very good, S'major."

That night an amused corporal and his buddy wended their way to the sergeant major's bivvy at the horse lines. They carried a package, neatly tied. They halted at "Tubby's" tent.

"Here they are, S'major. Wanna see 'em," and Nobby ripped the paper away to show a shining black-toed boot.

"Tubby's" eyes glistened. "They're the cat's whiskers. I won't forget this, Clark."

"Nobby" winked at Johnson. "I don't think you will, S'major," he said, beneath his breath. Then aloud, "Merry Christmas, "Tubby."

* * *

The grey-haired old soldier reached for his pipe and slowly lighted it. Across the room his soldier son, eyes alight with interest, puckered his brow.

"But dad," he said. "I don't get it. How did "Nobby" get his revenge? All he did was get the colonel his boots."

"That's right, son. "Nobby" solved his dual problem. He got the Old Man his boots, and he got even with "Tubby.""

"You see," he added, his eyes smiling, "it was stressed that the boots be full in the legs. They were. When Johnson obtained them the German officer owner was dead and he cut the boots off at the knees. The bones were still in the boots when the colonel got them."

The young soldier laughed as he reached for another cigarette. "Y'know, dad," he remarked, "I often wonder why they did not call me "Nobby" over there. Nearly every Clark got it."

Canadian Troops In Netherlands Keep Watch

By ROBERT EUNSON
(AP War Correspondent)

With the 1st Canadian Army in Holland, Dec. 23—(AP)—Battle-tested Canadian veterans of Caen, the Schelde Estuary and other great victories over the Germans have been on their toes in their Holland sector night and day, alert for any German counter-blow such as fell against the United States 1st Army to the south.

Ground activity along the Reichswald Forest, where a Canadian spearhead thrusts into Germany, has been quiet the last few days although the monotony of the long cold nights has been broken by the lights of flying bombs racing each other across the skies far back into Allied territory.

However, long-range German artillery is firing at a bridge near Grave, about eight miles southwest of Nijmegen, which is a vital link across the half-mile Maas river and feeds Canadian troops in the Nijmegen salient inside Germany.

The long concrete and steel structure has been subject also to German night bombing attacks and fire from rocket projectiles since it was captured intact by American airborne troops late in September.

A Canadian artillery officer said the present shelling apparently was coming from railroad guns about 20 miles away.

GERMAN ARMOR REPULSED NEAR MEUSE RIVER
STREET FIGHTING RAGES IN ENCIRCLED BUDAPEST

Great Offensive Appears Mounting Toward Climax

Von Rundstedt May Gamble Everything in New Move

By JAMES M. LONG
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Paris, Dec. 27 (AP)—United States troops have thrown back German armored columns that thrust within four miles of the Meuse river, and a front dispatch today declared Allied forces were slowly regaining the initiative on flanks of the German drive into Belgium.

The German offensive—believed to be powered with some 250,000 troops—had sent light armored combat teams to Celles and Ciney in a bid to reach the Meuse. But infantry in a Christmas Day battle rolled them back one to two miles, Allied headquarters disclosed.

A dispatch from the field today declared United States armor and infantry, "slowly regaining the initiative, have locked in a series of sharp battles with probing Germans on both flanks of the 20-mile gap between the Hotton and Bastogne areas."

Fighting still is extremely fluid in this sector, it added.

Allied headquarters said Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's units had been held virtually without gains during the 24 hours up to Tuesday morning.

Later developments after this check two days ago to the enemy thrust fifty miles into Belgium were not disclosed.

The Supreme headquaters communique said simply that "a few enemy tanks and troop-carriers pushed forward in the direction of Celles", four miles from Dinant on the Meuse, but that "these were engaged by our forces and were driven back, some tanks being knocked out".

11-Mile Plunge Sunday.

An 11-mile Sunday plunge had carried two forward columns of the German offensive —being made by two and perhaps three armies—to Celles and to Ciney, six miles northeastward and nine from the Meuse.

The surrounded Bastogne garrison of several thousand troops still held out in an epic stand. Gen. Eisenhower's relieving counter-assault from the south at last reports still was 4 1-2 miles from the city, but the front of his attack had been widened.

The great battle raging through Belgium and Luxembourg seemed to be mounting toward a climax, with Von Rundstedt committing more men to the struggle and hammering ceaselessly at American troops along his northern flank.

Field Marshal Von Rundstedt was pushing hard to the northwest—toward the Antwerp supply route—from his reinforced line along the Hotton-Marche Road, but "our positions have been maintained", said the Allied communique covering actions two days old.

Battle of Huge Cost.

It still was a grinding battle of huge cost in which Von Rundstedt's next moves yet were to shape up. The defence had slowed up but not yet stopped the German armor.

Along the northern rim of their bulge, Germans captured Manhay, ten miles southwest of Stavelot.

Von Rundstedt kept bloody Bastogne near the middle of the bulge under incessant day and night attack, hurling in tanks which the defenders knocked out as fast as they came up.

There was no indication how much longer the Bastogne Force, originally numbering several thousand men, could hold out, but neither was there any suggestion they were anywhere near the end of their power or determination to resist.

The closest point reached by the relieving force from the south was just north of Chaumont, five miles south of Bastogne. Seven miles southwest of Bastogne, Americans pressed near Cobreville.

German patrols were active on the Holland front again yesterday, particularly on the 1st Canadian Army sector north of Tilburg.

South of Duren, Americans cleared the town of Winden.

Clean Up Enemy Pocket.

Infantrymen cleaned up an enemy pocket near La Gleize in the Stavelot area, taking 150 prisoners, and seizing 38 tanks, 70 half-track vehicles, eight armored cars and six self-propelled guns, the communique said.

On the U. S. 7th Army front, slight gains were made in forested areas west of Wissembourg, and in the high southern Vosges an enemy raid on Thann was repulsed.

In a front dispatch last night Associated Press war correspondent Wes Gallagher said there were growing indications that the German High Command had decided to risk the heart of the German army in this Western Front effort. He added:

"The next few days should tell the story, with strong prospects for the greatest battle of the Second Great War in the offing."

This dispatch said that in general the northern flank is being held, forcing the German command ever farther west in his efforts to turn toward Liege and Antwerp.

Von Rundstedt still has substantial reserves, reserves that two months ago were thought impossible by most Allied military experts," Gallagher said, adding:

"If he commits them either in the break-through or in a new attempt farther north, the struggle on the Western Front will have a life-or-death aspect. It will strain every Allied resource.

Germans Claim Manchester Hit WithRobotBombs

London, Dec. 27 —(CP)— Berlin said today that Manchester had been struck by V-1 bombs, indicating either that German pick-a-back planes were making daring sweeps toward northern England, or that an improved type of V-1 had a longer range.

(Censorship has not permitted British correspondents to comment.)

Describing the V-1 bombing of the textile city as an "important factor" in the military situation, a broadcast declared:

"The Allies see now there is no defence against V-1 or V-2."

Seven Workers Narrowly Escape Being Trapped

Philadelphia, Dec. 27, (AP)—A four-alarm fire early today destroyed 3,200,000 pounds of wool and the Kensington plant of Hyman Brodsky & Son Co., almost trapping seven employees and threatening for a time an adjoining oil plant containing 186,000 gallons of oil.

Company officials said reprocessed wool was valued at $1 a pound and that their night foreman, Charles Seller estimated 3,200,000 pounds had been destroyed. He declined to estimate the total damage.

Weather Forecast

BRITISH-BASED BOMBERS POUND GERMAN TROOPS

439 German Planes Destroyed, 121 Are Damaged in Three Days by Allies

London, Dec. 27 (CP) — R.A.F., Canadian and Allied heavy bombers flew from British bases to pound again today at German positions in the sector of the enemy offensive in Belgium. Allied planes based in Belgium, Holland and France joined the attacks, aided by favorable weather.

R.C.A.F. bomber group Halifaxes gave close support to Allied troops now facing the German thrust towards the Meuse River. The targets were many concentrations in St. Vith near the Belgian-German border and several Canadian crews claimed the target, which comprised most of the village, was wiped out.

Weather was clear over the target and no enemy fighters were encountered.

The German radio reported formations of heavy bombers heading north from Austria, indicating that the Allies were striking from Italy at enemy war industries far behind the battle lines.

The U.S. 8th. Air Force attacked rail yards at Coblenz and rail bridges north of the city yesterday.

R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers bombed German troops and tank concentrations north of St. Vith.

It was the fifth straight day the Allied aerial whiplash had fallen across the German offensive path. Heavy bombers from Britain and the armor-busting tactical air forces, British and American, based on the continent, participated.

In three days the two tactical forces reported they destroyed 2,228 enemy transport vehicles and damaged 1,054, destroyed 439 Nazi planes, probably bagged 55 more, and damaged 121. All this was exclusive of the toll taken by the heavy bombers.

R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers which battered St. Vith yesterday left the town "burning from end to end with the streets just great sheets of flames," one pilot said. British heavies hammered German concentrations near St. Vith again today.

Yesterday American fighters and bombers flew 1,400 sorties and the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. 700. They destroyed more than 1,000 German motor vehicles, including 146 armored cars and tanks, and 71 Nazi planes. Allied losses were set at 30 fighters and one bomber.

Approximately 500 heavy bombers of the 15th. Air Force attacked three German synthetic oil refineries yesterday.

RUSSIANS NOT WORRIED

Moscow, Dec. 27 — (AP) — The Russian Army newspaper Red Star declared today: "Gen. Eisenhower's successes against the German offensive have compelled the enemy to lower their voices."

"Allied troops are creating conditions for isolating the German group from the main base," the article continued. "It is surprising there are some foreign press observers who have compared the German break-through on a relatively narrow front with the German offensive in the west in 1940."

Prospector and High School Student Frozen to Death While Prospecting

Kirkland Lake, Dec. 27 (CP) — Fred Hermiston, 36-year-old prospector, is the second victim of an ill-fated prospecting trip to Skead Township north of Kirkland Lake. His body was found yesterday by a search party which had found the body of his companion, 16-year-old Frank Minaker of Kirkland Lake, Monday. Both had been frozen to death.

Hermiston and Minaker, a high school student, left here December 18 to stake gold claims. A search started when they failed to return by Christmas Eve. Minaker's body was found in a sitting position by a pine tree beside the trail to the prospecting camp. Hermiston's body was two miles away, off the trail but only 200 yards from the camp.

Searchers returning here today reported that Hermiston apparently had been lost as his tracks showed he had tramped many times around a great mass of rock without realizing it and without knowing how close the camp was.

Searchers theorised that the two were staking separately Wednesday —posts on the claims showed they had been staked that day—and separated to do the work, agreeing to meet at a designated point later. Both were lightly dressed, apparently because the weather was comparatively mild that day and they were working actively. However, at night the temperature fell to 23 degrees below zero. It was suggested both worked until dark and then were overcome by cold and fatigue.

Tracks showed that Hermiston had crisscrossed the claim area several times, apparently in search of the boy. He cut Minaker's trail a number of times but didn't follow it.

His body is being brought to Kirkland Lake tonight.

Large Jap Aircraft Carrier, Six Warships and 20 Other Ships Sunk by U. S. Subs

Washington, Dec. 27 — (AP)—Destruction of a large Japanese aircraft carrier, six additional enemy warships and 20 other Japanese vessels by American submarines was reported by the Navy Department today.

Few details were given on the sinkings in Far Eastern waters, announced by Navy Secretary James Forestal at a news conference.

The aircraft carrier was not identified beyond the statement that it was "large." The other warships blasted by the underseas fleet included: one converted light cruiser, a destroyer, two escort vessels and two destroyer transports. Other ships sent to the bottom by torpedoes and depth guns were two large transports, 10 medium cargo vessels, three small cargo vessels, one small transport, two medium cargo transports, and two medium tankers.

These sinkings bring to 1,090 the number of Japanese ships sunk, probably sunk or damaged since the United States entered the war. Included are 99 warships definitely sunk, 11 probably sunk and 16 damaged.

AMERICAN FLYERS BATTER AIRFIELDS ON LUZON ISLAND

Clark Field, Principal Target, Plastered With 88,000 Pounds of Bombs

Southwest Pacific Advanced Headquarters, Dec. 27. (AP)—Land-based American bombers for the fourth consecutive day blasted Japan's airfields at Manila on Luzon Island, now regarded as vulnerable to reinvasion by United States forces mopping up in the Central Philippines.

Clark field was the principal target as it was in two of the previous attacks. It was plastered Monday with 88,000 pounds of explosives, Gen. MacArthur reported today.

The Japanese showed disposition to make a fight of it and sent up at least 50 interceptors, of which 39 were shot down by U.S. fighter escorts. Four more were listed as probably downed. The day's bag brought to 72 the total of Japanese planes shot down in 48 hours in the Manila raids. The Americans lost six fighters on the two days.

On conquered Leyte, American ground forces mopped up small and isolated Japanese remnants which the communique said were "capable of only minor opposition". Enemy casualties for the Leyte campaign were raised to 114,120.

Fighter Cover Provided.

Fighter cover in the Manila raid was led by Maj. Thomas McGuire, of San Antonio, Tex, who bagged three Japanese. That brought his total to 38, within shooting range of the 40 credited to Maj. Richard I. Bong of Poplar, Wis., leading American ace, and equal to the total of Wing Cmdr. J. E. (Johnny) Johnson, British-born top Allied ace in Western Europe, who leads an R.C.A.F. Europe-based Spitfire wing.

Liberators raided Mindanao airdromes and harbors, sinking two freighters, and fighter-bombers assaulted the Japanese Silay airdrome on Negros Island.

At Pearl Harbor Admiral Nimitz announced that between 16 and 25 Japanese planes attacked the airstrips on Saipan Island in the Marianas, base for the Tokyo-raiding Superfortresses. Four attacking planes were shot down.

Three Killed In Paris Raid

Paris, Dec. 27 — (AP) — Three persons were killed and 12 others injured last night by bombs which fell on the Paris area near world-famous landmarks. It was the French capital's first air raid since Aug. 27, immediately after the city's liberation.

Some damage was caused to buildings (11 words censored) where two bombs fell.

The bombers were not officially identified, but the fact only a few appeared virtually precluded any possibility the bombs might have been dropped by accident from Allied aircraft.

REPORT UNCONFIRMED

San Francisco, Dec. 27. (AP)—An unconfirmed Japanese Domei News Agency dispatch asserted today that Japanese naval surface craft and air units attacked an American convoy off the west coast of Mindoro, Philippine Islands, last night and "sank or damaged" four fully loaded American transports and "destroyed" two torpedo boats.

The radioed dispatch said there were no Japanese losses.

CANADIAN UNITS FAN OUT FROM SEIZED ROSSETTA

Move in Direction of Alfonsine North and East of Bagnacavallo

Rome, Dec. 27 (CP)—Canadian units of the British 8th Army today were reported fanning out northeast of newly-won Rossetta in the direction of Alfonsine, 7 1-2 miles north-northeast of captured Bagnacavallo, clearing out fortified buildings.

Other 8th Army troops were advancing in the same manner in the areas about Bagnacavallo and Faenza, but the Adriatic front was reported generally quiet. Today's official communique mentioned only patrol activity.

To the west, near Italy's Tyrrhenian coast, a strong German counter-attack forced Allied 5th Army forces to withdraw from advanced outpost in the Serchio river valley.

(By latest reports Brazilian troops were in operation on that sector of the 5th Army front.)

It was announced here that the withdrawals were made only after bitter fighting, but no details were immediately available.

The German air force struck again yesterday when anti-personnel bombs were dropped north of San Benedetto, immediately south of Bologna, and around Grizzana, to the southwest.

Allied fighters, fighter-bombers and light bombers flew 1,000 missions against the German ground forces in Italy.

Canadian, British and New Zealand troops of the 8th Army were reported last night advancing toward the Senio river line after the Canadians seized hotly-contested Rossetta, 10 miles northwest of Ravenna.

Enemy rearguards in the salient northeast of Faenza had been mopped up and the Germans driven from all positions east of the Naviglio canal.

After they took Rossetta the Canadians had pressed on to within two miles of Alfonsine on the Ravenna-Ferrera highway, yesterday's communique reported; a front dispatch from Canadian Press war correspondent William Boss placed the distance at 1½ miles.

Supplies Landed For U.S. Troops

London, Dec. 27—(CP)—Hundreds of tons of supplies — mainly ammunition — were parachuted today to United States troops cut off by the German drive in the Bastogne area.

Twin-engined sky trains flew from Britain and France with cargoes for the infantry who have withstood repeated tank attacks while waiting for relief columns last reported 4½ miles away.

Meanwhile a BBC broadcast from London heard in New York today said American columns are now only 1 1/4 miles from Bastogne, where the beleaguered garrison is holding out against heavy enemy pressure.

GANDHI QUITE ILL

Wardha, India, Dec. 27 — (CP-Reuters)—Mohandas Gandhi is suffering from tracheitis following an attack of influenza, his doctors report. The doctors, who examined him yesterday, said intestinal parasites are still present. His anaemia is a little more pronounced.

The Indian Nationalist leader has been advised to take an undisturbed rest.

GREEK FACTIONS FAIL TO AGREE AT 2ND MEETING

Peace Proposals of Left'ists Not Expected By Greek Populist Party

By STEPHEN BARBER

Athens, Dec. 27 (AP) — Greek Populist Party members declared today that peace proposals by representatives of left-wing E.L.A.S. were unacceptable and the conference called by Prime Minister Churchill ended its second meeting without an agreement.

The E.L.A.S. offered terms which former Premier Stylianos Gonatas said "are inadmissible." He declared that "if acceptable, they would mean complete dissolution of the state."

Other members of the conference said they would consider the terms and reply later.

Even while the conferees met in the Grand Bretagne Hotel the British accused E.L.A.S. artillerymen of breaking a conference truce late yesterday and the fresh fighting flared in the district behind British headquarters. Parachute troops forged ahead with tanks and armored cars in a drive to clear the southern triangle leading into Omonia Square.

British spokesmen announced earlier that E.L.A.S. artillery had broken a conference truce by firing upon a British warship and the Anglo-Greek naval headquarters late yesterday and that, as a result, offensive air action would begin again.

British authorities informed the E.L.A.S. that the truce was regarded as null and void.

It had been agreed that no artillery action would be taken on one side or air action on the other for three-quarters of an hour from 3 p.m., while, E.L.A.S. delegates were being brought to last night's conference at which Prime Minister Churchill appealed for the warring factions to end their strife.

The conference was so tense that all military delegates surrendered their side arms at the door.

"Whether Greece is a monarchy or a republic is a matter for the Greeks and the Greeks alone to decide," the Prime Minister told the assemblage before he and other British representatives retired and left the Greeks to continue the conference alone. "All we wish you is good, and good for all," Mr. Churchill added.

Britain's only interest in using her troops in the current civil war, Mr. Churchill asserted, is to bring an end to disorder and make possible an election by secret ballot.

The session convened at a secret site while continuing gunfire sounded in the distance, broke up after 4½ hours with word it would be resumed later, possibly today, when additional delegates may be present.

Reds Making Way Toward 2 Bridges That Span Danube

All Enemy Escape Roads Leading From City Closed

By DANIEL DE LUCE
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Moscow, Dec. 27 (AP)—Red Army shock troops charged upon flame-seared Budapest from snowy hills above the Danube River today. The German garrison burned military stores, dynamited public utilities and fought back grimly with field artillery scattered throughout the Hungarian capital.

Half a dozen Soviet spearheads were reported closing in on the western half of the encircled city and all German roads of escape were cut off. Just how many troops comprise the defending garrison is not known here, but the Russian command said their numbers were large.

Slash Into Buda.

Soviet assault units of tanks, plus tommy—gunners, were believed to have slashed some distance into the Buda district on the west bank of the Danube.

A delayed dispatch from Szekesfehervar, about 32 miles southwest of Budapest, disclosed that the Germans had fought for that city street by street. A pillbox was manned outside St. Stephen's cathedral until it was silenced by a direct hit.

Thousands of German dead were reported to have lined the roads on the battlefields between Szekesfehervar and Budapest following the Russian advance. Burned out armored vehicles, many of them the latest King Tiger and Panther tanks, dotted the fields and endless columns of prisoners marched miserably to the cages, the dispatch said.

From the hilltops of the Buda district on the west bank of the Danube Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's heavy artillery dominated the entire city—including Pest's massive business and factory buildings on the plain east of the river.

Armored columns, already deep inside the city's western outskirts, were blasting their way house by house toward two big bridges that span the Danube and link the two sections of the city.

Field dispatches said other Russian successes achieved simultaneously with yesterday's full encirclement of the Hungarian capital had brought the German command in the east to a moment of supreme crisis.

Tolbukhin's 3rd Ukraine army and Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine army, it was pointed out, are tactically linked up northwest of Budapest for a joint drive up both sides of the Danube to Bratislava, Slovakian capital, and Vienna.

Strategists Add Three to Six Months To Estimated Date of Victory in Europe

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
(AP Staff Writer)

Washington, Dec. 27 — (AP) — Military strategists now are tentatively adding three to six months to their estimate of a date for victory in Europe.

There is still hope in high places that the Allied armies will be able to turn the United States reverse on the western front into an early and decisive victory. But at the moment it is a gray and waning hope, although the battle is still fluid.

Along with this sober estimate of the fighting has come a conviction that at least part of the German success was due to over-optimism throughout the Allied high command.

First Allied generals thought the European war would be won last fall; later they set the date at the year's end, then moved it forward to spring. Now they talk of next fall or winter.

If it actually takes until late next year to beat the Germans, the date for victory over Japan will have to be moved forward also. But in Asia and the Pacific, as well as in Europe, much of what will happen depends on Russian plans, as yet unrevealed.

Successful Russian assault and break-through to Berlin might shorten the war somewhat, but there now is no reason to believe that those results would be either certainly or quickly achieved. Military men say the Germans may be expected to resist and strike back in the east with the same ferocity they have shown against the western Allies.

The success of the present German drive is being attributed by some authorities here partly to a failure of Allied intelligence and planning. Extremely young, extremely old and second-rate troops found in many westwall fortifications were considered typical of all German forces.

As a matter of fact the German force, reported to number about 20 divisions, represented a reorganization of the defeated remnants of the Armies beaten in France; the use of many second-rate troops in the westwall completely camouflaged this reorganization.

With strategy and timing now conceded here to be brilliant, the Germans hit at a moment and place of weakness with complete surprise.

Compelled to fight defensively, Gen. Eisenhower had to withdraw and regroup his divisions for a counter-attack. If his counter-measures succeed in breaking the German drive and converting an imminent defeat into unexpected victory, the enormous cost of the whole affair may be written off as the cost of triumph.

Tokyo Industrial Areas Slugged By Superforts

Washington, Dec. 27. (AP)—Tokyo industrial areas were slugged today for the fifth time by Saipan-based Superfortresses.

The daylight blow was the first on the sprawling Japanese capital since Dec. 3. A war department communique did not report further details.

Tokyo radio said the giant planes "dropped explosives and incendiaries at random, causing insignificant damage". The broadcast, recorded by the federal communications commission, was unreadable in places but apparently the enemy claimed that some interceptors "chalked up" victories against the Superfortresses.

In previous raids on Tokyo the flying battleships have concentrated on whittling down Japanese fighter plane production. One of the enemy empire's top producers of military planes, the Musashima engine factory of the Nakajima aircraft plant, was the target of the Dec. 3 attack.

Returning pilots tabbed this the toughest of the B29 Tokyo strikes beginning Nov. 24 and recurring roughly at three-day intervals through Dec. 3. The Superfortresses dodged intense anti-aircraft fire on the Dec. 3 smash and fought off swarms of fighters. One B29 was lost. "Good" results were obtained with precision bombing, the war department announced.

The size of today's force was not indicated. Some 60 to 150 planes have participated in previous Tokyo raids.

Today's smash followed a report from 21st Bomber Command headquarters that the Saipan-based planes have dumped more than 3,000,000 pounds of bombs on Honshu targets. Honshu is the principal Japanese home island.

Eight Members Of French Gestapo Are Executed

London, Dec. 27 (CP-Reuters) — Eight members of the French Gestapo, sentenced to death by a Paris court recently, were executed at 10.15 a.m. at Fort Montrouge, Paris radio said today.

Best known of the eight were Pierre Bony, former police inspector of the Surete General, the French Scotland Yard, who played an outstanding part in the Stavisky scandals inquiry.

He admitted at his trial that he was involved in the arrest of Mlle. Genevieve De Gaulle, niece of Gen. De Gaulle, who was a member of a resistance group.

The other seven were: Henri Lafont, the leader of the gang; Paul Clavie, nephew of Lafont; Alexandre Villaplana, a former French international footballer; Charles Delval, formerly of the resistance movement, found guilty of having betrayed his comrades to the Gestapo; Louis Hare, said to have been responsible for the surveillance of a British woman agent, and Engel and Pagnon.

A ninth man sentenced to death was reprieved.

BOSTON TERRIER FOUND AT LARGE

A small female Boston Bull terrier, found wandering at large in the city on Tuesday is now in charge of City Poundkeeper Thomas Thorne. The dog is practically all brindle with a white face. It is fairly old as its hair about the face and head is grey. It wore no collar nor city tag. and is believed to have jumped out of a car when its master was absent.

ONLY ONE CALL OVER HOLIDAY

Members of the local fire department on duty over the long weekend holiday had a comparatively quiet Christmas, it was reported from the local fire hall today. Only one call, that for a chimney blaze at a Station Street address, was answered from Friday until Wednesday morning, it was stated. No damage as result of the chimney fire was reported.

A. GORDON COMPOSES CHRISTMAS NUMBER

Rapidly winning a name for himself as a writer of musical scores, S. Alec Gordon, organist of Bridge Street United Church, has again turned his creative ability to good stead with his latest composition, "Bethlehem's Star", appropriately being heard during the candle light service at the church on Sunday evening. "Bethlehem's Star" was written by Mr. Gordon especially for Master Ronald Elmy, who sang the number during the service. Since the number has been heard its compositor has been the recipient of many well-deserved compliments for his creative ability.

NEWSBOY ATTACKED

Set upon by a "big bully" and his thirty-two newspapers taken from him, twelve-year-old William McTaggert, newsboy, was badly beaten up on Friday night on Herchimer Avenue when the unknown assailant suddenly attacked him without warning.

Young William McTaggert was knocked to the ground and given a rather severe beating. He had no money on his person at the time, and the motive for the assault is unknown. The attacker took McTaggert's papers and made off with them before the boy could shout for help.

He was unable to furnish an adequate description of the assailant with the exception that he was a boy much larger than himself. Provincial Police are investigating.

SILVER COMMUNION BREAD BOX DEDICATED

Digressing momentarily from the impressiveness of the Christmas Eve midnight watch services at Christ Church on Sunday, the Rev. J. Grant Sparling dedicated a silver communion bread box to the memory of the late Rev. G. G. Wright, former rector of the church.

The handsome gift was presented to the church by the family and in a brief yet eloquent address on the part of the present rector was formally dedicated and accepted into the service of the church.

SOMEBODY HAD "WET" CHRISTMAS

Somebody had a "wet Christmas", even if it was at the expense of others.

Late Saturday afternoon Mrs. Wallace Robertson, Shannonville, placed a number of parcels in the family automobile, which was parked on a lot directly south of the post office. Among the parcels was a bottle of whisky and two bottles of wine.

Later in the evening when the Robertson family returned to their car the three bottles of spirits were gone. So were several Christmas presents valued at over $12.00.

Apparently sneak thieves had observed the parcels being placed in the vehicle and when the Robertson family left the robbers pried open the front door window and upon gaining entrance in that manner stole the "booze" and parcels.

Sidney Factory Patrons Receive $47,675 for Milk

Patrons of Sidney Town Hall Cheese Factory received $47,675 for their milk during the past season it was shown at the annual meeting of factory patrons held last week. Total milk for the season amounted to 2,731,170 pounds with 212,704 pounds of cheese being manufactured. This was an average yield of one pound of cheese to 12.29 pounds milk.

Received from sales of cheese was $43,664 with the provincial bonus amounting to $4,374 and the Dominion bonus to $5,641. Sales of whey cream amounted to $2,100. Average price per standard for milk was $52.40.

Cheese manufacturing cost factory patrons $3,834 with milk drawing costing another $2,846 or $2.90 per standard. Average test for the factory was 3.35 percent butter fat, amounting to 86,571 pounds.

Lawrence Ketcheson was returned as president for the next year with Clem H. Ketcheson being reappointed as secretary. B. C. Hinchliffe and Sam Chisholm are auditors. Mr. Kenneth Kingston has been hired as cheesemaker for 1945, succeeding Wilfred Johnston who has gone to Sidney Factory on the 3rd concession of Sidney township.

Colored Bulbs Stolen From Evergreens On H.W. Ackerman's Lawn

To brighten the entrance to his home and also add a touch of the Christmas spirit to the street, Mr. H. W. Ackerman, 232 William St., had decorated two permanent evergreen trees at the front of his home with strings of Christmas tree electric light fixtures. When lighted at night the two trees added much of the Yuletide spirit to that section of the city in which Mr. Ackerman resides. Nearby residents were so impressed they assured their neighbors they also hoped to be able to add brightness and color to that section of the city in a similar manner next year.

However someone stripped the bulb fixtures from the evergreens on Christmas night. Police who were called in, found footprints in the snow about the trees but there was no sign of the person who stole the colored bulbs.

With present priorities on Christmas decorations of this nature Mr. Ackerman is unable to replace the bulbs and therefore will not be able outwardly to assist in the brightening of Belleville streets during the present week and at New Year's festival.

Letter Describes Terror Shelling Of Dover Area

Crouched in a dirt-choked cellar of a Dover, England home, while death played hide-and-seek with them outside, was but one of the harrowing experiences of the family of Mr. Herbert Bone, chief clerk of customs for the British seaport city and his family, during the fateful month preceding the capture of the German cross-channel gun positions by Canadian forces. Mr. Bone is a brother of Mr. Jamieson Bone of this city.

In a letter to his brother here, Mr. Bone states that the Germans were intent upon the destruction of as many English coastal towns and people as possible before the inevitable capture of their guns by the Dominion troops. He says in part: "It was the end of a terrible month for us. As the Canadians closed in on the big German guns, the Hun sent over into our town and Folkestone all the metal he had in store. He didn't worry about our naval convoys which passed through the Straits safely. He was determined to wipe out all the towns here and kill all the civilians he could."

After the capture of Gris Nez and the gun positions, the Canadian commander sent the Nazi flag and the German garrison commander's sword to the Mayor of Dover.

Grateful to Canadians

"All our Dover people feel grateful to the Canadians for delivering us from the menace of the German guns. The Canadian soldier according to our military experts here is 'probably the most formidable fighting man in Europe today' " Mr. Bone wrote.

Describing the terror which accompanied the heavy shelling of Dover previous to the capture of the guns, Mr. Bone wrote "The shelling began about 11 p. m. and during a lull we ran into the home of a neighbor where both families sought shelter in the cellar. About midnight a heavy shell landed in the garden. The cellar was filled with dirt and dust and we all ran upstairs. The windows had been blasted out and blackout curtains were swinging in the breeze.

"As we sat huddled together another shell dropped not far away. Then two more followed at short intervals. Bricks were falling all around. It was an hour of terror and at any moment we expected the walls to fall in on us. When we got home, plaster and dirt met us as we opened the door. A hole had been punched through two bedroom walls. It was less than most houses got. The noise of the shells was terrific."

Mrs. Bone who was in charge of the Rest Centre, bravely went out of the cellar during the height of the bombardment and opened the shelter for the blitzed Doverites. The shelter itself was later damaged by a shell fragment.

Later the Bone family visited a relative inland. "It was like Heaven" Mr. Bone wrote, "to be out of the turmoil for even a few hours."

Long Christmas Holiday Celebrated In Quiet Manner in Belleville

Quietly. A small word, but one that describes perhaps more eloquently than any other, the way in which the Christmas holiday festivities were celebrated in and about the city.

An intangible something, perhaps it was sadness, remembrance and the other emotions of the people of a nation in its sixth year of war, hung over the city, a something was enhanced by the sombre dull greyness of the weather.

While warmth and Christmas cheer existed in the homes, the outside city was devoid of any great amount of activity. On Christmas morning a few strollers were out while in the afternoon the regular holiday callers were afoot but not in the numbers of other years.

It appeared to be taken for granted by Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public that this Christmas was to be a "homey" one.

This is exemplified in the fact that rail and motor travel were well below the figures of the past two or three years, although the removal of service centres from the district may have had some bearing on railway transportation.

Fewer Holiday Travellers.

Some hardy travellers braved the hazards of slippery highways but vehicular traffic was conspicuous by the absence of ordinary Christmas volume.

The religious observance of the day was manifest in a heavy volume of holiday worshippers who thronged churches of all denominations both on Sunday, Sunday midnight and on Christmas Day itself. Midnight services were exceptionally well attended and in some cases it was impossible for belated arrivals to obtain admission.

Midnight watch services on Christmas Eve were marked by not only capacity congregations but by the traditionally beautiful services that symbolize and pay homage to the birth of Christ. Colorful pageants, and impressive music, the thunder of organs, the blending voices of augmented choirs, the soft subdued lights of candles, added to the impressiveness and beauty of the various services.

Many homes were gladdened by the arrival of members of the armed services who were fortunate enough to secure holiday furlough. Other homes of the city were saddened by vacant chairs, some of them never again to be filled by a hero member of the family.

No Christmas Eve Shows.

Public functions were more or less conspicuous by their absence. Theatre managers eliminated the usual Christmas Eve midnight performances, but Christmas Day matinees and evening performances brought out the regular number of holiday patrons.

Industry and business celebrated in the usual manner with parties arranged for employees and other members of the staff by various managements.

A "Scrooge ghost" if it were possible, who could pay nocturnal visits to city homes, however, on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day would have found plenty of merriment and an atmosphere of cosiness and warmth. It was truly a children's Christmas and the greater majority of homes had the traditional Christmas Tree aglow with colored lights and decorations, with the floor beneath littered with cards and gifts.

Then, too despite the reported shortage of Christmas turkey very few tables lacked this traditional fare. Then there were geese and chickens not to mention all the "trimmins" and plum pudding too.

Belleville enjoyed a Merry Christmas although it was touched with solemnity and quietness.

Thirty Dressed Chickens Taken When Car Stolen

His name may be Claus, but he didn't feel like playing the role of Santa without some knowledge of where his wares were going.

After market on Saturday Hamon Claus, Shannonville, parked his 1932 model Ford coach bearing licence plate number 4 S 383 in the downtown area after placing some Christmas parcels in the vehicle. Also inside the car were 30 dressed chickens, which Mr. Claus had failed to dispose of at the market.

During his absence some person stole Mr. Claus' car, the 30 chickens and all of his Christmas presents. That was on Saturday evening and despite the fact police broadcast a description of the vehicle throughout Eastern Ontario no report of such a car having been recovered had been received by police at noon today.

Fortunately Mr. Claus didn't have his personal Christmas turkey in the car when it was stolen.

Midnight Mass At St. Michael's

On Christmas Eve, Midnight Mass was celebrated in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, with an overflowing congregation being present. The mass was celebrated by Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, assisted by Rev. A. L. O'Donnell, as Deacon, and Rev. J. Belair, S.J., Toronto, as Sub-Deacon. An eloquent sermon was delivered by Rev. Father Belair on the significance of the great feast. At the conclusion of the mass, Monsignor Nicholson, in extending his best wishes said, "Although dark clouds are drifting across the skies of a war-tossed world, the Star of Bethlehem is still shining." Masses on Christmas Day were said at seven, eight-thirty and ten-thirty o'clock.

At eleven-thirty before Midnight Mass, the St. Michael's band, composed of Bobby Young, Marie O'Conner, Betty Flynn, Dolores Clapp, Ed. Barrett and Leola Chapelle, played "Adeste Fideles" and "Silent Night." Then followed the procession of the children to the crib during which they sang "Angels We Have Heard on High," "Silent Night," "Oh Sin of Joyous Carol" and "Sleep Holy Babe." Immediately before the beginning of mass, Mrs. C. Belnap (nee Kaiser) and Robert Lacy sang "On Judea's Hillsides." On Christmas morning at ten-thirty, High Mass was sung by the children of the St. Michael's Academy with the "Adeste Fideles" at the Offertory.

Burglar Takes Christmas Gifts

An epidemic of burglarizing private homes and stealing Christmas presents swept through Eastern Ontario over the holiday and Belleville did not escape visitation from this type of thief.

While residents at 168 East Bridge Street were visiting relatives on Christmas afternoon a thief entered an apartment and stole a number of Christmas presents. City police are withholding the method of entry for security reasons. Missing from the apartment included a radio, which had been given as a present, along with other Christmas presents of an undetermined value. Some of the family silver was also reported missing when the residents returned home to find their rooms ransacked.

With another holiday weekend approaching Chief R. W. Probert today suggested to householders they securely lock their homes in the event of leaving for any considerable length of time. "We do not anticipate any serious crime, but it is good protection to property to have it secured," warned Chief Probert. It was noted through Canadian Press channels that burglaries of an identical nature were reported in other cities throughout Eastern Ontario, notably Oshawa, Peterborough and Kingston.

Smokey Smith, V.C. Having Good Rest

New Westminster, B.C., Dec. 27 (CP) — Private Ernest Alvin (Smokey) Smith of the Seaforth Highlanders, New Westminster's second Victoria Cross winner of this war, began yesterday a 30-day leave he intends to spend "visiting friends."

The short, stocky hero of the Savio bridgehead fighting by Canadians in Italy last October arrived at Vancouver airport late Monday after a 30-hour trip by air from Scotland, on his way home after four years overseas.

All official functions of welcome for the returned hero have been postponed until Friday to give him time to rest and visit with his family.

His mother, Mrs. J. J. Smith, was presented yesterday with a gold replica of her son's Victoria Cross by the women of the Canadian Legion Auxiliary. The Seaforth Highlanders will hold a special reception for Smokey in Vancouver.

Among those who met Smokey on his return last night was Major Jack Mahony, New Westminster's first winner of the Victoria Cross in this war, who arrived home from overseas a little more than a week ago. There was no formality in the greetings of the two heroes and neither saluted. They grasped hands as they met for the first time.

"Hearty congratulations," Major Mahony said.

"Thank you, sir," Smokey replied with a grin.

CropImprovement AssociationMeets, Progress Is Seen

J. C. Sills Is Elected President of Hastings County Organization

West Huntingdon — The annual meeting of Hastings County Crop Improvement Association was held on Monday afternoon in the Agricultural Rooms with a fair attendance. Mr. John McCaffrey of Madoc, presided over the program. Mr. H. R. Parnell, of Belleville, presented the treasurer's report which revealed the association to be in a healthy financial condition. Mr. W. Goodwin of the Crop, Seed and Weed Branch of Toronto, was present and gave a very helpful address, outlining the aims of the association. There are now fifty-one of these in the province with a large membership. When these organizations get properly moving it will mean over a million dollars to the province in the control of weeds and improvement in seeds.

Mr. H. L. Fair, secretary of the association, gave a fine report on the tests which were conducted throughout the country during the past year.

These included: Test with hybrid and open pollinated corn; Winter wheat; Sudan grass for summer pasture; Fertilizer test on pasture; Permanent pasture test.

Location of Plots.

These plots were located in various parts of the county and on the farms of Mr. W. E. Tummon, Foxboro; Mr. Clem Ketcheson, Wallbridge; Mr. Dave Hollinger, Oak Lake; Mr. Clare Shannon, Plainfield; Mr. Kenneth Caskey, Madoc; Mr. Laurison Ketcheson, Halloway; A. F. Foster, Tweed; E. J. Pyear, Stirling; Geo. Williams, Springbrook.

Officers Elected.

Mr. H. R. Parnell of Belleville, presided over the election of officers:

President — Mr. J. C. Sills, West Huntingdon

Vice President — Mr. Wilfred Forestell, Madoc

Secretary — Mr. H. L. Fair, Stirling

Treasurer — Mr. H. R. Parnell, Belleville.

Directors:

Sidney — W. E. Tummon, Foxboro; Laurence Ketcheson, Foxboro; Fred Campbell, Foxboro.

Thurlow — Charles Treverton, Plainfield; Clifford Ketcheson, Halloway.

Tyendinaga — Fred. A. Robinson, Corbyville; Clare Shannon, Plainfield.

Rawdon — Clayton Thompson, Stirling; Geo. Sutherland, Stirling; Lorne Hagerman, Harold.

Huntingdon—Sam Fargey, Elmer Post.

Hungerford — Harry Foster, Tweed; M. Hunt, Tweed.

Marmora — Irwin McCoy, Marmora.

Madoc — Cecil Woods, Madoc; Wm. Stewart, Madoc.

Messrs. J. C. Sills and Clem Ketcheson were appointed delegates to the convention to be held in Toronto in February, and Mr. Fred Campbell the representative to the agricultural committee.

Young Peoples' Union.

The Young People's Union held a helpful meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hammond on Thursday evening with a good attendance. Mr. Russell Sills presided over the Christmas program. Mr. Stewart offered prayer. Readings were given by Jean Haggerty and Joan McCurdy. James Donnan read the Christmas story. Arthur Wilson gave the special address. The Misses Marion Hammond and Muriel Thompson gave a duet.

Mr. Stewart conducted the election of officers for 1945:

President — Mr. Russell Sills

Vice President— Mr. Alex McCurdy

Secretary Treasurer — Miss Jean Haggerty

Pianist — Miss Muriel Thompson.

In the business period it was decided to give five dollars to missionary work and five dollars to Sick Children's Hospital at Toronto.

Following the Benediction a couple of contests were enjoyed conducted by Miss Muriel Thompson. Lunch was served.

Mission Band Meeting.

The Mission Band meeting was held on Saturday afternoon at the home of Lois Emerson. In the absence of the president, Mary Elliott presided over the Christmas program and Louis Emerson and Eleanor Wright were appointed as a committee to prepare the next program to be held at the Hammond home. Readings were given by Geo. Post and Don McCurdy. Recitations were given by Eleanor Wright, Sheila Wilson and Geo. Green.

There was a solo by Lois Emerson, duet by Mary Elliott and Doris Donnan. The meeting closed with prayer by Mr. Stewart and Mrs. Emerson served cake and popcorn balls.

West Huntingdon Cheese Company Meeting.

The West Huntingdon Cheese Manufacturing meeting was held on Thursday afternoon in the Orange Hall. Mr. Howard Ashley of Stirling was chairman for the meeting and Mr. Geo. Pollard, cheese inspector for this area gave an address of interest to cheese producers. Mr. Morley Haggerty was re-elected president and Mr. Vincent Farrell, auditor.

Endeavors' Class Meeting.

The December meeting of the Endeavors' Class was held on Monday evening at the parsonage. Following the usual program the officers for 1945 were elected:

President — Mrs. Frank Hammond

Vice President — Mrs. Elmer Post

Secretary Treasurer — Mrs. W. J. Fitchett

Pianist — Mrs. John Moorcroft.

Presentation to Robert Gay.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Gay on Monday when a large number of friends and neighbors gathered to spend a social time in honor of their son, Bob, who has recently joined the army.

Mr. Kenneth Stewart was chairman for the evening's entertainment. Community singing of Christmas carols was enjoyed by all. Musical selections were given by Mr. Harold Wright on his guitar. Mrs. William Benson and Billy Donnan contributed a guitar duet. Mrs. G. Welsh, Mrs. Bob Gay and Mrs. Benson, as a trio, delighted with a song. Readings were given by Marjorie Wright, Marion Kellar and Alex McCurdy.

Miss Helen Kerby read an appropriate address and Mr. Lindsay Sills presented Bob with a handsome wrist watch for which he voiced his appreciation. Short speeches were also given by Mrs. John Wallace, John Gay and Elmer Post.

Recent Snow Storms.

The recent snow storms have been the chief topic of conversation. While some think that Old Man Winter is showing off a wee bit too much, citizens here are most grateful. There is food and shelter for man and beast and there has been no serious illness. Some of the ladies have revived an old-time practice, baking bread. Old timers say the deep snow is a forerunner of good crops. The soil surely needs the moisture. So let everyone at this happy season of the year be truly thankful for the beautiful snow.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Melville Donnan and Keith spent Friday and Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Chambers of Whitby.

Mr. Kenneth Stewart took dinner on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wallace McInroy of Moira.

Mr. Frank Ashley is improving from his recent illness.

Woman Found Unconscious Along Highway

With her feet, legs and hands badly frozen and suffering from exposure, 31-year-old Anna Sisner, of 251 Martin St. in Toronto, was found lying in a snowbank along the old York Road south of Shannonville early Sunday morning by Provincial Police. The unconscious woman was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital where medical attention was given by Dr. A. E. Miles.

Twice on Saturday night Provincial Police received telephone calls regarding a woman acting strangely on Highway No. 2 east of Belleville. Police investigated but could find no trace of her. Shortly after four o'clock on Sunday morning, however, Provincial Constable J. E. Soulliere patrolled the old York Road south of Shannonville where he found the woman.

Subsequent investigations among relatives in Toronto revealed the woman had previously been a psychiatric patient in Toronto. The frost bites sustained by the woman were of a severe nature, as heavy blisters were observed on her legs and arms when examined by hospital attendants. She is recuperating after having regained consciousness. Provincial Police notified relatives of her whereabouts.

REDS MAKING WAY

within 96 of Vienna.

Tolbukhin's gains west of Budapest tightened the Russian battle one in the Danubian basin into the equivalent of a single front, stretching some 250 miles from the approaches to the eastern fortress town of Kassa to the southwestern Hungarian gap south of Lake Balaton.

Both Tolbukhin and Malinovsky are reported throwing reserves into the central sector of this line, where a new break-through might be fatal to German hopes of keeping the war from the soil of Austria.

Seize Large City.

Tolbukhin's troops, in cutting off the Hungarian capital, captured Csakvar, 25 miles west of the city, and reached and seized the Danube city of Esztergom, 20 miles northwest.

At Esztergom, Tolbukhin's army stood virtually opposite the Hron's mouth. A crossing of the Danube slightly to the west would outflank the enemy's Hron river line.

Elements of Malinovsky's army captured 16 Hungarian communities near the Czechoslovak border north of Gyongyos. This advance drove all except a few of the enemy from Hungarian soil east and northeast of the Danube.

PREMIER LEAVES HOSPITAL

San Francisco, Dec. 27 (AP) — Prime Minister Curtin of Australia has left the Melbourne hospital where he has been resting on his doctor's orders since November 4th, the Melbourne radio reported.

Francis Forde, army minister, has been acting Prime Minister during the illness of Mr. Curtin.

TRENTON

Mrs. G. Aylsworth 95 on Thursday

Trenton, Dec. 27—Mrs. George M. Aylsworth, who for many years has made her home with her daughter Mrs. (Dr.) E. A. McQuade here is celebrating her 95th birthday on Thursday, Dec. 28th., and already felicitations from many parts of Canada and the United States are being received by her.

Mrs. Aylsworth was born Eliza Bradley, in the township of Haldimand, just north of Newcastle and resided in that district until her marriage at the age of twenty to Dr. George M. Aylsworth, when they moved to Gorrie, Ont. After a few years there they then moved to Collingwood where the doctor died about ten years ago.

Mrs. Aylsworth is in complete possession of all her faculties and is keenly interested in all church and town activities. She is an active member of Grace United Church and can be seen in her pew there almost every Sunday.

She is a life member of the Collingwood W.C.T.U. and is active in that work as well as Red Cross activities. Her tatting and other handiwork known to all her friends as being particularly beautiful and several of her crocheted afghans have found their way to Red Cross hospitals.

Mrs. Aylsworth derives a great deal of pleasure from attending church teas and bazaars where many times donations of her work are found on the sales tables.

She has three daughters and one son, Mrs. (Dr.) E. A. McQuade, Trenton; Mrs. May Trott, Collingwood; Mrs. E. M. Carpenter, California and Dr. Ralph Aylsworth, Trenton, as well as several grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Though Simmons' Drug Store suffered greatly from smoke and water as the result of a fire which broke out shortly after noon on Friday, they were open for business as usual in the late afternoon in order to accommodate late shoppers for the Christmas rush.

The fire is said to have started in the furnace room from overheated furnace pipes and had gained considerable headway before being noticed by an employee who quickly gave the alarm. Firemen were on the scene in a very short time as the store is only three blocks from the firehall, and with a steady stream of water were able to get the blaze under control almost at once.

Smoke flooded the store and the upstairs apartments but other than smoke no damage was done upstairs. The occupants of the three apartments moved out temporarily but were able to return within a few hours.

Obituary

MRS. DOROTHY IRENE SCOTT. (Plainfield.)

After an illness of six weeks' duration Mrs. Dorothy Irene Scott, wife of Trooper Wilfrid J. Scott, Plainfield, died in the Belleville General Hospital, on Tuesday evening, Dec. 26th.

The late Mrs. Scott, who was in her 30th year, was born in Thurlow Township, and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Miller, Plainfield. All her life was passed in Thurlow Township. In religion Mrs. Scott was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Roslin, and was held in high esteem by many friends to whom her death has brought much regret.

Surviving her are her husband, who is now serving with the armed forces in Italy; one son, Charles Frederick Scott, at home; two sisters, Mrs. James Cranston, Stirling, and Mrs. Lawrence Griffin, Belleville.

Resting at the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street; the funeral announcement will be made tomorrow.

Senator Logan Dies in Ottawa

Ottawa, Dec. 27 — (CP)—Senator H. J. Logan, 74, whose parliamentary career was marked by his advocacy of "Maritime Rights" and who has been Liberal member of the Senate for Nova Scotia for 15 years, died in hospital here last night.

After his graduation in law from Dalhousie University, Halifax, Senator Logan organized an Amherst, N.S., legal firm with John S. Smileyn K. C., with which he maintained a connection in the later years of his life, although more or less inactive when his parliamentary duties kept him in Ottawa for long periods.

Senator Logan, born near Amherst, received his early education at Truro Model School and Pictou Academy. He was admitted to the Nova Scotia Bar in 1892, when only 23 years of age. He read law with Hon. W. T. Pipes, one time premier of Nova Scotia, and was later associated in practice with Stuart Jenks, K.C., and Col. J. L. Ralston, former defence minister.

His death brings to 15 the numbers of vacancies in the Senate. The standing now is Liberals 48, Progressive Conservatives 33 and vacancies 15. Total 96.

Senator Logan showed an interest in politics even in his college days, and in 1896 he was elected to the House of Commons from his native county of Cumberland — the first Liberal sent to Ottawa from that riding since Confederation — and was re-elected in 1900 and 1904. He was defeated in 1908 when Cumberland returned a Conservative member, E. N. Rhodes, but was returned in 1921 with the largest majority ever given any Federal candidate in the riding.

IN MEMORIAM

WOODEND — In loving memory of our dear mother, Gertina May Woodend who passed away December 23, 1943.

When days are dark and friends are few.
Dear Mother how we think of you.
Friends are friends if they are true.
We lost our best friend when we lost you.

—Sadly missed by Ione and Arthur.

BABCOCK — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, William Nelson Babcock, who passed away December 26th., 1942.

We do not forget you, nor do we intend,
We think of you often and will to the end;
Gone and forgotten by some you may be,
But dear to our memory you will be.
Your last parting wish we would like to have heard,
And breathed in your ear our last parting word.
Only those who have lost are able to tell
The pain in the heart at not saying farewell.

—Sadly missed by Wife, Frances, sons Ernie and Arthur of Toronto and Russell of Belleville.

WARRING GREEK

Called to order 1½ hours late, the conference began without representatives of the Left-Wing National Political Front Party whose armed militia, the E.L.A.S., is opposing Greek Rightists and British troops.

After Mr. Churchill had been speaking for about five minutes, however, three E.A.M. delegates were ushered in. Each shook hands with all at the conference table and the Prime Minister began his speech again.

Mr. Churchill declared that British troops came to Greece "with the knowledge and approval of President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin and in the belief that all Greeks, including the commander of the E.L.A.S. Army, wanted them.

Capture 13 Towns.

Swarming forward along the Hron (Garam), a northern tributary of the Danube, Malinovsky's troops captured at least 13 towns in southern Czechoslovakia and advanced within 63 miles of Bratislava and

"Since we've been here," he added, "the most violent, unexpected troubles have arisen and we have become involved in them in doing what we believed was our duty. This duty we shall discharge faithfully until the end."

No Material Advantages.

"But do not let anyone have in his mind the idea Great Britain desires any material advantages from Greece. We do not want an inch of your territory, we seek no commercial advantages, save those which are offered by Greece to all nations of the world. We have not the slightest intention of interfering with the way in which normal and tranquil Greece carries on its affairs . . .

"What will enable us to leave Greece? Naturally now that all these tragic things have happened, we are bound in honor to bring this matter to a good conclusion.

"We must, of course, ask for the acceptance and fulfilment of General Scobie's terms. We hope there may be established a broad-based Greek government representative of the Greek nation possessed of sufficient armed power in a Greek national army and with Greek police to preserve itself in Athens until a fair free general election can be held all over the country, or at any rate over the greater part of the country.

Want Voice Fully Expressed.

"We hope thus the voice of the Greek people shall be fully expressed in the same way as we express our voice in England and America by the method of elections based on secret ballot so that every man, rich or poor, has an equal right to cast his vote of citizenship . . .

Christmas Entertaining Less Owing to Travel Dificulties, Railway Holiday Traffic Lighter

Due to heavy road conditions in many of the immediate rural areas and to the fact that the civilian public to a great extent refrained from travelling in order that service personnel might get home for the holiday, entertaining over the Christmas holiday was at a considerably lower ebb than in previous years.

Officials at the Canadian National Railways station in Belleville reported the travel to be the lightest since the beginning of the war with only two and three sections of passenger trains being run instead of the four and five sections found necessary in other years.

In the rural areas many families ate their Christmas turkey alone as expected company found it impossible to use their autos for distance travel.

More Telephone Calls.

In comparison with the considerably reduced railway travel, however, officials of the Bell Telephone Company reported a definite upswing in the number of long distance calls over the holiday. Business on Saturday compared favorably with that of the same date in other years but on Christmas day out-of-town calls were up 14 percent.

Increased staff on duty for the day found it possible to handle most calls placed from Belleville office but trouble was experienced in getting calls through to Western Canada and due to overloaded circuits many greeting calls had to be cancelled.

General Conditions.

General railroad traffic throughout the province was considered to be light as compared to previous wartime Christmases, it was stated by local railroad officials. This was felt to be due to the appeal of the transport controller in asking the civilian public to refrain as much as possible from travelling in order that service personnel might get home for the holiday.

In the Belleville area the reason for the light travel was given as because of the closing of No. 5 Initial Training School here and of the closing of the Picton R.A.F. station. Also there is considerably reduced personnel at both Mountain View and Trenton Air Stations.

Bus travel out of Belleville was heavy over the holiday, however, with east and west buses being loaded to capacity. After the holiday buses from Bancroft were crowded to capacity as workers whose homes are in the northern districts returned to the city.

PICTON

FO. G. McKenna Killed in Iceland

Picton, Dec. 27 — A gloom over the Christmas festivities was cast Friday when it was learned that two well-known Prince Edward County young men had lost their lives as a result of plane crashes. They are Flying Officer Gerald McKenna, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. McKenna of Milford R. 2, killed in Iceland, and Arthur Copp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Copp, Cherry Valley, killed at the deHavilland Aircraft, near Toronto, during a test flight.

FO. McKenna, a member of the R.C.A.F., was reported missing on Thursday and word was received by his parents late Friday that he had been killed and that a military funeral was being held in Iceland on Sunday. He had been on patrol in Iceland for several months past and previously was in the Ferry Command. He joined the R.C.A.F. in 1940 after graduating from Picton Collegiate and trained at Dauphin, Man., Toronto, and Virden, Man., graduating as a pilot. He was 22 years of age and all his life was spent in Prince Edward County. He was a clever young man and made friends wherever he went. He was a member of St. Gregory's Roman Catholic Church.

Survivors are his parents, a brother Terence, in the tank corps and a brother, Francis, at home. It is learned here that five fliers lost their lives in this crash, details of which are unknown.

Arthur Copp was a test air observer with the deHavilland Aircraft near Toronto and was killed Thursday, along with the pilot, when the aircraft crashed half a mile from the airport. The body was brought to Picton Saturday and the funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at St. Philip's Anglican Church, Milford, Rev. J. Cantrell in charge. Interment at Cherry Valley. Born in England 34 years ago, he came to Canada with his parents in 1912 and resided at Waupoos, West Lake and Cherry Valley. He went to Toronto two years ago with the aircraft company. Previously, he had farmed and also been employed as a mechanic.

Survivors are his parents, a brother, Albert, at home, and a sister, Mrs. Kenneth Huff, Picton.

Lieut. M. Harris Given Silver Star Posthumously

The Silver Star, the third highest award given by the United States Army to her heroes, was posthumously awarded to a former Belleville boy, Lieut. Murray Harris, who was killed in the Battle of France some months ago. The son of the late Raymond and Mrs. Harris, Lieut. Murray Harris resided here with his parents some 20 years ago when his father was connected with the Canadian National Express Company.

Enlisting in the United States Army, Lieut. Harris was mentioned in dispatches during the invasion of Normandy and was later reported killed while in the line of duty. Over the holiday it was learned in Belleville he had been posthumously awarded the Silver Star for the courageous leadership of his men during the Battle of France.

The award was sent to his mother, it was learned by friends here.

BUTCHERS CLOSE SHOPS

New York, Dec. 27 — (AP) — Christmas dinner leftovers made up the menu for many a New York family yesterday as thousands of butcher shops closed in protest against government price regulations. A bakery drivers' strike sharply cut delivery of pies and dark bread, meanwhile, and many delicatessen stores — their owners joining meat dealers in a price protest — failed to open.

Letter Mail

The Canadian people are becoming famous in their own country at least for writing letters. During the Christmas season the total of mail sent over the postal service was the greatest on record. The great bulk of this was of course in Christmas cards but that leaves plenty of other letters, thousands of them—which Canadians send to one another, either civilians or members of the armed forces.

The war which has passed its sixth Christmas has of course made hundreds of thousands of Canadians turn into letter-writers. Most of them no doubt had written a few letters a year but the importance of letters has been in these last years so emphasized and so proven by the inspiration upon the morale of the troops, that others than the members of the armed forces are receiving the benefit of this new urge in writing.

In the day of the radio, telegraph and telephone, the latter of which reproduces the human voice hundreds and thousands of miles away, the written word still holds sway too. There can be no doubt that today there are more letter writers for the population than there ever were. After the war these new letter-writing people are not going to drop this new expression they have learned. They have seen the results of letter-writing and their relatives and friends will receive the benefit of this new incentive in self expression as well as in the revelation of the interesting things about the home and in fact of everything in which people take an interest.

Letters of soldiers coming back to Canada to parents will probably be of great value in the after-war days as they will be permanent evidence of the spirit of the men when on service as well as evidence of the life of the soldier. Besides there will be the great significance of many letters as they relate to events, soldiers' reactions and so forth. Something of a literature of the people may here be found—something the future would give much to know.

For this war is so vast that it possesses not only for those passing through the turmoil today, the living spectators of the course of this second Amrageddon but also those generations that will succeed us, significance of profound importance. The reactions of men will differ and much help to show a full battery of sidelights on the struggle as it relates to the home front and the actual fighting front.

Soldiers' letters to their homes will possess for their communities matters of great interest historically.

After the struggle there will remain a heavy task study—so many thousand phases and so many reactions in this most gigantic struggle in world history and little references may play a large part, such as may be revealed in letters.

Canada has set a record of airmail and ordinary mail to the troops during the present Christmas and during the past year. They have also sent parcels but they have learned by experience by letters from their sons and husbands abroad that men in action hope for not only parcels but also letters which are a revelation of the heart of the writer who is a relative or a friend.

The written world has rightly come into its place as absorbing interest of the first place. These hundreds of thousands of home front writers have learned the art and so have the men at the front. The war has developed these young soldiers, airmen and sailors not only to be observant as to news but also to express their thoughts.

Letter-writing has advanced during this war. At one time is seemed to be falling away but today there is the inspiration for writing and recording one's impressions of the great "passing scene" of the war.

Sunrise and Solstice

In the Christmastide rush and thrill, the fact that the winter solstice has been reached and that the mornings will in a short time begin to show marks of the gradual appearance of morning light progressively earlier has passed unnoticed by most people. In about two weeks the sun will begin to rise earlier. This week the sun rises, one minute, two minutes, three minutes and four minutes later than it did on December 21st. This week however reaches the latest point, 8 minutes to eight for the sun's rise in Toronto area and in about another week the orb of day will begin to rise earlier, until at the end of the month of January it will have gained about fourteen minutes as an early riser and morning darkness will begin to disappear.

The setting of the sun reached its low point for the year in the period from December 4 to 13 when it stood still as it were, at least setting time remained at 16.41 or 4.41 in the afternoon. On the fourteenth of December it began to set later, so that today sunset has been retarded already seven minutes.

The mornings however will remain dark for what seems a long time. To most individuals the darkness of mornings after the solstice seems much more slow in disappearing than it did in coming. That is the experience of most people, probably because the approach of the Yuletide buoys up the individual and because the lighter part of winter comes before Christmas while after Christmas there is the long spell of months which pass under the name of winter months.

Last week was the winter solstice which signifies the arrival of the winter season in earnest. It is course a fact as everyone knows this year that the last part of autumn is generally very winterlike. Ontario cities found that out in the past two weeks as Toronto where the snow mounds still remain along the sides of the streets as memorials of one of the worst storms on record (and this happened almost two weeks ago, before the winter solstice had been reached.) So nature draws no definite boundaries as to the moment of winter's arrival.

But winter does come about the time of the solstice. By the same law of nature spring comes at or about the 21st of March officially, though actual spring may be delayed far into the month of April in some seasons. Yet it always comes with increasing warmth, the loosening of the shackles of ice and snow, when mighty torrents sweep down rivers like revolutions sweeping away the dynasty of winter.

Ants Cross a Stream

(Our Dumb Animals)

The insect known as the driver ant is a most ferocious creature and perhaps more to be feared than even the wild animals and cannibals of Africa. They travel like soldiers, in columns, and the order of march is perfect. Their numbers are so large as to be considered only in astronomical figures.

When the marching column comes to a stream the ants unite and form themselves into balls, some as large as a hornet's nest, and roll out upon the water. A given point on the other shore is attained with uncanny accuracy, scouts having been first sent out at night.

The soldiers of the colony, however, can stand more sunlight than the workers, so the former units to form tubes about one inch in diameter, through which the workers pass without being subjected to the fearful rays of the African sun. This occurs in cases where they must make a daylight pilgrimage.

The driver ant cannot stand direct sunlight; therefore it works to locate the best point of embarkation. Subsequent balls cross in like manner until the entire colony is on the opposite side.

Lemons

Lemons are producing some pleasant surprises for householders these days, says Hamilton Spectator. There is one variety, not large and almost round, which resembles a lime with its green flesh and delicious flavor. Another variety is quite large, looking almost like a small grapefruit, is charged with juice and easy to squeeze. The W. Indies may be the producers of these fruit novelties in these parts, but whatever their source they are more than welcome in these times of scarcities.

JUST FOLKS

(Copyright, 1944, Edgar A. Guest)

By EDGAR A. GUEST

"JUST TOO LATE"

If I were sure my friend would stay or certain I'd be here,
I would not visit him today his anxious mind to cheer.
Until I had more time I'd wait—tomorrow that might be,
But oh, so oft I've called too late, and that's what bothers me!

I used to think I could depend on time, and pick and choose
And say for what today I'd spend; for what tomorrow use;
But waiting for a clearer sky or some less toilsome day,
Too often "just too late" was I—my friend had slipped away.

And now I've learned that time is not a treasure we can own,
Like money saved, to use for what suits us and us alone.
For none can say beyond the day how his account will run,
Or will he be allowed to stay to see tomorrow's sun.

THE FOURTH ESTATE

The press is called the Fourth Estate because of its great influence upon public affairs.

Formerly in England and France the powers that controlled the state were called the estates of the realm. The three estates of the realm were the church, the nobility and the common people. In England the three estates were specifically the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons.

It is a common mistake to call the sovereign, the lords and the commons the three estates of the realm.

"Fourth estate" was applied to several elements of society before it was to the press.

In a speech in Parliament in 1638 Lord Falkland applied it to the army. It was applied to the mob in 1752 in a newspaper article written by Henry Fielding. In 1789 an unidentified writer applied it to a proposed board of commissioners as well as to the Queen and her council. Later the term was applied to the working class.

There has been much discussion as to who first called the press the fourth estate. Authorship of the term is variously attributed to Burke, Carlyle and Macaulay.

In 1839 Thomas Carlyle published his "Heroes and Hero Worship." In that work he says: "Burke said there were Three Estates in Parliament; but, in the Reporters' Gallery yonder, there sat a Fourth Estate more important far than they all. It is not a figure of speech, or a witty saying; it is a literal fact — very momentous to us in these times."

Carlyle's style is such that it is not clear whether he intended to give Burke's exact phraseology. The term Fourth Estate does not appear in any of Burke's published writings and it is not known where Carlyle obtained his information. Some authorities have suggested that he may have coined the phrase himself. Two years earlier he published "The French Revolution." One chapter is entitled "The Fourth Estate." It contains the following sentence: "A Fourth Estate, of Able Editors springs up." But Macaulay had used the term as early as 1828. That year he wrote in the Edinburgh Review: "The gallery in which the reporters sit has become a fourth estate of the realm."

A correspondent to London Notes and Queries said he heard Lord Brougham use the term in the House of Commons about 1823.

Daring Rescue Of Airmen From the Sea

From The Society of British Aircraft Constructors Ltd.

Britain's new amphibian aircraft, the Supermarine Sea Otter, has been in operation in rescuing air crews in the sea after forced landing on their return flight from bomb raids on Germany.

The Sea Otter is thus carrying on the great tradition of air sea rescue work which was set by its predecessor, the Walrus. It has proved of good seaworthy qualities, but its introduction is of too recent date to achieve the record of approximately 3,000 air crew personnel saved by the Walrus.

The Sea Otter was basically a naval design aircraft but it has so far been used chiefly on Royal Air Force rescue duty. Its main difference from the Walrus is that it employs a tractor in lieu of a pusher engine.

Although the Walrus was originally intended to serve on naval reconnaissance, developments in warship design and the increasing number of aircraft carriers in fleets at sea, tended to make the use of aircraft in cruisers both undesirable and unnecessary. This might have limited the Walrus to ancillary operations and communications duties, but events conspired to divert it to air sea rescue of "ditched" air crews.

Some of their rescues have taken place under the very noses of the enemy; sometimes bitter air battles have been fought as the enemy tried to prevent the rescue Walrus from bringing succor to men drifting in their dinghies; and often when the rescued have been too numerous for the Walrus to lift into the air, they have had to be "taxied" on the sea surface back to base.

The air-sea rescue squadrons abound with stories of courageous deeds. One Walrus, long before D-Day, landed in the Somme estuary (France)—then occupied by the enemy—and picked up four Dutch airmen. The aircraft was prevented from rising from the water, and the pilot had to taxi 76 miles through heavy seas back to England. The same Walrus later took off with a Canadian fighter pilot who had been adrift in his dinghy for six days, and when located was under enemy guns only 8 miles from the shore of Fecamp (Northern France). On both occasions German batteries put up a vigorous fire but failed either to deter the crew or to interfere with the rescues.

Six wounded U.S.A. airmen, stranded some 30 miles off the English coast, were picked up by another Walrus. So serious was the condition of some of the airmen that the pilot decided to risk a take-off. In spite of its over-load, the Walrus got off and the airmen were in hospital 30 minutes later. Once an entire American bomber crew of ten were picked up, but this time the Walrus made no attempt to take off. The pilot taxied through heavy seas all through the night, and that aircraft was on operations again later that day.

The enemy were quick to realize the part the Walrus was playing in bringing back air crews who might otherwise have perished or been taken prisoner, and before the Luftwaffe had been swept from the English Channel skies would often oppose rescue attempts by massed fighter attacks.

The tradition of the Walrus is passing to the Sea Otter. With the prospect of an intensified assault by the Allies upon Japan, it is not improbable that the Sea Otter will win new battle honors in rescue work in the Far East.

NINE PERSONS INJURED

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

ONE CLIMATE OR ANOTHER

No such thing as catching cold, no such malady as gout, no human being has hydrophobia, no such disease as rheumatism, no need for children or young people to wear anything they don't want to—and now you preen your feathers there in the sunshine and oracularly tell us poor duffers who would give a leg for a season in Southern California that an equable dry climate has no particular advantage over a damp, cold wretched climate for persons with chronic bronchitis, chronic sinusitis, bronchiectasis, winter cough, etc. How about all these books by medical authorities too numerous to mention, telling of the value of change of climate for such cases? (H.D.E.)

Speaking of medical authorities and their prodigious output of medical books, it's amazing what a lot of volumes one can collect each season without finding anything new or original.

I still say a patient with any of the complaints you mention, will do as well in one part of North America as in any other part of the country, whatever the season or climate or weather may be, provided—

(a) that the patient or those responsible for the care of the patient be not obsessed with fear of cold, dampness etc., and

(b) that the patient spend as much time as possible outdoors and exposes as much skin as possible to whatever sunshine or skyshine or daylight there may be.

That's all there is to the climate question, I believe.

Kid yourself all you like, brother, about my inconsistency. I held the same views when I lived in your "damp, cold wretched climate" — although I never felt that sour about it. The winters were almost as bad as that, perhaps, especially for one who had to be out in all kinds of weather at all hours of the day and night, but the spring, summer and autumn—man, you must be a pessimist indeed if you find fault with the climate just because of the six unpleasant weeks at the tail-end of winter before spring comes back to stay.

From your letter I infer that you believe a change of climate would soon restore your health, and I imagine you do not ask your physician's advice about it, or you do not accept his advice if he has considered the move.

I have met a good many people but I have yet to meet one person who has found the ideal climate for his or her ailment. Still, I don't want to discourage you. I suppose there is always a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow if one could only find it.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Black and Blue

Interested in your remarks about black and blue marks and extravasations of blood under skin. I began noticing such marks under my skin two years ago. Doctor said it is angioma and there is nothing to do ...how much Vitamin C shall I take? (Mrs. A. G. W.)

Answer—If they are "black and blue" marks, a glass of orange juice or any other fresh fruit juice or a glass of factory canned tomato juice daily, besides what vitamin C you get in greens, fresh fruit, fresh vegetables you eat raw, will supply enough vitamin C. If they are minute dilated or "broken" blood vessels vitamin C can have no effect.

Hedging

Several doctors have told me I have double hernia, but the one I am going to now says I am weak in those spots but the "shots" he is giving me in the vein in the arm will build me up...he is close mouthed about injection treatment for hernia. (W.R.)

Answer—If you have hernia or potential hernia "shots" in the arm will hardly help that. I'm sorry I do not know which physicians in your city are skilled in the injection treatment of hernia. Two I did know have gone to war.

Give the Kids a Break

Our boys, 3 and 6, have "cri" almost constantly from early fall to late spring. Had their tonsils removed last fall, but it made no difference. I am carefu about wet feet and insufficient clothing, etc....

(Mrs. S. L. H.)

Answer—And so the kids are coddled and kept indoors whenever the weather is not to your liking? Send twenty-five cents and stamped pre-addressed envelope, for booklet "Call it Cri". Not that I suppose it will change your opinion, but it is the best I can do for those poor kids.

HEAVY TRAFFIC

Montreal, Dec. 27 —(CP)— The Canadian National Railways in 1944 has carried twice the amount of freight and express as in the pre-war years and four times the numbers of passengers, R. C. Vaughan, president of the C.N.R. said last night in his annual year-end review. This increased traffic was carried with only a slight increase in equipment.

Had Dizzy Spells; Backache; Gas Bloat; Praises Syntona

Suffered Year With Weak, Nervous Stomach; Tired and Rundown; Declares Syntona Herb Compound Gave Her Grand Results.

"In the past year I suffered so with a weak, nervous, upset stomach that my entire system became rundown," said Mrs. Florence Fleischauer, 123 Garfield Avenue, London, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I could scarcely eat anything without having awful gas formations, bloating, and belching up of hot, sour liquids. Spells of heartburn with a feeling like a lump in my throat came over me after almost every meal. I was getting bad, dizzy spells with little black spots coming before my eyes. My back was aching all the time and I used to have splitting headaches. This condition had kept up for so long that my nerves were all on edge. I wasn't getting my proper sleep at night and I felt tired and fatigued from the beginning of each day.

"I had tried so many things without getting any better, that when I read about Syntona it took a long time for me to make up my mind to try it. Now I am only sorry I didn't do so long ago. From the very first bottle I noticed my food was digesting better. I became so encouraged that I kept on taking it and now I can say I haven't felt so good in years. I am eating hearty meals again without gas, sourness or bloating afterward. The heartburn does not trouble me now and I am free from dizziness, headaches and backache. My nerves have calmed down too. As a result I am getting more sound, restful sleep at night and I do not feel tired and fatigued as I used to.

"I have already persuaded several of my friends to try Syntona and I recommend it highly to everyone suffering as I did."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how this pure herbal tonic will help you, too.

Christmas Concerts

JOHNSTOWN PUBLIC SCHOOL

With Rev. J. G. McKee acting as chairman the pupils of S.S. No. 6 Johnstown Public School presented their Annual Christmas entertainment at the Johnstown United Church. The teacher, Miss M. Wells, presided at the piano.

The program consisted of six recitations ably given by Shirley Brooks, Bob Mallory, Geraldine Harry, Raymond Stickle, Nettie Harder, and Rita Harder, two songs by the school, "Jingle Bells" and "Away in a Manger", sung by Grade I, two rhythm band selections, a guitar selection by Miss Jean Brooks, a duet by Shirley Brooks and Raymond Stickle and four one-act plays.

The highlight of the entertainment was a visit by Santa Claus, who, in his jolly way, distributed gifts to the children and various members of the audience.

WESLEYAN METHODIST CHAPEL

Parents and friends gathered on Wednesday evening at the Chapel to enjoy the splendid program presented by the children under the capable leadership of Miss Marion Clow.

Mr. Cyril Kent acted as chairman for the evening.

The program was as follows:

Opening Prayer, LAC Lindbergh, H.; "A Word of Welcome", recitation, Gerald Crocker; "Christmas Welcome Verse", recitation, Carol Smith; "Welcome Verse", recitation, Ross Kent; Duet "Away in a Manger", Helen Spearman and Louise Pitt; "A Star in the Sky," recitation, Helen Spearman; reading, Bobby Wessels, with carol by class, "We Three Kings"; "Salvation Flag", recitation, Barbara Dix; "Our Gifts", recitation by Donald Hook; "Tell Us Again of Jesus", recitation by Louise Pitt; "A Lasting Peace", recitation by Ann Morrison; Duet, "Joy to the World", Joan Crocker and Jean Arnott; "Glorify Your God", recitation by Betty Bly; Duet, Christmas Lullaby, Margaret Benn and Jean Arnott; Reading, Jay Kent and Carol by class "Hark the Herald Angels"; "Out Across the Ocean", recitation by Shirley Pitt; "The Best Story", recitation by Joyce Smith; Reading by Beverly Crocker and Carol by Class "While Shepherds Watched"; "My Heart's Hotel", Recitation by Jean Arnott; "One Night" recitation by Betty Bly; "Heavenly Hosts and Starlight", recitation by Barbara Dix; Reading by Shirley Pitt and carol by class "Carol, Sweetly Carol"; "God's Gift", recitation by Carol Smith; Recitation by Margaret Benn; Selection on accordian, Bobby Wessels; Recitation by Joan Crocker; Closing Verse, Ramona Eaton; Benediction, Bro. Wm. Grundy.

YOUNG WOMEN'S GUILD

The Young Women's Guild of Tabernacle Church met at the home of Mrs. R. Gibson, Foster Ave., for the December meeting. Miss Lashbrook presided at a short business meeting which planned Christmas donations to the British Minesweepers' Fund, The Chinese Relief and the Save the Children Fund. A small gift of appreciation was given to Miss Dorothy Kirkpatrick who is leaving Belleville.

Miss Irene Grills led a worship service of carols beginning with the Magnificat of Mary, Mother of Jesus. Each carol was introduced by Miss Grills, giving its source with a tribute to the nationality of its origin. A prayer followed and a reminded that "to love thy neighbor as thyself" is keeping the true spirit of Christmas.

The program committee consisting of Mrs. A. D. Archibald, Mrs. H. R. Gibson, Miss J. Tickell, Miss O. Elson, Miss I. Grills and Miss M. Lashbrook, presented, in radio form, as the program of the evening the first of a series of plays written by Miss Dorothy Sayers entitled "The Man Born to be King." The one chosen was particularly timely as it portrayed the Wise Men coming to Herod's palace in search of the Babe, who was to be the Saviour of the world. These plays were presented over the CBC some time ago, after they were broadcast in England and roused much discussion.

Paul Bibeault Goes to Bruins While A. Jackson, Former Leaf Returns to the Toronto Squad

Conny Smythe Offers Real Jack for Richard, Schmidt and Neil Colville

By FRED KEENER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Rangy Paul Bibeault, seasoned goaltender who made his professional debut with Montreal Canadiens several years ago after climaxing a brilliant amateur career with Quebec Aces, is no longer a sub-goalie. Last night the tall netminder left Montreal for Boston to finish the season with the fourth-place Bruins.

Bibeault, discharged from the army last year, was carried as a spare by Canadiens this season despite offers for his services from Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs.

Montreal Forum officials said there was "no money and no players" involved in the deal and that big Paul was sent to Boston at his own request. The move, of course, strengthens Art Ross' club.

Second step in the "Bolster Boston" program was promotion of Gino Rozzini, shifty centre-ice man who has been playing with the hub city's farm club, Boston Olympics, in the eastern United States hockey league. Rozzini is another former Quebec Aces' star.

Last week Ross disposed of veteran Art Jackson, native Torontonian who turned to the professional ranks in 1934 with Syracuse.

Jackson was sold to Leafs, who said his acquisition was but one step in their program of rebuilding the club for present and future.

Coach Happy Day made no further comment on the rebuilt Leafs. However dame rumor points the axe at Walter (Babe) Pratt, huge Leaf rearguard who won the Hart Trophy last season as the most valuable player to his team. There has been considerable criticism in Toronto papers about Pratt's playing this year.

Meanwhile, Maj. Conny Smythe, managing director of the Queen City team, threw a bombshell into the hockey picture when he said Leafs were offering $25,000 for Maurice (Rocket) Richard; $30,000 for Milt Schmidt, Boston Kraut-liner now overseas in the Canadian Army and $30,000 to the struggling Rangers for Neil Colville, now in the RCAF.

The offer for Richard was accompanied by a $1,000 reward to anyone—newspapermen included — who can swing the deal for the high-scoring Canuck who is touted as a second Howie Morenz. Happy Day's only comment was: "I am far from satisfied" (with Leafs).

ALL VICTIMS RECOVER

Hamilton, Dec. 27 —(CP)— Hamilton police reported yesterday that nine persons almost lost their lives due to asphyxiation in coal-gassing incidents at two Hamilton gassing incidents at two Hamilton weekend. All the victims, including four children, recovered without ill-effects.

CAPITALS BEAT ST. LOUIS FLYERS

By The Canadian Press

A neat steal by Pete Leswick paved the way for Indianapolis Capitals' 2-1 victory over St. Louis Flyers last night in the only scheduled American Hockey League game.

Freddie Hergert scored for St. Louis late in the first period and Dick Kowcinak tied the score in the second.

Midway in the final session the Flyers, making a bid for victory instead of what looked like a fairly sure tie, staged a rush down the ice while shorthanded. But Leswick got the puck and a three-man rush on goalie Jimmy Franks resulted in a score by Tony Bukovich.

It was an unfortunate night for the Flyers, for winger Ronnie Hudson suffered a fractured jaw in a second period collision and coach Hap Emms drew a $50 fine from referee Norval Fitzgerald for arguing against a penalty.

Toe Blake Still Holding Lead In Scoring Race

Montreal, Dec. 27 — (CP)—Canadiens' Toe Blake, who has been around the National Hockey League longer than he likes to think about, is still clinging to his leadership among the league's point-getters despite the efforts of another veteran to resume his place at the top.

The N.H.L.'s weekly official lists today showed Blake still holding a one-point margin on Boston's Bill Cowley with Syd Howe of Detroit and Elmer Lach locked for third spot. All have played 20 games this season, and in those 20 games Blake has piled up 34 points, Cowley 33 and Howe and Lach 26 each. Maurice Richard has 25 points to give Canadiens' top line three of the 1st six places.

Richard is maintaining his leadership in goals, with a total of 19 to date as compared with 15 for Blake and 14 for Herbie Cain of Boston. Cowley is out in front in assists with 22, one more than Lach and three more than Blake and Howe.

Pat Egan of Boston is still the league's bad man with 40 minutes in majors and minors. As a team, Canadiens are the most persistent occupiers of the penalty box with 153 minutes, three more than Toronto Maple Leafs.

NOT MUCH INTEREST

Toronto, Dec. 27 —(CP)— Toronto's 1945 election campaign got off to a faltering start last night when a total of less than 100 persons attended two meetings and a third meeting was cancelled through lack of attendance.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.)
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Dec. 27. (AP)—In announcing the ban on racing and calling for a review of the draft classification of professional athletes, war mobilization director James F. Byrnes said it was difficult to understand how the four-effers could be "able to compete with the greatest athletes of th nation in games demanding physical fitness". . . .Passing over the fact that most of the great athletes are in uniform and these guys are just the leftovers, competing against one another, and that the situation frequently has been explained to the public, we'll add just one more example. . . Phil Watson, the Rangers' Hockey star, broke a hand Sunday night, but he plans to play against Toronto tonight wearing a cast that lets him curl his fingers around a stick. . . Can you imagine the army letting a guy go into action that way?

Personal Opinion

After several days of thinking about the anti-racing edict, we still can't see where it will bring any noticeable improvement in the man-power situation. . . A guy whose pockets are burning with war wages and who would take time off from an important job and waste gas to play the races likely will find some way to spend his money. . . . You might even say that racing contributes to the war effort by helping those people get rid of their dough in a hurry and sending them back to work sooner.

No more privacy than a goldfish

While bringing its policyholders all the advantages of competitive business, life insurance "lives in a glass house". It has no more privacy than a goldfish. Complete details of its operations are available to policyholders and the public at large, in the 700-page Annual Report of the Dominion Superintendent of Insurance, and in Provincial Reports.

Under the laws enacted at Confederation and constantly broadened and improved during the past 75 years, policyholders enjoy the double protection of both Dominion and Provincial supervision. They receive full information about the life insurance business in Canada: its investments, its policy funds, its contingency reserves, the volume of protection which it provides and, in fact, the whole detail of its operations. No other industry in Canada is under such continuous and experienced supervision.

Life insurance is the outstanding business example of private management under government supervision in the public interest. Within this democratic pattern, the faith that Canadians have in their life insurance has been vindicated through wars, epidemics, panics and depressions. Within this pattern, the interests of four million Canadian policyholders are safeguarded.

It is good citizenship to own LIFE INSURANCE

RED WINGS STOP TORONTO BY 6-4

Detroit, Dec. 27 (Special)—Somewhere over the rainbow, way up high, awaits a hockey victory over Detroit for Toronto in National League traffic. Monday night the rainbow did not appear and Detroit gained its fourth successive five games of the season's series 6-4.

That 1-1 tie remains the Leafs' ultimate to date as Detroit drove an additional rivet in the second-place plate. Attendance was 10,907.

In this instance the Leafs, save for the third period, were outskated and outmanoeuvred by the Wings, to whom Santa Claus must have been kind as they were inspired no end.

Joe Carveth scored Detroit's first goal at 8:24 on a combination of Scurry and Steve Wochy.

Detroit's margin was 2-0 at 13:56 when Eddie Bruneteau let go from behind the Toronto net and Carlyle Liscombe, 10 feet out from McCool, blinked the light on a sizzler. Nick Metz had Toronto's first at 17:55. Lorne Carr's pass from the right boards was picked up by Metz, who, beat Lumley. The period terminated with Detroit ahead, 2-1.

Murray Armstrong started the play for Detroit's third marker at 11:44 of the second. A Hollet-to-Armstrong-to-Eddie Bruneteau combination was too much for McCool.

Art Jackson had his first goal in a Toronto uniform in eight years six seconds after Bruneteau's. From the faceoff Jackson slipped inside the blue line and Lumley went down to make the catch on a roller. The rubber danced over the straining arm and into the net.

Wochy made it 4-2 for Detroit. As an appropriate observance of his 22nd birthday Wochy darted inside the blue line for Carveth's pass and fired past McCool. Don Grosso put Detroit three goals up at 19:13, assisted by Sidney Howe and Modere Bruneteau.

Carr made Lumley appear helpless as he swooped in at 6:16 for the Leafs. Metz and Angus Bodnar unwrapped a masterpiece of speed and shot to leave Detroit in the van, 5-4, at 8:03. Wochy put the game on ice in a swift exchange with Carveth and Jerome McAtee at 15:30.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Official records of the American league issued last night at Chicago, showed Paul H. (Dizzy) Trout and Harold Newhouser, both of Detroit Tigers, as the leading twirlers of the junior circuit, although neither topped the list in won-lost percentages. Newhouser won 29 and lost nine games and had an earned-run average of 2.22. Trout closed the season with a record of 27 victories and 14 losses and held top position in earned-run averages with 2.12.

Nels Potter of the Browns won 19 and lost seven but it was Cecil (Tex) Hughson of the Boston Americans who came through with the highest pitching performance with 18 wins and five losses for a percentage of .783. Newhouser lead the league with 187 strikeouts and Trout was second with 144, with Buck Newsom of Philadelphia third with 142. Trout allowed the most hits at 31: and Bill Dietrich of Chicago gave the most runs, 132.

France defeated Belgium 3-1 at Paris yesterday in the first soccer match to be played between the two countries since their liberation by the Allied armies.

St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League last night announced the trade of Fred Kovalchuk to Buffalo for Jim Russell. Both are wingmen. No cash was involved in the transaction, Flyer officials said.

General Manager William DeWitt of St. Louis Browns, Manager Luke Sewell of the Browns, shortstop Martin Marion of the St. Louis Cardinals and Scout W. Egan of Detroit Tigers yesterday were named Major Leagues' leading men of the year by The Sporting News.

T. P. Gorman, president of the Province of Quebec Racing Association, announced at Montreal last night there would be no racing in Quebec next season if the Canadian government asked the tracks to close down, following similar action in the United States.

Long-shots had their fling at Tropical Park, Miami, yesterday with the prospect of a closing of the track Jan. 3 at Government "Request". The winners included Swords, which paid $26.30 in the first race; Good Show, $10.40 in the fourth; Canslam, $72.10 in the fifth; Doodonough, $219.20 in the seventh, and Smoke Puff, $154.70 in the eighth event.

The Montreal Royals of the International Baseball League will train with Brooklyn Dodgers at Bear Mountain, N.Y., it was announced by President Hector Racine of the Montreal Club. The Royals have about 40 players.

INVESTIGATE THEFTS

Paris, Dec. 27 —(AP)— The United States army is investigating the theft of mail in connection with black market activities as the result of finding 28 pounches and 56 sacks of mail along with other government property in an abandoned army truck located on the premises of a civilian home in suburban Nantes.

EMBARGOS NO LONGEER NECESSARY

Toronto, Dec. 27 —(CP)— F. C. Fletcher, general manager of the Toronto Union Stock Yards, said last night that the cattle glut at the yards has become a thing of the past and it is not anticipated that further embargos will be necessary in the immediate future.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

Reminder

"What's that piece of string tied round your finger for, Bill?"

"That's a knot. Forget-me-not is a flower. With flower you make bread, and with bread you have cheese. This is to remind me to buy some picked onions."

Holidays are just fine. It's the return to the old grind that proves the bug-bear. And just to think, there's another weekend of it coming up. Ho, hum.

Tosses Bombshell

James F. Byrnes, War Mobilization Director of the United States, threw professional sports into jeopardy over the holiday weekend by directing all race tracks south of the border closed as of Jan. 3rd, 1945. Mr. Byrnes has the endorsation of "F.D.R." and added he would immediately have draft boards review the classification of men now engaged in professional athletics. The reasons given were to "prevent the use of critical materials, services and transportation . . . until war conditions permit otherwise."

Although War Mobilization Director Byrnes specifically mentioned horse racing, professional baseball and boxing, no outward mention of pro. hockey was issued in the initial declaration. Under the heading of status of wartime professional sports in the U.S.A. Mr. Byrnes did stress "transportation", which might affect the N.H.L. in Chicago, Detroit, New York and Boston. As for the playing personnel of the N. H. L. however, most of its players are of Canadian birth and are under the direct supervision of Ottawa so no serious results could happen in this matter. However, if Mr. Byrnes makes wartime transportation a major issue of his program then professional hockey might be affected.

One Reason

Horse racing in the U.S.A. is a billion dollar industry, that affords some $56,000,000, in State taxes. This is no small item when the state heads compute their taxation, but with increased crowds at race meets all over the continent maybe Mr. Byrnes and his department feel professional sport is lending to the ever-growing absenteeism at war plants all over this continent. This fact, perhaps, holds good in racing more than any other individual sport mentioned in dispatches. Already the principal tracks in the south are preparing to close down on January 3rd next.

In rebuttal across America fans are pointing to the fact England has striven to keep sports alive all thru the war, even during the devastating blitz of 1940-41. When the Canadian Government was considering curtailing sports in this country some time ago there was indignation forcefully demonstrated from all walks of life, who pointed to the fact that sport was continuing in war-torn Britain.

Comment Typical

Typical of the reaction in racing circles was the comment of Col. Matt Winn, head of Churchill Downs at Louisville, scene of the Kentucky Derby.

"There is only one thing to do," he said, "and that's to obey the boss. Things must be pretty serious for the Government to take such action, and we should follow every instruction. As fore the Derby, we have several months to make a decision, and things might clear up somewhat before then."

Remember when

Charlie Gehringer, Detroit second sacker, topped the American League in both batting and fielding in records released seven years ago. Gehringer, one-time Toronto player in the International League, was voted the circuit's most valuable player in 1937, winning the junior major loop batting title with an average of .371.

Then also, Sylvannus Apps, National Hockey League centre ice star for the Toronto Maple Leafs, was acclaimed Canada's outstanding athlete of 1937 in the annual Canadian Press sports poll released seven years ago today. The former British Empire and Olympic Games pole vaulter failed by only one point to win the N.H.L. scoring title in his first big time money series, 1936-'37.

This and That

If quantity means anything coach Toots Holway has a winning team on paper. Last night at the Market St. igloo, Skipper Holway had more aspiring kids out to practice than the "old woman who lived in a shoe" . . . Of course she didn't know what to do, but then neither does Toots, so they're both even on that score . . . However Toots can get rid of the waywards and will no doubt commence the weeding out process Thursday night when the juniors practise again. . .Over two dozen kids answered the call last night and that's a problem for any puck-chasing coach . . . Headed by Flash Gilhooley of Bowmanville, the Oshawa junior "Bees" stepped into Kingston and beat Max Jackson's Limestone City Victorias 5-2 over the weekend and now the good folk of Kingston are wondering if they have the strong junior "B" squad they've been reading about . . . . fame is fleeting.

Turkey and Fixin's Fail to Halt Kids At Hockey Practice

Coach Holway Has 25 Aspiring Juniors to Answer Work-Out Call After the Holiday

Any indication of too much Christmas turkey wasn't seen when the Belleville juniors held their second hockey practice at the Hume Arena last night when Coach "Toots" Holway was faced with 25 keen aspiring teen aged lads who were filled with determination in the battle for positions.

Despite the fact it was but the second practice of the season the players were divided into two regular squads with substitutes being poured into the fray at frequent intervals owing to the torrid pace set by the aspirants. No quarter was asked nor given as the railbirds, who were goodly in number, got a fair idea as to the calibre of hockey they could expect when the junior O.H.A. season gets under way next week when the local "Bears" open the provincial puck season at Tweed.

On one line in particular, Day, Meagher and Bishop clipped it off in mid-season style while opposing them was another front line of Moher, Barrett and Lyall, who teamed well together. Of course there were others with equal prowess, but lacking was the ability to find the net once the forwards penetrated the defence, if and when, Dick Fitzpatrick and Maurice Rollins stood between the respective gas-pipes for the full hour. The juniors practice again Thursday.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO 586
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When an eager neophyte feeds on expert polyglot, it is possible he might find his bridge is not so hot. He may never know what's right notwithstanding what he's got.

There are billions of different hands. There are only 15 words to describe them. And that limited vocabulary must be employed in ways that will do the most telling.

How can so few words explain so many hands without the fear of duplication? By joining the words in different combinations to express different meanings.

Take an opening bid that has the word one in combination with a suit. It shows a hand with better-than-average general values and a suit that is biddable.

Take an opening with a combination of the words one and no-trump. It shows a better-than-average no-trump hand without promising a suit that is biddable.

Take an opening that combines two and a suit. It shows a hand that expects to make a game by itself. It insists on going to a game in something even if partner has nothing.

Since that combination shows a game hand, the word two combines with no-trump to show something else. Two no-trump is used to show a hand that contains eight no-trump tricks.

Come again to this hand:

♠A J
♥A J 9 6
♦K Q J 4
♣A Q 10

This hand does not contain enough tricks for an opening of two in a suit. Nor has it eight no-trump tricks for an opening of two no-trump. Nor is it one no-trump with biddable suits.

With two same length biddable suits, bid the higher rank first. So, it is not a one diamond opening. It is an opening of one heart.

Dominion Wants More Air Routes To United States

By JAMES J. STREBIG
(A.P. Staff Writer)

Washington, Dec. 27 (AP) — Canada is expected to seek a larger share of the air routes connecting her and the United States, it appeared today as it was learned officials of the two countries probably will confer next month on a new agreement covering these routes.

An air services agreement between Canada and the United States was reached in December, 1940, and was to expire at the end of 1942. Because of the war, it was decided in March 1943, to extend terms of the agreement for the duration, after which a conference was to be held.

Apparently impetus resulting from the recent 54-National Aviation Conference at Chicago has pushed ahead plans for new negotiations. Informed circles believe that Canada will sign the "Two Freedoms" or transit agreement—mutual exchange of the right to cross a country and make non-commercial stops—before the meeting with the United States. Later she may sign the transport document, already bearing 18 signatures, which is a general exchange of the right of commercial flight.

The original agreement divided the routes between the United States and Canada, with the United States taking Bangor, Me., to Moncton, N.B.; Buffalo, N.Y., to Toronto, any United States point to Windsor, Ont., and Great Falls, Mont., to Lethbridge, Alta., while Canada was given Toronto-New York and any Canadian point to Detroit. Later the United States began flying from Seattle, Wash., to Vancouver, B.C., Fargo, N.D., to Winnipeg, and New York to Montreal. Canada now is flying but one route into the United States.

One of the things Canadian spokesmen seem almost certain to ask is a route to Chicago, where Canadian livestock and grain interests carry on considerable business.

John Bracken Now in London

London, Dec. 27 — (CP Cable) — John Bracken, National Leader of Canada's Progressive Conservative party, arrived by air today in the United Kingdom, accompanied by Melville R. Jack, his secretary.

Mr. Bracken is expected in London tomorrow. The political leader and Mr. Jack plan to join Col. Alfred Brooks, Progressive Conservative member for Royal (N.B.), and R. K. Finlayson of Winnipeg, adviser to Mr. Bracken, in a visit to northwestern European fighting zones after a short stop in the capital.

Col. Brooks and Mr. Finlayson arrived from Canada Dec. 22.

Mr. Bracken is expected to hold discussions with different Empire leaders after his visit to the Canadian forces now engaged with the enemy in Holland. He will concentrate on plans for post-war rehabilitation.

Mr. Bracken is making his first visit to the Empire capital since 1929, when as Premier of Manitoba he came to London to see what was being done in Britain in the way for social security legislation.

Several Minor Traffic Accidents Over the Holiday

Traffic accidents on city streets were at low ebb over the extended Christmas holiday weekend. Not a single major crash was reported and no person had to receive hospitalization as the result of the few minor collisions that did occur.

"It is gratifying to know motorists drove with such caution, especially with so much snow piled along the curbs following the pre-holiday heavy snows. Now all we urge is the same careful consideration be adhered to by motorists over the New Year's festive weekend," commented Chief Probert today.

Several minor collisions were reported in the downtown area on Saturday. For instance in the driveway leading behind the Belvedere Hotel considerable damage resulted to a motor car driven by V. G. Clare, 52 Baldwin Street, after the lighter vehicle was in head-on collision with a truck driven by James Carroll, 20 Pine Street. The force of the impact drove the motor car backwards some 14 feet, police stated. Considerable damage resulted to the front portion of the car, police added.

Cars driven by Jack Bush, 147 West Bridge Street and Enos David, 224 Foster Avenue, were in collision on Campbell Street as the former was driving out of a private driveway. This matter was amicably settled. So was another crash between cars driven by Clayton Gilroy, Bleecker Avenue and Gordon Booth of this city when only fender damage resulted.

On Saturday night when Edward Sayers, Roslin, attempted to drive his motor car past another auto, driven by Wellington Howell, of Mountain View, the fenders of the vehicles locked causing a short traffic congestion on Front Street until the vehicles were released. Prior to this a truck driven by J. O'Sullivan, Read, collided with a parked car owned by Herb Reed, local Selective Service official, who was instrumental in assisting in the identification of the car driver, who was escorted to the police station for questioning. Charges are pending in this case, police revealed.

Last night a motor car driven by AB. O. P. Post of the Navy and who is home on leave skidded on the icy surface of Front Street colliding with a parked automobile owned by Mr. Dawson, Belleville. Post reported the matter to police when he was unable to locate the owner of the parked car. Then A. W. Simpson, 245 Foster Avenue, complained to police his car had been sideswiped and damaged by another automobile as the vehicles were passing on Coleman Street on Saturday. The street was narrow at the point of impact owing to snowbanks.

Provincial Police investigated two minor accidents along adjacent township roads over the holiday and also reported no serious collisions in the Bay of Quinte area.

However, along Highway No. 2 east of Belleville a serious traffic congestion occurred on Christmas morning when several large transports skidded into the deep snowbanks impeding the progress of traffic in that area. It was some considerable time before the trucks were released and traffic could continue at its normal pace. Inspector Harry Storey, of Provincial Police Headquarters here, also stated he was pleased to announce there had been no serious motor accidents throughout the district over the holiday. "We hope motorists continue to drive with the same consideration over the coming weekend," suggested Inspector Storey.

POLICE BLOTTER

Leo Lucciola, of Holloway, reported his 1929 Essex coach stolen over the weekend. City police subsequently found the vehicle abandoned near the corner of Park and Donald Streets, on Saturday night.

Provincial Police were asked to assist in the possible location of 78-year-old Frank Bird, of this city, who disappeared while visiting relatives at Point Anne on Sunday. Investigations lead police authorities to believe the elderly man had left to visit other relatives in the district.

City police stated they were glad to report the absence of a large degree of intoxication in Belleville and environs over the Christmas holiday. "Naturally a few became tipsy and talkative, but generally speaking everything associated with drinking of spirits was conducted in a mild manner and only two or three had to be taken to the station where a few words of caution and wisdom soon had the desired effect", commented city police officials today.

"It is to be hoped the same condition prevails at New Year's so we can start 1945 off with a clean slate", remarked Chief Probert today.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 27 — (CP)—Trading was heavy on Toronto exchange this afternoon. Golds led the decline. Volume was small at 275,000 shares.

Frobisher sold down 45 cents to 7.40. Giant lost 20 or more and smaller declines were netted by Beattie, Upper Canada, Wasa Lake, Queenston, MacLeod-Cockshutt and East Malartic. Central Patrician was off 13 to 1.82 and Transcontinental Resources slipped back to 1.54 and recovered to 1.62 for a net loss of 8 cents.

Nickel and Steep Rock were slightly weaker base metals and industrials showed weakness in liquor, utility and food groups.

WALL STREET

New York, Dec. 27. (AP)— Long war indications troubled the stock market again today, bringing out enough selling to depress rail and industrial leaders fractions to more than two points. Near the fourth hour quotations generally were moderately above the early lows.

Atlantic coast line had an extreme fall of more than three points but came back a bit. Also hit by the selling were Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Goodyear, U.S. Rubber, Johns-Manville, American Telephone, Eastman Kodak, and Texas Co.

Canadian issues all showed minor losses.

Bonds and commodities showed general declines.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Dec. 27 — (CP) — Cattle trade was slow with prices a shade easier up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. A few weighty steers sold at $11-$12, butcher steers and heifers $10-11.50, butcher cows $7-$9.25, canners downward to $5.50, bulls $7-$8.50, and fed yearlings $12-$13.50.

Calves were steady at $16-$16.50 for choice vealers with common downward to $10.

Lambs were strong at $13-$13.50 for good ewes and wethers, $12-12.50 for bucks and $7-$9 for culls.

Sheep were steady at $2-$5.

Hogs were steady at $18.35 for grade A, dressed, and $13.25 for sows dressed.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: cattle 700, calves 150, hogs 300, sheep and lambs 150. No cattle were unsold from yesterday.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Dec. 27 —(CP)— Receipts Cattle, 42; calves 80; lambs 219; hogs 105.

Good cows 8-8.50. Canners and cutters 4.50-5.75. Heifers 6-8. A few tops 10.

Good veal calves 14.50-16. Grass calves 5.50-8.50, bulk at 8-8.25. Lambs 11.50-12.50, majority 12.

Hogs 18-18.25 Grade A sows 12.75-13.25 dressed.

HOGS

Toronto, Dec. 27 —(CP)— Prices were unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting early today. Dressedweight, Grade A, delivered, Hamilton $17.80; Hull $17.75; Stratford, to farmers $17.50, to truckers $17.65.

Germans Trying To Panic Belgians

London, Dec. 27 — (CP) — A German radio station which has been trying to panic the Belgians ever since opening of the present offensive said today Field Marshal von Rundstedt's forces were using an atomic bomb in the new attack.

"This is the type of bomb on which the Allies have claimed to have a monopoly," the announcer said. The "Germans used it at St. Vith. Wherever such a missile is dropped all animals and plants cease to exist. Huge areas of land are scorched, woods are consumed, and any human being caught in the hurricane is shattered to smithereens."

Mosquitos Set Fire To Two Hun Ships

London, Dec. 27—(CP Cable)—A striking force of Mosquitos of R.A.F. Coastal Command, hunting enemy ships off the Norwegian coast yesterday, left two German merchantmen afire — one sinking by the stern — and beat off two formations of Me-109s and FW-190 fighters, destroying at least one enemy fighter, the Air Ministry said today.

Hits both above and below the waterline of one ship were scored by FO. N. Smith of Winnipeg.

FO. G. Symons of Lachine, Que., said:

"I let go with my cannon at one of the Jerries. My navigator said he could see the aircraft on fire."

The War Today— Great Battle Expected to Flame Soon Throughout Overrun Area

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

We can't know the extent of the damage which the German offensive has done the Allies until Gen. Eisenhower launches his major counter-attack and puts Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's flashing steel to the full test.

That great and perhaps decisive battle isn't likely to be long deferred, though one proceeds cautiously with estimates these days when news from the front often is delayed 48 hours by censorship. As things now look we may expect to see shortly a titanic engagement which will flame throughout much of the some 2,500 square miles which the Germans have overrun.

The prospect remains broadly what they were the day Von Rundstedt flung his attack through a pea-soup fog against the thinly-held American front along the Argonne. He knew then that his colossal gamble, into which he was pouring all his resources, would bring him one of two things—either he would succeed in delaying final Allied victory over Germany indefinitely, or he would receive a knockout blow.

Those alternatives still are before him. There is, however, this difference: his position is much stronger today because of the damage he has inflicted to the American fighting machine and because he has succeeded in uniting his two original wedges thereby giving his salient much greater stability.

Eisenhower hasn't yet lost his opportunity of administering a knockout to his opponent. Still, von Rundstedt by clever generalship has manoeuvred himself into such a position that whether he has to face the full strength of the Allied counter-blow he may be able to pull back into his old position in the Siegfried defences and thus avoid having his forces cut off and annihilated. This of course would mean he had succeeded in protracting the war so that his masters could fish for peace.

It would also mean — and we shouldn't overlook this — that the Germans had secured greater freedom of action in meeting the Russian drive in the east. We may be sure that the German high command had this aspect of the situation well in mind in launching the attack against the western Allies. They not only are facing the menace of the huge and successful Red offensives through Hungary towards Austria but they've been expecting the Russians to launch a fresh drive against the Vistula front toward the German frontier.

King's Message To His People Is Optimistic

London, December 27. (CP)—King George in his sixth and most optimistic wartime Christmas message to his people throughout the world, voiced the prayerful hope today that before next Christmas "the story of liberation and triumph will be complete".

In one passage of his eight-minute speech from the royal fireside, the King said: "We long for a new birth of freedom and order among all nations so that happiness and concord may prevail and the scourge of war may be banished from our midst".

This was the first time the King had broadcast his Christmas message in the presence of the Queen and Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose. They sat around the microphone, making it a cosy family occasion in the country.

The King, who with his family had returned from church services, went on the air following the BBC Christmas program without previous announcement.

The King's speech was preceded by a recorded broadcast from a front-line Tommy in Germany, Cpl. Robert Bruce Pass, a former window cleaner, who was given the place of honor on the program. Cpl. Pass told his home folks over the radio, "We are fighting the weather as well as Hitler. We are in Germany, our face toward Berlin. Good luck, London; good luck, Britain".

In firm, confident tones, the King said, "The lamps which the Germans put out all over Europe first in 1914 and then in 1939 are being slowly rekindled".

"Already," he said, "we can see some of them beginning to shine through the fog of war that still shrouds so many lands".

In a reference to the Empire, he said "throughout the Empire, men and women, boys and girls through hard work and much self sacrifice have all helped to bring victory nearer. We have shared many dangers and the common effort has bound us together".

Touching on international relations, he said that "labor and devotion, patience and tolerance will still be needed for the experiment of living as nations in harmony".

The King warned that the "defeat of Germany and Japan is only the first half of our task; the second is to create a world of free men untouched by tyranny".

In urging concord among nations, His Majesty said "yet though human ingenuity can show us no short cut to that universal charity which is the very heart of the Christmas message, the goal is still before us and I for one believe that these years of sacrifice and sorrow have brought us nearer to it".

"We do not know what awaits us when we open the door of 1945", he added. "But if we look back to those earlier Christmas days of the war we can surely say that the darkness daily grows less and less".

Oak Lake Ice Not Yet Safe

Despite the recent prolonged period of zero weather, the ice on Oak Lake is not yet safe for crossing it is reported by Mr. Milton Bird, Oak Lake Summer resort proprietor who has within recent days warned many Belleville and district skiers to stay away from the lake.

"With the heavy snow coming before the hard frost there is still only about two inches of ice on the lake and this is not enough for safety," stated Mr. Bird when he called the Ontario Intelligencer today. "I've repeatedly warned skiers against crossing the lake while it is in its present condition but strangers still take short cuts across endangering their lives."

The Oak Lake district has long been the mecca for skiers in the Belleville district and this year's heavy snow has made skiing possible for lovers of this winter sport. The warning is, however, to stay away from the lake until the thickness of ice increases to assure safety.

Two Rescued, Revived From Monoxide Fumes

Windsor, Dec. 27 (CP)—Clem Menard, 23, and Alice D'Haitre, 16, were revived by the city fire department rescue squad today after they were overcome by carbon monoxide fumes while in a car in Menard's garage.

Menard, noticing something was wrong, opened the car door and dragged the girl to the steps of his home. His father carried both of them into the house, calling the rescue squad. Menard was almost recovered when the firemen arrived, and Miss D'Haitre was revived by an inhalator.

ADOPT 40-HOUR WEEK

Toronto, Dec. 27 —(CP)— Adoption of a 40-hour week in its Toronto plant was announced today by Lever Brothers of Canada. The company explained in a statement that the National War Labor Board has given approval to a reduction of eight hours in the work-week and payment of an efficient bonus of 20 per cent so "take-home" earnings of employees remain unchanged.

Increased efficiency obtained through suggestions of a joint union-management committee enabled the company to demonstrate to the board that a 20 per cent reduction in labor costs could be achieved through adoption of the shorter work period, the statement said.

Lloyd George Will Not Stand For Re-election

London, Dec. 27. (CP-Reuters) — David Lloyd George, Prime Minister during the First Great War, has decided not to stand for re-election to parliament, acting on medical advice.

Mr. Lloyd George has been in parliament for 54 years and is "Father of the House". He is nearly eighty-two.

The announcement was made today by E. P. Evans, chairman of Caernarvon Boroughs Liberal Association to a special meeting of the executive of the Association.

The Welsh statesman who led Britain to victory during the First Great War is to retire from parliament after 50 years continuous service as member of parliament for Caernarvon Boroughs.

As a struggling young solicitor, son of an elementary schoolmaster, he was to become Prime Minister of England. In 1890 he obtained an unexpected parliamentary victory by 18 votes at a Caernarvon Boroughs by-election. Since then he never lost an election.

In 1939 Mr. Lloyd George remained outside the government but was as indomitable a figure as he had been a quarter of a century earlier. When he spoke in the House he filled it with members of parliament anxious to catch his merest whisper. When he broadcast it was with the energy and power that characterized his younger days.

Churchill's Trip To Greece Praised By British Press

London, Dec. 27 —(CP)— The British press today praised the journey of Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden to Greece in an effort to solve the civil strife there as a genuine effort to induce Greek leaders to substitute leadership for enmity.

"Not even the most embittered of the government's critics could fail to be struck by the journey," said the Yorkshire Post. "There is every reason that Mr. Churchill should have stayed in this country. The enormous burden of work under which he labors, the dangers of sudden changes of climate to a man who a year ago suffered from pneumonia might have counselled him to wait and see.

"At whatever risk to himself, he was resolved to place his unrivalled authority and knowledge at the service of men whose sole object, we hope and believe, is to end the fratricidal strife in Greece and lay the foundations for stable government for the future."

Calling the trip an "astonishing spectacle," the Daily Mail said in an editorial:

"Mr. Churchill's action shows the extent to which he has taken the Greek trouble to heart. Some time may elapse before it is possible to report definitely whether his mission is completely successful. It will be regarded completely successful only if they reach a settlement of a character justly applicable to the conditions in other liberated countries. The omens are good."

Christmas Party At Kiwanis Club

It being the day after Christmas there was a small attendance at the Kiwanis Club luncheon held on Tuesday at the Quinte Hotel. The meeting took the form of a community sing song led by Gordon Barclay with Phil Huddleston at the piano. Ron Moorman, a member of the Belleville Municipal band and the Commodore orchestra, gave two very fine trumpet solos, which were greatly appreciated. He played "The Holy City" in keeping with Christmas holiday. Jack McVeigh, the president presided and "Ollie" Duff collected the fines.

Dougal Marshall and Gordon Barclay gave an account of their most thrilling experience of the past year, Mr. Marshall describing his trip through Algonquin Park, where the wild animals were so tame they would come right up to the car for something to eat. Mr. Barclay told of an incident of hospital life that was most interesting and which displayed the true spirit of Christmas. The thanks of the club was expressed to mine host, Gerald Jenkins, who entertained the club at his expense.

RCAF 'Repats' Personnel Home

Montreal, Dec. 27 (CP)—A packed train of repatriated Royal Canadian Air Force personnel, both air crew and ground crew, arrived here today. Men and women from Ontario the Prairie Provinces and British Columbia were included in the group.

Flt. Sgt. Don Teeple of Guelph, Ont., and his wife, Sgt. Anne Teeple, who joined him overseas last March, were on their way back home together. Flt. Sgt. Teeple had been overseas since 1941.

Three veterans of a total of 87 operational trips together on Lancasters and Halifaxes were in the returning party. They are FO. R. J. Bayne of Ottawa, navigator; Flt. Lt. J. R. Coffey of Provost, Alta., pilot; and FO. M. M. Dingwall of Shellbrook, Sask., bombardier. All are D.F.C. holders.

Home in Canada on special leave was Flt. Lt. A. Eckert of Seaforth, Ont., who was in on the "kill" of four enemy aircraft.

FO. W. G. Hamilton of Peterborough, Ont., was back after winning the D.F.C. following a raid on Berlin in August 1943 when he lost the use of one engine of his Stirling bomber while en route to his target. He completed his mission and then successfully piloted the huge bomber back to his base.

Higher Costs Cut Into CNR Revenue for 1944

The Canadian National system is carrying twice as much freight as in the years before the war and nearly four times as many passengers, says R. C. Vaughan, chairman and president, in his year-end message.

"In spite of the strain on our resources, in spite of handicaps, there has been no deterioration in service, as compared with other public services and with railways in the other countries affected by the war," he adds, in part. "Some inconveniences have been unavoidable, but these are at a minimum and are rigorously examined with a view to correction.

"It is estimated that 82,000,000 tons of revenue freight were handled in 1944, as compared with 80,427,000 tons in 1943, an increase of 2 per cent. The number of passengers carried in 1944 was 26,000,000, as compared with 24,881,000, an increase of 4 per cent.

"Gross revenues for 1944 will be on a level with 1943. Operating revenues have been estimated at $440,000,000, with operating expenses $362,000,000, leaving a net operating revenue of $78,000,000.

Wage Costs Pile Up

"Although, with heavy increased expense, due to wage increases and a rise in the cost of materials, the net revenue is not as great as it was in 1943, the system is still in a position to turn over a cash surplus to the Federal Treasury, after the payment of interest due to the public and the Government.

"The cost-of-living bonus and increases in basic wage rates, following National War Labor Board awards since the beginning of the war, including the award of last August granting still further increases, some of which were made retroactive, adds approximately $46,000,000 to our payroll as compared with 1939. In addition materials have cost us over $20,000,000 more in 1944 as compared with 1939 prices.

"Realizing that serious economic repercussions might result, no application has been made for increases in freight rates or passenger fares.

"The Canadian National Telegraphs transmitted 8,752,000 revenue land line messages and 518,000 revenue cables during the year, many thousands of which were for members of the armed forces at home and overseas.

"The Prince Rupert Dry Dock and Shipyard, a subsidiary of the Canadian National, has constructed four minesweepers and 11 10,000-ton freighters. Since the outbreak of war, the 20,000-ton floating dry dock has handled 816 ships and repairs have been effected on 2,350 floating craft of all sizes.

"National Railways Munitions Ltd., a subsidiary, and the company's own shops has continued the manufacture of naval gun barrels, field artillery carriages and naval mountings."

Messerschmitts Muff Perfect Chance And End in Wreckage

London, Dec. 27 —(CP Cable)— Two Messerschmitt 109s jumped an R.C.A.F. Red Indian Spitfire squadron out of the sun, muffed a perfect chance for a kill and ended up a mass of flaming wreckage in a battle well inside enemy lines Tuesday.

Sqdn.-Ldr. Danny Browne, D.F.C., of Floral Park, N.J., commanding officer of the squadron, said: "Why they didn't get us I'll never know. It was a perfect bounce but as far as I know they never opened fire."

Browne slammed four cannon shells into the cockpit of the first Messerschmitt and saw it go down to the ground.

FO. Tommy DeCourcy of Windsor, Ont., shot down the other in a battle at 14,000 feet north of Trier, just inside the German side of the German-Luxembourg border.

AN APPLE FOR EVE

By Kathleen Norris

"No, there's no other. There's no other. Just a lot of useless old papers, rubbish the sort of thing a man collects! Like the granite blocks up here in the old orchard—no use to anyone. I saw myself—I saw myself getting planks and bricks in here, talking plans with some architect. And this is all we have! This is all we have!"

"Do you think I could do it?"

"I think you could," he said, "because you would be the only one to pay. Not Larry, or the girls or Owen, not these women in the over you when you go into the clug, village here who make such a fuss not Annie Lum or Larry's mother was worth living again, to me! But or me—no, it would mean that life Chris's name in print or picked up you'd pay every time you saw some magazine that reminded you of New York."

"His letters," she said unsteadily, her eyes wet, "and the little things he sends me, and the feeling—the feeling that everything I think and do must be saved to tell Chris, and that he'll look at me with those eyes—when I've wanted so to have him love me, when I've been so happy."

A sudden wild passion of tears was upon her. With a quick movement she cleared a space on the table before her and laid her arm there and hid her face against her arm. Hugh sat immovable, his own arms crossed on his chest.

Once having started, Loveday could not stem the flood. She sobbed uncontrollably, struggled to regain her breath, was abandoned to a fresh burst of crying.

After long minutes she got up and went blindly to the window and stood there, seeing the winter-bound earth and forest, the stripped willows and bare fruit trees outside through a bitter flood of tears.

"It's too hard," she said at last thickly, through a childish catching of sobs. Her brother said nothing.

"It's too hard either way!" she presently began again. "Why should it be like this? Why should it come to me? Other women don't have to fall in love with Chris St. George and give him up—and give up everything—everything—"

She was incoherent again. But she was crying more quietly now, and there was no sound in the kitchen except the ticking of the clock and the occasional scratching of a dry brown leaf against the windowpane.

A child cried out far upstairs, and Loveday turned her tearstained face to her brother, her swollen eyes managing a smile.

"We'll see it through together," she said.

Hugh said nothing. It was time for him to go; he did not even kiss her good-bye. But she saw the look that he gave her, saw the lift to his shoulders as he went away, and she told herself in her soul that she would not fail him.

Agnes Fayre and her children one Sunday, playing in a barn at with with Loveday and hers late Indian Hill, when Chris joined The shadowy cool old stable them. burst into consternthel N- qFscmh burst into constellations of stars for Loveday, and for what seemed an endless time everything seemed to be whirling about her. It was with great difficulty that she made herself move and speak. She had no conception of what she said or what Agnes said. Chris was cool and pleasant and seemed to be taking command of the situation easily. He had not met Agnes before. They talked of New York and Washington, found mutual friends about whom to gossip.

Agnes and her children, the latter somewhat crumby and milky, drove away into the darkness at six o'clock, and when Loveday had settled the children off upstairs and descended once again to the library she found that Chris had kindled a good fire and was sitting there looking into it, his body bent forward on the low davenport, his locked hands dropped between his knees. He rose at once and came toward her and took her shoulders in his two firm hands, holding her off to look at her. His face was tired and sad.

"My dear, this has been very terrible!" he said.

"Oh, Chris! It has seemed so long!" It wasn't what she had meant to say—it was exactly opposite of what she had meant to say — but the words seemed to come of themselves.

"We must never do this again."

"No." She breathed the little word half unconsciously.

"I've thought of you every hour. I've stopped at the desk at the hotel every hour until I was ashamed to look the clerk in the face. And there was no message, no letter! I thought one day—I was down on the tennis court, half asleep, and a girl in a tobacco-colored sweater like yours, with the sun on her hair, something like yours, came down the steps—and I thought it might be you! But it was never you."

He drew her to him, kissed her, and held her tight.

They sat down on the davenport before the fire and for a few wonderful minutes could only say each other's names and drink in the sight of each other's faces. And when words did come they were laughing and inconsequential for sheer joy.

"I love your coming in and kindling a fire before you even sat down! And what a grand fire too. Where else did you ever build fires except here, Chris?"

"I've a little camp next to the Abernathy's camp up in Maine. And I can tell you that if I don't build fires there we don't eat!

"Did you miss me?" he asked

"Every minute. No use attempting to deny it."

"But you wouldn't say so?" he reproached her.

"Because you knew it."

"God, did I know it!" He shuddered, shook his head. "It's been endless aeons!" he said. "But it's over now, and it's over forever! I'm on my knees; I'll make any terms, darling. So you tell me—you tell me how it's going to be."

His cheek rested on her hair; now and then he stirred and she felt his lips there.

"Chris, if we could die now, when we're together again!"

"But we're not going to die. The very best of everything is ahead of us. This is no time to die; this is our hour to live, Loveday."

Then the silence of utter content again. And when the sharp voice of everyday, this time exemplified by Martha, halfway down the dark hall stairs in her nightgown and wailing on sleepiness and terror.

"Mother! Mother! Owen's awake and he says his finger hurts where he touched the nettles!"

Loveday was away like a flash, comforting Martha as she guided the small girl upstairs again, lighting the nursery, busy with assuaging treatment for the ills of the weeping Owen.

"We screamed and screamed for you," Betsey said reproachfully from her bed, "and Martha said she was scared to go down, but I was worse scared, and we thought Owen might die."

"He's not going to die; it isn't even the hand he got the nettle sting on," Loveday murmured, tucking in small forms, administering drinks of water. She snapped off the light, heard three grateful and apologetic good nights. Then she stood still in the darkness for a minute.

This room, the nursery now, had been her grandmother's room. Suddenly there came back to Loveday the sound of the voice she had so often heard here in this warm, shadowy place.

"Be a woman of thy word, Loveday. Through good, through bad, bearing his children, keeping his house, bind thyself to thy man with ropes of steel. If thee does that, thee'll work thy way through to happiness in the end."

"My God!" she whispered to the encircling dark. And for a long moment she could not move. Then she heard Chris call from downstairs.

"Mrs. Fayre on the telephone, Loveday!"

Loveday went down. Agnes had lost her wrist watch, unless she had left it at Loveday's house? Yes, Loveday said in the darkness of the black hall where the telephone bling Mr. St. George; she would come over in a day or two and get it.

Chris had gone back to the davenport by the fire; she could see his dark head over the back of the seat.

Could he hear her talking? Could he hear her dialing a number? Suddenly she knew that she must risk it. Her finger jerked the dial about; it seemed to make a great noise. She heard the little humming.

"Mr. St. George is just going. that meant the number was ring- Agnes; would you like him to bring it to you?" she said. It was not quite half-past eight after all; Agnes could not find any fault with Christopher's remaining until that hour. Agnes answered at once that she would not think of trou- was, Betsey had found it on the stairs.

"Hugh," she said in a tone as soft as a blown feather, "can you come? I need you."

She heard only Hugh's surprised, quick "Sure!" before she put the receiver noiselessly in place.

Chris was sitting on the low davenport when she went back to the library, his locked hands fallen between his knees, his somber eyes on the fire. Loveday slipped into the great chair; her heart was beating fast. Was he angry?

"I wonder," he began presently, "if we might settle this tonight?" not moving, not looking at her. You told Mrs. Fayre that I was going right away?"

"I had to," she said with a nervous laugh. "It's a quarter of nine."

"As if that mattered," Chris said, half to himself. "My God, as if time mattered with you and me! Loveday," he went on, suddenly pushing a low hassock to her knee, seating himself on it, and grasping both her hands in his own, "do you love me, dear? Can't you tell me that, once and for all? Do you think I'm fooling? Do you think there's any fun in this for me? Won't you say — say — say, 'I love you, Chris. I'm yours! I trust you. I'll go with you—leave the details to time to settle—prove to you that I'm not afraid, that I'm all woman when I love!"

"Sh-h-h!"

"No, I'll not be hushed, darling. Loveday, Loveday, Loveday, you know what you mean to me! You know how I hate this creeping into another man's house, listening every minute that we're together for the sound of his key! Won't you be generous to me? Ah, you do love me, sweetheart, don't you?"

"I am intoxicated—I am transformed by what I feel for you, Chris," she said in a whisper, "no woman's heart in the world could feel more. Just to have your brown face there, dear, so near—so near that I can lay my fingers against it, so, is something—something for me to remember. Remember we parted, Chris. When we can't see each other any more."

"We will never be parted now," your guard—to guard what is so inhe said. I am going to stay here as finitely precious to me, until I can take you tomorrow to Nevada and leave you and the children there."

"Chris, this is good-bye, tonight. Don't you see that it must be so?"

She leaned her face against his and burst into tears as she said it, and they clung together.

"You mustn't cry," he said, "you mustn't be afraid. Nobody can separate us. You love me; you said so."

"And I love other things more, differently," Loveday said thickly. She groped for his handkerchief, wiped her eyes, gulped, and tried to smile with sopping lashes and a trembling mouth.

"We have only a moment, Chris. Hugh is on his way home."

"Hugh!" Chris released her from the hold of his arm and looked at her with darkening eyes. "He said good-bye; he was going to camp. "When did he say he was coming?"

"Just now. I telephoned him," Loveday answered, paling. "When I talked to Agnes."

Suddenly they were both standing, looking at each other harshly, like strangers, in the soft lamp and firelight. In the silence they could hear a car coming up the drive in the silent night, hear the jerk of brakes and the slam of a door.

"I must go," Chris said then, simply, in an almost absent-minded tone. "I—I left my coat out here, I think."

He went to the door, walking a little undecidedly, stopping once to look about him vaguely. He did not speak to Loveday again, but she heard Hugh's greeting in the hall and Christopher's voice saying good night.

She stood perfectly still. Her life and the world and the stars in their courses seemed cold and dead.

Much later that night, when Hugh had gone to bed and the big house was silent, she did write to Larry. Her pen moved steadily over a page, another page. Then she put he head down and rested it for a long time on her arm, and her body shook with sobs.

"In anything official like this," Loveday said to herself nervously, "especially now, when everyone's so fidgety with nerves, they may make terrible difficulties! I wish Hugh could have come. He looks important," she murmured half aloud of a man who was walking about in a Coast Guard's uniform; "if he'd just stand still!"

"What is your business, madam?" a policeman said at her ear. Loveday jumped. She hastily groped in her bag for credentials, put them into his hand. The official cable from the War Department, the letters, the pink card, and the blue certificate.

The officer walked toward that space on the long dark pier—head that was directly under a hanging dazzling white lamp; scrutinized the papers carefully. Loveday watched him anxiously.

"You are Mrs. Lawrence Ingersoll?" he asked.

"Yes, I'm his wife."

"And he is coming in on this boat." This was a statement made after some study of the papers. "He is injured?"

"Yes. His foot's amputated." Her face, turned up earnestly to meet the man's look, had paled suddenly.

"Hospital case?"

"No they said not. He wants to come directly home."

"How did you know that, Mrs. Ingersoll?" said a quiet, middle-aged, slender man who had joined them.

"I don't know how that news came.

We didn't hear anything until last month. But I was notified that he had been injured, and his foot amputated, and that he had been decorated," Loveday said.

"He must be a brave man," the little man said, giving her a keen look through his eyeglasses.

"I don't know what he did, but he's been recommended for the Congressional Medal of Honor." Loveday groped in her bag again, produced a newspaper clipping and a picture. "This was in the Examiner ten days ago," she said. "Lieutenant Ingersoll; that's my husband."

The two men looked at the cutting, returned it to her.

"If you'll come this way," the small man said then. Loveday went with him along the pier. A fringe of men and women had been at the end of the roped-off dockhead, but down here in the dimly lighted, dark, high-roofed place, only officials, guards, and dock hands were scattered about.

She shivered, drew her big coat more warmly about her. Loveday leaned back against the wall of the shd and huddled herself into her garments too.

A man came down the dock with a big tray. Other quiet forms were seated on the kegs now; talk of husbands, brothers, sons, children, and their mothers evacuated from the danger zone went on. The thick cups of life-giving drink, the crisp buttery rolls went about. Loveday dozed, wakened, dozed again.

She was wide awake and looking up at the star-spangled black sky toward the north when suddenly half the glittering pageant was cut away. Blackness, high, unbroken, silent, had glided in between her eyes and the constellations. The ship was coming in.

There were no whistles, no lights, no cries of welcome. Quietly ropes were flung; figures moved in the dark; there was a subdued commotion. A few men came down the gangplank, a few went up. The first pallid, colorless light of dawn, striking in from the east showed bundled, hooded children along the promenade deck rails, scores of small, intent faces.

Loveday stood fixed, watching the gangplank, but Larry had come across another gangplank, helped by friendly hands, and was close beside her when she heard his voice. Her heart choked her. She put her arms about him and, clumsily managing a single crutch he stooped sidewise his kiss touching her temple.

"Lord, I am glad to see you!"

He looked haggard and thin, but his hair was brushed to shining wetness, and his aviator's cap rode it jauntily.

"Larry, are you starving? It's almost seven!"

"Starving? No! They fed us an hour ago."

She and Larry walked slowly down the long pier; flashlights flickered; newspapermen bent their heads toward hers, asking questions; they knew who Larry was, who she was.

"You're free, Larry?"

"Discharged. Yep they've done all they can do for me."

"Then we can go home."

"You bet your life we can go home."

From the great sigh he gave as he lowered himself and his crutch clumsily into place beside her in her car, she knew what the three-hundred foot walk had cost him; she gave his drawn face a quick compassionate glance before starting to drive slowly away amid the confusion of cars and people, and ambulances.

"You were awfully good to come all the way in and take all that fuss, Loveday. I could have hopped a bus."

"Imagine me doing anything else! 'Hopped a bus,' when all Indian Hill is waiting for the hero!"

"Where'd you get that stuff!" His tone was scornful, but she knew he was pleased. "Well you should have seen the paper Monday night. I've saved several copies, one each for the twins and Owen. I sent one to your mother, but the Bakersfield paper had the whole thing. They're all perfectly hysterical too.

"For the Lord's sake!" over it, Larry. There's a triumphal arch over North Palo Verde Street, and they're having a reception for you in the high-school assembly room next week.

"No kidding?" Larry asked with an appalled face.

"No, seriously. Too much for you?" Loveday asked the question anxiously. "You're tired!" she said.

"I'm excited. But not tired, no." he said bashfully.

A pause. Then he asked. "So Hugh's sick?"

"He's all right. But he's been working too hard and he got a sharp touch of flu."

"How's money? I've got some coming."

"Money's fine. We don't get much, but we don't need much. You know that I wrote you that Grandfather's fortune turned out to be a lot of old letters? You had that?"

BRAVING SNOW AND NAZI FIRE IN GERMANY

Second Division infantrymen, 9th Regiment, 1st U. S. Army, crouch in a snow-filled ditch seeking shelter from a German artillery bar rage somewhere in Germany.

Truly A Wonderful People Are These Britishers

(An Editorial in The Seattle Star).

Must reading for us today and for our children for generations to come—that British "white paper", recounting Great Britain's deeds and sufferings in the war to date.

You might say we're pro-British. We can think of no better "pro" to be, after reading that "white paper".

Those of us who have sat at home here, doing a bit of war work of course, yet short nothing but a few gallons of gasoline, a few cigarettes, our butter a bit thin on our bread maybe, and the beefsteaks not so regularly found nor so tender when we bite into them, certainly have a lot to complain of—after the reading.

A wonder people, are those Britishers, and we, as Americans, should be proud to call them, not COUSINS, as you so often read it or hear it, but BROTHERS.

Statistics can't tell the whole story. Behind those figures lies a tale of heroic determination that the whole world can well marvel at. However, for the record, here are some of the figures:

Britain's armed forces now exceed 5,000,000 out of a 47,000,000 population. More than one-third of all her men between the ages of 14 and 64 are at arms. Military and sea casualties up to last September were about 600,000.

The statistics for women are even more astounding. Almost half the women between the ages of 14 and 59 are in the armed services, in full-time civil defence or in industry.

Home-front sacrifices have been heavy. Civilian casualties, even before the recent Nazi V-2 bombs, totalled more than 136,000. One out of every three houses has been destroyed or damaged.

Under these conditions of death and destruction, or blackout and short rations, the women and the men on the production front doubled the grain yield and built 722 major warships, more than 100,000 planes, more than 25,000 tanks and 4,000,000 machine guns.

And Britain has paid for half her war expenditures by taxes and other revenues—compared with our one-third.

No nation in this war has given so much from so little with such miraculous results. Over-all contributions of Russia and the United States have been larger in many ways in an absolute sense, but not relative to their size and resources. In this later phase of the war the Russian and American contributions and sacrifices will increase more rapidly.

But the United Kingdom, with its almost superhuman initial effort, bought and paid for the time in which Russia and the United States raised the overwhelming superiority in manpower and machine-power now defeating the German aggressor. We must never forget that.

Heinz Co. Favors Newspapers For Advertising

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 23 (AP) — A newspaper advertising budget for 1945 "many times greater" than for previous years has been decided upon by The H. J. Heinz Company, the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association says.

The P.N.P.A. said in a statement this week that H. J. Heinz II, president of the company, reported the company will discontinue sponsorship of the radio program "Information Please" and place the bulk of its future advertising in newspapers.

Heinz told the association the decision was made as the result of comprehensive surveys to determine the best advertising media for food products.

"We feel that newspaper advertising will better enable the company to reach all kinds of people in selected markets," he said.

"We can also improve our advertising timing and allow for geographical and seasonal differences in food tastes throughout the nation."

HUN SOUTHERN FLANK SAGS UNDER ATTACK

ATTEMPT ON CHURCHILL'S LIFE MADE AT ATHENS

Only Twenty Miles Divide U.S. Forces Across Salient

Bastogne Garrison Siege Lifted by Armored Force

By JAMES M. LONG, AP STAFF WRITER

Paris, Dec. 28 —(AP)— Field reports today indicated that Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's whole southern flank for 35 miles back to the German border was sagging under an infantry-and-armored attack menacing the Belgian bulge.

American forces, resuming their advance into the underbelly of the enemy salient, had crossed the Sure river at four places by Wednesday dawn and were holding a narrow but firm relief corridor to the garrison of Bastogne.

Allied forces north and south of the salient were within 20 miles of a junction that would cut off the enemy head which has been thrust to within a few miles of the Meuse.

Face Heavy Obstacles.

It was too early to foresee the outcome, for the Americans in their counter-attack now underway faced formidable obstacles.

But there were clear indications the bold German bid for a great December victory had butted into serious trouble.

The Germany army had been held for more than 48 hours up to Wednesday dawn without a significant gain.

German pockets were surrounded in the western head of the enemy offensive and on the southern flank and were under tempests of shell-fire.

Meantime in Holland 1st Canadian and British 2nd Army troops fought off strong German patrols which crossed the Meuse river at several points both in the northwest and southeast parts of The Netherlands.

Patrol Thrusts.

An 80-man German patrol crossed the Roer river north of Duren on the Cologne front, and a series of enemy patrol thrusts was carried out against the British-Canadian forces north of 'S Hertogenbosch, Geetruidenberg and Roermond along the Meuse.

Front dispatches from Douglas Amaron, Canadian Press War Correspondent, and Roger Greene, Associated Press War Correspondent, said the patrols were in patrol strength —about 15 to 30 men—and were driven back.

Southwest of Echternach the Germans were retreating and northwest of that southern hinge of the salient, they were preparing an escape bridge under American fire and were preparing to pull back into Germany across the sure.

A bit farther northwest 250 Germans were seen swimming the Our river, back into Germany.

Three of the American crossings of the sure, which Berlin broadcasts said were by the U.S. 3rd Army, were near Bonnal, 2 1-2 miles northwest of Eschdorf. The fourth was at a place three miles northeast of Martelange. All the crossings were within about 15 miles of Bastogne.

Tide of Battle Turned

Von Rundstedt's armored patrol probings toward the Meuse were being beaten up badly, though one did thrust out eight miles south of Celles to the vicinity of Beauraing, only 3½ miles from the French border.

"The tide of battle east of the Meuse definitely has turned with depleted enemy armor almost everywhere on the defensive," said a field dispatch.

One German pocket of armor and infantry was being pounded to pieces by encircling American tanks and artillery pieces between Celles, deepest western penetration of the enemy, and Rochefort, 10 miles to the southeast. About two enemy battalions were in the trap.

On the southern flank another German pocket was surrounded at Beaufort, six miles northwest of Echternach.

Von Rundstedt's hopes of expanding his salient westward had been blasted by two developments. The first was the push northward by a powerful armored force which blasted its way to a link-up with the Bastogne garrison at a point three miles south of that nerve centre. Bastogne had been denied to the Germans for seven days by the surrounded Americans who had rejected an ultimatum demanding their surrender.

The second development was a series of crushing tank and infantry battles in the Celles area in which the Germans collided head-on with strong Allied forces. After hanging on to the flanks of the German thrust for 10 days the Americans at last had headed off Von Rundstedt.

Germans Lay Mines

To the southeast the Germans are busily laying mines, blowing up bridges and making other defensive preparations around enemy-held St. Hubert. Elsewhere German engineers were also laying mines.

The situation in this southwestern tip of the German salient was described as still somewhat fluid, with small groups of enemy tanks roaming the triangle between Beauraing, St. Hubert and Rochefort, but apparently no thrust in force was shaping up here.

The enemy's heaviest attacks were directed in the northwest tip of the salient, around Humain and Havrenne, six miles southwest of Marche, and Lierueux, 20 miles northeast of Marche. These were repulsed.

In advances of two to four miles on the south side of the bulge, the Americans drove the Germans from the villages of Bonnal, Insenborn, Eschdorf and Lingel southeast of Bastogne and began mopping up Berdorf, three miles west of Echternach.

Elsewhere along the twisted battlefront there was little action.

Gen. Eric Brandenberger's reformed 7th. Army, originally met in Normandy, was meeting anew the shock of the American attack on the southern flank.

Two armored armies, the 5th commanded by Lt.-Gen. Hasso Eckhardt Von Manteuffel and another commanded by Gen. Joseph Dietrich, one-time bartender turned Nazi strong man, also were under heavy attack.

GREEK FACTIONS AGREE ON REGENCY AS STEP TO PEACE

Withdrawals Made by Some E.L.A.S. Forces To Positions Leading Into Athens

Athens, Dec. 28 — (AP)—Warring Greek political factions were agreed today to formation of a regency in a step towards peace, as British military authorities reported a withdrawal of some E.L.A.S. forces from Athens to positions on highways leading into the city.

Thus success appeared approaching for Prime Minister Churchill's mission to Greece — almost cut short yesterday morning by a sniper's bullet as he stood in front of the British Embassy.

A majority of the conferees expressed themselves in favor of an immediate regency while a minority favored postponement, it was announced by Archbishop Damaskinos, the chairman.

An Allied force headquarters communique said insurgent troops which entered the city appeared to be evacuating and leaving the fighting in the "built-up" areas to the original Athens E.L.A.S. Corps, concentrating at Piraeus and in the northern and southern districts of the city.

The communique said the process of clearing Athens of the E. L. A. S. was progressing slowly but satisfactorily.

The Prime Minister and the British Commander, Lt.-Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, watched British parachute troops, infantry, tanks and armored cars begin driving the E.L.A.S. from central Athens today.

Standing on Filopappas (Monument) Hill, they saw still fighting waged in the narrow, winding streets of the Iroon district northwest of the Acropolis and south of Omonia Square.

The E.L.A.S. fought back with mortars, machine-guns and grenades and before finally giving in they blew whole buildings into the streets in many places. Teller mines were found sown in the debris.

British forces took 170 prisoners, most of them in civilian clothing.

A 15-mile drive through the southeastern suburbs last night by British troops and Greek National Guardsmen had netted 150. Answering fire by E.L.A.S. artillery. British guns heavily shelled Ardittos Hill in Zappion Park.

A dispatch to British headquarters from the Epirus front said Gen. Napoleon Zervas, commander of an E.D.E.S. (Right-wing) Army reduced from 10,000 to 5,000 by desertions, was fighting a rear guard action against E.L.A.S. forces and falling back to the neck of the Preveza Peninsula. The attacking E. L. A. S. Army was estimated to number from 15,000 to 20,000 men.

Heavy Snowfall General Over Western, Central And Eastern Ontario

Toronto, Dec. 28. (CP)—Western, Central and Eastern Ontario were blanketed today by a heavy snowfall which ranged from four inches to nearly a foot and in some areas the fall is continuing. Drifting is reported from some sections and travel in some areas is difficult.

A strong wind caused some drifting at Brantford where nearly a foot of snow fell overnight. The main highways are open but in many sections there is only room for one car. Fresh snow fell and drifting was reported again today. The road between Mount Elgin and Tillsonburg and No. 19 Highway north to the Stratford-Kitchener Highway are reported blocked.

Country roads are blocked in the Galt area and traffic on city streets is difficult after a six-inch snowfall accompanied by a high wind last night. Buses to Hamilton were cancelled last night and many servicemen returning from leave were stranded in Galt for the night. Snow is reported drifting badly around Guelph with indications highways will be blocked.

Roads Open at Hamilton.

At Hamilton, officials reported all district highways passable but travel is difficult and motorists were asked to avoid all but essential trips. Except for the line from Dunnville buses are reaching Hamilton this morning but they are running half an hour to an hour late. Delays in city streets car traffic are frequent. Four inches of snow fell in the Hamilton area.

St. Thomas also reported a four-inch fall of snow yesterday and last night. Main highways now are open for traffic. The temperature is reported at 12 above this morning after dipping to 16 below Wednesday morning. At London where it was 15 below yesterday, the temperature stood at 17 above this morning. Roads in that section are reported to be fairly good shape despite a six-inch snowfall.

Six Inches at Cornwall.

In Eastern Ontario roads are reported to be open after a heavy fall of snow last night. At Brockville, where side roads in rural districts are blocked, the snowfall resumed again this morning. Four to six inches of snow fell at Cornwall—third heavy fall since the Christmas weekend. The heavy night fall at Kingston failed to hamper bus, motor and train traffic.

In Toronto the fall of about five inches didn't cripple transportation services like the 22-inch fall of two weeks ago.

CANADIANS SLASH INTO POSITIONS AT ALFONSINE

Next Road Hub in Path of Present Canadian Drive

Rome, Dec. 28. (CP)—Canadian units of the British 8th Army in the Adriatic sector of the Italian front have fanned out along the east bank of the Senio river and slashed into fortified positions at Alfonsine, nine miles northwest of Ravenna, it was reported at Allied headquarters today.

Alfonsine—on the Ravenna-Ferrera highway—is the next road hub in the path of the present Canadian advance, launched Dec. 4, which already has seen Ravenna, Baganacavallo and Rossetta fall to Lt.-Gen. Foulkes' 1st Corps.

Its capture would signify clearance of the Germans from the marshy area to the north of Ravenna.

Meantime today's communique reported further Allied 5th Army withdrawals on the western flank of the Italian front as the Germans continued their counter-attacks in the Serchio Valley Sector.

The town of Barga, captured a month ago by the 5th Army, was enveloped in the German counter-assault that struck out on a six-mile front on each side of the Serchio.

Barga is 1 1-2 miles east of the river and about 15 miles north of the city of Lucca, capital of Lucca Province.

The enemy drive through the valley flatlands and the flanking mountains was supported by light artillery.

Yesterday a German counter-attack was reported on either side of the road town of Gallicano, some 14 miles inland from the Tyrrhenian coast and about three miles west-southwest of Barga.

The extent of the withdrawal in the Serchio River sector was not given, but it was known that U.S. troops had been at least a mile north of Barga two weeks ago.

Brazilian troops also are known to have been in action in the area of Gallicano.

Heavy Mortar Fire.

Eighth army patrols ran into heavy German mortar fire in the area north of Bagancavallo. South of that town enemy strongpoints were being mopped up all the way to captured Faenza, on the Bologna-Rimini highway.

The Canadians last night were reported fanning out from fallen Rossetta, to the northeast in a house-to-house advance toward Alfonsine.

A front dispatch from Canadian Press War correspondent William Boss said patrolling and an effort to improve their Senio bank positions occupied the Canadians yesterday.

Allied positions south of Monte Sole, 12 miles south of Bologna, underwent several attacks by the Germans who were repulsed with a number of casualties. Heavy enemy guns fired on Allied positions at Monte Gande, due south of Bologna.

THREE JAPANESE DESTROYERS SUNK OFF MINDORO IS.

Battleship and Cruiser Also Damaged in Raiding Punch

Southwest Pacific Advanced Headquarters, Dec. 28 —(AP)— Heavy guns of Japanese and American naval task forces traded raiding blows Tuesday and Wednesday on island bases 1,500 miles apart and the Japanese came off worse, with three destroyers sunk, and a battleship and cruiser damaged.

Two United States warships of undisclosed type received slight damage.

The Japanese shelled Mindoro, central Philippines, from the China Sea Tuesday night, Gen. MacArthur announced today.

The Americans, making their third appearance this month within 750 miles of Tokyo, bombarded Iwo Jima, Volcano Islands, from the Pacific, Tuesday, Admiral Nimitz announced yesterday at Pearl Harbor.

The enemy warships — a battleship, cruiser and six destroyers—accomplished "some fruitless and inaccurate shelling" of the invasion scene on southwest Mindoro, MacArthur said. From the time the warships approached at dusk until they withdrew around midnight, they were under attack by Mindoro-based medium bombers, fighters and patrol-torpedo boats.

(A Japanese communique today said the naval units bombarded "the enemy (San Jose) airfield and munitions dump and left the nearby area in a veritable sea of fire." The broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission said one destroyer was "heavily damaged.")

The Americans have an air base on Mindoro within 30 minutes' flying time of Manila, the airfields of which, MacArthur disclosed today, were blasted Tuesday for the fifth straight day by land-based bombers with a fighter escort.

The Japanese air force raided ground positions on Mindoro in coordination with the enemy naval blow.

The naval move against Mindoro represented the enemy's first such offensive effort in battleship strength since Japan's defeat in late October in the second battle of the Philippines seas.

FALL OF BUDAPEST IMMINENT SAYS MOSCOW REPORT

Germans Have Only One Airport From Which to Evacuate Troops

Moscow, Dec. 28—(AP)—A doomed Nazi garrison reeled backwards in the smoke-filled streets of western Budapest today but clung with suicidal resistance to positions in the eastern sector of the capital.

(A Berlin broadcast monitored in London said early today that the German garrison in Budapest "has taken up positions on an inner defence ring of the capital" after several Russian penetrations of the German-Hungarian lines.

("The Russians are now attacking from the southeast, northeast and west," the broadcast said.)

The German and Hungarian defenders were reported to have already been denied the use of one of two remaining airports for evacuation of troops as Soviet forces pounded toward the heart of the once-beautiful city.

With the Red Air force holding complete mastery in the skies German transports were able to operate only at night from this last field, near Pest, and the casualties were reported great.

Push Across Danube

Russian troops pushed across the eastern arm of the Danube north of Budapest yesterday splitting the Nazi troops and driving part of them into the mountainous area in the great Danube bend. The remainder were pressed back into Buda, where Soviet units engaged them in house-to-house fighting.

The crossing of the river, which resulted in the Russian capture of Szentendrei Island and a juncture of Red forces on the west bank, cost the Germans and Hungarians 3,000 killed, a Soviet communique said.

Other Red Army troops stormed into Buda from the west and southwest in numerous new penetrations of the suburban arc.

Hammer Out New Gains

Simultaneously, Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's 1st Ukraine Army hammered out new gains northwest of the capital along the Budapest-Vienna railroad and captured several localities in the great Danube bend.

Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's forces north of the Danube continued preparations today to storm the Hron (Garam) river line guarding Austria as the Russian communique reported a drive to clear the Germans from the area between the Hron and Ipoly rivers in the Czechoslovakian-Hungarian frontier region.

The communique, however, again emphasized the proportions of the squeeze on Budapest, reporting the capture of four fortified suburbs on the east bank of the Danube and two on the west bank.

There was no clear delineation of the relative sizes of the split German troops west of the Danube, but the total number of Nazis defending Budapest was originally estimated at about 100,000 men.

Other Soviet forces captured eight places east of Ipolysag in the drive on the key border rail hub of Losonc. More than 3,500 prisoners were taken in the fighting along the Czechoslovakian fronts Tuesday, it was announced.

Standing in Front Of British Embassy When Sniper Fired

First Attempt on His Life In Many Miles of Travel

Athens, Dec. 28. (CP-Reuters)—Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, Allied Mediterranean commander, and Lt.-Gen. R. M. Scobie, British commander in Greece, were beside Prime Minister Churchill yesterday when he was fired at by a sniper, it was disclosed today.

It was disclosed previously that Foreign Secretary Eden and British Ambassador Reginald W. A. Leeper were accompanying the Prime Minister when a bullet passed close by him and struck a young woman some 300 yards distant. The party was standing in front of the British Embassy when the attack took place.

However, British headquarters said today sniping had been fairly continuous across the front entrance of the Embassy and there was no indication that the sniper yesterday, who was manning a machine-gun aimed especially at Mr. Churchill.

None was injured although the bullet barely missed the group.

It was the first attempt on Mr. Churchill's life in his thousands of miles of wartime travel. Dressed in the uniform of an R.A.F. Commodore, he was about to enter the Embassy when the sniper fired.

The E.L.A.S. is the army of the Greek Resistance Group, the E.A.M.

Mr. Churchill, 70-years-old, self-styled "wandering minstrel of diplomacy", has travelled to Moscow, to the Middle East, to the United States and to Canada for Allied conferences. Here he was up against perhaps his toughest assignment in striving to end the bloody Greek intra-party turmoil.

Moscow Critical Of Hun Strategy In Latest Drive

Moscow, Dec. 28 — (AP) — A Red Army military commentator says the Germans' strategy in their western front offensive violated the elementary requirements of military science.

"That a decisive victory can be achieved only by annihilating or defeating the strongest enemy grouping is axiomatic," declared Lt.-Col. V. Kravtsov in today's Moscow news. "The German command resorted again to its favorite but by now rather hackneyed method of striking concentric blows at two points with the aim of encirclement. But they chose as the object of encirclement a sector where the Allied troop concentration was lowest.

"To strike at a weak spot can be effective only when development of this blow brings the attacking force in contact with the main enemy force; otherwise, success may be no more than tactical and thus may lead to a major catastrophe. The Germans not only failed at complete encirclement but left a claw of their pincers hanging in mid-air."

Russia Ready To Recognize Lublin Govt.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP)—Word spread today that Russia is about ready to recognize the Polish committee of Liberation at Lublin as the provisional government of Poland.

Premier Stalin is reported to consider this action necessary to military moves imminent on the eastern front.

Both London and Washington so far have recognized the Polish government in London, at the same time urging that it compose its differences with Russia over the Russo-Polish boundary.

Information in diplomatic quarters here now indicates the following as probable developments:

1. The Soviet-backed Lublin committee is expected to declare itself to be a provisional government. Moscow reports yesterday said this action might be taken before the year-end.

2. Russia would then recognize the committee's claim to provisional status, thereby giving it a diplomatic position in opposition to the position thus far held exclusively by the Polish government in London.

3. Russia's declaration of recognition would be followed in short order by declarations by various European countries within the Russian sphere of influence, probably starting off with Czechoslovakia.

France Exchanges Representatives.

France is reported to have exchanged representatives with the Lublin committee already. But there are some reports that when the question came up between Premier Stalin and Gen. De Gaulle at Moscow recently, the French leader made it clear that he did not consider the Lublin group representative of the Polish people and therefore at the moment would not promise recognition.

The Russians themselves are said to be aware of the political deficiencies of the Lublin outfit and for that reason alone have spent many months in dealing with the Polish government in London, seeking a settlement of the boundary dispute and a pro-Russian policy on the part of that government.

Now, however, Mr. Stalin has planned winter offensives against Germany in which he intends to liberate great new areas of western Poland.

He wants them ruled by a Polish government and having failed, apparently with finality, to come to agreement with the London Poles, is understood to be ready to accord governmental status to the Lublin committee.

LOOT—ONE SWEET POTATO PIE

Portland, Ore., Dec 28 (AP) — A burglar broke through the second floor of a vacant building adjoining a downtown cafe, forced a door and dropped into the cafe kitchen through a trap door. His loot: One 40-cent sweet potato pie.

Exploits of "Flying Pole" Legendary Among Allied Fighter Pilots

(By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in England, Dec. 28. (AP)—The exploits of Maj. Mike Cladych, "The Flying Pole", are becoming legendary among Allied fighter pilots.

Cladych has been serving with the U.S. 8th Air Force for more than a year now without any official status. The American pilots chip in each month to give him spending money, and meanwhile he goes on taking Thunderbolts over Germany to shoot up anything wearing the hated swastika.

The story of this amazing airman has been pieced together bit by bit by other fliers. It forms one of the most fantastic tales to come out of the war.

Cladych, now, 35, was a member of the Polish Air Force when the Nazis overran Poland, killing his parents, his sweetheart and many of his friends. He escaped by plane to France and joined the French Air Force. Shot down in a German-occupied area, he was hidden by a French doctor in an insane asylum while the Gestapo searched for him.

Later he was waylaid in a Paris alley by the Gestapo, who left him for dead after beating him over the head with lead pipes, but the French doctor managed to get him back to the asylum and treated him there for months.

Smuggled to Britain

He did not fully recover until after all France had been occupied by the Nazis, and then was smuggled to Britain. He joined the R.A.F. and fought in the battle of Britain, later becoming a member of the Polish squadron formed by the British.

A year ago he was assigned to the 8th Air Force for detached duty.

Cladych will not talk of his exploits.

Apparently all he wants to do is kill Nazis, but the men of the fighter group, intent upon keeping up their record of kills, have a hard time pumping from him the number of his victories.

"May be I get two planes", he says unconcernedly when asked to report on the outcome of a dogfight. "But I cannot count because I am too busy shooting what's ahead of me instead of looking back to see what I left behind me".

His wing cameras show he has shot down at least 11 enemy planes, but his comrades say he has accounted for at least 15 more.

Some say that during his service with four different Allied air forces he has downed at least 45 enemy planes.

Top ace among Allied fliers in Western Europe whose record is fully authenticated is Wing Cmdr. J. E. (Johnny) Johnson whose total of kills currently stands at 38. The English-born pilot leads a Europe-based R.C.A.F. Spitfire Wing.

Peterborough Officer Tells How Nazi Troops Shot Down Own Commanders

London, Dec. 28 —(CP Cable)— How Germn troops shot down their own comrades in the act of surrendering on the Western Front was told today by Lieut. Harold Matthews of Peterborough, Ont., who a few days ago was leading a platoon of a Dorsetshire regiment in operations near Gellenkirchen, north of Aachen, on the British 2nd Army sector.

During the fight for Bauchem, a little village in this sector, the 22-year-old Matthews who is attached to the British army, led his men in an attack on an enemy trench position.

The attack was successful and mopping up began. The Germans had taken a pounding, Matthews said, and 50 were giving themselves up with all their arms intact—grenades and ammunition still in their belts. Twenty were in a British trench and another 30 waiting to get in.

"Just then the Germans in a trench 200 yards away opened fire with Spandaus, killing eight of their comrades," he added. "The British and Germans dived into the same trench, all fully armed but with far more Jerries than Tommies.

"I could see two British, three Germans, two British and so on right along the trench but the Germans never attempted anything funny.

"By now darkness was falling and we knew we couldn't stay there, mixed up as we were, so I told my lads to get out and bring back as many prisoners as possible. We arrived back safely with 12 prisoners, all we could manage under the circumstances."

Matthews' mother lives at (468 Hunter St.) Peterborough.

DOG IS KILLED BY MOTOR CAR

While driving his motor car through the heavy snow on Emily St. yesterday, an automobile driven by Mr. E. Alfred, No. 1 Emily St., ran over a dog that ran into the path of his car. The dog sustained injuries necessitating its destruction by Constable Thos. Thorne, dog pound custodian.

MUSICAL SERVICE AT MIDNIGHT MASS

Complete details on the article of Midnight Mass in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel which appeared in Wednesday's issue were not submitted to the paper. The following was omitted in the report. Before mass, Mr. Ed Brown sang "O Holy Night." The mass was sung in honor of Saint Florian by Nowakowski. It was sung by St. Michael's choir under the direction of Mrs. James Grant and the organist Miss Dorothy Grant. During the Offertory, a violin solo and an organ accompaniment "Adeste Fideles" was given by Miss Margaret Belair. During Holy Communion Mrs. Gerald Clapp rendered Gounod's "Ave Maria." "Holy Night" was sung by Mr. Lester Shiels, "Sleep Babe of Bethleham" by Anna Lafferty and "Night of Nights" by Mr. Harold Barrett.

Superforts Rain Incendiaries, Says Jap Broadcast

San Francisco, Dec. 28 — (AP) — A Japanese broadcast said a "mine-formation" of Superforts dropped incendiaries on Ibaraki Prefecture north of Tokyo today.

The broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said the Saipan-based B29s were kept from the Tokyo area by the "might of our crack units."

D.C.C. Monitors reported a Japanese radio station, apparently on Kyushu Island, sounded an air raid alert at 8:27 p. m. (Tokyo time). All raids on Kyushu have been carried out by China-based B29s.

Two Motor Accidents Attributed to Storm

Owing to the ice-covered condition of Highway No. 2, that was filling with yesterday's blizzard, two motor accidents were reported in this area by Traffic Police.

Early in the afternoon 14 miles east of Belleville an automobile driven by Lionel H. Boyer, of Malton, skidded on an icy rut and after going out of control turned over into a snowbank. Mr. Boyer escaped without serious injury. Later the car was righted and the driver continued his trip home with noticeable damage to the fenders.

On Wednesday evening three miles west of Trenton two cars sideswiped at the height of the night's blizzard. Clayton Rutt, of Brighton, was proceeding westerly, when he met another motor car being driven in the opposite direction by Bruce Spencer of the same village. The cars sideswiped, resulting in considerable property damage to the fenders. The visibility was extremely bad at the time of the accident. Traffic Officer Harry Caldwell investigated both accidents.

POLICE COURT

Only two cases were disposed of in the weekly county police court held before Magistrate T. Y. Wills at the Court House today.

Prior to the proceedings Harold Atkinson, Brighton, had admitted to driving a motor vehicle equipped with inadequate lights. The conventional fine of two dollars and $2.50 costs was collected. The other case was one of non-support heard in camera.

Two others failed to respond to their names when called, which prompted Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan to demand personal service in these matters. One was Robert Curran of Toronto, charged with speeding, while the other was Geo. Smith of this city, who will be arraigned on two charges arising from an accident when his car crashed into the river some time ago.

Odeon Theatres' Staffs Entertained By Management

Staff members of the McCarthy and Trent theatres in Belleville and Trenton, Odeon theatres for the district, were guests at a happy Christmas party staged in the lobby of the McCarthy Theatre last Thursday night following the regular theatre performance when 39 employees of the two picture houses gathered for a social get-together and to enjoy a bountiful turkey dinner.

Managers of the two theatres, Willard Fawcett, of Belleville and "Gib" Martin of Trenton jointly acted as master of ceremonies for the party at which the spirit of good fellowship prompted by a program of community singing was heightened by the presentation of cash bonus checks to employees. Following the social period in the theatre lobby, staff members concluded the evening with a turkey dinner catered to by Nick's Lunch, Front Street restaurateur.

TRENTON

Pte. John Davis Missing in Italy

Trenton, Dec. 28 — Word has been received by his wife here that Pte. John Davis is missing overseas in Italy, since December 13th, the day after his thirtieth birthday.

Pte. Davis was a member of the non-permanent army for several years, enlisting previous to the war, and went overseas about a year ago. He was first attached to the 48th Highlanders in England but later transferred to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Just a few months ago he received a shrapnel wound in the foot but was only out of the lines about six weeks when he returned to active duty.

His wife, the former Ellen Moon, and their small son, David, live on Wragge St.

Two brothers are also serving overseas, Lyons in Belgium and Raymond in Holland.

Celebrates Birthday.

Mrs. George M. Aylsworth is celebrating her 95th birthday today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. A. McQuade, with whom she has made her home for several years. Messages of congratulations are being received from many points of Canada and the United States.

Mrs. Aylsworth was born Eliza Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Bradley, in Haldimand Township, December 28th., 1849. She was married in 1879 to Dr. George M. Aylsworth, son of Dr. and Mrs. I. B. Aylsworth. They lived in Gorrie for a few years and then moved to Collingwood where they had their Golden Wedding. In 1923 they came to Trenton to live with Dr. and Mrs. E. A. McQuade, Dr. Aylsworth passing away at their home two years later.

Mrs. Aylsworth is in excellent health, active in her home and can be seen almost any Sunday in her pew at Grace United Church. She has three daughters, Mrs. E. M. Carpenter, Long Beach, Calif.; Mrs. H. Trott, Oakview-Beach, Ont.; and Mrs. E. A. McQuade, Trenton; and one son, Dr. R. B. Aylsworth, Trenton; also ten grandchildren and eleven great grandchildren.

Three grandsons P/O. R. M. Aylsworth, England; Capt. F. M. Sutherland, Holland, and Lieut. H. O. Trott, Italy, are in the services; also two great grandsons, A/B. J. C. Trott, with H.M.C.S. "Buckingham," and Wayne Fountain S/C., in training with the U. S. Navy in Texas.

Deloro Reeve And Councillors Are Acclaimed

Marmora — Acclamation was accorded the reeve and council of Deloro at the nomination meeting held at the noon hour on Christmas Day under the presidency of the village clerk, C. R. Quinn. The newly elect are Reeve, C. H. Buskard; Council, H. A. McNally, F. Paquet, A. Drew and W. Mumby.

Mr. Paquet succeeds Mr. S. B. Wright former reeve, as councillor, owing to Mr. Wright's impending departure from this district for British Columbia. Three public school trustees re-elected for two-year term of office are M. J. Corrigan, H. Dalton and W. Brown.

Kinsmen 'Fags' Arrive Overseas Before Christmas

Assurances that the Kinsmen Santa Claus arrived overseas with bundles of cigarettes sufficiently early to assure scores of Belleville boys of smokes for the Yuletide season were received at Chairman Buster LaBarr's Kinsmen Fag Fund office this week.

All returning messages were filled with Christmas greetings from the boys overseas to their loved ones in Belleville and thanks to the Kinsmen for regular shipments of cigarettes received throughout the year. Stories of boys sharing their shipment of Canadian fags in Holland and Belgium as well as in Italy and England were commonplace, as the boys entered upon the season's spirit.

To assure the continuance of the regular flow of fags overseas the Argyll Chapter of the I.O.D.E. recently voted the Kinsmen Fag Fund the sum of $50.00 while the Recreation Alley bowlers came through with $30.00 while Corby employees added to their subscription.

The list of Belleville boys overseas sent individual shipments of 300 cigarettes by the Kinsmen this week included:

Reeve J. Churcher To Retire From Public Service

One of North Hastings outstanding men and a faithful public servant in municipal life for the past twenty-five years, Reeve John L. Churcher, of Dungannon township has announced his retirement from public life.

Ill health in the family and a shortage of labor on his farm are the main contributing factors to his decision, but he feels that a man who has given twenty-one years to his municipality and four to other communities is a long enough term of service for any man.

Twenty-five years ago, John L. Churcher was elected to the council of the township of Monteagle and Herschel. He served there for two years and then moving to Faraday served for a similar period on the council of that township.

Moving to Dungannon township his councillor ability had preceded him and his first year there he was elected to the township body. There he has served for the past 21 years.

In 1940 he received the highest official honor the county could bestow and he was elected warden of the county of Hastings. There he established himself as an efficient and fearless leader, an able orator and a staunch upholder of the rights of not only his township and the northern municipalities but the county as a whole. He was one of the most popular members of the county body and his decision to retire will be received with regret by his former council colleagues.

For the past seven years he has been a member of the County Roads and Bridges Committee where his experience and ability assisted that body in many decisions of importance.

Reeve Churcher has enjoyed a well-earned reputation of being one of the outstanding breeders of pure bred cattle in North Hastings. He is a farmer of more than passing ability as well as always maintaining an interest in church and fraternal life.

Harry W. Rollins Installed Pres. Of Kinsmen Club

Mayor Harry Rollins took over the president's chair of the Belleville Kinsmen Club at their final meeting of the year held at the Quinte Hotel, Wednesday evening, with President "Matt" Currie relinquishing the guiding reins following what was termed one of the "most successful" years of the club.

Verbal reports from the various committee chairmen were heard with members thus privileged to learn in some detail the relative success of the club as a whole. The complete financial statement for the year will be presented by the club treasurer, Kin Harry Knott at the first meeting of the new year. During the meeting Ron Moorman contributed two cornet solos.

Dr. E. M. MacDonald, chairman of the Kinsmen eye clinic, stated that approximately 25 persons had been either fitted with glasses during the year with a total expenditure of $750.

Bill Dennis, chairman of the Milk Fund Committee, stated that $563 had been collected to date from milk bottles sponsored by the club. He expected when final returns were in the amount realized for the year would be over the $600 mark.

Local Firm Praised

A great deal of credit for much of the above subscription to the milk fund goes to employees of the local Stephens Adamson Company, it was pointed out by the committee chairman. To date employees of this firm this year have contributed $103 to the fund, the milk bottle at this plant being in charge of an interested non-member of the club, Mr. James Lamberison—steel foreman at the plant.

Bert Farrar reported on the expansion committee, naming over the three clubs sponsored by the Belleville club this year, namely, Trenton, Tweed and Campbellford. He stated hopes were entertained of sponsoring Kinsmen clubs in Madoc and in Brighton in the near future. The Long Expansion trophy won by the Belleville club last year was formally turned over by the expansion committee chairman to president-elect Rollins.

11 Members 100 Per Centers

"Mac" McMullen reported eleven members of the club as having a perfect attendance record for the year, these members being presented with 100 per cent attendance ribbons by the retiring president.

In relinquishing the president's chair, Kin "Matt" expressed his appreciation to committee chairmen for their co-operation during the year and wished President-elect Rollins the best year possible. In return Harry paid tribute to "Matt" for the sound leadership given during the year. As a retiring gesture "Matt" presented the club with a beautifully finished Kinsmen banner which will be hung in their banquet room.

Committee Chairmen

Officers and committee chairmen of the club for the new year will be:

President, Harry Rollins; secretary, Ted Follwell; treasurer, Frank Lang; bulletin editor, Matt Currie, with Ernie Colbourne to be editor in the absence of Mr. Currie. who will shortly enter the hospital; recording secretary and historian, Wally Berry.

Committee chairmen are: Program, Orliff Lloyd; Kin Education, Gardiner Duff; Attendance, Walter Harden; Advertising, Art Cruji; Sports, Bill Dennis; Expansion, Geoff Marvel; Kin on Active Service, Fred Reid; Property, Newt. Wilbur; Sunshine, Harry Knott; Reception, Bert Farrar; Initiation, Ernie Smith; Ways and Means; Bill Dennis; Fag Fund. "Buster" LaBarr; Bingo, Orliff Lloyd; Milk for Britain Bottles, Bryson Reid; Eye Clinic, Matt Currie; Community Service, Cleo Colling; Interclub Relations, Harry Rollins; Interclub Fellowship, Carl Sills; Reception to Returned Soldiers, Harry Rollins; Finance, Frank Lang.

Maj. Ted Kennedy Home on Furlough

In time to spend a delayed Christmas with their families eight officers and nine other ranks arrived in Kingston on Wednesday from overseas aboard a hospital train, Army Public Relations at M.D. 3 announced today.

Included in the list was Major Edward John Kennedy, R.C.A.M.C., of 190 George Street this city, one of the first medical officers of Belleville to go overseas. Major Kennedy has been over there since the early summer of 1940.

Major Kennedy, who was given thirty days furlough immediately upon arrival left for London, Ontario, where he will spend his long delayed holiday with Mrs. Kennedy and their two children.

He is a veteran of many campaigns having seen service in England, Africa, Italy and Sicily. Passing through the city yesterday aboard the hospital train, he was greeted at the Belleville station by a large number of friends.

Major Kennedy will return to Belleville before assuming his duties with the army.

EMPLOY WORKERS

London, Dec. 28 — (CP) — The Moscow radio declared today the Germans were employing 10,000 civilian workers to fortify the Austrian frontier against Russian forces now driving across Hungary.

The entire faculty and student body of the University of Vienna are among the workers, and additional helpers are arriving in large numbers from Moravia and western Austria, the broadcast said.

Ontario Business College Notes

All at O. B. C. were shocked and grieved to learn of the recent loss of the Canadian ship "Shawinigan" with ninety officers and men. Among those missing is Arthur E. Kemp, a former member of the O. B. C. staff. Mr. Kemp left here in 1939 and enlisted in the R.C.A.F. Later he transferred to the Navy. Sincere sympathy is extended to Mr. Kemp's widow and two young children, who reside in Toronto.

Among recent visitors at Ontario Business College were Mr. LeRoy Tucker and two other business men from Bermuda. Mr. Tucker and his sister attended O. B. C. several years ago.

Mr. Jayme Ferara of Antigua, British West Indies, has notified the College of his intention to come to O. B. C. early in January. Mr. Wycliffe Smith, of Bermuda has also written that he is making plans to come soon.

Every year many students from Quebec attend O. B. C. Those here at present are Miss Carmen Lafreniere, Gracefield; J. P. Pineau, Trois-Pistoles; Hector Lafreniere, Gracefield; and Fernand Grenier, Three Rivers.

Numerous requests are being received for bookkeepers, stenographers, typists and office clerks. Throughout this year the demand for office workers has far exceeded the available supply. Now is a good time to prepare for a permanent office position. The O. B. C. courses will equip you in a brief period at low cost in time, effort and money.

Kinsmen Have Sent Over Three Million Cigarettes to Servicemen Overseas

A total of 3,095,500 cigarettes have been sent through the Kinsmen Fag Fund to members of the armed forces overseas, it was announced by "Buster" LaBarr, Kinsmen Fag Fund chairman as he gave a verbal report of his committee's activities to club members at their final meeting of the year.

Nearly one and a half millions of cigarettes had been sent during the current twelve months at a cost of $4,407.72. Total cost of the cigarettes sent overseas since the inception of the fund by the local Kinsmen was $10,274.92, according to Mr. LaBarr.

Cigarettes are now going from the Kinsmen Fag Fund to 769 Belleville service personnel overseas, it taking nine weeks to complete the cycle of names and to send all a packet of 300 cigarettes each. Since the inauguration of the fund 223 service personnel have been included on the list.

In breaking down the fag fund list it was shown that 91 Belleville service personnel serving in the navy on 70 different ships were receiving cigarettes through local Kinsmen; nine are prisoners of war; 14 previously on the list had been killed in action, and 61 had returned from overseas. Twenty are serving in shore establishments; 82 in the air force, and 587 in the army. Six are reported as missing in action. All contact has been lost with another 43 service personnel formerly receiving cigarettes.

That service personnel appreciate receiving cigarettes through the Kinsmen Fag Fund was indicated by the number of Christmas greeting cards from overseas service personnel received by the Fag Fund chairman. Approximately 300 cards and letters expressing appreciation for "fags" were received before Christmas.

Public, Private Celebrations Will Usher in New Year

New Year's Eve will be celebrated here in all its traditional noise, color and gayety, if pre-holiday preparations can be judged a criterion.

Public and private functions will be the main outlet for New Year feelings and many outstanding parties will welcome the 1945 cherub into his year of existence.

The commanding officer and his officers of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) have issued invitations for the annual New Year's ball, which is being held in the Armouries on Sunday night and where the traditional turkey buffet dinner and the skirling of the pipes will be some of the features.

The Belleville Club has also invited its members and guests to the annual dinner and dance.

Public functions include parties at the Club Vanity Fair, and the Trianon ball room, where music, mirth and fun will hold sway.

Officers of the district air stations are holding their New Year's Eve celebrations in the various messes, where special events have been arranged.

In Trenton the New Year Eve dance will be held on Monday, but Batawa will celebrate on Sunday night.

Many parties in private homes have been arranged and the fun of the final fling before the seriousness of the work of the New Year sets in, will likely reach the peak of other years.

Due to the fact that New Year's Eve falls on a Sunday night this year, many of the public functions will not start the night's festivities until a late hour.

Theatres of the city will celebrate with midnight performances with managements presenting patrons with noisemakers, hats, etc., to help usher in the New Year.

Midnight Communion Service First Held In St. Paul's, Marmora

Marmora — The midnight Communion Service at St. Paul's on Christmas Eve, the first to be held at the church within living recollection, was attended by an overflowing congregation. The number of communicants at this service—105 constitutes a record. Rev. J. M. Brownlie L.Th., S.Th., rector was the celebrant. During the service the choir rendered the Christmas carol "Hark, What Mean Those Holy Voices" with Rev. J. M. Brownlie and Mrs. I. B. Nichol taking the duet part. The rector's Christmas message to the congregation was very impressive. A second celebration of Holy Communion was held at 8 a.m. out of consideration for the few who were unable to attend the other celebration. The church was extensively decorated with evergreens and Christmas trees. Flowers on the altar and organ were the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Regan in memory of their son Ronald who died in England while on active service and the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Neath in memory of the latter's father, the late William Nuttall of Toronto.

Wards of Children's Aid Society Cheered By Kinsmen Gifts

Mayor Harry Rollins stepped temporarily out of his role as chief magistrate of the city on Sunday evening when he donned the conventional fur-trimmed white garb and snowy whiskers of St. Nicholas to play Santa for wards of the local Children's Aid Society. Some sixty children, all wards of the society, at homes in the city, at Shannonville, Cannifton, Corbyville and Stirling received presents and parcels through the generosity of the local Kinsmen Club.

Approximately 20 Kinsmen made the trip to Shannonville on Christmas Eve to watch Mayor Rollins, alias Santa, do his stuff in handing out gifts and parcels to the kiddies, while other members of the club visited the homes in the city and in other nearby centres.

Parcels distributed to wards of the Children's Aid Society were planned and wrapped by Kinsmen "Mac" McMullen of the Metropolitan Store.

Obituary

MISS GRACE BALCANQUEL

After an illness of some three months' duration Miss Grace Balcanquel died at the home of her nephew, Mr. Kenneth Leavens, 20 Donald St., early Wednesday evening.

A resident of Belleville for the past two years, Miss Balcanquel spent practically all of her lifetime in the community of the 5th Concession of Thurlow, where she was born. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Balcanquel and was in her 76th year.

Two sisters, Mrs. Walter Snyder of Shannonville, and Mrs. Robert McLaughlin of Tamworth, and one brother, Mr. Fred Balcanquel, survive, as does her nephew, Mr. Kenneth Leavens at whose home the deceased lady has made her home of late years.

For many years while residing on the 5th Concession of Thurlow, where she was born, the late Miss Balcanquel took an active interest in the work of St. Andrew's Church at Gilead, being a staunch worker in the Women's Missionary Society.

The funeral notice is made elsewhere in today's issue.

MRS. FLORETTA HOWARD
(Shannonville)

Mrs. Floretta Howard, Shannonville, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday, Dec. 27. She was sixty-seven years of age and was a patient in the hospital since Nov. 23.

Funeral announcement appears in this issue.

BRUCE WEBB
(Trenton.)

Bruce Webb, the seven-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Webb, 14 Water Street, Trenton, died in the Belleville General Hospital, on Wednesday, Dec. 27. The child was admitted to the hospital on Dec. 24.

LATE WILLIAM EDWARD COLLINS

The funeral of William Edward Collins took place Wednesday afternoon from his home in the 7th Concession of Thurlow Township. The service there and at Victoria Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. G. T. McKenzie. During the service in the home of Mrs. Arthur Hall sang "The City Four Square". The bearers were Messrs. Orley Parks, Russell Grass, Harold Skelly, Murney Gibson, Carman Gibson and Horace Palmer.

GREEK FACTIONS

Although all factions appeared agreed upon the proposal for a regency, now or later, divisions persisted upon other points in the Greek crisis. The 10-point program advanced by the E.L.A.S. negotiators yesterday drew from Themistocles Sophoulis, Liberal leader, the comment:

"When I heard the insurgents' terms I took my hat and went off. There is no ground for an understanding or continuation of the negotiations. Apart from 50 per cent of the seats in the cabinet, they want a premier of common confidence, which means their own government."

Mr. Churchill said that the alternative to a peaceful settlement was armed force by the British and a possible three-power "International trust" to consider Greek affairs.

The regency issue was voted upon yesterday at an all-party conference, after which Mr. Churchill announced that he, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin would take up the Greek question at a meeting in the near future.

"Of course we must expect that in a not very long time President Roosevelt, Marshal Stalin and myself will meet again and we will certainly review the situation," Mr. Churchill told a press conference.

Explains Position.

Asked what was likely to happen if no settlement were reached at the all-party conference, Mr. Churchill replied:

"If no agreement is reached, the guns will go on firing, the troops will clear the district and we shall establish peace, order and security in Attica."

During the session, which was held in a tense atmosphere as fighting flared up throughout the city, Greek Premier George Papandreou was said to have offered to resign as a means of expediting the regency, presumably under Archbishop Damaskinos of Greece.

At the later press conference, Mr. Churchill's comments were punctuated by the sound of sniper fire outside the embassy and the thud of British artillery shelling E.L.A.S. positions.

Mr. Churchill told reporters that when the leaders of the Three Great Powers get together soon, the Greek question will be "one of the most important items on the agenda."

Feel Course Right.

"We feel our course has been absolutely right," he said. "In August, in consultation with President Roosevelt, we agreed to bring in food and relief and help until things settled down. Premier Stalin was consulted and gave his consent to this course."

Mr. Churchill denied that Britain is endeavoring to bring back King George II and "impose a particular rule" on Greece.

"It is clear to me there would have been a massacre if we had not intervened," he said, adding a further denial of allegations that Britain had territorial claims or desired bases in Greece. He said British troops would not now withdraw until the revolting forces had been driven out of Attica or withdrawn from the "built-up area" around the capital.

Meanwhile, in view of the regency agreement, it appeared that the next move would be up to the Greek King, now in London. He has been reported as unfavorably inclined toward a regency since it was first suggested by Greek political leaders.

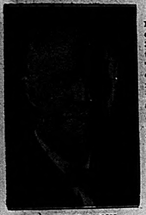
Business and Financial Outlook for 1945

By ROGER W. BABSON



ROGER W. BABSON
Pioneer in the field of business and financial matters

GENERAL BUSINESS

1. A year ago the United States Babsonchart Index of the Physical Volume of Business registered 148.8; today it registers 138, justifying my forecast of a year ago. The Canadian Babsonchart Index of the Physical Volume of Business registered 208.9 a year ago; today it registers 197. 1945 will show a reduction of more than 10% both in United States and Canadian business. Furthermore, most of the following comments apply to both countries.

2. War production is already being cut back and this reduction will rapidly continue through 1945. Even those railroads and industries which expect to benefit from a long war with Japan will be disappointed.

3. The re-conversion of industry from war to peace business will increase during every month of 1945. Furthermore, time required for re-conversion will not be as great as most people believe.

4. Inventories quoted at their price values, rather than volumes, will continue, as a whole, during 1945 about as during 1944. Raw material piles will be larger, but manufactured goods will be smaller.

5. Population increases in the United States during 1945 will be about 700,000, but the birth of new babies will fall off somewhat.

RETAIL COMMODITY PRICES

6. Rationing will continue through the most of 1945. During the early part of the year, I expect to see further restrictions especially in connection with meats, canned goods, etc.

7. The retail prices of most necessities and some luxuries will be higher during 1945 than at present. The prices of some of the luxuries, such as furs, have already collapsed.

8. Steel prices of goods needed for peacetime manufacture should be a little higher, but prices of the heavy war goods will decline. This applies also to the heavy chemicals.

9. The wholesale prices of raw materials in general may decline during 1945, but most consumer goods will hold firm or sell at higher prices. For both gasoline and bituminous coal, there may be price concessions.

10. The great question mark of 1945 will be how, to whom and at what price the government will dispose of its billions of dollars worth of unneeded supplies.

FARM OUTLOOK

11. The weather will be the greatest factor in farm production and prices during 1945. The weather has been exceptionally good on the whole for the past few years; but sooner or later we will have a severe drought or an early freeze.

12. Pending a weather upset, more bushels of corn and wheat and more bales of cotton will be raised in 1945 than ever before in our history. Although some prices may slide off, the total farm income for the first half of 1945 should hold up.

13. There should be a 15% decline in hog slaughter and a 3% increase in cattle slaughter.

14. Dairy products will continue to increase both in volume and in price. I am forecasting at least a 3% rise in volume.

15. Farmers will start in 1945 to work again for legislation on their parity program, due to fear of a collapse in all farm prices after the war.

TAXES

16. Taxes will not be increased during 1945 and some will be reduced; in fact, some nuisance taxes will be eliminated altogether.

17. The Federal Debt will continue to increase during 1945.

18. Whatever is done about taxes, the cost of living will continue to rise during 1945.

19. Providing jobs for returning soldiers will be the big political football of 1945. I am not now prepared to forecast what will happen in this connection.

20. Through a coalition of Republicans and Conservative Democrats, we should have a "do nothing" Congress during 1945.

RETAIL SALES

21. The VOLUME retail sales will show a decline during 1945. Prices of ladies' apparel and general luxuries will suffer, while grocery sales should be higher.

22. The total DOLLAR retail sales should be about equal to 1944 with an increased demand for woolen and cotton textiles for civilian use.

23. The best cities for 1945 business should be:

Altoona, Pa.	Davenport, Iowa
New York, N.Y.	San Jose, Calif.
Cleveland, Ohio	Wichita, Kansas

24. There will be a great stampede in 1945 to get rid of the makeshift ersatz goods which have been made to take the place of good merchandise. Thus, 1945 will witness many "mark-down sales" of unrationed merchandise.

25. Wise will be those manufacturers, merchants and consumers who realise that postwar competition will be terrific and, therefore, withhold purchases until 1946.

FOREIGN TRADE

26. The United States will own over 50% of the world's ships in 1945.

27. There will be an increase in free exports with the "Freed Countries", but Lend-Lease exports will decline.

28. We will make England and Russia large postwar loans provided they spend the money in the United States.

29. Both the British Empire and Russia will go into the competitive foreign trade market during 1945; many cartels and government monopolies will be in operation. I, therefore, forecast higher prices for coffee, cocoa, sugar and many other articles for which we are absolutely dependent upon foreign countries.

30. No Central Bank will be organized nor will the stabilization of foreign currencies be attempted in 1945.

LABOR

31. The Little Steel Formula will be amended during 1945.

32. Industrial employment during 1945 will be off 7% in hours and off 10% in pay rolls.

33. The building of a few new autos and new houses will be resumed during 1945.

34. Many industries, now operating on a forty-eight-hour week, will return to a forty-hour week during 1945.

35. Wage rates will not decline, but "take-home" income will be less.

WAR OUTLOOK

36. The greater part of Germany's army will collapse before the German planting season opens in the spring of 1945. Before surrendering, Germany will try poison gas.

37. Japan will not hold out as long as most people think. Japan will collapse within six or twelve months after Germany collapses.

38. If Stalin's health continues, he will be the world's most powerful man in 1945 and may dictate the peace terms, especially for the Pacific.

39. Sometime after April, 1945, Russia will join (or threaten to) the Allies against Japan but only after the promise of territory privileges and a huge loan.

40. The markets may witness a "communistic scare" during 1945; but they should soon recover thereafter.

STOCK MARKETS

41. The rails will show the greatest decline during 1945, because the airplane and shipbuilding stocks are already pretty much deflated.

42. The heavy chemicals, steels and motors may hold their own during 1945; but consumer goods will do much better.

43. The safest stocks to buy—considering value, income and safety—will be the merchandising stocks, especially the chain store stocks.

44. 1944 saw a large increase in the demand for peace stocks with a decline in war stocks; but 1945 will witness them both moving more or less together. Switching has been over-done in most cases.

45. 1945 will continue to witness creeping inflation, although the big movement toward inflation will not take place until the next business depression which will follow the postwar prosperity.

BONDS

46. Though bank loan rates should continue to have an upward tendency, interest rates in general will remain low through 1945, since the money supply is now 20% above normal and government controls will continue.

47. Anticipating the expected decline in Federal taxes, 1945 should surely see a falling off in the price of most municipal and probably other tax-exempt bonds.

48. The highest grade corporation bonds will decline during 1945.

49. Investors will give much more attention to diversification and staggered bond maturies during 1945.

50. More public utilities will be taken over by municipalities and "Authorities" during 1945.

REAL ESTATE

51. Suburban real estate will be in much greater demand with higher prices during 1945.

52. City real estate should hold its own, excepting in the congested war areas where declines may set in.

53. Small productive farms will continue to increase in price; but large farms may sell for less in 1945 than in 1944.

54. Building will show a considerable increase. Contracts will be up 25%, but prices may be a little lower due to increases in lumber and cement production.

55. There will be no changes in residential rents during 1945.

56. Real estate will be helped by Congress ceasing to induct any more men into the armed services after June 30, 1945.

POLITICS AND POSTWAR PEACE

57. The uncertain political factor of 1945 will be Mr. Roosevelt. People will soon fear that he may resign before the next Congressional Elections either on account of ill health or to become head of a Peace Commission or new World Organization.

58. Our foreign headaches will become worse and more frequent during 1945. What we are going through to reorganize Italy, will be repeated in many other countries.

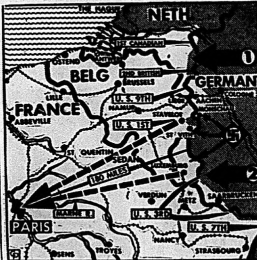
59. The Latin American honeymoon has passed its peak. The attitude of Argentina will extend to other countries and our South American troubles will increase during 1945.

60. 1945 will see more religious interest, including more church-going, than did 1944. People gradually are realizing that without a Spiritual Awakening no peace or other plans will be much good. Nations cannot be depended upon to co-operate and stick to their agreements unless they recognize God as their real Ruler and Guide.

Thumbnail Outlook for 1945

Look for these developments: Farmers' cash income will approximate that of 1944, which was $20 billions. Both bituminous and anthracite mining will run 5% below a year ago. Petroleum output will be upped 5%. Iron and steel will decline 10%. A similar drop is in prospect for chemical manufactures. Lumber output will increase 5%. The paper and shoe industries will run along on the same levels as during 1944. Industrial employment will be 7% less and factory pay rolls will decline 10%. Greatest single expansion will come in the construction and building group, which will show an increase of 25% from the low levels of 1944's first six months. Look for a sharp drop in retail trade, especially in luxury items. Electric power output will be reduced 5% as war contracts are cut back. For basically the same reason railroad freight ton mileage will fall 15%.

THREAT TO SUPPLY LINES SEEN



While German claims that their great counter-offensive has crossed the Liege highway have not been confirmed, any threat to such an important supply line point of the Allied forces possesses perilous implications. In the above map Arrow 1 points to the Antwerp area, newest of Allied supply capitals. Just below is Liege, centre of a great concrete highway. Allied reports say Liege is not in danger but point to another peril in the south where Arrow 2 points to another supply base area. North of there, the German drive toward Sedan and large arrow centres the sections of a possible Nazi drive on Paris.

Missionary Society Meeting

The December meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society was held on Tuesday afternoon at the parsonage with a good attendance of members and visitors. The large bay window was beautifully decorated with Christmas greens where the candle-lighting service took place.

The President, Miss Brown, conducted the opening and business portions of the meeting. After the singing of "While Shepherds Watched their Flocks", and prayer by Rev. E. M. Cadigan, Mrs. Frank Grant read the scripture lesson from Luke 7: 1 to 8. The Roll Call, record of books read, and calls made were taken by Mrs. D. Sanderson. The Treasurer, Mrs. Burwash reported the money raised for the past eleven months and stated that the allocation had been reached. The January meeting will be held at the home of Miss Brown, with Mrs. D. Sanderson being responsible for the program.

The December Program, a Canadian Friendship Service was then carried through in three parts: God's gift to us; our gifts of Adoration and Praise, and The Best Gift, Love. The Magnificat was repeated in unison after which the following members lighted the candles of Friendship—Mrs. Haacke, Mrs. Barlow, Mrs. Burwash, Mrs. Cadigan and Mrs. Sanderson. Christmas carols of different countries were sung with Mrs. Dickson leading. Miss Brown closed the service with prayer. Lunch was served and a social half hour enjoyed.

MOIRA

Yuletide Concert Very Successful

Moira — The Christmas concert prepared by Miss Huffman and Mrs. Burke, presented in the church on Friday evening delighted both young and old. At the commencement of the program Mr. Wesley Holbert was felicitated on the occasion of his seventy-fourth birthday. Mr. Kenneth Stewart acted as chairman. The program was as follows: Opening Chorus; Welcome by Melville Thompson; Song by Senior Room; Exercise by Juniors; Dialogue "Waiting For the Train"; Recitation by Pauline Holbert; Six Little Milk Maids; Parade of the Wooden Soldiers; Christmas Stars; Christmas Dolls by Junior Room; Hunting Big Game; Chorus by Junior Room; Dialogue, "A Quiet Evening with the Radio" by Y.P.U.; Pantomine: Old Rugged Cross; "On Sunset Hill", Carol Service. Closing, "Merry Christmas"; National Anthem. Santa Claus appeared and with many jovial remarks and kisses from all the tiny tots proceeded to deliver innumerable presents. One young lady confided to a friend afterwards that she only kissed him to find out what those whiskers were really like.

To the great joy of her many friends Mrs. J. H. Vanderwater has sufficiently recovered from her recent operation to be able to return to her home.

The Boys Overseas.

At this Christmas season the thoughts of all people are turned to those boys who are absent overseas. It has been exceedingly gratifying to have received word that a good percentage of boxes sent for Christmas have already been received. Elvel Wannamaker, Frederick Regensberg, and Bill Bailey are in Italy. Cecil Scott has recovered sufficiently from wounds to return to the lines in Belgium. Morton English, David Scott and McKinley Armstrong are also in Belgium. Glenn Morton is expected home from the west for New Year's. John Mitts of Fuller is in a hospital with a fractured elbow. Floyd Deline has arrived safely overseas.

Royal Bank Assets And Deposits Hit Record Levels

Montreal, Dec. 27 —(CP)— Royal Bank of Canada in its annual statement reported profits at $3,812,184, equal to $1.09 per share on its new split stock, compared with $3,426,289, or 98 cents in the previous 12 months on the same 12 months on the same basis. Profits were exclusive of refundable portion of taxes. Taxes were $2,127,214 against $1,966,357. After deductions, the sum of $432,184 was carried forward versus $556,289. Profit and loss accounts amounted to $4,247,671, compared with $3,815,487.

Total assets reached the high-water mark of $1,790,251,802 against $1,509,097,571. Deposits rose $277,000,000 to the record figure of $1,676,884,696. Deposits by the public were $1,400,096,883, an increase of approximately $250,000,000.

Liquid assets were listed at $1,377,849,205 versus $1,104,703,439 and the bank's liabilities to the public were 81.62 per cent, compared with 78.09 per cent.

Current loans in Canada were $261,024,287 against $277,921,237, a decrease of $16,896,950. Loans outside Canada were $23,000,000 higher at $79,117,420.

FOOTBALL STARS RETURN

Toronto, Dec. 28. (CP)—Major Huck Welch of Hamilton and Major George Hees of Toronto, noted football stars before they enlisted, were among Canadian servicemen returning last night from service in France.

His Majesty Confident of Victory

When His Majesty King George Sixth spoke to the British Empire on Christmas Day from his fireside in the country, his words were those of hope and confidence in victory. "Anxiety is giving way to confidence and let us hope that before next Christmas Day, God willing, the story of liberation and triumph will be complete," he said. He referred to the lamps which the Germans put out, first in 1914 and again in 1939 as now being again rekindled. He referred to the great allies "in this arduous enterprise of human spirit—man's unconquerable mind and freedom's holy flame" and he expressed his faith that most surely the Allies shall reach their goal.

The King pointed to the post-war world and said that "labor and devotion, patience and tolerance will still be needed for the experiment of living as nations in harmony." Here he touched on the problem which will face the world when peace comes. "The defeat of Germany and Japan would be only the first half of the plan and the second would be to create a world of free men untouched by tyranny," he said.

The King was greatly moved "by the thought that so vast and friendly an audience hears the words I speak in this room where the Queen and I and our daughters are fortunate enough to be spending Christmas at home." He spoke a message of good will to men and women of whatever creed and color who might be listening throughout the vast Commonwealth and Empire, on the battlefield, on the high seas or in foreign lands."

His Majesty spoke in words of kindliness of those who suffer, of the doctors and nurses in their labors of mercy, of the prisoners of war and their lonely relatives and gave especially to children a message of all the happiness that Christmas can bring. He expressed profound sympathy with the sorrows of the people in these war years, and of the separation of families at the call of service.

The King pointed to the self-sacrifice of so many men and women, boys and girls who through hard work and much self-sacrifice have helped to bring victory nearer. "We have shared many dangers and the common effort has bound us together," he said. "Yet labor and devotion, patience and tolerance will still be needed for the life of the nations called to live in harmony.

The message closed with a fervent prayer for a happy Christmas and for the coming year a full measure of that courage and faith in God, "which alone enables us to bear old sorrows and face new trials, until the day when the Christmas message of peace on earth, good will to men finally becomes true."

Bunyan-Stannard Envelope

Thousands of lives and still more thousands of limbs are being saved by the invention of a British naval officer, Lieutenant Commander John Bunyan, R.N.V.R. This invention is a fabric envelope to enclose and irrigate burns and open wounds.

Lieutenant Commander Bunyan is, by profession, a consultant and researcher in dentistry. He discovered, after some years of experiment, that irrigation with sodium hypochlorite could save the lives of many who had received burns and wounds so severe that they would formerly have been considered fatal. Furthermore, the dressing he devised eliminated pain entirely, and can remain on the wound from ten to twelve weeks.

His discovery aroused the enthusiasm of Mr. Stannard, a Staffordshire silk-manufacturer, who devoted a great deal of time and money to perfecting the fabric of which the Bunyan-Stannard envelope is made.

The envelope is being supplied to the forces in Europe and the East; emergency packs that can be applied by the wounded man himself are carried by bomber crews. Like all other British inventions, it is available to the United States under reverse lend-lease, and is being used extensively by the American forces.

Biggest Bailey

The biggest Bailey bridge yet built was recently thrust across the Chindwin river in Burma. It is 1,096 feet long.

Five hundred soldiers sweated at its making for two days undisturbed although the Japanese were only six miles away. All the enemy did was to fire an occasional random shell. Their air force did not show a wing-tip until the bridge had been in use ten days, when Zeros attempted to attack. They were driven off by anti-aircraft guns with one destroyed and one damaged.

The bridge is a vital link in communications and may greatly accelerate the Japanese defeat. Its planning was a noteworthy piece of organization, but the colonel in charge says that one twice as long could easily have been built. He was given notice of what was required and worked out his plan in 48 hours; the only alteration was to shift the site 100 yards because Japanese shells were falling where it was originally intended to build the bridge.

The bridge's components were brought from Calcutta, hauled the last 300 miles by road, assembled in pontoon sections on the Myitha river, and floated a half mile downstream to the site. The truck drivers who hauled the material were mostly western desert veterans. They drew up the trucks on the river bank so that their headlights could enable the construction to be carried on after nightfall.

In Our Hearts

(Calgary Albertan)

There really haven't been many new devices that have stirred the minds and hearts of the world to any great and lasting good since the invention of printing. For the most part, man's better nature hasn't been able to keep pace with the scientific discoveries of his mind.

And so, in spite of the telephone and telegraph and radio, in spite of electricity and motor cars and aviation, we still have wars, cruelty, ignorance and poverty. Too often it seems that new inventions simply have a way of refining and intensifying man's innate cussedness.

Probably we shall buy a television set when everybody else does. But we shall do it in the conviction that the shape of things to come is going to depend entirely on the intrinsic qualities of men's minds and hearts, whether those qualities are communicated by electronics, woodcuts, or tribal drums.

Leningrad Competition

(Minneapolis Star Journal)

During the worst of the fighting in Leningrad the Russian authorities staged an architectural contest to produce the best drawings for the rebuilding of the city. Submitted plans were posted on billboards about the city with accompanying inscriptions which read: "You are not fighting for the Leningrad which is disintegrating before your eyes, but for the new Leningrad which will arise, phoenix-like, from its ashes."

How Leningrad responded to this positive appeal is well known. The city held out for 29 months of siege, while its population of two and a half million was cut by death to half a million. People subsisting upon a ration of one slice of black bread a day worked and fought in sub-zero temperatures. The prizes in the architectural contest itself were an extra slice of bread daily.

Paganism

(Boston Herald)

The Nazi horrors have brought to all our people the fundamental vices of paganism. There is no disagreement among our sects as to the necessity of extirpating it. Sometimes in unison and sometimes without it, they have all lifted their voice against Nazism, the reign of might, the apotheosis of the state, the suppression of minorities and the oppression of small nations. The recurrent intersectual and intra-secutal debates do not in the slightest loosen the ties among Catholic, Proaestant and Jewish foes of paganism.

WAR

When first to slaughter men began,
They fought each other, man to man.
Then, seeking might beyond their foes,
They took to arrows and to bows.
Those equalled catapults and slings
Strengthened the lines of warrior kings.

Each engine men designed for wrath
Left crueler weapons in its path.
The genius of the human mind
Began more ways to kill to find,
And soon, to set the world aflame,
The knowledge of explosives came.

All who beyond their day could see
Have said: "The next war worse will be!"
Increase of horror is the price
Of warfare's every new device,
Until today the starry skies
For slaughter men must utilize.

Now horror stalks the world around,
But still more ways to kill are found!
Thousands with every hour are slain
And thousands left to hopeless pain;
And, save men stop it, all can see
The next war viler is to be.

Himmler's Mock Trials In "People's Court"

By "Argus", in "The Nation", New York.

Himmler's machinery of repression operates at high speed—and on the whole without formalities. Tens of thousands of persons have been jailed and killed without any pretence of a trial. But since a dictatorship is always inconsistent, pseudo-legal methods are also employed. In a "people's court" in Berlin and in the provinces the terror is administered with somewhat more ceremony.

These courts function behind closed doors. Especially welcome, therefore, is an eyewitness description of a session of the Berlin people's court published in the Swiss newspaper Die Nation on Oct. 5 It is reprinted here:

"At the entrance to the court I was approached by a heavily armed SS man who searched me for weapons or a camera. These formalities over, I was permitted to enter the courtroom. There were about 80 spectators, some of them soldiers, some journalists. The presiding judge, Dr. Roland Freisler, and four lay judges were seated behind a long table. At another table sat the Reich's attorney and the counsel for the defence.

"That morning only uninteresting cases were on the agenda—trials of unknown persons. The first was that of an elderly woman who had been denounced by her maid. The accused looked weary and careworn; the long months during which she had been held for trial had left their mark.

"The presiding judge opened the session: 'Are you Mrs. Klara Z.—49 years old, born in Berlin, married, with three children? Is this correct?' The defendant rose and said in a barely audible voice that she had only two children, her daughter having perished in an air raid on Berlin eleven months ago.

"The maid was the star witness. In reply to the presiding judge's question she said shyly: 'Mrs. Z— never discussed politics or the war. Mr. Z— has been on the eastern front for a considerable time. The defendant's oldest son was inducted into the army about three months before her arrest. The second son is working as an engineer in an Austrian factory. That is all I know about him, as Mrs. Z— was not in the habit of talking to me about family matters. Her daughter was 17 when she was killed. She was a driver in the ARP. I was present when Mrs. Z— received the news. At first she stared at me absently. Then she cried. "This is the work of that devil, that mass murderer! Poor Germany, this is how things now are with us!" As I considered this utterance of a decidedly defeatist nature and inimical to our Fuehrer, I did not hesitate to inform the authorities.'

"'You acted with absolute correctness,' said the presiding judge. The authorities must be immediately advised of such a criminal attitude. I thank you in the name of the German people.'

"The superintendent of the building where the defendant lived was the next witness. He stated that Mrs. Z— led quite a solitary life, that she had contributed little to the 'winter relief', did not read any party newspapers, never participated in meetings of the Nazi women's organization, and in general showed a lukewarm attitude. No other witnesses were called.

"The attorney for the defence pleaded for exactly three and a half minutes. He began by expressing hope for the Fuehrer's long life and a German victory and concluded with words of praise for German justice. He admitted that the defendant deserved severe punishment but asked that her husband's and her sons' services in the German cause be taken into account. The defending attorney seemed to weigh fearfully every word he uttered. In this he was justified; many lawyers have been brought to trial themselves because they dared to cite the most harmless facts in their clients' favor.

"In half an hour the trial was over. Mrs. Klara Z— is sentenced to die by the axe for her defeatist attitude and for having insulted the Fuehrer as well as the German people and the German state."

"The other trials of the day were similar. A shopkeeper was sentenced to death because he had frequently given bread to a French worker without ration points. Two women were sentenced to death for circulating among their co-workers former speeches of the Fuehrer's which were in strange contrast to present conditions. None of the day's defendants was acquitted. The mildest sentence was 20 years of penal servitude. All trials were the result of denunciations. The accusers, with one exception, were women."

The witness' statement about the danger run by the counsel for the defence is confirmed by two cases which recently reached the Reich's supreme court. An account of both cases was published in the magazine Deutsches Recht on Sept. 9. In both, the accused was a lawyer.

The crime of one was an unfinished sentence—literally an unfinished sentence — which he had spoken when defending a client in a special court. He had said, "If the court does not intend to read my written brief—." The supreme court upheld the lawyer's conviction in a lower court on the ground that the words insinuated that the judges were uninterested in adequate clarification of the facts and thereby impaired the authority of the court.

The second lawyer had dubbed the testimony of a witness who was a block leader for the Nazi party "unreliable". And he had added, "Everybody knows how frequently reports on somebody's political attitude are based on information furnished by the concierge."

The lower court had acquitted this lawyer, but the supreme court set aside the verdict and the man was punished for his imprudence.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

THE MOUSE IN THE RAT CAGE

This is the second in a series of talks with the young man who is going to have a baby.

Now don't take that as a facetious remark. It is not an attempt to be humorous. I say the husband who is a man should be as deeply concerned in every little detail of the business as is the wife when there is a baby on order or even contemplated.

If some husbands remain aloof and leave all that stuff to the expectant mother alone—AND to the old woman and other unqualified instructors or advisers — it is only because there is too much rat in their make-up and character.

The sheer rattiness of an appallingly large number of young men in this country in respect to having a baby is apparent in the unhuman way they desert wife and baby — maybe I'm slandering the rat family, but unhuman is the only printable term for the deserter.

If a husband is all man, he will quite naturally take as much interest in every detail of preparation for maternity as his wife does. He will study whatever his wife studies and he will go with her to the doctor for whatever prenatal care, instruction or advice the doctor gives —and see to it that the advice is heeded and followed. There is nothing a woman should know about the baby business that her husband should not know as well—if he is a real man. In the booklet "Preparing for Maternity" (for copy send ten cents and preaddressed stamped envelope) there are chapters on the expectant father's diet etc. — again no fooling, but straight health and nutrition. In the "Brady Baby Book" (copy inclosed with other booklet if you send ten cents additional) there are no chapters expressly for the father — but the whole booklet is intended as much for the guidance of the baby's father as it is for the mother. If the baby's father is all man, he will take as much interest in the booklet or in any instruction on the care and feeding of infants as the mother does.

There are a lot of young men who are unquestionably ratty in nature and character, but by no means so many as one might infer from an occasional look at the specimens in the corridor or waiting-room of the shady hospital or lying-in institution. Some of the stooges you see in the cage there are just meek little wishy-washy creatures — mice who are not quite man enough to reject the stooge role and remain with their wives during delivery. They are so ignorant of everything that pertains to the baby business — thanks to the ladylike education they have had so far—that the people who run the hospital or lying-in place and prefer to keep their ways dark find it easy to push them around and make boobs of them.

A man must first know his way about, if he means to play a man's part in this baby business. So it is up to the expectant father to study everything his wife studies about it.

ANSWERS & QUESTIONS

Keep Dandruff Off and Hair On

Please tell us whether taking a shampoo twice a week is too often. I can't keep my head free from dandruff unless I do, but some people say it makes the hair fall out. —(A.W.B.)

Answer—No, it doesn't make the hair fall out. Unimportant how frequently you shampoo if you apply a little oil to scalp afterward to replace the natural oil removed by the washing. Systematic use of sulfur-salicylic pomade will control the dandruff, as instructed in pamphlet on the hair and scalp sent on request if you inclose ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

If You Can't Be A Lady

I realize the help situation is difficult, but darned if I can see what connection Allergy has to the Menopause. I asked for your pamphlet "Relief for Allergy" and I received a pamphlet on "The Menopause". (Thomas A.)

Answer—I know it. The Allergy pamphlet is white. The Menopause pamphlet was formerly an appropriate grey. But the last printing of the letter was on white paper, and so you see, in the hustle and bustle of getting prompt answers off to people who were waiting and tapping their feet in a frightening way, I just overreached Allergy and came up with Menopause. But keep it, Tom, who knows, you may get grey and have hot flashes and all that.

Red Nose

Some time ago you suggested a salve or preparation for constant redness of the nose—it is NOT from alcoholic addiction.

(Mrs. F. M.)

Answer—Instructions in pamphlet "Acne" mailed on request if you inclose pre-addressed stamped envelope.

YOU'D BE SURPRISED

By GEORGE W. STIMPSON

SHOOTING STARS

One of the interesting phenomena observed on almost any clear night is what is popularly known as "shooting stars" or "falling stars."

So-called shooting or falling stars are not stars at all, of course, but meteorites.

Meteorites themselves are comparatively small masses of rock or iron flying about in space.

Their origin is unknown. Some authorities regard them as tiny fragments of disintegrating comets. It is estimated that the weight of the earth is increased about 100,000 tons every year as the result of meteoric material, chiefly dust, that falls from the sky.

According to the most usual scientific explanation, meteorites are visible, that is, they occur as shooting or falling stars, only when they come into contact with the earth's upper atmosphere.

The streak of light, it is supposed, is due to the enormous heat generated by friction. Usually the meteorite is heated red hot, bursts into fiflame and is reduced to dust before it reaches the ground.

Some chemists, however, think this explanation is inadequate. They believe that at least part of the light is due to electricity developed by the friction between the meteorite and the highly electrified upper atmosphere.

The light produced by one of these molten masses is also sometimes called a "fireball."

So-called falling stars are seldom larger than grains of sand. Scientifically they are known as "meteoroids" before they fall, "meteors" while they are falling, and "meteorites" after landing.

Frequent reports to the contrary, there have been very few, if any, authentic cases of persons being hit by meteorites. The chances of a person being hit by a meteorite are almost nil.

Another odd thing is that all meteors or meteorites that have fallen upon the earth and been examined contain only minerals already found on the earth.

Britain Ruined? Here's the Other Side

By George Edinger in the Transatlantic Edition of the London Daily Mail.

Britain will emerge from the war, so it is said, an impoverished people. She has realized her investments and lost her markets to the Americans.

She is a nation of debtors, and she will have to ask her friends to put her on her feet again.

It is always fatuous to dispute about the future.

It is sometimes presumptuous to argue with economists about economics, even if they are the economists who said that Britain would inevitably be ruined if she abandoned the gold standard; that Hitler could not afford a war, and that the New Deal would overturn the social structure of the United States.

But past experience is some guide to future probabilities. It is not irrelevant to remember that every great war in which Britain has been involved was said to presage her ruin.

Yet she has emerged from every war more flourishing than before, with a higher standard of living at home and an enhanced prestige abroad.

And in spite of all the wars the national wealth per head has gone up every time.

Marlborough's wars at the beginning of the eighteenth century cost the nation the then fantastic sum of $200,000,000.

Britain had a population of 6,000,000 people, and her national income was $24,000,000.

To meet the cost she had to put a $2 tax on every window and a 40 cent tax on every acre, besides imposing the stamp duties that are still being paid today.

But, in spite of all that, the British found themselves 440 years after with a population of 6,500,000 and an income of $32,000,000.

In that state Britain started a seven-years war against France and Spain. This struggle—it added Canada and India to the Empire—cost $328,000,000, and increased the National Debt by $324,000,000.

The rest was paid off by the simple device of putting a two cent tax on every pint of beer.

Forty years after the seven-years war Britain was strong enough to face Napoleon's Empire single-handed. She fought him for more than 20 years. And she emerged 40 years after with a population of 28,000,000 people and an income of $148,000,000.

The debt soared to $3,320,000,000. The land tax was doubled. A 40 cents income tax came in.

So, though the Crimea campaign of 1854 (cost, $280,000,000, paid with an extra 3 cents on the income tax) and the Boer War (cost $800,000,000) Britain throve, prospered, and increased till the Great War of 1914.

That war cost her $36,000,000,000. And at the end of it she stood economically and internationally as high as ever in her history. Men's wages went up 200 percent. Women's wages 190 percent.

In the years since Marlborough, Britain has had her crises and her troubles, periods of economic uncertainty, periods of social disturbance.

But, taking the 240 years since the English redcoats marched to the Scheldt (and Britain has been at war for 70 of them the credit account shows a population multiplied by 20 and a national income up in roughly the same proportion.

Well, circumstances look different this time, but then they looked different every time.

They always did.

But there are certain facts, not less potent for being intangible, that should not quite be overlooked. First, British prestige on the continent of Europe was never greater than it is today.

Europe has not forgotten that it was Britain, and only Britain, that went to war and stayed the pace without waiting to have war declared on her.

Britain has lost most of her capital, and Europe likes her all the better for it. You see, she, too, has lost all her capital, and in the present state of human frailty she has a certain aversion from peoples whom circumstances has treated more kindly.

And the British are Europeans. It is foolish to pretend that this means nothing.

The fact that the United States is separated by 3,000 miles of ocean from the Old World inevitably breeds a different outlook and approach in dealing with nations and individuals.

The position of Russia, which is half linked to Asia, places her, also, at a disadvantage both in diplomacy and commerce in comparison with Britain.

It has been so since the days of the Roman Empire, the common parent of European civilization, which America has only inherited indirectly (through Britain) and Russia not at all.

And the British are the only people in Europe who will emerge from this ordeal with ports and plant virtually intact.

The British have been badly bombed, it is true, but the physical destruction in the country is not comparable with that of any of the other leading industrial and commercial powers of Western Europe.

Physically tired Britain will be; but she will not have been exhausted as the French, the Dutch, the Belgians, and the Germans have been by the hardships of occupation, and the ordeals of warfare on their soil.

Humanly Britain will face the future with far greater resources than she could do in 1918.

So much for Europe.

In South America Britain's potential ascendency is even greater. That continent always did look to Europe and not to North America for its culture, its ideas; even its trade.

Spiritually, it turned to France and Spain; commercially to Britain.

Britain lost her trade there to the United States after the last war. But she had recovered it before this one.

The fall of France left an aching void in all the republics south of the Rio Grande. The Fascist trend of Spain antagonized the people, who were born to liberty.

But the voids were filled when Britain stood alone that epic year. It was Britain that filled them. There is a fund of good will in that part of the world for the British more ample than at any time since it shook off the kings of Spain.

These things, I submit, outweigh all and any of the forces that make Britain's position at the end of this war seem worse than it was in 1714 or 1763 or 1815 or 1918.

She has her chance. The rest depends on the British people themselves. Confidence is the keystone of all prosperity. And if they are confident they will prosper.

War Takes Heavy Toll Of Horses and Cows

By Joseph Driscoll, in the New York Herald Tribune

In a war in which millions of men have been killed, it might seem trivial to mourn the horses and dogs and cattle that have lost their lives. To do so might be a tiresome paraphrase of the saying that the more one sees of human beings the more one likes cats or dogs.

Correspondents who agree on nothing else will agree that one of the most touching sights of this war met their eyes as General Patton's armor rolled into Avranches. Retreating to Rennes the Germans had made an overnight stand there. They had mounted 88's and rocket guns on the steep hills of the city overlooking the valley of the River See.

As we drove across the tiny river we could see five of our tanks lying in the green, swampy meadows knocked out, burnt out and still smoking. Men had been killed there.

On the Germans we had wreaked carnage beyond description as they fled in and out of Avranches. On the twisting hillside trails our air force and artillery had caught the enemy and pinned him down. The ditches were littered with dead Germans and the roads with their stolen horses and wagons. The sun was bright and the stench was unbearable.

And then we turned a sharp uphill curve and saw something that touched our hearts. From a quiet Normandy farm the Germans had stolen a fat black mare and her skinny sorrel filly. The mare lay dead in her harness, still attached to a battered wagon. Standing guard over her was the unharnessed filly. The filly could have run away, but she stayed there hour after hour as our tanks rolled past and almost grazed her. It was with the greatest difficulty that the filly was eventually led away from the wars.

Responsibility for such scenes must be placed upon the Germans who started the war and plundered the countries they invaded. Being short on motor transport, the Germans stole most of the horses and wagons in Normandy and elsewhere. That the farmers would be handicapped without their horses was no concern of the master race. The worst slaughter occurred in the Argentan-Falaise, where the Germans made one of their blunders. With the Americans, British and Canadians drawing a noose around them, the Germans misjudged the situation and did not retreat in time.

Unfortunately, there were six thousand horses trapped with the Germans, and there was no escape for them either. At one time one thousand horses were dashing furiously about a confined area.

Not all the horses stolen by the Germans were killed. Some were recovered and returned to their owners. Others were purloined by civilian horse thieves. Obviously, our armies were busy pursuing the Germans and could not take time to track down horse thieves. Taking advantage of this situation, numerous civilians followed in the wake of the armies for the sole purpose of stealing horses.

Next to horses, cows suffered most from the war. It was nothing unusual to see a pasture in which ten or twelve cows were lying down never to get up again to graze. Sometimes a cow was killed by a bullet; usually, however, cows were killed by concussion from bombing. My nomination for the ideal war animal would be the donkey. I remember passing a meadow where bombs had cratered the lush grass and all the cows had turned up their toes. Nothing lived in that meadow except a solitary donkey, which went along with its nibbling as if nothing had happened.

I remember another donkey—it was ridden by a small golden-haired child. As our tanks rolled down the country lane she galloped with them. Neither she nor the donkey appeared impressed by the mechanised age. They had a job to do. In the absence of father and brother she was playing cowgirl and about to round up the family's cattle with the aid of the indomitable donkey.

When hard pressed to say a good word for the German we always admit that he, too, likes dogs. The saddest thing about knocking out a Tiger tank is to see the carcass of a pet dog inside it.

Cats don't cut any important figure in this war. They are the only real neutrals—they'll eat from any hand. The dogs ride the jeeps and the tanks while the cats stay at home.

With General Leclerc's French division I have even seen black goats and white geese riding the tanks as mascots.

On the grim side was the burial of the larger animals. They had to be buried. French civilians were hired to follow the advancing armies and dig deep trenches in which the dead cows and dead horses were buried.

We saw little bird life in the parts of France through which we passed in a hurry—mostly 'planes and scare crows. Discarded German uniforms were being used by the French farmers as scarecrows.

One fallen German received a perfect burial. In the Argonne we saw his rude grave with a plain wooden cross, on top of which his punctured helmet rested. Atop the helmet there poised a little singing bird in full song as we sped by.

BEAUTY By HELEN JAMESON

Simple Care of the Complexion

In the old days, when it was believed that rouge made a woman look like sin, many of the sisters suffered from premature wrinkles and the really lovely complexion was rare, or so we are told. Using creams was something that just was not done. However, when the face was chapped, a little mutton tallow might be applied without bringing on a crisis in the family circle.

We know that beauty magic does not come in jars, but, at the same time, oily cosmetics are of value in keeping the skin soft, smooth and free of certain blemishes. Nature provided sebaceous glands for the purpose of lubricating the epidermal coat, but these glands often play out; especially, when birthdays get to the point where we lie about them. Oily cosmetics perform as substitutes. They should be used freely, especially in the winter season, when cold winds flay the cutaneous surface, causing it to scale, feel rough to the touch.

If the skin is dry, remove make-up at bedtime with a cleansing cream and oil, removing it carefully so that powder, rouge and lipstick smears are swept away. Give face and neck a thorough lathering, fluffing up the soap suds, frictioning it in with the fingers. A quick swish of a soaped washcloth just won't do.

Have a rigorous rinsing. Soap should never remain on the skin, no matter how bland it may be. Warm water should be used, then cold, to bring a reaction of the blood streams. Drying should be done gently. Then on with more cream, letting it remain on over night so that it will sink into the tissues. A heavy emollient is best for this purpose. The more light friction used, the better. Tapping the flesh lightly not only rouses the capillaries, but also exercises the tiny fibres within the outer layers of flesh.

In the morning, it will not be necessary to use soap. Rinse with warm water, then with cold. After the drying, a little cream can be used. This should be removed before the powder pad is applied or the rouge used.

From morning until dinner time is a long stretch of hours, during which the human map collects considerable atmospheric dust. Since most of us feel that it is our duty to take a clean face to the dinner table, a quick clean-up treatment is necessary.

Use a thin cream for this purpose. Remove the first application, put on a second light film, then wipe that away and apply fresh make-up.

It is a mistake to put powder and rouge on an unclean skin surface.

LAC. "Bud" Caddick, R.C.A.F., spent the Christmas holiday with his mother, Mrs. E. Holst, 26 Earl St., has returned to his station at Paulson, Manitoba.

Capt. N. R. Chopin, D.C., A.U.S., is spending a few days with Col. and Mrs. Geen at Moodie Cottage.

Cpl. Lois Pilkington, C.W.A.C., was in town on Wednesday.

WEDDINGS

McCONNELL—LOWERY

On Saturday, December 23, at eleven-thirty in the morning, the marriage was performed by the Rev. Telford S. Russell, in the rectory of Emmanuel Church, of June Helena Lowery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Lowery, to Cpl. Harry Everett McConnell, R.C.A.F., East Coast, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. H. McConnell.

The bride was very attractively attired in a chocolate brown two-piece crepe afternoon dress accentuated with toning accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

Mrs. Francis Cormier, as the bride's attendant, was wearing a charming street length crepe ensemble in melon shade, black accessories and corsage of Sweetheart roses and bronze 'mums.

Mr. Francis Cormier was groomsman for the occasion.

St. John's Mission In Yuletide Garb For Christmas Tree

St. John's Mission, Herchimer Ave, decorated with Yuletide finery presented a bright and cheery picture on Thursday evening for the Christmas Sunday School Concert. A large Christmas tree, loaned by George Ellis, was decked with gay and varied gifts much to the delight of the children present. The singing of carols, along with dialogues and recitations displayed the talents the little artists possess. The teachers, Mr. and Mrs. H. Darling are to be commended for the fine training they gave the children. Appreciation to all those who had helped make the occasion a success was expressed by Miss Jennie Redner. She made special mention of the decoration committee comprising Mr. Harry Wagner, and Masters Edgar Ellis, Harry Meens and Kenneth Duesberry; musical numbers by Gwen LaRue, Hilda McElhroud and Dorcas Chionard; fan dancing by Misses Pat Gerow and Anne Putman.

One of the encouraging points of the affair was the presence of many fathers and mothers enjoying the festivities with their children, showing that they too believed in the Birth of Christ and the Christ Child whose birthday was being honored. Santa Claus then distributed gifts which delighted the hearts of all the children.

On Christmas eve, the singing of carols and Choral Communion was celebrated at St. John's Mission by the rector, Rev. Charles Heaven, with a large congregation participating. The new choir took its part well. Much credit is due the choir mother, Mrs. John Exley, whose interest in the young members is much appreciated.

Says Flu Epidemic Hits Germany

London, Dec. 28, (CP)—The Brussels radio said today an influenza epidemic had broken out in Germany.

The broadcast said the situation was particularly serious in the southern sections of the Reich, where the cold weather and shortages of food, doctors and medicine have been felt acutely. It said there have been many deaths in Munich.

The first sweaters were heavy dark blue jackets, which were worn by participant in athletic contests before and after games.

MISERIES OF Baby's Cold Relieved As He Sleeps

Now . . . here's reliable home-proved medication that works 2 ways at once to relieve distress of child's cold—even while he sleeps!

Just rub throat, chest and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. Instantly VapoRub starts to relieve coughing spasms, ease muscular soreness or tightness, and invite restful, comforting sleep. Often by morning, most of the misery is gone.

For baby's sake, try VapoRub tonight. It must be good, because when colds strike, most mothers use Vicks VapoRub.

Christmas Concerts

S.S. NO. 20, THURLOW

The annual Christmas concert of S.S. No. 20, Thurlow, was held on the afternoon of December 14. Despite the unusually heavy fall of snow a good attendance was present to see the children as they took their parts in the drills, pageant, recitations, Monologues and dialogues.

The class room was beautifully decorated in Christmas colors of red and green interspersed with sprays of evergreen. A large Christmas tree completed the decorations.

Miss Beatrice Jones was chairman and in her gracious and capable manner she complimented the people on the interest shown by attending the concert given by their children.

The program was opened with a Welcome recitation by Billy Ryan.

The Senior Room pupils sang "Let's Keep the Christ in Christmas".

Dialogue, "Santa's Mittens" by the Juniors was well received.

Reading, "The Sock that Jack Hung Up".

Monologue, "More Credit to Mrs. Santa Claus", by Joan Clarke.

Drill by a number of Junior children.

A patriotic number "Your Flag and My Flag" by a number of Senior children.

Song, "Who is Coming on Christmas Night?" by a number of Juniors.

Tap Dance, "Put Your Arms Around me Honey", by Celia Hatfield.

A Three Act Play, "Christmas at Uncle Jerry's", by Senior pupils.

Duet, "Dr. Danny and Nancy Jane", by Betty Harvey, and Gary Littles, two young pupils displayed youthful ability at singing and acting.

Dialogue, "Six Christmas Cooks" by Juniors.

Recitation, "Dressing Christmas Dolly", by Marilyn Purdy.

Two piece song, Senior pupils.

Songs, (1) Toyland; (2) A Book Full of Stories, by the Juniors.

A Pageant, "Spirit of Christmas" by all the pupils of the school. It was much enjoyed by everyone and brought to a close the afternoon's program.

The proceeds for the afternoon amounted to $18.50 from the sale of Home Economics projects—Home Cooking and Candy made by the Senior girls of the Home Economic class. The proceeds were turned over to the Junior Red Cross Club. During the season this class has been active in the various war activities. War Stamp sales $45.75; milkweed pod collection 22 bags; Navy League $5.40; Junior Red Cross, $54.57.

The program closed with the singing of the National Anthem at the close of the Pageant in which all the pupils took part.

Santa Claus then appeared and distributed gifts to all the children. Candy and popcorn were passed around.

W. ONTARIO BLANKETED

Toronto, Dec. 28. (CP)—Toronto and large parts of Western Ontario were blanketed again with snow today and Weather Bureau officials predicted a fall of about six inches. Roads were slippery and various bus services out of Hamilton were delayed.

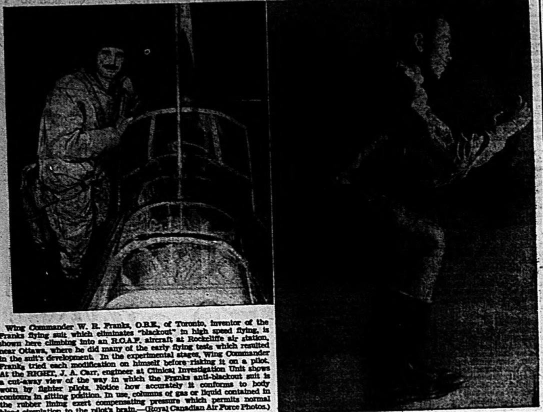
R.C.A.F. ANTI-BLACKOUT SUIT AND ITS INVENTOR



Wing Commander W. R. Franks, O.B.E., of Toronto, inventor of the Franks flying suit which eliminates "blackout" in high speed flying, is shown here climbing into an R.C.A.F. aircraft at Rockcliffe air station, near Ottawa, where he did many of the early flying tests which resulted in the suit's development. In the experimental stages, Wing Commander Franks tried each modification on himself before risking it on a pilot. At the RIGHT, J. A. Carr, engineer at Clinical Investigation Unit shows a cut-away view of the way in which the Franks anti-blackout suit is worn by fighter pilots. Notice how accurately it conforms to body contours in sitting position. In use, columns of gas or liquid contained in the rubber lining exert compensating pressure which permits normal blood circulation to the pilot's brain.—(Royal Canadian Air Force Photos.)

Officers of the F.B.I. Prove Men 'Innocent'

By J. Edgar Hoover, Director, U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation in "This Week".

In a lonely shack in Alaska, an old prospector lay dead—murdered by a bullet through the head. The still-falling snow had obliterated all tracks around the cabin, but it didn't take investigating officers long to find the obvious suspect near by: a rival prospector, long-time enemy of the victim. The fact that the suspect was also an ex-criminal added nothing to the evidence against him, of course, but that seemed hardly necessary.

First, the officers found the bullet that killed the murdered man. It had lodged in the window sill of the cabin. And when they came upon the suspect, he possessed a rifle of the same calibre as that which had fired the fatal bullet. The rifle had recently been fired. And the man's socks were splattered with blood.

He denied his guilt, of course, as murderers usually do. He admitted he had fired the rifle, but insisted he had shot at a reindeer. That was how he got the blood on his socks, he said. But he couldn't produce the reindeer. It seemed to have vanished into thin air—or into the realm of imagination from which it had come. One of the officers summed it all up grimly: "That old fellow is as good as hung right now."

Scrupulously, however, the officers gave him the benefit of the doubt—little as the doubt was in their minds. They packed up the rifle, bullet and socks, and started them to the nearest city by dog sled. There a plane picked them up and carried them all the day down and across the continent to Washington, D.C., where they were finally delivered to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

A scientist made exhaustive tests of the bloodstained socks, while experts tested the rifle and checked the bullet—and the tests proved conclusively that the bloodstains were made by reindeer blood, and that the murder bullet could not possibly have been fired by the suspect's rifle.

In due time, other similar tests proved the guilt of a new suspect, a half-breed Eskimo youth. But the point I want to make here is that an innocent man, who might well have been found guilty by a jury, was exonerated and turned free.

With only the details differing, that happens all the time. That is the American way of law enforcement. When people are guilty of offences against our society, we prove them guilty, if we can. But for every one proved guilty, we prove many more innocent.

On the night of Dec. 27, 1936, 10-year-old Charles Fletcher Mattson was kidnapped from his home in Tacoma, Washington. Demands were made for $28,000 in ransom, but all efforts to bring about his return failed; and almost a month later, his dead body was found.

Since that December night, we have investigated more than 20,000 suspects in the attempt to bring the murderers to justice. It is one of the only two kidnap cases on the books of the FBI which have not yet been solved. Naturally, jealous as we are of our record, we would like few things more than to see it solved and closed. Yet when people have actually confessed to the crime—as they have—we have laboriously proved that they didn't do it. We proved them innocent—and deprived ourselves of the satisfaction of closing the case.

I know very well that the FBI would not last long if it began to operate with the methods of the Gestapo or Secret Police,, more concerned with putting people in jail, or disposing of them by more drastic methods, than with establishing the facts by which not only are the guilty punished but the innocent protected.

Some time after the kidnapping of the Lindbergh child, a man signed a confession admitting that he was solely responsible for the crime. Our investigation showed that a little group, led by a small-town police official, had been so over-anxious to solve the case and get a conviction that they had kidnapped their suspect, held him captive in a cellar, tortured him, and finally shut him into an institution for the feeble-minded, in order to get him to sign the confession. This flagrant attempt to railroad an innocent man to the electric chair not only failed, but the perpetrators were themselves arrested and convicted. This country simply does not stand for that kind of police work.

Not long ago, an airplane factory on the east coast reported finding fragments of glass in the hydraulic systems of a number of planes just before the final tests. Automatically everybody working on the planes who might have placed the foreign material in the systems was under suspicion of sabotage. It was, for me, a moment of supreme satisfaction when I could report, on the basis of an exhaustive laboratory investigation, that the whole affair was an industrial accident, and that none of those American war workers had betrayed his country.

Modern science has developed many new aids for the investigation of crime. Yet, even more than aids in finding the criminal, they are aids in finding who is not the criminal. If you have the fingerprints of a person who committed a crime, nobody else's fingerprints will match them. Scientific tests prove what the facts are, not what somebody's theory is. And while theories may be dangerous to innocent persons, enough facts can always save them.

Green Reporter's Interview

By Thomas Richary Henry, in the Toronto Telegram

We read with regret that Sir Herbert Couzens has passed away.

'One of our first jobs in newspaper work was to interview this gentleman, and that was longer ago than the day before yesterday.

He wasn't 'Sir Herbert' then, but he was head of the T.T.C.

We were handed a newspaper clipping stating that he had returned from a visit to England.

"Get interview," was written on the clipping.

Feeling very hazy about it all, we encountered a male secretary tiling the door, who sourly told us that we could not see Mr. Couzens.

"Gosh!" we thought, "if the flunkey is this tough, what will the boss be like?"

We argued, and after a great deal of persistence, the secretary reluctantly showed us into the inner office.

Mr. Couzens courteously took our hat and coat, and pleasantly asked what he could do for us.

We decided on frankness, and said we were a little undecided about the matter ourself; we were new on the job, had been told to get an interview, but didn't have the slightest idea on what we were to get the interview.

"Your paper is interested in hydro-electric development. Maybe you could make a story about what I saw along that line in England," he decided for us.

For an hour he told us about this subject, and we industriously took notes. Even after all these years we think that Mr. Couzens did an excellent job of interviewing himself for us.

After that we watched the gentleman's upward progress with interest and with pleasure.

We regret his passing.

Lost Man Who Is Calm Is Likely To Come Home

By W. H. Colclough, Vancouver in Stratford Beacon-Herald

"I'm afraid he's a goner," deplored the tired game-warden, coming in at the end of another day of fruitless search for the young airman who had been lost in the timber on Vancouver Island.

Ten days before the R.C.A.F. officer, in company with a few friends went-deer hunting. He became separated from his companions and has not been heard from since. He may still show up, but 10 days, even in the coast climate where it rarely gets down to freezing, is a heart-breaking and usually a fatal experience.

In these days of deer hunting, or even scouting through the woods it might be well for the average nimrod to ponder deeply just how it comes about that he might get lost, and if so what is the best thing to do.

"Getting lost is easy enough" commented one old-timer, "but that in itself is not so serious. What really brings tragedy to the average individual, when lost, is plain, ordinary panic. If he would keep his head, in all probability he would return home safely.

It seems that when the average man realizes he is lost, instead of calmly sitting down and thinking through, he rushes hither and yon in a frantic effort to find himself. This results in a confused state of mind and does something to the body which works against him after he has calmed down.

When a hunter takes to the woods he has in the back of his mind the possibility of losing his way, and usually carries some matches, his knife and a compass. He also knows that East, West, North or South from the hunting locality there is a clearing, river, lake or road, so in the event that he takes the wrong turning and becomes lost, with night upon him, all he has to do is to wait for daylight (which seems an eternity in coming), then, by using his compass, work his way to a known sanctuary.

It all sounds very simple, yet it takes some will-power to follow such a plan through. Travelling in the woods after dark is suicidal. Falling over a log, into a hole or down a precipice means injury so that nothing may be done when daylight does come along.

Few hunters hunt completely beyond the sound of a locomotive, mine or mill whistle; so, if they calm down sufficiently, they will in all probability get their bearings from this source, and work their way home.

Again, it might be well remembered with profit that the closer a lost man remains to the place where he first realized he was lost, the greater are his chances of being found by a search party who will start from a point where the hunter had entered the woods. In timbered country the average hunter will not travel more than three miles until he swings to return to camp. A rifle shot may be heard that distance, so if he settles down for the night he will get his bearings when his friends shoot for him. But if, panic-driven, he keeps going he may fall exhausted miles away in an undreamed of locality, so far as the search party is concerned.

With plenty of water to drink it is not such a terrifying experience to spend a couple of nights in the woods without food. Little harm results from such a fast, and this fact alone brings the kind of comfort a man needs to safely find either his camp or a recognized landmark. With apologies to Kipling:

If you can keep your head when woods around you,
Answer only to the echo of your cry.
If you refuse to let the silence of the night confound you,
And settle down to dream the hours by.
You will come home through rain and chilling frost,
And prove to anxious friends
you were not lost.

AN APPLE FOR EVE

By Kathleen Norris

"Didn't get it. I only had one from you before Pearl Harbor."

"Well, Hugh located Delia Dillon and she said that Grandfather had driven all the way up to see her a few months before he died and put a box of papers in her attic. You can imagine Hugh! He asked her to send it, and it reached us December first, a week before Pearl Harbor. Of course Hugh and I were all agog; we tore it open—"

"My God!" Larry put into the pause as Loveday, reaching a bad corner, concentrated on her driving.

"We tore it open," she said, "and there was a mass of old letters and diaries, nothing else! We poured them all out and shook them, opened envelopes—nothing but that."

"But where's all th money?"

"Perhaps we'll never know! Hugh thinks it's lost. Stuck down some rat hole or into some wet stump or pushed behind the fire in some grate that wasn't used until he'd forgotten all about it. But"

She paused impressively. Larry shrugged impatiently, and she saw that his face wore an expression of weariness and pain.

"Some of us wives and mothers were on the pier at midnight," she told him, "but I hope they didn't keep you all waiting that long?"

"None of us got muh sleep. Too excited. Landing cards and medical inspection—all that. They kept serving us coffee, and I suppose that kept us awake. But it's sort of wearing off, I guess."

"Is there much pain?" A faint movement of her head indicated his injury.

"Nope, no pain at all. If there was any when it happened I don't remember it. When he operated I was out, of course."

"The paper said that you dived from one of the ships and pushed some burning rubbish away from two men and brought one in."

"There were about four of 'em. The others could swim." Larry got so far and fell silent.

"Well, go on!" Loveday said with an exasperated ripple of laughter.

"Go on? That's about all there was to it. We were washing," Larry volunteered. "I only had on a pair of shorts when everything began at once. Some of us ran out on deck, and I'l be darned," he said drawingly, almost in a bored tone, "if it didn't take us a few minutes to get through our heads what was going on. Then we saw that all hell had broken loose, and everybody sort of rushed around doing something. It seemed to last a God--awful time. Things were popping everywhere! There was oil on the water and the fire was burning the oil. I saw—I suppose I saw these fellers—they were diving under the water to get away from the fire, but when they came up for air the fire was over them, and they were right in the midst of it. They'd dive again, and then I saw one feller who couldn't swim—"

"So you went over?" Loveday supplied, her face pale, her eyes shining as she drove steadily along.

"Two of us did. Foster and I—he got badly burned, died next day. But cripes," Larry said, "you couldn't keep your eyes on what the fellers were doing if there was anyone in the whole shooting box who was yellow I didn't see him. God, what guts! Al of 'em—all of 'em!

"nd how did it happen?" she pointed to his leg.

"Getting back to the boat. I shoved this sailor up to the ladder and swung myself up after him, and then the tender smashed against my foot. I felt every bone in it go and I knew it was done for. Nobody's fault. I was thankful that there was a surgeon there and he qnew what to do."

"We didn't know, Hugh and I, whether you could even walk or not."

"Oh, sure, I can walk, and after they fix on some attachment they talk about I'll walk better. I'm going to take a rest and then I'll go back."

"Not flying!"

"Nope, but there's lots of other ways you can make yourself useful beside flying. They're going to need everyone."

"es, it's the greatest war of all time and you're in it. Rod and Hugh are in it; John Fayre, Fanny's husband and Nini's husband, Marge's and Betty—Lou's husbands—we're all in it together. Well, God's given be back my man; he won't have to go into danger again, and I've my children, and I've my home where all the others—Marge and Fan and all of them—can come from time to time to rest and perhaps be healed of some of the bitterness and the grief of it. There isn't any other world for me but just here, and there'll nexer be any other man for me but just you!"

"There's never been any woman for me but you, Loveday!" Larry whispered unsteadily.

His eyes had closed; he was not listening, and for a little while he slept.

Presently she touched his shoulder wth her own.

"Indian Hill, Larry! Look at the people! The whole countryside has come to welcome you home."

THE END

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma cooked the diner today on account of being Nora's day off on account of Thursday, and she made pop his 2 favorite things, being liver and onions and lemmon merrang pie, and pop looked at his slice of pie and started to shake his head sad, and ma said, What's a matter, William, what on earth is wrong. I cant eat this pie, pop said, and ma said, Now William, I made this pie with my own hands for your express purpose.

I know it my dear, and I wouldn't miss one of your pies for 500 dollars plus the luxury tax, but I cant eat it, it's a fizical impossibility, pop said, and ma said, Then you ought to be ashamed of yourself after all my time and trouble. You had ful and ample warning that the pie was coming, so I consider it very selfish of you to render yourself helpless with liver and onions, she said.

You wrong me, my dear, pop said. I conscientiously stopped at my 3rd helping of liver and onions so I'd be sure to have comfortable parking space for the lemmon merrang pie, he said, and ma said, Then how is it a fizical impossibility for you to eat it for land sakes?

It's a fizical impossibility to eat it in a refined manner, for the simple reason that I have no fork, pop said, and ma said, Now William do you really think that's funny?

I not only think so, but I can prove it scientifically, pop said. The principle of mistaken identity is one of the basic themes of humor, and my littel joke was a variation on that theme, because you thought I was alluding to my appetite while I was really alluding to my fork, he said, and ma said, Well I can prove scientifically that I'm not laughing.

Well a couple of other fellows are, pop said.

Meaning me and him.

Which were were.

WARNS GERMANS NOT TO HARM FOREIGN WORKERS IN REICH

London, Dec. 28 — (CP) — Gen. Eisenhower warned the Germans Wednesday not to harm foreign workers in Germany, declaring "Grave penalties will fall on those who are guilty of treating them badly."

The Luxembourg radio said the Allied commander's warning was carried in leaflets printed in many languages and dropped over Germany.

HERE, GIVE ME THAT BALL

If we could put conversation into the mouths of these cagers we'd probably hear something like, "Here, give me that ball!" coming from the lips of the cager at right. It makes a nice action picture, anyway, even if it is a silent picture. The photo was snapped during a recent cage game in Madison Square Garden, New York.

Public school children now are required to read about 15 times as much material as children a generation ago.

Salmon frequenting the waters off the Pacific coast spawn only once, and then die, but those in the Atlantic spawn several times.

Racing in Canada Not Detriment To War Effort

Winnipeg, Dec. 28. (CP) — R. James Speers of Winnipeg, honorary secretary of the Prairie Thoroughbred Breeders' and Racing Association, said in a statement today racing has been carried on in Canada "with the apparent opinion of federal authorities" that it has not been a detriment to the war effort.

Commenting on the United States order directing race tracks to close down by Jan. 3, Speers said that in Canada "the situation is entirely different".

The United States order was passed to "prevent the use of critical materials, services and transportation . . . until war conditions permit".

". . . .the control over Canadian tracks which at times has appeared to be exceptionally rigid, has proven over a long period of time to be sound and sufficiently adequate to prevent any long period of racing in any community", said Speers.

The maximum is 14 days of racing throughout the calendar year by any one racing association. Some tracks in the United States had more than 100 days of racing each year.

Speers said most of the Canadian Racing Associations adopted twilight racing so that the tracks could be manned by employed persons in their spare time. At Winnipeg, 95 per cent of the employees are steadily engaged in other business. Race meetings have been held at tracks close to transportation facilities, allowing conservation of both gasoline and tires.

The United States order is under study by federal authorities in Ottawa.

German Tanks Running Out Of Gas, Reported

U. S. 1st Army Headquarters, Dec. 26 —(Delayed) —(AP)— German tanks in some sectors were running out of gasoline today as Allied air force blows at Field Marshal von Rundstedt's offensive began to manifest their effects.

Recognizing the threat in smashing air blows at his forward elements and supply columns, the enemy has abandoned strafing and nuisance raids by fighter-bombers.

Instead enemy planes are tangling with great Allied heavy bomber fleets inward bound and bent on scattering German rail and road traffic.

Combat commanders reported finding numerous German vehicles abandoned in Belgium after they exhausted their fuel and were unable to get more from rear areas.

3 CHILDREN FIRE VICTIMS

Detroit, Dec. 27 — (AP) — Three small children, whose parents were attending a movie, died last night from burns and suffocation in a fire that destroyed their home. Victims were Catherine Gillingham, three, and her two brothers, Jackie, seven, and Bobby, two.

Gone to get furs for our Mine Sweepers

Our men on mine sweepers are facing the icy blasts of zero weather. They need protection. That is why every one of us who has furs around the home, that they don't really need, should send them in at once. The need is urgent. Weather waits for no man. So, today, as soon as you can take stock of your old furs that can be used to line vests and coats for our mine sweepers send them to your nearest Navy League branch or direct to the Navy League of Canada, Fur Vest Division, Montreal.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

New York, Dec. 28 (AP) — The football bowl games this weekend will require something over 7,000 miles of travel by squads of about 35 men each—and that's not counting the mileage for individual players in the East-West and Blue-Gray games.

Some 250,000 spectators are expected to turn out for seven games (all figures are rough approximations)....And so far we haven't recorded a single serious squawk about playing these games....The Rose Bowl, as usual, "figures" to be tops with its 73,000 sellout crowd and the 2,300 journey taken by the Tennessee Vols, beating by a few miles the combined distance from Tulsa and Atlanta to Miami's Orange Bowl.

Sports and Shells.

Fitzy Fitzpatrick, the West Virginia light heavyweight who has been going strong around Los Angeles, has bought a cow pony and is practising to enter a rodeo one of these days....Wyoming is the only basketball visitor that has played more than three games in the Garden without losing one.... The advance dope on the bowl grid games has stressed passing so strongly that we wonder whether the coaches have been influenced by the basketball season.

19 Nazi Prisoners Still at Large

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 27 — (AP) — The next 36 hours may determine if there will be a quick roundup of 19 Germans still at large after a sensational escape from the Papago Park prisoner of war camp, an army officer said today.

Six of 25 German U-boat officers and men who fled through a 200-foot tunnel were recaptured Sunday night a few hours after the escape was discovered. None has been apprehended since.

The ranking escapee is Navy Capt. Jurgen Wattenberg, 43, former officer on the Admiral Graf Spee, scuttled German pocket battleship. He was later decorated by the Nazis for sinking a Brazilian freighter.

Col. William A. Holden, camp commandant, denied that Guenther Prien, U-boat commander credited with sinking the British battleship Royal Oak, was a prisoner here. The report was blamed on a misunderstanding of an inquiry.

Almost every city or district in China has its characteristic fan distinguished by its color and ornament and made to suit every class from mandarin to peasant.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

The Thoroughbred Racing Association of the United States, comprising 33 members, yesterday pledged complete compliance with the directive by James F. Byrnes, War Mobilization Director at Washington, for the suspension of all racing on and after Jan. 3. The Board of Directors emphasized that no support would be given a request for limited competition at any track.

A meeting of the 33 racing associations has been called for Jan. 12 to review the situation with the intention of providing relief for any persons identified with the turf for night. Gus Lesnevich, Coast Guard bring hardship.

Because personnel of the U. S. Coast Guard are prohibited from taking part in any sport over which commanding officers have no jurisdiction and also because no coast guardsman is permitted to compete for money, an eight-round bout at Buffalo, N.Y., was called off last night, Gus Lesnevich, Coast Guard champion, was one of the scrappers.

Horses of the Calumet Farm, Greentree Stable, Woolford farm and other establishments now at Florida tracks will be kept in training, it was announced at Miami last night, pending the resumption of racing in the United States. Trainer Ben Jones of Calumet Farm said, "We want to be ready when racing is resumed."

A substitute player rushed into a basketball game at Craftsbury, Vt., yesterday without his pants. Teammates quickly surrounded him on the floor until a pair was tossed out to him, after which the team lost out to the Barton Academy quintette 21-18. The over-anxious spare had pulled off his trunks while removing his sweat suit.

Tropical Park track, Miami, yesterday was notified by the Florida State Racing Commission that racing must cease Jan. 2 under the Federal order, after the track management had announced the meeting would run through Jan. 3.

Racing secretary and handicapper at Churchill Downs and Lincoln Fields, "Judge" William H. Shelley, 79, died at his home in Louisville, Ky., yesterday after several months' illness.

President Mervyn Dutton of the National Hockey League declared last night at Edmonton the recheck of pro athletes by the U. S. government for military purposes probably would not effect his circuit. He said that every N. H. L. player was either unfit for the armed services or had been discharged after war service.

American Leaguers last season tumbled four major league fielding records and tied another, while manager Lou Boudreau of Cleveland brilliantly added top defensive shortstop honors to his league batting championship, official figures disclosed today. Boudreau's hitting mark of .327 was the league's lowest winning average in 36 years, but his fielding record of .978 broke the league standard at short and paced the Indians to a tie with New York for team fielding laurels at .974. The Tribe pilot shattered the major league record for participating in double plays at short with 134, toppling the mark of 128 set by Horace Ford of Cincinnati in 1928.

After thumbing through the record cards of 4,382 boxers who paraded through the fistic rings of the world in 1944, editor Nat Fleischer of Ring magazine yesterday pointed a finger at Pte. Sidney Walker of Augusta, Ga., better known as Beau Jack, and declared: "There is the boxer of the year!" Announcement of the top award to the former bootblack who rose to dizzy height in fisticuffs before joining the United States Army — and then participated without pay in a $35,864,900 war bond show — was made in a copyrighted article containing the magazine's 20th annual ranking of all fighters, to be published in Ring's February issue. Two Canadians merited mention in the ranking, Johnny Greco and Danny Webb, both of Montreal.

President George Slater of the Quebec Senior Hockey League said last night that the league decided at a meeting that it would be unable to send a team to the west coast to participate in any Allan Cup series. If a Q.S.H.L. team were to proceed to the finals, the series would have to be held in the east.

Toronto, Dec. 28 — (CP)—While United States authorities are getting ready to comb the sport ranks for more men for the armed services, the Big Four football is getting ready to resume operations and from other parts of Canada comes talk of reviving this league or establishing some new loop.

That's a good sign for the future of sports, but it is bound to raise some adverse criticism in certain quarters. Plenty of people are going to ask why enough athletes can be found — if they are to be found — to form new leagues when the United States is planning a possible cleanout of many players coming under callup regulations.

Of course, excluding any service teams in football ranks, there won't be too many eligible athletes on the gridiron. In fact, people have been asking for some time just where the sponsors will get enough players to operate two full-fledged leagues right now, without pulling the standard of the game down even lower.

Still, you don't need flypaper to catch the customers at sports events these days.

History Notes:

Mike Rodden in the Kingston Whig-Standard recalls some of the innovations introduced to Ontario amateur hockey by Capt. Jim Sutherland, Hall of Fame exponent. The professional right and left defence was adopted in December, 1913, to replace the old point and counter point positions. At the same time the idea of having each team dressed in different colored sweaters was adopted. Kitchener Greenshirts in 1919 were so unnerved when Toronto St. Patrick's made them change their sweaters at the last instant that they flunked the final game and lost out in the Allan Cup finals of that year.

Guest Star:

George (Edmonton Journal) MacKintosh: "If either Art Ross of the Bruins or Bill Tobin of the Black Hawks, who announced . . . that shake-ups are imminent in their teams, know where to lay their hands on the kind of players calculated to do them good, it would be a nice gesture to pass the information on to Lester Patrick of New York Rangers.

London Dec 28. (CP)—Col. E. Middleton Perry attended his 1,910th consecutive greyhound race meeting the other day—yet he seldom has seen a race.

The colonel is veterinary surgeon for the Wembley track in suburban London and has been looking after the health of racing dogs there for the last 17 years. Because his work is done behind the scenes, he has seen fewer than 20 races during his lifetime.

Col. Perry has saved the racing careers of many crack racers, mostly through treating broken hocks. One of his patients was the well-known racer, Dallas, which fractured a hock during a race. The colonel inserted a silver splint between the tissues of the injured hock and within a few months Dallas was back to winning races again.

Another Wembley official with a full attendance record since Wembley opened its dog track 17 years ago is Timekeeper Joe Palmer. He has timed every race run at Wembley and also the many thousand trials. Joe was timekeeper at many of the big boxing, speedway and athletic meets before the war.

His "stand-in" is his son, who hopes to carry on when his father retires.

A Canadian Army team, showing a determined attack and quickness to seize opportunities, defeated Dulwich Polytechnic 4-0 in a recent exhibition soccer game in London.

Spr. Bill Gray of Vancouver, showing near-professional form at outside-right, crossed perfectly to the centre for QMS. Ed Malone of Toronto to score the first two tallies. Alex Archer of Winnipeg, a peacetime hockey player over here, was outstanding at centre-half.

Archer, Wembley and Great Britain international ice hockey wingman before the war, captains the Canadian Army soccer team.

Sir Julien Cahn, who died at his home in Leicestershire at the age of 62, never achieved his ambition to be a great cricketer but he surrounded himself with top-class cricketers at enormous expense.

Sir Julien was one of the world's greatest supporters of cricket. To be invited to play on his team was something no cricketer ever forgot. It meant living in luxury at Sir Julien's country home; it meant travelling overseas in luxury, and often enough it meant being found a job because Sir Julien controlled many industries.

One of his teams, with Sir Julien as captain, toured Canada, the United States and Bermuda in 1933.

His country home near Loughborough had a swimming pool, golf course, steeplechase course, tennis and badminton courts—and a cricket ground.

His ashes were scattered over his cricket field. It was his last request.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

WHEELED IN

A musical-comedy actress, no longer youthful, joined a touring company. Business was not particularly good, and the tempers of the company suffered accordingly. Relations became somewhat strained between the "star" and certain members of the chorus. There came a knock at her door.

"Who is it and what do you want?" she demanded, sharply.

"There is a lady in front who'd very much like to see you. She says she was a chum of yours when you were at school. Shall I show her in?"

Fills a Need.

On the news stands this week appears the second edition of Bill Harding's "Quick Reference Hockey Rules", a publication every hockey fan should tote around in his pocket. Especially with the hockey moguls annually making changes in the playing rules.

The 1945 edition of the "Quick Reference Hockey Rules" is a concise pocket edition with all rules simplified in such a manner as to provide information in the speediest manner to cover the maximum of regulations. It has been so named because it is for just as it's name refers—quick reference. Mr. Harding has placed the complete playing rules in eight main divisions, which are again simplified into smaller rules in sequence.

Mr. Harding's publication is carried as a guide by all of Canada's principal hockey references. The latest rules and regulations are included and worded for fans and officials alike.

Clearing Decks.

By this time next week puck fans will have some idea as to the calibre of O.H.A. hockey that can be expected in the Quinte area. Group No. 2 swings into action with Campbellford at Trenton on Tuesday night while on Jan. 3rd. the other four squads square off with Stirling at Hastings and Belleville invading the Tweed rink to do battle with Jerry Quinn's dandies. Then one week from tomorrow evening the lid will be pried off here when Hastings move in on the Hume Arena and after that the fans will have a better idea as to the future of junior hockey here.

Coach "Toots" Holway will have the local kids out at practice tonight and tomorrow and should squeeze in a couple more workouts before the locals cross sticks with Tweed. Judging from the shooting ability of the local juniors plenty of practice is needed in the art of shooting, as some of them couldn't shoot their way out of a paper bag. Maybe snipping goals off the wing positions is a forgotten art, but it was a most profitable one when featured in the game several years ago.

About Time.

After the Oshawa junior "Bees" beat Kingston Vics 5 to 2 last Saturday in the Limestone City, Kingston Scribe Mike Rodden suggested Coach Chuck Conacher's Oshawa Generals are missing a sure bet in Flash Gilhooey, Bowmanville's gift to the Motor City "Bees." As a matter of fact Br'r. Rodden expounded at great length regarding the fact he had at last seen a modern hockey player who could stickhandle to such a prolific degree that he scored four goals. Commenting on Gilhooley's prowess Scribe Rodden says: "Believe it or not the age of miracles is not over. On Saturday night Kingston fans actually saw in action a player who can stickhandle. His name is Gilhooley and most unfortunately he was performing for the "enemy". Young Gilhooley, who hails from Bowmanville and probably hasn't been informed that stick-handling is supposed to be a lost art, scored four goals and led his team to a 5 to 2 verdict over the startled Kingston Victorias in an exhibition game between teams seeking the O.H.A. Junior "B" championship."

This and That.

Doing a little sport research work, Windsor's Doug Vaughan comes up with some interesting baseball chatter quite frequently. His latest reads: "Dick Porter, former major leaguer and now manager of the Cleveland farm club of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., likes to recall the day when he almost threw out Babe Ruth at first base on a clean single to right....Dick was playing right field for the Cleveland Indians and his patrol duty at the Cleveland park was reduced to almost nothing by an overflow crowd....The Babe was out of the starting lineup with a lame leg, but during the course of the game he came up as a pinch-hitter and rifled a drive down the foul line....Porter fielded the ball on the second hop and would have had Ruth out by 10 feet except for one thing—First-baseman Eddie Morgan was looking the other way ....Catcher Frankie Hayes, who did the iron man act with the Philadelphia Athletics last season, says he will quit baseball if Connie Mack tries to trade or sell him....That's how much ball players think of the daddy of all major league managers ....Virgil (Fireball) Trucks, promising righthander of the Detroit Tigers, is now in the submarine service....Last season all baseball men who saw Trucks in action with the Navy baseball team agreed that he was a much better pitcher than when he was with the Tigers and predicted that when the war was over he would return to become one of the best hurlers in the American League."

Remember When.

Heavyweight champion Maxie Baer knocked out King Levinsky in the second round of their scheduled 15-round bout at Chicago ten years ago tonight. It was the first time the "Kingfish" had been knocked out in his 77-fight career.

LESSON NO. 567
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

No, no Nanette. I have not been going around in circles. I have merely been going around in a circle to explain the meanings of any bid that might be used with this hand:

♠ A J
♥ A J 9 6
♦ K Q J 4
♣ A Q 10

Come back to our original question. What should be the opening bid with this hand? Should it be one heart, or one diamond, or one no-trump, or two diamonds, or two hearts, or two no-trump? And why?

This hand counts seven suit tricks; six high cards (aces, kings, queens) and a short card in spades. It has four sure tricks; three aces and one K Q combination. The two red suits are biddable.

An opening bid of two in a suit shows at least nine tricks. It has not that. An opening of two no-trump shows eight no-trump tricks (high cards). It has not that.

An opening of one no-trump shows five high cards with two sure tricks and no biddable suit. With a biddable suit, it is not that.

An opening of one in a suit shows five suit tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, and a biddable suit. It has all of that. So, it is an opening of one in a suit.

With two biddable suits of the same length, bid the higher rank first. So, it is an opening of one heart. And if you think it should be something else, there is something wrong with your foundation.

That is the way to prove the correct opening bid with any hand. Take each bid in turn and see if the hand contains all its requirements.

If the hand fits no kind of a bid, you should pass. If it fits two or more kinds of bids, pick the one most nearly correct. If it fits only one kind of a bid, that's it.

Even when you know your bid is correct, you are likely to get an argument. Many players do not always know when they are wrong.

Where ignorance is amiss, it is jolly to be wise.

Ted Kennedy Fattens Scoring Record With Three Goals And 3 Assists in Beating Rangers

Toronto Leafs Strengthen Hold on Third Place in National Loop

By The Canadian Press

The onrushing Detroit Red Wings have a chance to knock Montreal Canadiens off the top perch in the National Hockey League tonight — but it's only a chance.

Wings, winners of their last four starts, step into the Montreal Forum just one point behind the leaders. But they haven't had notable success against the Habitants so far. In their three previous games Canadiens won twice, and the other game was a tie.

The only other game tonight sees the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks travelling to Boston, holders of 4th place.

Toronto Maple Leafs strengthened their third place position in last night's only game, crushing the New York Rangers 8-2 before a Madison Square Garden crowd of close to 15,000 The result left Leafs five points behind the Wings.

Rangers scored the first goal in the first period and after that it was all Leafs. They led 3-1 at the end of the period and 5-2 going into the last frame.

Ted Kennedy fattened his scoring record with three goals and three assists. Nick Metz had a pair of goals, and the other Leaf counters were obtained by Davidson, Bodnar and Hill. Warwick and Thurier did the honors for Rangers.

Rangers' first goal came when Warwick found Hank Goldup had deposited the puck neatly in front of the Leaf goal, 20 feet out, after a dash down the left side, Warwick beat Frank McCool on a high corner shot.

Kennedy and Davidson respectively put Toronto ahead within two minutes while Heller was serving a penalty for interference. Metz made it 3-1 on a ganging attack.

Rangers flashed a few sorties in the second period but were soon back on the defensive, and Bodnar made it 4-1. Thurier got that one back, and then Hill scored on Kennedy's assist.

Atanas had been jugged for hooking late in the second and was still off when the third period opened, but Rangers were holding the Leafs until Metz got the puck just outside the crease and rammed it in. Another Toronto mass attack saw Kennedy scoring with the aid of Hill and Jackson, and the same players duplicated the feat for the eighth Toronto goal.

Minor Hockey Association Fails To Take Action

Toronto, Dec. 28 (CP) — The executive of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association meeting last night did not take any definite steps in the dispute with the Northern Ontario Hockey Association regarding operation of minor series in Northern Ontario but anticipates a satisfactory settlement.

Jack Christie, Secretary of the O.N.H.A., said today that a letter now is being drafted to the N.O.H.A. setting forth the terms on which the O.M.H.A. would like to see an agreement reached. "We are prepared to meet any conditions," Christie said, "and we are prepared to let the N.O.H.A. operate as they want, providing that they will also operate midget and bantam series."

Up until last season minor hockey in the north was strictly juvenile, but the O.M.H.A. now has entries from midget and bantam teams in the north and is not prepared to see these classes abandoned, Mr. Christie said. The O.H.H.A. feels it has prior rights in the north because it pioneered juvenile hockey there, but it is not going to stand in the way of the N.O.H.A. taking over providing they also organize the bantams and midgets, Christie explained. He added that it was expected that a satisfactory settlement would be reached shortly.

BASKETBALL

Kitchener, Dec. 28 — (CP)—Semi-finals were reached last night in the Silver Ball basketball tournament here when 19 teams from western Ontario points opened play.

St. Jerome's College of Kitchener, Dominion junior champions last year, were forced to five minutes overtime before downing Brantford and joining London Central Golden Ghosts, Sarnia Grace Church and the K-W. "Y" Saturday Night Club in the senior semi-finals. The local "Y" will meet Sarnia, while St. Jerome's will face London in Thursday's matches.

Hamilton Westdale Collegiate trounced Simcoe Collegiate 86-6 then fell before Sarnia 35-25 in the second round. Owen Sound Collegiate Seniors lost 59-12 to Sarnia while the Sounders juniors went down 41-16 before the Saturday Night crew.

Cleveland Barons In Second Place

By The Canadian Press

A 5-0 victory over Hershey Bears last night gave Cleveland Barons sole possession of second place in the American Hockey League's western division, six points behind the leading Indianapolis Capitals and 2 ahead of Pittsburgh Hornets.

The ace line of Lou Trudel, Earl Bartholome and Les Cunningham accounted for three of the Barons' goals, two scored by Trudel within 54 seconds in the second period and one by Bartholome in the final session. First-period tallies were made by Dan Sprout and Roy Kelly.

By HYE BOSSIN

Walt Disney will make a cartoon called "Currier & Ives," in which those famed prints will be featured. It should be a dandy, particularly since Frances Langford has been signed to sing for it . . . Constance Bennett will become one of Hollywood's few lady producers . . . Jackie Cooper and June Horne were married recently and so were Richard Crane and Kaye Morley, one of those gorgeous Goldwyn girls . . . Have you heard about McTavish asking Duncan for the money he owed him. "Don't you think it's about time," asked McTavish, "that you returned the five dollars you borrowed from me a year ago?" Answered Duncan: "I haven't finished with it yet!"

Bea Lillie, the Toronto-born star who became Lady Peel, has returned to New York after five years in Britain. She is starring in a musical comedy called "The Seven Lively Arts."

There are many humorous anecdotes about her youth in her native province. There is the story of the time she, her sister and her mother were appearing in Cobalt with a troupe. The boarding house caught fire and the folks and their furniture ended up in the middle of the street.

There was a piano amid the salvaged furniture and until the fireman made her move the future Lady Peel sat at the piano and played "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

Films are now recognized as such a powerful force that some are demanding the suppression of the German motion picture industry, thus removing the major means of poisoning the post-war generation . . . Canada's picture making facilities will play an important part in film support of the UNRRA and John Grierson, our film commissioner, just returned from a Hollywood visit made in behalf of the world-wide rehabilitation organization . . . Newsreels may change character after the war, film patrons being tired of the slam-bang style. The magazine idea, in which news is dramatised, will be followed . . . There will be motion picture studios in Ontario after the war but they will be devoted to the making of educational films. Some such films will have dramatic interest, since they will deal with history. Perhaps there will be an Academy Award to the leading actor and actress of the schoolroom circuit.

Noel Coward, who expressed a lack of sympathy for wounded American soldiers from Brooklyn in his newest book, has expressed his regrets through Walter Winchell. He has been catching it ever since. It is too bad that his cynicism should have made itself known, for it has done little to help Anglo-USA relations. Coward's most recent production effort, "This Happy Breed," an excellent film, would have had much more influence in the USA had Coward not written what he had . . . Members of the amusement industry in Toronto are organizing a Variety Club. There are such clubs in 26 USA cities and they establish or support playgrounds, health clinics, blood banks, hospital wings and so on.

DRUG STORE FIRE

Ottawa, Dec. 28 — (CP) — A three-alarm fire which caused damage estimated at $100,000 last night destroyed the Norman Campbell drug store on downtown Sparks St. and damaged adjoining buildings before it was brought under control in about four hours.

The yak, beast of burden in Tibet, will not eat grain but lives off "burtsar", a thick woody root which Tibetans also use for firewood.

TEN-YEAR PLAN

London, Dec. 28 — (CP) — Indefinite continuation in modified form of the present commission type of government in Newfoundland and a 10-year plan of social and economic development financed partly by Britain are recommended by Lord Amon who in 1943 headed a goodwill mission to the island.

The superstition that a broken mirror brought bad luck came from the fact that a shadow or reflection was once considered part of the soul.

Lt. Col. L. Clarke Acting Brigadier

Brig. Clarke, born in Ottawa, received his early education at Ashbury College, and has been a permanent force soldier since his graduation from Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont., in 1928.

Brig. Clarke graduated from the staff college course at Camberley, Eng., in 1942, and was subsequently promoted lieutenant-colonel and given command in August and was appointed general staff officer (1st Grade) at Defence Headquarters in Ottawa.

In January, 1943, he returned overseas to assume command of a field regiment which he held until his latest promotion.

15th Indian Corps Makes 30-Mile Drive in Burma

Kandy, Ceylon, Dec. 28 — (CP-Reuters) — After a swift 30-mile advance troops of the 15th Indian Corps occupied Foul Point on the Arakan coast, Southeast Air Command headquarters announced today.

The occupation of this point at the extremity of the long strip between the sea and the Mayu river was described as a valuable strategic gain.

A second column advancing south through Arakan now is 32 miles southeast of the former Japanese stronghold of Buthedaung.

In the northern Burma fighting 9,000 square miles now have been recovered from the Japanese thru the co-ordinated attacks of British and Chinese troops since the campaign opened in the middle of October.

Several Hundred Tire Workers Needed Says Howe

Ottawa, Dec. 28—(CP)—Munitions Minister Howe in a statement issued today called for increased tire production and said several hundred additional workers are needed for tire factories in the Toronto, Hamilton and Kitchener, Ontario, areas.

"The United Nations are critically short of military tires and to help overcome this crisis Canada must boost production to the utmost," he said.

High priority rating has been given tire plants by Selective Service in an effort to channel available suitable workers into these factories and in addition the companies are being asked to operate on as close to a full seven-day work week as their facilities permit.

In addition to calling on the 7,500 workers now employed in Canadian tire plants to step up their production Mr. Howe appealed for men workers. Those lacking experience will be trained in the plants.

Situation Serious

"The seriousness of the situation cannot be over-emphasized," the minister said. "The United Nations need at once 1,000,000 more heavy military tires to replace those being worn out or blown to bits at the battlefront. On the hazardous 1,000-mile return trip between Cherbourg or Le Havre and the front lines army vehicle tires are subjected to almost unbelievable wear and tear. Much of the route is littered with debris, much is pock-marked with shell and bomb holes and much is paved with cobblestones."

Mr. Howe directed a particular message to those now working in tire factories:

"Already you have achieved a remarkable output. Now, as never before, I ask you to do everything within your power to increase that output. Unless the Allied armies get tires quickly they will be unable to maintain a sufficient flow of reinforcements and of the shells, bullets, food and other supplies they need. We have the crude rubber for war tires. We have the buna-s (rubber). We have the plant facilities. What we need is more workers and the most strenuous effort from those already in tire plants."

Churchill, Eden Leave Athens For London

London, Dec. 28 —(CP)— Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden have left Athens for London to urge King George II of Greece to approve creation of a Grecian regency, John Nixon, BBC correspondent in Athens, reported today.

Six U.S. Prisoners Shot by Germans

Somewhere in Belgium, Dec. 28 (AP)—An army investigation has disclosed the second authenticated case of Germans shooting American prisoners, six being shot near Bastogne, it was announced today.

A survivor said that a lieutenant and five other men, captured in an ambush, were lined up and shot after perfunctory questioning. The lieutenant, badly wounded, was kicked in the face while he lay on the ground, but played dead and after the Germans left got back to the American lines.

Dutch Coins Are Found In Unexploded Shell

Nijmegen, Holland, Dec. 28. (CP-Aneta)—Men who take apart dud enemy shells picked up a bit of loose change near here. Instead of jagged pieces of shrapnel, they found that one unexploded shell contained silver and nickel Netherlands coins. The newspaper Nijmeegsch Dagblad, published here, said presumably metal supplies had run short at the factory that turned out the shell and requisitioned coins were used instead, without smelting them in the form of shrapnel.

105 YEARS OLD TODAY

Brantford, Dec. 28 —(CP)— Today is Mrs. Annie King's 105th birthday. She does her own housework and a great deal of sewing and also cooks her own meals. A native of England, she came to Canada 44 years ago. She gets up at seven every morning.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 28 (CP)—The gold and western oil stocks were down moderately in the early session to-today, industrials were higher by .20 in the index and the base metals held about even with the previous close. Volume was small at 224,000 shares for the first three hours.

Chesterville, up 28 cents and Queenston, up 17, were features of the trading in the gold group. Moderate strength was shown by Pickle Crow, Transcontinental Resources, Central Patricia, Wasa Lake, Upper Canada and Leitch. In the base metals Nickel firmed 1-8 and Smelters lost 1-2.

Paper, steel and food stocks ruled higher and the utilities had a margin of losses, Consumers Gas weakened 2 points or more.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Dec. 28 — (CP) — Cattle trade was dull with a few sales to small buyers up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. Butcher steers were $9-11.50 and a few butcher cows $7-$8.25.

Calves were firm at $16-17 for choice with common lights downward to $8.

Lambs were steady at $13-12.50 good ewes and wethers with culls downward to $8.

Sheep were steady at $3-5.

Hogs sold at grade A, dressed, $18.35 with sows $13.25 dressed.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were cattle 600, calves 70, hogs 660, sheep and lambs 200. Unsold from yesterday were 400 head of cattle.

HOGS

Toronto, Dec. 28 — (CP)—Prices were unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting early today. Dressedweight, grade A, delivered, Hull $17.75; London and Hamilton $17.50; Stratford, to farmers $17.50 to truckers $17.65.

LOSES HIS HOTEL

San Francisco, Dec. 28. (AP) — Seaman Richard R. McNeal has lost a hotel. Registering late one night, he left his money with the clerk while he went out again. Returning, McNeal couldn't remember the hotel's name or where it was. He still has the claim check, the navy still is hunting, and the clerk still has the money.

2 GERMAN VESSELS SUNK

London, Dec. 28 (CP)—A Norwegian naval communique last night reported that a Norwegian-manned light naval patrol force sank two German vessels, including a destroyer or minesweeper, and damaged a third off Norway recently.

General Azzi Loses Command Over News Article

Rome, Dec. 28 —(AP)— Gen. Arnaldo Azzi, who wrote a newspaper article calling for reorganization of the Italian army, has been relieved of his command in the Lazio-Umbria-Abruzzi region, the War Ministry announced today.

In his article, which appeared Christmas Eve in the Actionist newspaper L'Italia Libera, the General advocated making the army national rather than royal, eliminating the oath to the king, and "democratizing" relations between officers and enlisted men.

The Leftist Italian press promptly assailed the War Ministry's action. The Socialist organ Avanti, in an editorial titled "The Azzi Scandal," asserted Fascist generals, war criminals and capitulators remained in service.

Teachers Are Asking Right to Offer Selves As Candidates

Toronto, Dec. 28 — (CP)—Because the Ontario Municipal Act as now interpreted denies the right of teachers to run for municipal office since they are employees of the municipality the Federation of Ontario secondary school teachers in convention yesterday unanimously passed a resolution reiterating the conviction "that the citizens of any community have the right to choose freely whom they wish to represent them in a municipal body, the provincial legislature or the Dominion Parliament."

The resolution also urged that teacher-candidates should be given every reasonable opportunity to present their candidature to the public. It pointed out that a teacher elected to "parliament ceases to be a member of the superannuation fund and is not allowed to pay up back contributions on his return from politics. Request for remedial legislation has already been made to the legislature.

E. A. Orr of Windsor was elected president, with Roy F. Bennett of Brantford as vice-president and V. R. Summerhays of Pembroke second vice-president. S. H. Henry and W. J. Dick, Toronto, were re-elected secretary and treasurer respectively.

The War Today— Allied Cause on Whole Goes Well But Tough Business Still Ahead

By De WITT MACKENZIE
(AP War Analyst)

Despite the dampening effect of the German counter-offensive, we can approach an assay of the year-end military position from the rock-bottom fact that the Allied cause—on the whole — is going well the globe around.

That conclusion makes allowances for military setbacks like the present in western Europe and the recent Japanese successes in hard-hit China. It takes into account shortcomings of the home-front.

When you've added up and make subtractions, the answer is that the Allies can't lose except through their own folly.

Still Face Tough and Bloody Business

Having arrived at this point, however, we find that at the best they still have a tough and bloody business which calls for all-out efforts by both the home and military fronts, unless the conflict is to drag on interminably. We must profit by the lesson the Germans are giving —that the wounded beast fights hardest at the kill. We may find this doubly true with the savage and fanatical Japanese.

One of the burning questions in all minds is how long the war will last in Europe. There's no satisfactory answer to that. It depends first on the outcome of the titanic battle which is growing out of Field Marshal von Rundstedt's counter-offensive.

Safeguard Against Optimism

Our safest course is to adopt the hard-boiled theory that the German war will go on indefinitely. That's not an invitation to pessimism but a safeguard against over-optimism.

One element in shortening the war remains in anticipation — a full-dress Russian offensive against the Nazi Vistula line in Poland. This might change the complexion of things quickly by putting the Nazis between two mighty millstones. It's unlikely that Germany could long withstand wholesale major offensives on both eastern and western fronts. A Red assault against the Vistula may soon complement the magnificent Muscovite drives into Hungary and Slovakia.

OPPORTUNITIES SEEN IN 1945 BY LABOR HEAD

A. R. Mosher, President of Canadian Congress of Labor, Issues Message

Ottawa, Dec. 28. (CP)—The year 1945 will bring new opportunities for the achievement of peace, security and well being, but failure to take advantage of them may bring disaster, A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, said today in a New Year's message.

Mr. Mosher said the unprecedented growth of organized labor in Canada was particularly important at a time when every agency which could promote national unity and unanimity in national ideals and objectives could make a valuable contribution.

"What organized labor wants to do, in co-operation with all other forward-looking elements in the nation, is to make the economic system function in such a way as to provide employment and incomes for all, and the highest standard of living which can be obtained", Mr. Mosher continued.

"Whatever stands in the way of this is contrary to the National well-being and should be eliminated as quickly as possible".

Relations With Governments

While efforts toward adequate wages and improved working conditions would have to be continued the changes in Canada's economic structure would require labor to deal more extensively with governments.

"Instead of regarding labor as a threat to economic security the people of Canada may properly look to labor to give leadership toward a social order under which it will be possible to obtain economic security", he said. "The danger is not that labor will become too strong but that the reactionary forces of the nation will be able to maintain their dominance over both government and industry".

Fresh Opportunities For Progress

". . .the New Year will bring fresh opportunities for progress toward the fulfilment of national ideals of peace, security and well-being. If the organizations and institutions representing varied interests in Canada are willing to get together in a spirit of co-operation and goodwill, and undertake to carry through a program of legislative and economic reconstruction, no objective is impossible of attainment.

"On the other hand, if each one struggles selfishly for its own interests, nothing can save the country from disaster.

"In some respects the Canadian people stand at the crossroads. They may have to decide in the coming year whether and to what extent they are prepared to chart a fresh pathway toward the solution of their economic and political problems.

"I believe that the labor movement is ready to take that pathway and to help establish a way of life in both the national and international realms which will compensate to some extent for the sacrifices that have been made during the war".

Montgomery Ward And Co. Seized By U.S. Army

Chicago, Dec. 28 (AP) — The United States army seized Montgomery Ward and Company properties in seven cities today under a presidential order in a show-down on the company's refusal to comply with War Labor Board directives.

Maj. Gen. Joseph W. Byron, director of the Special Service Division, Army Service Forces, Washington, accompanied by his staff, served the seizure order of Sewell Avery, Ward's chairman of the Board, in Avery's private office.

Avery greeted Gen. Byron pleasantly and they shook hands.

The seizure came as the United Retail, Wholesale and Retail Employees of America (C.I.O.) began the second strike at Ward's Chicago plants this year. It was the second army seizure, too, the first coming last April 26.

On April 27 Avery was carried bodily from his office by two soldiers after the government contended he refused to co-operate in the seizure procedure.

In the seven cities concerned long standing labor disputes have existed between the Union and Ward's. The War Labor Board sent the cases to Fred M. Vinson, Economic Stabilization Director, a week ago and he evidently advised President Roosevelt to seize the properties.

Justice Department specialists from Washington worked until 5 a.m. in the U.S. District Attorney's office preparing, it was understood, for Federal Court action in the event Montgomery Ward resisted the seizure. This action would be a petition for an injunction to restrain Mr. Avery and other company officials from interfering with government operation of the property.

Washington reports indicated seizure would be effected in six other cities where similar controversies existed.

IN TOW OF MAN IN MARINE ATTIRE

Philadelphia, Dec. 28. (AP)—Philadelphia's latest mystery—the case of the missing marine and mannikin. Someone smashed a dress shop window and kidnapped the wax dummy. When last seen, the evening-gowned mannikin was in tow of a man in a marine uniform.

CLARE BOOTH LUCE OUT OF LIST

New York, Dec. 28 — (AP)—Clare Booth Luce was omitted yesterday, for the first time in three years, from an annual list of best-dressed women, compiled by Fashion Art Design, Inc., an industry group. Replacing the Congresswoman-playwright as the best-dressed woman in politics was Helen Gahagan Douglas, a Californian who will be a colleague of Mrs. Luce's in the new Congress.

FREEZING RAIN GLAZES COUNTRY.

Chicago, Dec. 28 (AP) — A freezing rain storm described by weather bureau veterans as the worst, most extensive in many years yesterday glazed a wide central section of the United States from St. Louis to the Atlantic coast with ice which paralysed traffic.

Presentation Made To Retired Engineer

Singular tribute was paid to Canadian National Railways' engineer Edward Meise, Station Street, by his fellow members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen at their club rooms last night when they presented him with a beautiful pin emblematic of twenty-five years continuous membership, a handsome luggage bag and a leather wallet containing money in honor of his retirement from "active service" with the company.

Engineer Meise completed forty-one years of service with the railway on December 24th and was honorably retired on the attainment of his 65th birthday.

Mr. Meise, who joined the B. of L.F. and E. in 1918 in North Bay enjoys the unique distinction of not only "not missing a month's dues in all that time," but is the first member of the local to go on pension. He is a life member of the organization.

Presentation of the pigskin bag was made by President Ken. Bunnet while Secretary Arthur Brown presented the guest of honor with the Grand Lodge pin. Over-subscription made the presentation of the wallet and money possible, while a further surplus of $27 was given to the Ladies' Auxiliary, Canadian National Railways War Veterans' cigarette fund.

Adding a further fine gesture, Engineer Meise immediately donated the money contained in the wallet to the same fund.

The function, held in Engineers' Hall, Pine Street, was attended by approximately forty-three members. Luncheon prepared by the ladies of the organization, was served by members at the conclusion of the special presentation ceremonies.

KILLED IN ICELAND

Winnipeg, Dec. 28 (CP) — PO. Hymie Steinberg, former member of the Winnipeg Free Press editorial staff, serving with the R.C.A.F., was killed during aerial operations and buried in Iceland, his parents were informed yesterday.

SNOW-BLOWER SMASHES 24 WINDOWS

Hamilton, Dec. 28 (CP) — The highway department's giant new snow-blower has been operating on Highway 53 southeast of here. The machine throws its load to either side of the highway. It threw large chunks of hard-packed snow for a time in the early morning darkness—breaking at least 24 windows at Elfrida.

Sleet Storm Fails To Stop Bombers Over Germany

London, Dec. 28 — (CP)—British, Canadian and American heavy bombers struck Germany today despite a sleet storm which iced the ground and restricted visibility on the western front.

A strong force of R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. Lancasters and Halifaxes dumped probably 2,500 tons of explosives and incendiaries just before dawn upon the railroad workshops at Opladen, 12 miles north of Cologne, where the Germans have been seeking to repair damaged military rolling stock. Two Canadian planes are missing.

For the sixth consecutive day, aircraft of the U.S. 8th Air Force sped over Germany shortly after noon, it was announced at U. S. Strategic Air Force headquarters.

The German radio said day raiders also were striking into Germany from the south, suggesting operations by the Italian-based U. S. 15th Air Force.

Official accounts said almost 2,000 pieces of German rail and road transport were demolished yesterday and 90 German fighters were shot down by some 4,000 Allied bombers and fighters which took the air.

The heavy bombers concentrated on rail traffic. The medium bombers picked out bridges and supply dumps. The fighters scouted roads and fields for German tanks, trucks and troops.

Allied losses were five bombers and 23 fighters.

The Japanese invented the folding fan in the seventh century.

Free of Stomach Pains, Gas, Nausea, Headaches — Since He Took Syntona

Pain in Back, Joints, Muscles Also Relieved. Nerves Relaxed, Sleeps Well; Feels Better.

"Since I have taken Syntona I can honestly say it has done more for me than anything else I have ever used," said Mr. James Kozak, 65 Holly Avenue, Hamilton, Ontario, in a recent report.

"In the last three years I had a lot of trouble with my stomach. Gas would form, giving me a bloated feeling and make me short of breath. My food soured and I often had stomach pains and nausea. I was subject to frequent headaches and dizzy spells. Finally rheumatic pains set in my joints and muscles, I began to have backache and many days I felt lame and sore all over.

"I had tried lots of things, but nothing seemed to help much until I started taking Syntona. Now my food agrees with me and my stomach trouble has been relieved. I don't get that gassy pain and nauseated feeling. I am also free of headaches and dizziness and the aches and pains have just about all gone away. My nerves are relaxed, so I sleep well at night and my entire system feels built up and improved.

Syntona is made from 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots. It acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels, improving their action. Also aids in the elimination of excess acids and impurities from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and action.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

VON RUNDSTEDT'S DRIVE KICKED INTO REVERSE
AUSTRIAN-BOUND RED ARMY STEPS UP DRIVE

Advance Columns Chased Back Ten Miles by Yanks

Escape Route Cut to Less Than 17 Miles at Bastogne

By JAMES M. LONG, AP STAFF WRITER

Paris, Dec. 29 —(AP)— American armored blows on the nose of Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's offensive have beaten his most advanced columns back more than 10 miles and chased them across the narrow Lesse and Homme river into Rochefort.

Field dispatches, reporting this development up to Thursday morning, said the Von Rundstedt escape gap at the same time was cut to less than 17 miles north of Bastogne.

Von Rundstedt's December offensive had been kicked into reverse by American forces which slammed into all three sides of his extended bulge, with Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton's 3rd Army swiftly changing its front and advancing 20 miles into the German flank in six days.

Bastogne Stand Turning Point.

The big turning point was the seven-day stand of the U.S. 101st airborne division and other units at Bastogne, one of the gateways to French Sedan.

And now the allies were hitting back. Throughout the northwestern area of the German penetration, from Celles to Rochefort, infantry tanks and armored cars slashed across the frozen fields, overrunning German trucks, armored cars and infantrymen wandering blindly. Allied forces groped for the disorganized enemy in a fog which limited visibility to 50 yards.

The Lesse and Homme at Rochefort wind approximately 14 miles east of the Meuse and 10 miles southeast of Celles, deepest point of German penetration toward Dinant.

(German accounts said the British 51st (Highland) Division, which was almost wiped out in a gallant stand at St. Valery on the English Channel in 1940, was among allied units which surrounded German forces near Celles at the point of their westernmost penetration towards the Meuse River.)

In Alsace, west of Colmar, French 1st Army troops occupied Le Gras, southeast of Lepoutrie.

(The Germans themselves admitted their drive had been halted and that the allies were lashing back with fierce counter-attacks on both the northern and southern flanks.

Blitzkrieg Days Gone.

(The Berlin radio quoted a spokesman as saying: "The days of the blitzkrieg in the 1939-40 style have passed. Von Rundstedt's gains in the new offensive have been hard come by. Today we must seek to apply different standards.")

A critical battle was fought in the hamlet of Humain, four miles southwest of Marche and four miles north of Rochefort. The Germans were driven out of the village with planes, artillery, infantry tank destroyers and finally flame throwers, and the Americans were firmly in control of the town, including its old chateau where a cornered German group made its last stand.

Celles, where the enemy offensive was stopped, was one of the ghastliest carnage scenes of the war.

Here a German pocket was wiped out, 1,200 prisoners were taken, and 63 enemy tanks, 49 guns and 177 military vehicles littered the terrain.

Another small pocket of infantry and tanks was cleared up in the vicinity of Marche.

Enemy armored columns which fled Jamblinne, five miles west of Rochefort, were chased by American tank formations which claimed more than 1,000 prisoners.

Other columns in the southwestern tip of the salient were isolated near St. Hubert and were fighting a death struggle.

The long, thin corridor by which hard-driving U. S. 3rd Army forces reached the beleaguered 101st. U. S. Airborne Division and other troops in Bastogne, was broadened to six miles wide and six miles deep.

Nine more towns were captured as Lt.-Gen. Patton poured men in, building up this area to a wedge close to the heart of the German bulge, and expanded his grip on the north side of the Sure river to a width of 14 miles.

36 Hours Late.

That was the situation as of 36 hours ago.

Given the task of caving in Von Dundstedt's southern flank three days after the German offensive started December 16, Gen. Patton had swung his divisions into the

Bank Manager Dies Suddenly At Bancroft

Bancroft, Dec. 29 (Special) — Stricken suddenly while reading his evening paper in the family living room, Mr. Leo Doyle, age 52, local manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, died at his apartment here on Friday night as result of a heart attack.

Mr. Doyle's wife and daughter had already retired when they were awakened by an unusual noise. Investigating they found Mr. Doyle had collapsed on the floor of the living room. Resident of Bancroft since November, 1937, when he came here as bank manager, Mr. Doyle leaves his wife and daughter, Doris, to mourn his passing.

Britons Angered At Treatment Given Rudolf Hess

London, Dec. 29 —(CP)— Britons are angered by the disclosure that Rudolf Hess, onetime No. 2 Nazi who fled here in 1941 with a purported peace bid from Hitler, has a guard of 30 officers and men, takes motor tours through the country and pounds on a table until he gets extra fish for breakfast.

"His sheltered life of motor rides, sunbathing and other rural pursuits is enough to tempt Hitler, Himmler, Goering and Goebbels to descend by parachute on a west country meadow— preferably near one of those quiet cathedral cities they found it fitting to blitz," the News Chronicle commented today.

The newspaper said Hess was not a convicted war criminal nor a guest of honor so "our method of treating him seems to lack all sense of proportion."

Germans Likely to Make One More Major Effort Before Withdrawal

By ELTON C. FAY
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—A belief the Germans will make at least one more major effort to break out of their salient before starting a general withdrawal in Belgium was expressed in more cautious military circles here today.

This idea was entertained despite late reports of German withdrawal of armor from the areas at the southwestern corner of the penetration and the successes of U.S. 3rd army elements moving up from the south.

There is an inclination to keep a wary eye on enemy activities along the front north of the salient, where the 1st Canadian and British 2nd armies are fighting. There German patrol and other activity has taken curious form within the last two days. This could indicate several things:

1. That the enemy is studying the Allied situation in that area with a possible view to throwing out an offensive operation. This might be aimed in a general southwestward direction toward Liege, with the intention of cutting back of the Allies' northern flank on the salient, thus endangering it and forcing a withdrawal.

2. That the enemy merely seeks to keep the Allies in uncertainty by threatening such a move with a demonstration of patrol activity.

3. That the enemy himself is seeking information, possibly to find whether British 2nd army and American 9th army forces have diverted any troops toward the salient or whether strength might be accumulating for an Allied offensive against the north end of the west wall.

The size of the German force already committed to the breakthrough venture and the careful planning that went into it indicates the enemy aimed at something other than a mere harassing operation, military men say.

With this extensive commitment of strength, it is reasonable to expect that Von Rundstedt may make another bid for his goal before attempting to fall back behind the Siegfried Line.

CANADIAN NAVY ADDS 152 SHIPS BUILT IN 1944

Vessels Produced in Canadian Yards Include Frigates, Corvettes, Others

Ottawa, Dec. 29 — (CP) — Navy Minister Macdonald announced today that Canadian shipyards, keeping pace with the wartime growth of the Royal Canadian Navy, produced 52 vessels for it during 1944, ranging from the latest fighting frigates, corvettes and algerines to auxiliaries such as a wooden scow, and representing 19 types.

Not included in the total is an assortment of smaller craft built in Canada's east coast yards. The construction of merchant ships is another story of the Dominion's contribution to the battles of the sea lanes. The variety of craft produced indicates the many construction problems involved in maintaining the fighting ships at sea.

Auxiliary Craft

To mention a few auxiliary craft there are the 100-foot, 80-foot and 40-foot tugs, ammunition lighters, anti-submarine towing vessels, diving tenders, boom attendant vessels, derrick scows, water barges and wooden scows.

These vessels were produced in the three areas described as West Coast, Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River. They were constructed in yards which have sprung up largely since war began, and were built mainly by wartime-trained workers who have helped create Canada's growing fame as a shipbuilding nation.

Derrick Scow

Among the many smaller types produced there is the derrick scow which will support a 25-ton crane and the harbor passenger craft which will accommodate 130 men. More than 100 cargo ships were built during the year.

Before any of the ships and smaller craft are accepted and commissioned by the R.C.N., each undergoes thorough trials supervised by highly-trained specialists.

ON GUARD AGAINST THIEVES

Toronto, Dec. 29 — (CP) — Police today issued a warning to householders celebrating New Year's to lock up their houses and leave a few lights burning when they go out, as a deterrent to thieves. House-breakers are unusually active at the holiday season. Among the loot so far this year has been $90,000 in Victory Bonds.

TO PROTEST SHOOTINGS

Washington, Dec. 29 — (AP) — The United States is preparing to protest the shooting of American soldiers captured by the Germans during their forward rush into Belgium. The warning that German authorities will be held responsible when the day of reckoning comes will be transmitted to Berlin thru Swiss diplomats.

Canada's War Production To Remain at High Level For Next Three Months

Ottawa, Dec. 29 (CP).—Munitions Minister Howe said Thursday night that Canada's war production, entering 1945 at close to its peak output, faces little likelihood of reduction for at least the next three months.

In some items, Mr. Howe said in a statement reviewing activities of Canada's war industries during 1944, the output would be stepped up sharply.

During last year the department spent nearly $8,000,000 a day for shells, ships, guns, fighting vehicles, planes and other war supplies, about $1,000,000 a day less than in 1943 and $1,000,000 a day more than in 1942.

Since the start of the war the munitions department alone has made commitments of more than $10,255,000,000, almost equivalent to a $1,000 Victory Bond for every man, woman and child in the country.

This enormous production and the fact that about four-fifths of Canada's foreign trade now is a wholly wartime character have been important factors in making the dominion the second greatest exporting nation in the world. About three-quarters of the exports—valued at $3,000,000,000 this year — were war materials.

Expand War Materials.

Vast expansion in the development of raw materials and the opening of innumerable new fields of Canadian manufacturing have accompanied this growth.

In volume the Canadian output has been outstripped by that of the United States, Russia and the United Kingdom, but in timeliness, variety, newness and quality it has had a highly important part in the allied swing from desperate defence to victorious attack.

Figures covering the flow of materials from Canadian war plants are reaching astronomical proportions. Units of mechanical transport, apart from motorcycles and tanks, have

BRITISH OPEN THREE-PRONGED DRIVE IN ATHENS

Operations Designed to Clear Embattled Greek Capital

Athens, Dec. 29 — (AP) — British forces opened a three-pronged drive against E.L.A.S. units in the eastern suburbs of Athens today, jumping off after a prolonged artillery barrage in the second phase of operations designed to clear the embattled Greek capital.

Against slight opposition, the British forces advanced from the south through Zappion Park on Ardittos Hill, which changed hands in a mortar duel a week ago.

After taking Adrittos Hill, overlooking a former E.L.A.S. strongpoint in the Averoff Stadium, the British troops entered the Pankrati cemetery, from which E. L. A. S. mortars have been firing into cleared sections across the Phaleron road below the Acropolis.

An E.L.A.S. raid last night on the Greek-held sector of the northwestern slopes of Monastery-topped Likabettos was beaten off by British artillery.

An official announcement said 7,500 prisoners have been taken by the British and Greek forces.

A communique said Greek Rightist forces under Gen. Napoleon Zervas, attacked by E. L. A. S. groups last week in northwest Greece, were fighting a hard rearguard action while withdrawing on the port of Preveza.

In all the cleared areas of the capital and Piraeus some 350,000 civilians received free meals from Allied relief stocks.

Paternity Case In Final Phase

Los Angeles, Dec. 29 (AP).—The Charlie Chaplin paternity case was reaching its final phase as attorneys prepared to complete presentation of evidence today.

Dr. V. L. Andrews was summoned to the stand as a defence witness to tell of the blood tests which he and two other physicians previously reported showed that Chaplin could not be the father of Joan Berry's 14-month-old daughter, Carol Ann.

Miss Berry, Chaplin's former protege, is seeking a court decree naming Chaplin the father.

Joseph Scott, Miss Berry's attorney, said he may question her briefly in rebuttal.

Attorneys indicated that arguments to the jury may be made next Tuesday, after the New Year's holiday.

HONOR MEN OF BASTOGNE

London, Dec. 29. (CP)—The Evening News yesterday hailed "The GI Joes of Bastogne" as the equals of Britain's "Red Devils of Arnhem" as among the greatest heroes of the war. "All Britain today honors the men of Bastogne", it said.

CANADIANS KNOCK OUT 4,800 ENEMY TROOPS IN DRIVE

Clear Germans From 145 Square Miles of Territory Since Dec. 1

Rome, Dec. 29. (CP)—Lt.-Gen. C. Foulkes, commander of the 1st Canadian corps attached to the British 8th Army in Italy, estimated in an order of the day today that his troops had knocked out at least 4,800 enemy troops in their current drive on the Po Valley, and said the Canadians had cleared the enemy from more than 145 square miles of territory since Dec. 1.

He said more than 1,600 Germans had been taken prisoner, and probably twice that number of the enemy killed and wounded.

Today the Canadians were reported inching toward Alfonsine, nine miles northeast of Ravenna.

Next Objective Alfonsine.

The town, straddling the Senio river and lying on the Ravenna-Ferrera coastal road, is the next natural objective of the Canadian push. Yesterday the Canadians were reported slashing their way toward it from Rossetta, a little more than two miles southwest, in a house-to-house advance.

Meanwhile today's Allied communique said fighting in the Serchio valley where United States troops of the Allied 5th Army had been forced back from Barga had "died down".

The central sector of the 5th Army front south of Bologna also was quiet and the 8th Army front was described by the communique as witnessing only patrol action.

It was reported here however that 8th Army troops still were fanning out in the eastern Po valley. The Germans were reported driven out of Villa Quaglia, four miles northeast of Faenza.

South of the Bologna-Rimini Road, the Germans attempted to infiltrate across the Senio but were repulsed.

Yanks Driven From Barga.

From captured Faenza on the Bologna-Rimini highway to the Alfonsine area, 17 1-2 miles northeast, Canadian and British forces were mopping up enemy strongpoints.

At the same time strong Allied air and ground forces were reported thrown into the Serchio valley fighting in an effort—now apparently successful—to halt Field Marshal Kesselring's advance near the Tyrrhenian coast.

After two days' fierce fighting U.S. units had been driven from the important road town of Barga.

The now four-day-old German drive south toward Lucca also had pushed Allied forces from the area of Gallicano, 2 1-2 miles from Barga on the west bank of the Serchio, before it was slowed.

A Fascist radio broadcast claimed the Germans seized the village of Fornaci, two miles south of Barga.

Headquarters said the area had become fairly quiet except for enemy artillery pounding and some patrol engagements. It was not stated whether this marked a definite end of the German drive along a six-mile front in the Serchio valley which the Fascist radio said had resulted in "heavy losses of men and material" to the 5th Army.

BOMBERS DEFY FOUL WEATHER TO BOMB REICH

9,000 Tons Incendiaries And Explosives Rained On German Railway Centres Thursday

London, Dec. 29 —(CP)— A great fleet of R.A.F. heavy bombers from Britain, 1,500 United States bombers and fighters and limited numbers of Continent-based Allied planes rained thousands of tons of bombs today between the Western Front and the Rhine.

It was the seventh straight day of long-range attack by heavy bombers of the R.A.F. and the United States 8th Air Force, and their assaults were supplemented by strikes from Italy.

A half dozen road and rail junctions and bridges in the Euskirchen-Trier sector were hammered by part of the United States bomber fleet. Others aimed their explosives and incendiaries on rail traffic in the Bingen-Frankfurt-Aschaffenburg triangle.

The bombers, 800 strong, were escorted by 700 fighters, but no enemy planes were sighted, a headquarters spokesman said.

The battlefield bombing was done through clouds. Other targets were hit visually.

The R.A.F. targets were not immediately disclosed.

Front reports said snow, sleet and clouds which grounded British and American tactical aircraft in the fighting areas yesterday still curtailed close support for U.S. troops smashing against the German counter-offensive.

British Lancasters and Halifaxes shuttled three times between Britain and the Rhine yesterday, attacking German rail centres with some 5,000 tons of incendiaries and explosives, while 1,200 Fortresses and Liberators with 700 escorting fighters struck at 10 other rail centres in western Germany with 4,000 tons.

The Americans lost four bombers, and the British six bombers and one fighter. No German fighter opposition was encountered.

The R.A.F. also sent a force of Mosquitos and Lancasters far north, the heavies against a convoy in Oslo Fjord and the Mosquitos against Skudesneshavn harbor on the southwest Norway coast, where a merchant ship was fired.

In the R.A.F.'s night attack on Gladbach scores of Canadians were among R.A.F. personnel, although Canadian bomber group planes did not participate in that raid.

The R.C.A.F. however reported:—"Last night aircraft of the R.C.A.F. bomber group laid mines in enemy waters. One of four bombers is missing."

From Italy, U.S. 15th Air Force heavy bombers yesterday hit oil and rail targets in Germany and Czechoslovakia, while units of the coastal air force attacked northern Adriatic shipping. The Balkan air force made sweeps over Yugoslavia. From these and other operations, 11 Allied planes failed to return. Eight enemy planes were destroyed on the ground.

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND

Chatham, Dec. 29 — (CP)—The body of Mrs. Gilbert Jubenville of Jeanettes Creek was found hanging in the garage at the rear of her home yesterday by her husband, who had been away working on their new home some distance away. Police said there would be no inquest.

Major Turn in Pacific War by Next Summer Foreseen by Admiral Mischer

Pearl Harbor, Dec. 29 —(AP)— A major turn in the Pacific war by next summer is foreseen by Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher who helped whip the Japanese decisively in two battles of the Philippines Sea and figures "in another year we should have their navy pretty well cleaned up."

"By next summer, they will be sitting on a decidedly uneasy seat," he told war correspondents yesterday.

On the side of current action, Admiral Nimitz reported the second enemy air raid in three days on the Saipan base of the Superfortresses, now blasting Japan. He also announced another American air blow from which the Japanese planes are flying to Saipan.

In the Philippines, Gen. MacArthur reported only mopping-up operations on the ground and the usual sweep of air forces over the archipelago and islands to the south; but a spokesman amplified the Japanese task force attack Tuesday on the United States air base at Mindoro, saying it had been determined the enemy made no attempt to land forces under cover of the shelling.

Mitscher, whose carrier forces crushed the enemy's naval attempt to interfere last June with the invasion of Saipan and helped thwart the Japanese naval effort to interfere in October with the invasion of Leyte, expects another such battle.

"They've reached the point where they'll throw everything in the fight," he said.

First of Three Defence Rings At Budapest Cracked

Russians Make All-Out Bid To Control Strategic City

London, Dec. 29 (CP) — The Russians are fighting in the "heart of Budapest," the German high command announced today as house-to-house fighting battles for the Hungarian capital reached a fury unequalled on the eastern front since Stalingrad.

Referring briefly to the fighting in the capital, the German communique said that "the garrison of Budapest defended the heart of the city against heavy Soviet attacks." It declared the Germans had checked Russian break-through bids between Lake Balaton and the Danube.

The Germany agency, D.N.B., said British and United States planes were operating over the western Balkans from an airfield near Ungvar, at the Hungarian-Czechoslovak border, and that the field had been "put at the Allies' disposal by the Soviet command with the consent of the Czechoslovak mission."

Moscow, Dec. 29. (AP)—Russian forces cracked the first of three inner defence rings of the encircled Nazi garrison at Budapest today while the Austrian-bound Red Army to the north stepped up its drive along both sides of the Danube River.

The Red forces made an all-out bid to win strategic control of the Hungarian capital in a matter of days, if not hours, as fanatical Nazi troops in the hilly district of Buda and the populous flatlands of Pest gave ground under a score of assaults by Russian combat teams of Tommy-gunners, tanks and self-propelled guns.

The enemy was hurled out of 12 eastern suburbs of the city yesterday.

A battle of even greater military importance raged on the approaches to the Danubian communications centre of Komarom, which is less than 85 miles southeast of Vienna and within 53 miles of Bratislava.

Two columns from Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's 3rd Ukrainian army group converged on the city from the east and southeast, while across the Danube to the northeast Marshal Rodion Malinovsky mounted a powerful smash at the German Hron defence line.

On West Bank of Hron.

There was evidence that Russian vanguards may now be fighting on the west bank of the Hron, confluence of which with the Danube, west of the Great Danube Bend, has already been outflanked by Tolbukhin.

Komarom has several big railway and highway bridges across the Danube and of the six rail lines radiating from the city, four lead to Vienna.

Fighting down the northwestern slopes of the Vertes Mountains, Russian troops reached points less than ten miles from Komarom, while another Soviet force advancing along the Danube river highway captured vehicles. Formidable groups of Russian self-propelled guns stayed in the forefront with the hard-driving infantry.

Told to Hold Positions.

The Nazi salient which had extended six miles outside the eastern limits of Pest was whittled down to barely a mile in several sectors as Budapest shook from the concussion of heavy gunfire.

Montgomery Ward Questions Legality Of Govt. Seizure

Chicago, Dec. 29 (AP).—Montgomery Ward and Company's properties in seven cities across the United States today, by presidential order, were under army control, but the degality of government seizure of the mail order firm's plants remained unrecognized by board chairman Sewell L. Avery.

Mr. Avery, 70-year-old chief executive of the nation-wide merchandising firm, in challenging President Roosevelt's authority to take over the facilities, said the company "welcomes the opportunity to present its case to the coutrs".

Simultaneous with the seizure, the government acted to have its controversy with the company over non-compliance of war labor board directives settled in the courts.

Mr. Avery, whom President Roosevelt in a statement accompanying the seizure order termed guilty of "consistent and wilful defiance" of W.L.B. decisions, described Mr. Roosevelt's order in violation of the U.S. Constitution and one which the company could nt obey.

Mr. Avery in a statement on the President's order, reiterated his previous stand when the Chicago properties were seized by the government last April—that the President had no authority to seize the "nonwar business of Mongomerey Ward."

Mr. Roosevelt, in his statement, said the government "can not and will not tolerate any interference with war production in this critical hour" and that Ward's would not be allowed to set aside government wartime policies "just because Mr. Sewell Avery does not approve of the government's prodcure for handling labor disputes."

Stettinius Will Confer With Eden

By PAUL SCOTT RANKINS
(Reuters Staff Writer)

Washington, Dec. 29 —(CP Reuters)—State Secretary Stettinius is expected to confer with Foreign Secretary Eden in the near future—on the latter's return from Athens — and to receive from him a first-hand account of the current efforts to reach a settlement of the Greek situation.

Mr. Stettinius' visit to London will be the first visit by any United States Secretary of State for many years, and in view of recent references by Mr. Eden to a quarterly meeting of foreign ministers it is regarded as a possibility here that Messrs. Eden and Stettinius may be joined by M. Molotov, Russian Foreign Commissar.

The meeting is expected to prepare the way for a conference of the Big Three — Messrs. Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin — in February or March.

Important items on the agenda will be:

1. Co-ordination of Allied policy in relation to the Greek situation, the Italian government, the Russo-Polish settlement and plans for the occupation of Germany;

2. Questions still unsettled from the Dumbarton Oaks Conference—chiefly voting powers for the International Security Council and the relation of the Security Organization to other international institutions.

City and District News

TWO PRINCE EDWARD BOYS ARE CASUALTIES

Names of two Belleville district service personnel are included in Army and Air Force casualty lists released for publication today. One is reported as wounded and prisoner of war, while the other is presumed dead following being missing after aerial operations.

Pte. Alfred H. Mead, son of Mr. Henry Mead, Box 504, Picton, member of an Eastern Ontario Regiment, is wounded and prisoner of war. His wife lives at Shoreham by Sea, Sussex, England.

Flight Sgt. Ross William Lough, son of Mr. George Lough, Mountain View, is now for official purposes presumed dead after previously having been reported as missing on active service.

NO MAIL DELIVERY ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

As is their usual custom postal letter carriers will take a well-deserved holiday on New Year's Day and accordingly there will be no delivery of mail to householders. Wicket service at the post office will be given, however, from eight until twelve noon, while the lobby will be open from six-thirty in the morning until six in the evening. Special delivery and air mail services will be as usual while mails will also be dispatched and received in the customary manner. There will be one evening collection from street letter boxes.

16.2 BELOW ZERO DURING EARLY MORNING

Ear muffs and mufflers were the order of the day this morning as shop-workers and business personnel hurried to work braving temperature which had dropped to a low of 16.2 degrees below zero. This was the reading at eight-thirty while half an hour later the thermometer had risen 14.6 below at nine o'clock.

This was the official temperature reading at the Belleville Water Purification plant, but thermometers in the downtown district indicated a low of approximately 18 degrees below at an early hour. Heavy columns of smoke and steam hanging in the frost filled air were further indications of the freezing temperature.

BARREL PRIME FACTOR IN MOTOR ACCIDENT

It wasn't exactly a case of "Roll Out the Barrel", but a barrel was the prime factor in a rear-end motor vehicle collision on East Dundas St. yesterday afternoon.

It seems Eugene Donovan, 328 McDonald Ave., was driving the Brewers' Warehouse truck easterly up the Dundas St. incline near the John St. intersection, when an empty beer barrel rolled off the rear of the vehicle. Realizing his loss Mr. Donovan immediately applied the brakes of the vehicle to recover the missing barrel, not realizing another truck was following behind. Driving the second truck was Earl Reeves, 103 Cedar St., who had no time to bring his truck under control before it crashed into the rear of the beer truck.

Police investigated and found all the damage had resulted to the front portion of Mr. Reeves' vehicle.

MARMORA

Lieut. Percy Gray Missing in Action Believed Prisoner

Marmora, Dec. 29—Two well known local boys have become casualties recently in Italy. Mrs. Grace Gray was notified on Wednesday afternoon that her husband Lieut. Percy Gray was missing in action and is presumably a prisoner of war. The authorities at Ottawa requested that the name of his unit and the date of his becoming a casualty be not divulged. This young officer was most popular in this district taking part in practically every sport, that has been fostered at Deloro as well as supporting social activities. His wife is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Loveless of that village where also reside his parents Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Gray. Further news will be awaited with keen interet by his many friends as well as by his relatives.

The other casualty is the son of a former reeve of Marmora township who also lives near Deloro. Private William J. Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Richardson has been slightly wounded in action according to advice received by his parents from Ottawa. In this case also the unit of the soldier and date of his becoming a casualty has to be withheld for the time being.

Corp. Lloyd Home.

Corporal Frank Lloyd an original member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is back in Canada on Christmas furlough enjoying the same with his wife and two sons Bernard and Roger. He transferred last January to the Canadian Army Service Corps. He was in the Dunkirk and "D" Day invasion and also was in North Africa for a short period. He has praise for England's fighting spirit and for the Blood Transfusion Services as they operate right at the front. "To think of England now is to think of her as a large military camp, a big airport and a well fortified island, he said. Taking part in schemes, he covered quite a large area and witnessed many raids. "There were many heroes and heroines over there that will never be heard of or have their praises sung," he said.

Lt. Korning Sends Letter of Thanks For Gift of Jackets

Apart from their arduous training duties readying themselves and their trim little warship for the sterner things to come, members of the crew of the HMCS "Belleville" are participating in a contest of designing a crest for the handsome "corvette jackets" donated to them by the Deacon Brothers Ltd.

Lieut. J. E. Korning, in a letter sent to the workers and management of the firm expressed the appreciation of himself and crew for the gift. "May I", he wrote, "extend to you our sincere thanks for your goodness. We shall think of you when we wear them and we are proud owners. Thank you for your good wishes and rest assured, your ship the 'Belleville' will do her part and do it well".

Members of the crew are submitting designs for the ship's crest and when the winner is decided, the result will be forwarded to the workers of the Deacon Bros. Ltd., who will embroider the crests and forward them to the crew.

POLICE COURT

With the possible exception of a couple of casts the "happy new year" atmosphere prevailed at the final session of police court for 1944, held today before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in the police court rooms.

The name of Justin O'Sullivan, Tyendinaga Township, was called and it was disclosed he had enriched the court coffers by $65.50 prior to the proceedings. O'Sullivan pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving and also of being found in the illegal possession of liquor. The latter charge cost him $50 and costs.

Keith Dunnin, 19, of Belleville, pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining liquor while being a minor. He was assessed $10 and costs. The accused youth procured a Liquor Control permit while under the age of 21 years, Crown Attorney Donnan informed the court.

Francis Hunt, Read, failed to respond to his name to answer to a charge of careless driving. His Worship ordered personal service of a summons to the accused.

A domestic case listed for trial was withdrawn as the parties concerned rose to the seasonal atmosphere to settle amicably their problems prior to the court. R. A. Pringle, local barrister, arranged the settlement. Despite holiday conditions only one person paid a fine for having imbibed freely, but not wisely, of spirits, the kind that come out of a bottle.

CSM. W. Nolan, Winner of M.M., Arrives Home

Winner of the Military Medal for gallant conduct and leadership with his regiment overseas, Company Sergeant Major W. J. Nolan, son of Mrs. Anita Nolan, Actinolite, arrived home from England in time to spend Christmas with his family. C.S.M. Nolan who was wounded in action was admitted to Kingston Military Hospital upon arrival at Kingston, but later went to his home.

Also returning on the same hospital ship was Private Frank Moore, 152 Church Street, who was severely wounded overseas and Sergt. V. Strebe son of Mr. Emil Strebe, of Eldorado.

Gunner Jack Chambers, of the Royal Canadian Artillery, Kingston who won the George Medal, one step beneath the Victoria Cross, for absolute disregard for personal safety during an enemy raid in April 1941, when he rendered invaluable assistance in the rescue of auxiliary fire service personnel in England, came back on the same ship.

Awards Made To Two Picton Servicemen

Awards to two Prince Edward County members of the Canadian Army serving in the Mediterranean theatre of war have been announced by the Department of National Defence.

According to announcement released this morning, Lieut. Col. Paul A. Scott of Picton, has been made a member of the Order of the British Empire, while another Picton district soldier, Sgt. John Losee, M.M., has been awarded the British Empire Medal.

Member of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, Lieut.-Col. Scott was born in Smiths Falls, and after graduating from Queen's University was a practising physician and surgeon in Picton. Prior to his appointment to the Canadian (Active) Army in June 1940 he was attached to the R.C.A.M.C. (NPAM).

Given the rank of a lieutenant upon his enlistment in 1940, Lieut.-Col. Scott proceeded overseas in August of the same year but returned to Canada in July, 1941. He received his majority in August, 1941, and was recently promoted to his present rank. His wife resides in Picton.

Sgt. Losee is a member of the Canadian Infantry Corps and was born in Kingston. Prior to his enlistment at the start of the war he worked in the Napanee district as a farmer and served in the Non-Permanent Active Militia. He is the son of Mr. Warren Losee, R.R. 6, Picton.

Nine Violators Of By-Law Fined

Motorists, who continue to disregard city traffic regulations, found themselves hailed into police court today on charges of double parking in the downtown district and also of parking motor vehicles on streets all night thereby impeding the progress of the city snow plow in the clearing of streets.

Today the names of nine such offenders were called before Magistrate T. Y. Wills all of whom had paid two dollars previous to the court in order to evade being present.

"The streets must be kept free of parked vehicles, particularly after snow storms. The city snow plow has to operate at night as well as in the daytime, therefore the enforcement of the no all-night parking bylaw is being rigidly enforced," court officials warned. The same applies to double parking in the downtown area, where such practice impedes the general traffic and causes congestions.

After the first of the year traffic convictions will see increased fines and costs imposed, court officials revealed.

Sidney Farmer Loses Ten Head Of Cattle When Ice Gives Away

Ten head of choice cattle owned by Lloyd Reddom, Sidney Township farmer residing at Bayside, were drowned in the Bay of Quinte last evening off Riley's dance pavilion, when the ice suddenly gave way while the herd of 24 head was being watered.

Included in the loss were seven mature cows, two two-year-old heifers and a yearling. The remainder of the herd scattered to safety when a large section of the ice surface caved in, presumably from the mass weight of the cattle.

Due to lack of water in wells and creeks, Mr. Reddom, like other district farmers had been watering his stock from water holes cut in the ice of the bay. Holes had been cut a few feet from the shoreline.

Wander Past Water Hole

Yesterday's low temperatures and snow had caused a thin coating of ice to form over the holes which in turn were covered with snow. Mr. Reddom drove his herd to the bay, satisfied that as usual, they would find the holes, drink their fill and return. The cattle however, had wandered past the holes to a point 150 feet out from the shore. At this point where there was a scant four inches of ice, ten of them were precipitated into the water when the ice surface gave way.

Mr. Reddom rushed to his home and sent out a call for help. Neighboring farmers came to the scene and with the aid of ropes extricated nine of the ten head from the icy water. Coming in contact with the cold air after their icy immersion, the cattle stiffened, and died a few minutes later. One cow, presumably is still under the ice.

Ice Not Heavy

Thinness of the ice in the bay is attributed to the lack of heavy frost prior to the fall of snow.

There was a depth of from six to seven feet of water where the cattle were drowned.

Pte. Frank Moore Home on Leave Suffered Loss of Arm in France

Severely wounded when he stopped a hail of machine gun bullets while fighting with his regiment near the Seine River near Paris, Private Frank Moore, 150 Church Street, arrived home in time to spend Christmas with the bride he married four day before going overseas last year.

Bren gunner in his platoon, Pte. Moore took part in the severe fighting in France with his regiment, the Royal Regiment of Canada. Held up near the famous French river, he received two machine gun bullets in the arm, and three in a leg. The arm was so badly shattered that it has since been amputated.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Moore of Springbrook, Pte. Moore enlisted in January 1943, with the Royal Rifles of Canada. He trained for eighteen months on the west coast and went overseas in June of last year. He was sent to France in late July as a reinforcement and was wounded in August.

Prior to enlistment Pte. Moore was associated with the J. B. Boyce Service station with a brother Jack. He married the former Eileen McGarvey, of Marmora, four days before he went overseas. At present he is enjoying a 30-day furlough after which he will report to Kingston Military Hospital for further treatment and later to Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, where he will be fitted for an artificial arm.

Most District Roads Blocked After Thursday's Heavy Snowfall

Provincial highways, county roads and township sideroads in the Belleville area were piled high with swirling drifts of snow on Thursday as a high wind sent loose snow in dense blankets across open country fields and around street corners in urban areas.

Lesser travelled roads in the country area were made impassable to motorized traffic while trucks and autos on the provincial highways were slowed by the heavy going, in many cases only one track being passable.

Although county officials indicated the general road condition in Hastings was "bad" at an early hour this morning, the Foxboro-Madoc road and the Point Anne lane were stated to be open. Plows were working in other districts but with drifting continuing until late in the night present condition of the roads was not known.

Rural district workers in Belleville for the winter months were forced to remain in the city until a late hour when snowplows had made a single track. Still known to be blocked this morning was the Belleville-Wallbridge road and the Ridge Road from Stirling to West Huntingdon. The Frankford-Foxboro road was opened late last night, for single traffic, although the work was not done by a county plow.

The Bancroft-Belleville bus was stuck in the snow south of Madoc and had to be rescued by the county plow on Thursday. Transport companies reported provincial highways to be "bumpy" but trucks were going through almost on schedule.

Heavy snow is testing snowplowing equipment to the limit, according to county officials who reported their heaviest plow out of operation due to a broken axle. Three truck plows and one grader plow were in operation, however.

Main Highways Clear

Toronto (CP) — The Ontario Department of Highways today announced that with some minor exceptions all its main highways have been cleared for traffic following the Wednesday - Thursday snowstorm. Last night the department warned motorists to stay off the highways. Although the highways are open today, a spokesman said they all are narrow in places.

Most difficult section is in the Owen Sound-Collingwood-Brampton-Guelph-Kincardine area where the highways are "only passable."

BANCROFT

War Veterans' Hold Successful Dance

Bancroft (Special) — The War Veterans' dance held in the community hall Wednesday evening was a very successful event with net proceeds amounting to $118.50. This amount was turned over to Provincial Constable S. W. Palmateer to be applied to the remaining deficit of the Bancroft swimming pool. The local war workers' unit assisted in the dance proceedings by providing the lunch.

Undergoes Operation

Mr. John Wiggins underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Bancroft Red Cross hospital on Thursday evening. Dr. W. C. Morgan, of Belleville, and Dr. O. W. Anderson were the attending physicians.

21 Below Zero

The thermometer dropped to 21 degrees below zero here on Thursday night. Though considerable snow fell south of the village on Thursday, Bancroft had none.

'If You Drink Don't Drive' On New Year's Eve

Traffic accidents on Belleville streets were kept at the lowest possible number over the Christmas holiday week-end which is to be commended. However, a more hilarious weekend is facing the public—that of New Year's.

"It is a perennial announcement—but really sound advice—'if you drink, don't drive', that's all we ask. If this thought is kept in mind we are sure there will be no New Year's accidents of any consequence," commented Chief R. W. Probert today.

New Year's Eve is rapidly approaching with the conventional parties arranged to welcome in 1945. Belleville's streets have seldom been in a more dangerous condition for driving than theey are today, following the longest period of snowfall registered locally in many years. With slippery roadways and snow piled at the sides, it is essential that drivers of motor vehicles be more cautious than ever if serious accidents are to be avoided.

For those who anticipate a "wet" New Year's Eve party, the police have urged such persons engage taxicabs in the event they wish to "make the rounds". It is not only safer, but much saner.

The only safe rule is to take no chances, so "if you drink, don't drive".

POLICE BLOTTER

Kingston police reported the theft of a 1934 model Oldsmobile sedan Thursday night. The vehicle was equipped with licence plate number 9-S-665 when stolen.

Lost Purse.

Mrs. Ida Munro, 63 McCaul St., in Toronto, complained to police she had lost her purse containing a sum of money while attending a private party at No. 20 King Street in this city Thursday night.

Tow Cars Away.

Motor vehicles left parked on city streets to impede the progress of the city snow plow were towed from their parking positons by order of the police department last night. It is a violation of the city traffic regulations to park all night, especially, when snow plows are in operation.

Parties Warned.

Family disturbances at 15 St. Charles Street took police to that address post haste late Thursday night. The parties were warned to refrain from making general nuisances of themselves and disturbing the peace in general.

U.S. CASUALTIES REACHED 632,441 ON DECEMBER 14

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP).—War casualties of the United States armed services reached 632,441 Dec. 14—two days prior to the big German offensive in Western Europe. War Secretary Henry Stimson said today the latest army total is 547,823.

ADVANCE

battle with a spectacular dash and hurled the Germans back as much as 16 miles in six days.

The prisoner count in the first seven days of the Patton counter offensive mounted to 5,351, and Von Rundstedt's over-all tank losses from air and ground action mounted to 710—the equivalent of nearly four German armored divisions.

Of these burned-out and disembowelled tanks, 200 alone were counted in Bastogne. 83 more at Celles, and 10 near Hotton on the northern rim.

Allied air power had knocked out 3,355 trucks used in the German offensive and 755 planes.

But for the second straight day Winter cracked a frozen whip over the front, spreading a fog over the German army's operations and interfering with Allied air attacks.

Patton's powerful armored formations repulsed fresh attacks on their corridor to Bastogne and chewed off the German strongpoints which hemmed in the corridor.

On the west side they reached Sibret, four miles southwest of Bastogne and mopped up Salvacourt and Hompre, three and four miles south of Bastogne.

Heavy Fighting in Progress

Heavy fighting was in progress in the woods north of Assenois, but three miles southwest of Bastogne.

On the east they captured Sainlex, Livarchamps. Surre, Boulaide, Baschleiden, Bavigne and Kaundorf, from 5½ to 10 miles southeast of Bastogne.

Kaundorf is but 3½ miles southwest of Wiltz in northern Luxembourg, and just to the east the 3rd Army made a new crossing of the Sure River at Esch. three miles south of Wiltz.

Still farther east on this southern flank the Americans reached the Sure on the German border at three more points, including Rosport, three miles east of Echternach .

Echternach itself was disclosed as another point of American resistance after armor again had forged into the town. A small infantry garrison, which had refused to leave the town with a relieving armored force, was not found. All around were stacks of German dead. But there were few khaki-clad dead. Presumably most of the garrison still lived in German prison camps.

The Germans said they had withdrawn "according to plan" in the face of American counter-attacks extending along virtually the entire perimeter of Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's salient, and for the second successive day made no claims of advances.

Saar Drive Stopped

While Patton's assault appeared to have broken the back of the high-geared Von Rundstedt offensive, front dispatches cautioned that the enemy Field Marshal might yet lash out with vicious new attempts to extend the bulge or attack in entirely different sectors.

The German commander already had achieved one of his objectives, however, bringing Patton's Saar drive to a stop and obliging the American general to pull his tanks out of hard-won Dillingen.

The 3rd Army still held bridgeheads over the Saar between Saarlautern and Saarbrucken, however.

Typical of German probings elsewhere in their constant efforts to feel out Allied lines was a strong assault by two enemy companies at dawn Wednesday against British 2nd Army troops in the Gangelt area five miles north of Geilenkirchen, Germany.

The Germans captured two hamlets in the initial stages, but the Tommies quickly threw the Germans out and took 70 prisoners.

British fliers spotted German road movements over a wide area in northern Holland but the direction was not clear. British planes sank 11 small German boats off the Dutch island of Schouwen, north of Allied-held Beveland and Walcheren Islands.

German patrols also stabbed at 1st Canadian Army positions at scattered spots in Holland.

The Germans pressed with renewed vigor against the northern hinge of their Belgian penetration, in the Monschau sector, but their pressure northwest along the Stavelot-Hutton stretch tapered off.

CANADA'S WAR

had a value of more than $2,100,000,000 and would be sufficient to equip the entire German army.

Produce 15,000 Planes.

Canada also has produced 15,000 planes, more than 1,400,000 machine guns and other small arms, more than 50,000 complete artillery units and more than $450,000,000 worth of Radar equipment.

Figures of ammunition production are even more staggering—110,000,000 heavy projectiles, 4,200,000,000 rounds of small arms ammunition and 150,000,000 tons of chemicals and explosives.

Since the war started Canada has felled about 25,000,000,000 board feet of lumber, enough to build about 2,400,000 homes. Steel output for the war period is estimated at 11,382,000 long tons of ingots, more than enough to build a double-track railway around the world.

Contribute To Metal Pool.

Canada's contribution toward the allied metals pool, apart from Russian production, has been: Nickel, 85 per cent; zinc, 30; copper, 14; lead, 19; asbestos, 78; and aluminum, 35.

Only about 30 per cent of the Canadian war production is delivered to Canadian forces at home and abroad, the remainder going to the dominion's allies.

General equipment purchased by the munitions department for both Canada and her allies is estimated to have reached a total of $1,467,000,000 at this year-end. It includes: Food, $242,000,000; clothing, $412,000,000; gasoline, oil and fuel, $230,000,000 and electrical equipment, $178,000,000.

Interment will take place at Belleville cemetery upon the arrival here of her son, Archie Daniels, who is on military duty in the service of the United States.

MISS MARTHA HANNAH HERBERT

Miss Martha Hannah Herbert died at her home, 14 Isabel Street, on Thursday evening. She was in failing health for some time.

The late Miss Herbert had reached an advanced age being in her 93rd year. She was born at Deseronto and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Herbert. At an early age she came to reside in this city and during her active years she was well known to many citizens and conducted a large business as a furrier in which line of work she was expert and held the confidence of her patrons. Throughout her long and useful life Miss Herbert was held in high regard by many friends and those of them now remaining will learn of her death with regret. In religion she was a member of the Church of England and a parishioner of Christ Church. When age and health permitted she took an active part in the work of the parish.

She was the last of her family and is survived by a cousin, Mrs. John Canning of this city.

The funeral announcement is made in this issue.

IN MEMORIAM

WADE — In loving memory of our dearly beloved uncle, Wm. N. Wade, who passed away December 29, 1943.

One year has passed, dear uncle
Since God called you home to rest.
We miss your feeble footsteps and
Your voice of cheerfulness.
Your suffering days are over
In this dark world of sin.
God opened the gates of Glory
And bade you enter in.

—Sadly missed by Nieces, and Nephews.

KING TALKS TO THE WORLD

In this Canadian Marconi picturegram the King is shown making his world broadcast on Christmas Day.

Thomasburg

Thomasburg — Christmas services were held in the village churches on Sunday. Service of Holy Communion was held in Christ Church at 9.30 a.m. with the Rector Rev. P. C. Beaser in charge, while in the evening service was held in the United Church. Rev. B. Heywood the pastor chose as his subject "The Old, Old Story", with pictures and the Bible story. The choir sang the familiar favorite Christmas carols in connection with the special service.

The public school and the Sunday schools of the two village churches held the annual Christmas concert on Thursday evening in the hall with a good attendance of interested parents and friends. Rev. B. Heywood was chairman for the occasion and a mixed program of songs, drills, dialogues, etc., was given. Santa Claus came to unload the Christmas tree which was well laden with gifts for all the children. Santa in his usual good natured manner kept all the children in laughter while his visit lasted. During the entertainment the draw on the quilt which the Junior Red Cross have been selling tickets on was made with Mrs. Dave Thompson holding the lucky ticket. Mrs. Thompson turned it back to the Red Cross to be auctioned off with Mr. Elmer Walker being the highest bidder. Two cushions were also auctioned off.

The Christmas meeting of the Women's Missionary Society and Women's Association was combined for the occasion and met in the Sunday School rooms of the United Church on Monday afternoon. The presidents Mrs. Ervine Bateman and Mrs. Herman Elliott respectively were in charge.

The singing of the Christmas hymn "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear" opened the meeting followed with prayers by Mrs. Bateman and Rev. Mr. Heywood. Mrs. J. Chappell offered prayer in memory of the late Mrs. G. H. Sherry. Mrs. Heywood favored with a solo and the Candle Light service from the Missionary Monthly was used. The meeting closed with the Benediction. Ice cream, cake and coffee were served and a social time enjoyed. Rev. and Mrs. B. Heywood had the Sunday School rooms tastefully arranged for the occasion.

The local Oddfellows held the first dance of the season on Tuesday evening in their hall. Due to weather and road conditions, the attendance was not as large as had been hoped.

1944 Was Year of Hard Fighting For Canadian Forces in Italy

By WILLIAM BOSS
(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadian Corps on the Adriatic, Dec. 29—(CP Cable)—The Canadians were catching their breath in the rubbled Adriatic seaport town of Ortona on Jan. 1, 1944. Now, a year later, poised on the west bank of the Senio river west of Bagnacavallo, 190 miles to the northwest, they look back on a year of tough fighting.

Last winter the Canadians spent three months in the mud around Ortona. An infantry brigade of the 5th Canadian Division — which had arrived in Italy a few months earlier to team up with the 1st Canadian Division — charged the Arielli feature Jan. 16. The winter campaign continued static.

The Canadians moved out of the Adriatic sector late in March to be rested and retrained.

By May the Canadians were switched over near the west coast in the Cassino area. After the 1st Canadian Armored Brigade helped other Allied troops to cross the Rapido river south of Cassino, the Canadians participated in the breakthrough of the Gustav Line and the approach to the Hitler Line farther west barring the road to Rome.

Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes of Winnipeg and Ottawa, then commander of the 1st Canadian Division, achieved a mighty victory May 23 in a single day of the most intense action and the armored formations of Maj.-Gen. B. M. Hoffmeister's 5th Division poured through to exploit the victory.

The Melfa river crossing west of Aquino and Pontecorvo led to the liberation of Ceprano, Frosinone and Ferentino.

The battle-worn Canadians then went south to rest, regroup and undergo more training.

However, the 1st Armored Brigade carried on with British 8th Army, slugging north toward Florence.

First Into Florence

Canadian tanks were the first to cross the Arno river into Florence on Aug. 21, after which they continued supporting the thrust by British troops through the strong Gothic-line defences in that sector.

The campaign to pierce the Gothic Line began with the crossing of the Metauro Aug. 26 and within 4 days the Canadians faced the Foglia river, the Gothic's spine.

After fierce fighting for Montecchio, Polso Alta and Monte Luro, the Gothic Line's immediate defences were smashed.

There still remained the defences in depth. For the next 20 miles northwest to Rimini the Canadians slugged in bitter ridge-to-ridge battles. The ridge-top town of Coriano was taken by an infantry brigade.

This enabled the Canadians to force the Marano river and the crossing was followed by bitter fighting for San Martino, San Lorenzo and the Rimmi airport on the right flank. Brilliant tactics obtained positions around San Fortunato, "The last ridge of all."

Rimini itself fell Sept. 21 to Greek troops under Canadian command and the Canadian Corps hit the Lombardy plains country the same day the autumn rains came.

Nevertheless the Canadians pushed on, crossed the Rubicon river, reaching first Sant Arcangelo and then Savignano, on the Rimini-Bologna lateral highway. From there it has been a succession of bridgeheads — over the Fiumicino, the Pisciatello, the Savio, the Ronco, and the Bevano, where the Canadians came out of the line for another rest — with the towns of Cesena and Forlimpopoli on the Rimini-Bologna highway to their credit. Cesena fell Oct. 20 and Forlimpopoli Oct. 25.

Liberate Ravenna

Returning to action Dec. 1, the Canadians again achieved striking successes. Within 72 hours of breaking out from the Montone River bridgehead, they had liberated the ancient city of Ravenna.

The Lamone was crossed in force against determined resistance Dec. 10. The Canadians also crossed the Vetero and Vecchio canals, reaching the Naviglio canal in their difficult westward push over the water-laced flatlands toward the Po Delta.

A bridgehead was thrown over the Naviglio Dec. 12 and next day the Germans counter-attacked 13 times in nine hours. Gen. Sir Richard McCreery, 8th Army commander, congratulated the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment of Picton, Ont., and the Carleton and York Regiments of St. Stephen, N.B., for stopping the enemy.

The corps burst out in a mighty effort Dec. 21 and in the subsequent intense battle the Germans cracked under terrific pressure, withdrawing to the Senio river, quitting Bagnacavallo nine miles west of Ravenna, and leaving only pockets of resistance behind east of the Senio.

The corps fought under three commanders during the year — Lt.-Gen. Crerar, who later became a full general commanding the 1st Canadian Army in Europe, Lt.-Gen. E.L.M. (Tommy) Burns of Westmount, Que., and Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes of London, Ont. Gen. Burns was transferred to the western front to be general officer commanding Canadian lines of communication.

RAWDON

Schools Present Yuletide Concert At Mt. Pleasant

Rawdon — The pupils of the Allan School S. S. No. 3 and the Williams School S. S. No. 4 with their teachers, Miss Keitha Bush and Mrs. Stewart Hoover, presented their annual Christmas concert in Mount Pleasant Church Hall on Friday evening, Dec. 22nd. The platform was decorated with streamers and a lighted Christmas tree banked with tissue-wrapped parcels made an ideal setting for this event. There were over one hundred and seventy-five in attendance from the two sections and a few guests. The proceeds were thirty-one dollars with Messrs. Orno Sharp and Oscar Merrick in charge of the finances.

Rev. T. F. Townsend was master of ceremonies and the two schools with thirty-nine voices gave as an opening chorus "Cheerio."

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver played the piano accompaniments for the evening and Mrs. K. Weaver manipulated the curtain.

Miss Edith Stone recited "Long, Long Ago." A pantomime "When Shepherds watch Their Flocks by Night," was well given and brought out the Christmas spirit.

A round of Christmas carols was sung by all with Mrs. Townsend in charge. The last number was a "Cantata" depicting "The Life of Stephen Foster." This number laster over one hour and was well rendered with several star parts.

Miss Betty McConnell dedicated the number to the memory of Stephen Foster who was born in 1826. Mr. Jack Rose was the spirit of Stephen Foster outlining the various songs which had been written throughout the years and picturing his life history.

Eleanor Johnson took the part of Stephen's wife, Jeannie and sang "Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair."

A. Dunkley depicted the old Negro butler in whose memory "Old Black Joe" was written and he sang that number.

Marguerite Stone sang "Down in Alabama," and ten pupils presented an old fashioned quadrille. The girls wore beautiful floor-length gowns some fashioned of crepe with plenty of ruffles and others in chiffon. The pupils sang several of Foster's well known plantation songs and a group of boys were heard in a couple of songs and a trio also contributed a number. Neil Hubble rendered "Beautiful Dreamer."

The items throughout received hearty applause and the Cantata was well appreciated. The program closed with another chorus, "Bells Across the Snow."

Ovations were given to the teachers, pianist, and music teacher and it was moved that a message be sent to Mr. Roy Thrasher who is ill in Belleville hospital.

Santa Claus arrived and delighted the children with his gifts and another pleasant evening ended happily.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. R. Bush, River Valley; Mr. and Mrs. Forde Stapley, Misses Helen and Joan Stapley, Halloway; Miss Lorraine Grills, English Line; Mr. Stewart Hoover, Wellmans; Mrs. Jas. Sale of Licence Plates Delayed

Toronto, Dec. 29 — (CP)—Minister of Highways George H. Doucett said today Ontario's 1945 vehicle licence plates will not go on sale until between Jan. 10 and 15 due to delay in manufacture of the new plates which are a light blue background with white figures. The plates were planned for sale next Tuesday, Jan. 2.

Next year vehicles will carry one new plate on the rear, and the present 1943 plates and 1944 windshield stickers will be abandoned. Some 680,000 plates are being manufactured under an easing in use of steel by the Federal Steel Controller.

Bells of New Year's

The bells of Christmas which rang out to mark the thought of peace on earth to men of goodwill will be followed in a few days by the wild bells of New Year's Eve, ringing out in the frosty night and heralding the dawn of a new year freighted with tremendous possibilities for the peoples of the world. These bells of Christmas and New Year's express the ideal towards which mankind eagerly gazes into the future, they symbolise the irrepressible hopes and undying aspiration of human beings that the end of the war will soon come and that the fruits of its ending may be a peace that will endure not only for years but for generations and centuries yet to come and that upon the world may come the blessings of a secure peace which cannot be broken because it is secured by victory and by the unity of man's desire to preserve peace.

These bells are the bells which ring on Sundays from church towers and belfries their message of divine love in a world of mixed good and evil.

New Year's brings a message to everyone of the hope of the world so well expressed in the poem of Tennyson "Ring Out, Wild Bells." This new year will be a year with many possibilities for mankind. It will it is hoped end the war with Germany and begin an unending reign of peaceful accord in war-torn Europe which that continent has not known and for which the human heart yearns. "Ring out the thousand wars of old, ring in the thousand years of peace," sings the poet. And too the bells are asked to "ring out old shapes of foul disease" and to bring in that society expressed in these lines,

"Ring in the valiant man and free,
The larger heart, the kindlier hand;
Ring out the darkness of the land;
Ring in the Christ that is to be."

Careful Driving

The time of year has come when drivers of motor vehicles will see to it that more than ordinary precautions are taken to prevent accidents. It is a time which brings deep snow, deep ruts, banks of snow, now and then slush, and slippery or icy condition of the roadways.

The motorist is obligated to regard the pedestrian as with the condition of road crossings and the general conditions of travel, it is not difficult for a walker to slip or fall. Every sensible driver will be watching the utmost to see that no one walking at a crossing or on the highway is struck or injured by the car he is in charge of.

Then the driver has to be extremely careful and attentive to the drivers of other cars. Driving in winter is always more difficult as surfaces are uneven and a snow or ice formation or surface is not like a dry pavement in the warmer periods of the year.

Now at this time there is likely to be more than the usual driving as the New Year's festivities approach. Numerous parties are held and there is a feeling of good cheer and good will and there is the need that the driver should give his full attention to the operation of his car. In the time when everyone is feeling the gaiety of the mood of the season, a mishap may occur unless the operation of motorcars is at every moment under the undivided attention of the drivers.

A sane celebration of New Year's Eve is to be desired and the great majority of motorists use their best judmgent and thoughtfulness in view of the responsibility that is in their hands.

"If you drink, don't drive" is the advice held out to motorists and it is the best advice that can be given for the sake of the public and from the standpoint of the motorist. This advice holds good for the drivers of passenger cars as well as of other motor vehicles.

Driving at any time requires every caution for a car moves at great speed, it is very heavy and can do a great deal of harm or damage if any accident happens that may cause the driver a lifetime of regret if he should be in any way to blame through lack of fitness to drive or through neglect of any measure of precaution.

Mr. Churchill as Traveller

Prime Minister Churchill continues his travel. His latest visit has been to Athens, Greece, in the hope of bringing to an end the strife there and peace to that liberated country.

In all history there has been no one to equal in travels Mr. Churchill in the matter of the prosecution of a war against a brutal enemy and in the interests of unity and security.

The courage of the British leader, his devotion to the cause of the United Nations at war, his readiness to assume the heaviest tasks a man can be called upon to bear, have brought him to the fore in the cause of the free world.

It is to be hoped that the result of his visit and of that of Mr. Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, will be that accord in Greece which will serve the cause for which the Allied nations are fighting this war, namely the attainment of peace.

That the British leader assumed risks in attending the conference in Athens, is clear from the news. He also takes what chances there are in travel and does so to serve the Allied cause.

Mr. Churchill has played a heroic role throughout the war and has been a typical Briton in taking on the great tasks he has borne for the sake of unity.

Romance

The romantic writer cannot but have a fertile field for the exercise of his imagination in certain phases of this war, for instance, in respect of life among the underground or maquis with all its romance, drama, excitement, danger. A Canadian has figured in the excitement of the life among the maquis of France, Captain Guy D'Artois, of Montreal, who met his wife who was serving in the French underground. Together they lived a life of danger and high resolve in the cause of France and in defiance of the Hun oppressor, then dominating France.

What would Alexandre Dumas, romantic writer of novels, not have given for the inspiration of setting of scenes of life of French patriots in the underground, whose effective service has wrought the Allies' cause so great good in the days of preparation and of waiting before the coming on D-Day to Normandy of the Allied invaders!

The French underground has written a deathless story of which the nation will always be proud. Their intense effort has made it possible for France to resume so quickly and with such quiet as almost a matter of routine the ordinary conduct of the life of the country with the Allied invasion through Normandy. Their calmness under trial served the cause of the Allies in the most effective manner.

Mme. D'Artois who is an English girl, has been likened by some to Joan of Arc whose heroic effort in the fifteenth century redeemed France and still is the admiration and wonder of the world.

Milestone

(New York Herald Tribune)

The return of the Royal Navy in force to southeastern Asiatic waters undoubtedly constitutes another milestone on the long road of war. The British feel that, their new Pacific Fleet, just formed under the command of Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser, is alone equal to the whole of Japan's remaining naval power. It is earnest of Mr. Churchill's pledges to wage the war against Japan as tenaciously as Britain has waged that against Germany; and it brings us a long way from the tragic moment, three years ago, when the American fleet lay paralyzed in the mud of Pearl Harbor and the two great ships which had been sent out to form the backbone of the British defence had gone down in the Gulf of Siam.

Airplane in Post-War World

(Buffalo Courier-Express)

Aviation may push the suburbs of the cities far from their present setting, resulting in great population shifts. This is a possibility now occupying the minds of real estate operators. They are expecting the airplane to revolutionize post-war land values.

MAN AND 1944

What the old year thinks of us,
We had better not discuss.
What of humans it would pen,
Could it write a book on men,
It were better not to guess
Or in bitterness express.
Let's admit it from the first
He has seen us at our worst.

Should they ask him where he goes,
What of humankind he knows,
He must answer: Thousands killed
By the strange machines men build;
Cities ancient set on fire,
Blown to rubble dome and spire;
And by shells that fell like rain
Little children maimed and slain.

All my time in warfare spent!
Not one hour of calm content!
All by bitter hatreds stirred,
Scarcely any laughter heard;
Just the hope when men are free,
And at peace allowed to be,
They may turn their thoughts to good,
Useful trades and brotherhood!

Our Public Leaders Are Underpaid

(Ottawa Journal Editorial)

Sir William Mulock's legacy of $50,000 for Mr. Mackenzie King was, as The Journal said yesterday, a fine thing. We think it would be a still finer thing if the deserved security of our public leaders, near or at the close of their careers, rested upon something more dependable, and more creditable to all of us, than the chance generosity of some private individual. What we mean, in the concrete, is that the Prime Minister of Canada—like many others in high public posts—is underpaid.

The salary of the Prime Minister of Canada should rest on three basic needs. It should enable him to maintain adequately the high dignity of the office. It should permit him to meet reasonably the many demands made upon one holding such office. And it should enable him to lay up something for the day when, inevitably, he must relinquish office.

The present salary of the Prime Minister—$15,000—hardly permits of that. Mr. King, more fortunate than many of his predecessors, has enjoyed the advantage of a home presented to him as leader of the Liberal party by the Lauriers and improved by another old friend, Sir P. C. Larkin, but with the income tax at its present height, and with the many calls that must be made upon him as Prime Minister, we suspect it has not been permitted him to save much for his future.

This should not be. If we in this country are to build up a proper respect for our public leaders, and with a greater reverence for our free, democratic institutions, then we must show more than we are showing now that we appreciate public service. We are not showing that appreciation when we pay our Prime Minister a salary smaller than that received by many executives in comparatively minor private businesses. What we are showing instead is a pitifully wrong standard of values. The Prime Minister of Canada should receive a salary of not less than $25,000.

And what goes for the Prime Minister goes for others of our public men in the highest posts. The Minister of Finance, the Minister of Justice, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada—all are underpaid. And with poor consequences. When the late W. S. Fielding left the Ministry of Finance, where he had served 15 years, he had to return to editing a weekly newspaper, was later enabled to return and remain in public life by a fund subscribed by his friends. Only a few years later the same fate came to the late Ernest Lapointe.

A rich country like Canada, and a country which has such great need for the best of its sons to serve it, should not tolerate such things. If it is to win for democracy the public homage without which democracy cannot live, it must stand ready to reward and care for those who serve and help prosper democracy. It must above all instil into the minds of its youth that public service is the highest of all careers, the most satisfying and most honorable, with not the least of its gains the appreciation of those who are served.

FRANCE 36TH UNITED NATION

WHO LACKS CALCIUM AND WHY?

cans and Europeans, at least among dwellers in cities and towns, is probably more often deficient in calcium than in any other chemical element. So says Sherman, in the fifth edition of his textbook, "Chemistry of Food and Nutrition." (Macmillan, '37).

Kugelmass, author of one of the foremost modern textbooks on diseases of children, finds that in most cases of children with low calcium intake the need is to increase the absorption or assimilation or utilization of calcium rather than just to increase the total calcium intake.

It is true that nearly 99 per cent of the three pounds of calcium, 70 to 80 per cent of the 1½ pounds of phosphorus and 70 per cent of the 1½ ounces of magnesium in the body of a healthy adult are contained in the bones and in the teeth. But we should not lose sight of the fact that calcium is just as essential for strong blood, nerves, glands and secretions as it is for strong bones and teeth.

A British authority, Mrs. May Mellanby concluded from her researches and laboratory and clinical studies that the amount of calcium (and phosphorous) necessary for perfect calcification, development and preservation of the teeth may be comparatively low, if the individual gets an abundance of vitamin D; on the other hand even a large supply of calcium in the food will not be utilized unless the individual gets enough vitamin D.

Keeping in mind the fact that calcium is as essential for sound blood, glands and nerves as it is for sound bones, and teeth, consider next the universal practice of physicians today —prescribing regular daily rations of vitamin D in one form or another to supplement the diet of every infant and young child.

Prof. E. V. McCollum one of the discoverers of vitamin A (which was formerly confused with vitamin D) has been quoted as saying: "Deficiency of vitamin D may be the most important dietetic deficiency in the world today." (Country Gentleman, Feb. '35)

The reason why competent physicians universally prescribe vitamin D for infants and young children is of course, the fact that it is practically impossible to get enough vitamin D from foods suitable for infants or young children. Indeed, it practically is impossible, in my opinion, for growing children, youths, young adults or mature adults to get enough vitamin D from their diet. And so—but who am I to horn in on this symposium of nutrition authorities.

To get back to calcium — we'll deal with the vitamin D aspect of the question later — the best food sources of calcium are milk, cheese, greens or leafy vegetables preferably raw but even cooked (cooking dissolves out considerable of the calcium — which is still excellent food if the cooking water is used for soup, gravy etc.), eggs, peanuts, nuts, and vegetables that are good to eat raw, such as turnips, carrots, celery.

ANSWERS & QUESTIONS

Plug of Ear Wax

Every few years ear wax requires removal. Each general practitioner gave me half an hour of discomfort, squirting and scraping. The last time a specialist had me put warm olive oil in ear canal and keep it plugged with cotton over night, to soften the wax. Next day he syringed it and the plug came away without any discomfort, all in a few seconds.

(C.M.)

Answer—Thank you. I believe I forgot to mention the preliminary softening of the plug in that way before the syringing, when I discussed the trouble here recently. Strong solution of saleratus (baking soda, sodium bicarbonate) in a spoonful of glycerin and water may be dropped in ear frequently the day before syringing to remove plug of ear wax.

Communicable Disease

We are a family of 7, the children ranging in age from 18 months to 12 years. It seems we have one cold after another all winter. (Mrs. P.M.C.)

Answer—Perhaps you fail to take proper precautions against the spread of such infection from one to another member of the household. Perhaps in your zeal to avoid exposure to harmless conditions such as cold, drafts, dampness, sudden changes, you keep the kids cooped indoors where they can pass whatever one of them brings home to the others. You may learn something to the advantage of your family's health by studying the booklet "Call it Cri" — for which send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope.

DRUMMING OF GROUSE

How do ruffed grouse drum?

That is a question that has puzzled naturalists for two hundred years or more.

Few persons have actually observed the performance and those who have often disagree as to just how it is done.

The American ruffed grouse, which is popularly known as the pheasant in the central states, and as the partridge in New England, is a shy bird and not given to making a public exhibition of itself.

The drumming sound is made by the cock, chiefly in the spring, which is the mating season. The performance is undoubtedly calculated to impress the females.

Sometimes the drumming can be heard in the woods a mile or more away.

It is small wonder that the naturalists themselves were long at odds as to how ruffed grouse drum.

Henry Thoreau, a good naturalist, thought the sound was produced by the bird striking its wings together behind its back.

Others were equally certain that the male grouse make the characteristic sound by beating his wings against a log.

Another theory was that the bird beat its own sides with its wings.

Motion pictures of ruffed grouse caught in the very act of drumming show clearly that the cock produces the drumming effect merely by beating its wings rapidly on the air close to its body.

He usually perches on a log, grips the log firmly with his feet, begins to beat his wings slowly and increases the tempo until the thumping, booming or drumming sound is produced.

The ruffed grouse is a notable game bird in the northeastern states, and it is the official state bird of Pennsylvania.

Some members of the same order, such as the prairie chicken, make a booming "courtship song" by deflating the air-sacs in the neck.

Whitehall Notebook

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 29. (CP)—Sir William Beveridge, author of the famous "Cradle-and-the-Grave Social Security plan, has become the principal speaker for the Liberal party and there are rumors he will soon succeed Sir Archibald Sinclair as party leader.

Elected to Parliament in a by-election only last October, he toured much of England during the parliamentary recess. One of his principal arguments has been that in the rebuilding of a strong Liberal party—it now holds only 19 of the 615 Commons seats—lies the best safeguard for essential British liberties and British traditions.

The decision of Lord Crewe to retire from leadership of the Liberals in the House of Lords will remove one of the few remaining links with the administrations of the late Ewart Gladstone. In 1892, when Mr. Gladstone began his last term of office, Lord Crewe became lord lieutenant of Ireland.

His successor as liberal leader in the Lords is expected to be Lord Samuel.

Chit-Chat.

Voters in Ross and Cromarty constituency are wondering whether Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, United Kingdom High Commissioner in Canada, will seek re-election as a candidate of National Labor—the five-member group he now heads—or run as an Independent. There have been predictions National Labor may soon dissolve. ..

Sir Murdoch Macdonald, member for Inverness who has been looking after the affairs of the high commissioners' constituents, at 79 is an M.P. of 22 years' standing. He was in charge of building the great Aswam Dam in Egypt early in the century....

Brig. John Alan Caunter, 55, former commander of the 7th Armored Division who defeated the Italians in one of Libya's big victories will be labor candidate n Salisbury....

Miss Megan Lloyd George, daughter of David Lloyd George, the famous Welsh statesman, will be opposed for re-election in Anglesey by 28-year-old FO. Cledwyn Hughes, labor. Miss George is a liberal. . .

David Owen Evans, 68, member for the Welsh riding of Cardigan, is rated one of the richest men in the liberal party. Son of a Welsh farmer, he brought off in 1929 a $120,000,000,000 nickel merger— often termed the "biggest deal in the world"—and now is vice-president of International Nickel Company of Canada.

Bits and Pieces

Vice-Admiral Sir Geoffrey Blake, 62, who retired in 1938 after a long navy career, is being mentioned as a probability for appointment as gentleman usher of the Black Rod, succeeding the late Air Chief Marshal Sir William Mitchell. Sir Geoffrey was once chief of staff, Atlantic Fleet.

Forty-two M.P.P.'s, mostly Conservative, have announced they won't seek re-election.

The Communist Party has claimed membership of 45,000 and income in its last financial year of $215,000.

Earl Baldwin, the former Prime Minister, has been dubbed "England's forgotten man". He spends his time at home in Worcestershire and has broken nearly all his old links with public life. One of his main interests is the "Pilgrim Trust"—founded in 1930 by the late Edward Harkness, American millionaire, with $10,000,000 to be used for the benefit of Britain. Lord Baldwin is one of five trustees. ...

WEDDINGS

ARMIT—ARNOLD

The Y.M.C.A. Hostess House, R.C.A.F., Trenton, decorated in keeping with the festive season was the scene of a very pretty wedding Thursday evening, December 21, when Flt. Lt. Love, Padre of No. 6 R.D., R.C.A.F., Trenton, united in marriage Cpl. Mary Elizabeth Arnold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Arnold, of Marysville, N.B., and LAC. Leonard Rupert Armit, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Armit of Alonsa, Man.

The bride, given in marriage by Flt. Sgt. A. Jas. Purse, wore a navy blue tailored suit with light blue accessories and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. The matron of honor, Mrs. Alan Hunter, wore a blue gabardine dress.

LAC. Allan Hunter was best man.

After the wedding reception, which was held in the Hostess House, the happy couple left for Fredericton, N.B., where they will spend their honeymoon.

CHATTERSON—RICKERSON

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the United Church parsonage in Colborne, on Wednesday, December 20, when Miss Ruth M. Rickerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Rickerson, of Consecon, was married to Mr. Jack Chatterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Chatterson, of Brighton. Rev. G. Campbell conducted the ceremony, and the couple was unattended.

The bride looked lovely in a street-length jacket of gold wool with brown trimmings and corsage of gardenias.

A dinner was served to immediate friends. Later the young couple left by train on a trip to Peterborough.

LAWSON—MILLER

Trenton.—A quiet but pretty wedding and one of great interest was solemnized in St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton, by Rev. K. Blachford, on Thursday, December 28, at two o'clock, when Betty Ann Miller, daughter of Mrs. Miller and the late Mr. B. D. Miller, became the bride of Corporal Russel William Lawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Lawson.

The bride wore a charming afternoon gown in poudre blue shade, complemented with cinnamon brown accessories and corsage of roses.

The matron of honor was her sister-in-law Mrs. Joe Miller Trenton, who was attired in a steel blue ensemble with black accessories and corsage of roses.

Following a short wedding trip to points west, the bride will return to her position as teller in the Bank of Commerce, and the groom is to report at Kingston. The groom has just returned from Overseas on Christmas leave, after having spent five years with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, seeing action in Sicily and Italy. More than a year ago, he was credited with destroying two enemy machine gun posts which were threatening his regiment in Sicily. He has two brothers in the services Overseas and one recently discharged.

IRONING FATIGUE LAID TO POSTURE

Study at Cornell Indicates Most Boards Are Too Low —New Types Proposed

Women who are worn out after a long stretch of ironing are probably using ironing boards that are too low, according to a study by Elaine Knowles of the New York State College of Home Economics at Cornell University. Results of this study, which is part of a general inquiry into the reasons for fatigue in household tasks, will be the subject of a forthcoming Cornell Bulletin for Homemakers.

Since home laundering was considered by a large percentage of homemakers surveyed as the most tiring of household tasks, it was chosen as the first subject for investigation. Observations were made of twenty-three women ironing in their own homes. Studies by an anatomist and members of the United States Bureau of Home Economics showed that the physical proportions of the women varied so widely that no ironing board could be suitable for all. However, a search of markets disclosed that the only ironing boards available were about 31 inches high and not adjustable. Full length profile motion pictures were then made of eleven women ironing at heights ranging from 31 to 35 inches. The figures indicated that homemakers bent over, swayed and moved more often using the 31-inch boards, causing unnecessary fatigue.

At forty-five-minute intervals, investigators struck while the irons were hot. With standard clinical equipment and under controlled laboratory conditions, they measured the metabolic rate, pulmonary ventilation, oxygen consumption and blood pressure of four women pressed into service for three-hour ironing periods on each of three different days.

Sample tests and subjective statements of the women on their weariness showed that they needed much more energy to work at surfaces not of a comfortable height. The results are considered specially significant, since they may be applied to other tasks, such as washing the dishes and mixing batter, which also require a work surface.

Dress Trimmings Newest Feature In Dress Designing

This season, dress trimmings are highly important. It is difficult to name a trimming that is not in the fashion picture. Montreal designers with a strong prophetic sense of what smart women want have been adding drama to their creations with novel buttons, jewelled ornaments, sequins, embroideries, lace... anything that points up the prevailing mood of elegance.

A Montreal couturier who speaks, naturally, with the voice of authority says that in this list should be included self-fabric bows, ruffles, draping and color contrast used in such flattering, unusual ways that they give the effect of trimmings. One of his recent triumphs in after-dark dresses, a one-piece style, embodies both ideas of accent-interest. Soft draping at the front of the slim skirt is highlighting by a vertical band of dress fabric that holds the drapery in place near the waistline. Large buttons scintillate from this banding. Matching buttons are placed on the draped, semi-kimono sleeves which are banded in the same manner as the skirt drapery.

Self-color sequins are used in all-over decoration on another dress with a cowl neckline. Even the twin clips are made of sequins! Equally delightful designs with trimming glamour include a party fashion featuring wide lace bands. The Venise lace outlines the bateau neck at front and comes to a deep V at the back. The same lace is inset in the skirt at the hipline at front only.

Fabric worked into a deep lattice-work banding is used lavishly on a bolero dress. The lattice effect rounds the perky bolero and edges the short sleeves. It stands out because it is a shade vividly contrasting with the dress color. In fact, there is no end to the interesting color-contrast ideas. Many of these draw the gaze to dropped shoulders wide armholes and exciting cuff treatments.

Much can be said about the new belts, which bring the eyes down to the waistline. Some are thickly encrusted with make-believe jewels. Some have a restrained glitter with monotone sequins. Braid, too, decorate belts and forms ornaments for bodice or skirt.

Correct Body Pose All Important

We often wonder if sloppy clothes and those unattractive shoes worn by some high school girls aren't responsible for the sloppy carriage that is so prevalent. Middle-aged women are inclined to carry themselves splendidly, being mindful of the effect carriage has on attire—imparting style and manner.

If anything in the world bores and maddens a Sweet Young Thing more than a slap on the back and being told to stand up straight, we don't know what it is. Later in life, when the S Y T finds that she is trundling around a meal-bag shape, she may wish that she had listened to tiresome elders.

Among the many bad effects that come from the slouchy attitude, the undeveloped chest is not the least. The chest, or thorax is a cone-shaped cage of which the spinal column forms a fixed part. If this air compartment is to be sound and healthy, if the lungs are to function freely, the supporting backbone must be held upright. The stooping attitude may be the beginning of spinal curvature.

Unless the pose of the body is vibrant and correct, there is bound to be muscular weakness. Shoulders and back will ache when the proper positions for walking, sitting and standing are not maintained. Fatigue results. What then? Pale complexion, lagging steps, jumpy nerves.

Breathing exercises, together with the correct pose of the spinal column, will do much to bring normal an undeveloped chest and bust. The majority of girls and women are shallow breathers, which accounts for the fact that we don't grow our blushes, but buy them at cosmetic counters. Deep, thorough, forced respiration is essential to completely change the air contents of the lungs, to maintain the elasticity of the lung tissues, to expand the chest.

Take a good long drink of fresh air; it will stir up, disinfect and cool the stagnant, residual air. By blowing out the air through the lips—you should inhale through the nostrils—you will expel respiratory debris.

One cause of foul breath is lack of fresh air taken into the lungs. Every good housekeeper who is fussy about airing the family menage should appreciate this beauty ritual, perform it daily.

There are three processes of breathing, one is clavicular, which is a slow inhalation with a lifting of the collar bones and shoulders; costal, the second, is throwing out and expanding the chest fully; diaphragmatic, the third, is the depression of the diaphragm and the protruding of the abdominal muscles without raising the ribs.

Try all of these breathing exercises if you are among the good looks supplicants who are eager to put up a better front.

Without good posture, breathing will not be free and deep. Paste that in your hat, young lady, if you to have a slouchy figure.

Here's a New Angle on the Taken-For-Granted Wife

They still continue to come, letters from taken-for-granted wives. The following letter offers a new angle—the delinquent husband in this case is not making love to his wife's boarders or spending the allowance his wife gives him for lunches and carfare, on other women while she is out working.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"Very often the taken-for-granted wife brings it on herself by her attitude toward her 'weak-sister' husband. When a tired woman tries to do the two jobs—earn the family living and do the house work before she leaves in the morning and the cooking when she comes home at night—ten to one she becomes a nagger.

"So, the husband, who, like the lily of the field, toils not neither does he spin, goes to the tavern to escape her nagging tongue. Her children probably come in for a dose of this too, and so the poor overworked nagging woman is not only taken-for-granted, but deserted.

"The thing that worries me is the position of our fighting men when they come from overseas. My son has been well-educated, left a good job when he was drafted. My daughter-in-law is intelligent and counts the days when she may return to her home to live with her husband and babies. But all families are not similarly blessed.

"There is the irresponsible, poorly educated and somewhat silly girl who has taken a job while her husband is away fighting. She's dazzled by eating around at swel restaurants, treated by soldiers and slackers. She's dazzled by the fur coat she's bought on the installment plan.

"Home will have few charms for her when her G.I. Joe comes marching home. Her head's been turned by the money she's been able to earn. She'll start nagging and belittling her husband, and will refuse to give up her job so that he, or some other woman's husband who has been facing death, may have one.

"This type of femininity strikes me as more of a menace to this country than the Communism we've heard so much about of late.

Never Taken—for-Granted."

GOOD MANNERS

How to greet the New Year with a cheer...have all your Christmas thank-you notes written! It will be a grand and glorious feeling...for you, for your present-giving friends.

There are two kinds of people. Those who endear themselves to givers-of-gifts by writing prompt and enthusiastic notes of appreciation. And, alas and alack (and it is a—"lack) those non?endearing procrastinators who either put off writing their thank you notes so long that their words of thanks are caught in a blackout of delay-excuses, or who, with a maddening casualness, lazily wait to thank for gifts until they chance to meet the givers.

Even two sentences of thanks written now, this week, are far, far more welcome to the giver than four pages of flimsy excuses written weeks from now. Keep this thought high in your heart, and set a time-limit...the day before New Year's ...when all your Christmas thank-you letters "simply must" be written.

It's fun to write a prompt thank-you note, because fresh and bright in your heart is the giver's kindness to you and your joy in receiving the gift. But it's a grim chore to write a too-long-delayed thank-you note, for then your words of thanks have to waddle along after your lame-duck excuse, "I have been meaning for weeks to write to thank you for your Christmas present, but I have been so terribly busy." (The giver's reaction: "Too busy to be polite, eh?") Not a bright outlook for your popularity with your friend, who has been wondering if her gift ever arrived, and who may have been wondering if she perhaps had chosen the thing you most didn't want.

So let's get pens going now. Dip them in hearty words of appreciation to your friends. Have a "you-and-me" chat with them on paper, about their generous thought of you, about their gift, about special featres of their gift. If you're the kind of person who talks with gusto, write your notes with gusto ...the more enthusiastic your words the more your friends will love them. If you're naturally somewhat conservative, your notes will probably be somewhat restrained...but remember that words of thanks aren't rationed.

I like best a thank-you note that begins with a bow of appreciation for the thought behind the gift. So many notes of thanks begin somewhat like this, "Thank you so much for the lovely evening bag you sent me for Christmas," or "I love the beautiful handkerchiefs you gave me." This isn't really incorrect, of course, but I'm sure you will agree with me that it puts the emphasis too quickly on the thing, not on the spirit-of-the-giving. On the other hand, such a simple beginning as "How good you were to plan such happiness for my Christmas" takes the emphasis away from "value received." And this is doing what a thank-you-note should do, writing from the point of view of the giver...first the thought, then the gift. Those opening words of thanking for the thought give your letter a charming and warm-hearted send-off.

Don't use correspondence cards or other skimpy cards that give the impression that you're limiting the number of your words of thanks to fit the scant space, and please don't stoop to sending ready-made cards of thanks...avoid them as you would a plague, for that's just what they are. Don't cheat your friends out of your words of thanks by sending them the printer's words of thanks!

Mention the gift by name (don't vagely thank for "your gift"). Have the gift in front of you as you write, and polish up your most enthusiastic words to write delightedly about not only how "lovely" it is, but about its special features as well...satisfying words to make your friend happy and proud that he or she chose just that gift.

Then "Oh, what a beautiful morning!"...New Year's morning, with your Christmas thank-you notes all written.

Fashion Flashes

HIGH STYLE milliners like to match hats with gloves. A manipulated turban of aqua beaver felt, trimmed with cabbage roses is teamed up with aqua suede gloves with rose embroidery.

THE BIG TREND in Spring fashions is towards the cape, both as a separate entity and cut in one with coat or frock. Green sheer wool crepe makes a pretty frock, the cape cut in one with the dress in back, falling loosely over an embroidered white gilet in front.

SOMETHING NEW in fabrics is a blend of fur hairs, wool and spun rayon. Silver fox, mink and muskrat hair is used, and the fabric appears for dresses, sweater and accessories.

NEVER MORE white than this winter, with emphasis on white hats, white dresses and an occasional white coat. Oyster-white wool is used for a very smart coat of three-quarter length. It is cut with dolman sleeves, is a wraparound model and has a deep border of glossy black-dyed white fox.

RED ROSES bloom on some of the prettiest hats. Burgundy satin is used for a pretty sailor trimmed with a cluster of red roses under the thick brim.

GET READY for a colorful-clothes Spring. A typical Spring frock of sheer wool crepe has the high, rounded necklines yoke and cap sleeves in yellow, the centre of the bodice in rose, and the remainder to the waist in powder blue. Skirt is in rose woolen. Shoulder yoke is trimmed with big buttons.

The Woes of the Pint-Sized

Anne Shirley is a Diminutive Beauty

By HELEN FOLLETT

PINT-SIZED girls bemoan their diminutive stature, but don't you believe they are in earnest. They have tongue in cheek, and fingers crossed. They know perfectly well that they'd rather be too little than too big; too short than too tall.

Now and then you will find a deluded one among them who will not dress to type, but puts on long skirts and tall hats. And what does she look like, I ask you? As if she were togged out in grandma's clothes! High heels will add a few inches, but if they are spiked to the limit, they throw the body out of balance, and that won't do.

Choice of Clothes

The tiny woman has every advantage when choosing clothes. She can go in for cute dry goods and not look silly, no matter what her age may be. She should wear gay little dresses and smart, youthful, small hats. In any other kind of attire she is out of character. Dark colors aren't suitable because they make her look even smaller. Striped fabrics are out of the question. In the design of the frock there should be few cross lines because they cut down measurement from head to toe.

Capitalize Figure

The small girl should not try to look taller. She should capitalize her petite figure by selecting frocks, coats and millinery that accent her diminutive form. It's fun for her to go shopping. Fancy the worries and tribulations of Plumpie who must patronize the stylish stouts department, and often has to have her purchases altered!

Cutie must think of her smallness as an asset, which it is, if she is dainty and graceful, gracious of maner, keeps herself beautifully groomed. Certainly it is no blight wished upon her by an unkind fate.

The Marry Go Round

This Passing Show

Advice To Modern Girls: By all means go in for a career; but to be a complete success, don't fail to come out with a husband.

When an obscure young man succeeds in marrying a gilded society girl he becomes a famous person of absolutely no importance—except to his divorce lawyer—if you get what I mean.

There is a tide in the affairs of every bachelor which, taken at its flood, leads on to marriage. It is that strange moment of restlessness and self-pity (usually around the holidays) called "the marrying mood", when any girl who happens to be around looks just like "Destiny."

When you see a bride walking down the aisle you may be reasonably sure that she is following her own inclinations—and so is the bridegroom.

One good thing this war has done is to revive the art of writing love-letters. Before then, so much of our courting was done via the telephone and telegraph that many a bride didn't know her husband's handwriting until she saw it on a check.

The plainest girl can manage to attain synthetic beauty in these days of magic surgery and cosmetics; but there seems to be no way of duplicating brains.

A man doesn't need to understand a woman. He needs only to love her enough and she will do the "understanding" for both of them.

Everybody is constantly diagnosing marriage; but nobody ever yet seems to have discovered any rule, formula or prescription that will make it foolproof.

With some girls the difference between casual friendship and romantic love is just about three old-fashioneds.

Self-possession is nine points of the love-game.

Maurice Richard Scores 5 Goals As Montreal Canadiens Defeat Detroit Red Wings by 9 to 1

Boston Bruins Strengthen Their Position by Downing Chicago 2-1

By FRED KERNER
(CP Staff Writer)

The rushing Detroit Red Wings met a stone wall Thursday night, and the stone wall was none other than the Montreal Canadiens — the team the Red Wings were rushing to overtake. Jack Adams' point-picking four-game win streak burst like a toy balloon to the tune of 9-1.

Dick Irvin's first line aggregation of Toe Blake, Maurice Richard and Elmer Lach, who individually and collectively hold a number of N.H.L. season and play-off records, were the driving punch in the Montreal game and between them they garnered 16 points. The Canadien Comet — otherwise known as Maurice (Rocket) Richard — bounced the puck into Harry Lumley's net five times, and picked up three more points in the form of assists, which created a new National Hockey League mark.

Richard's eight points put him into a second-place tie on the individual scoring list with Boston Bill Cowley, while Blake grabbed three points to boost his total to 37 — four ahead of the second-spot scorers. Grinning Elmer Lach was no slouch on the job, scoring a brace of goals with three assists.

Robbed of Shutout

In Boston, former Canadien goalie Paul Bibeault gave his new mates on Art Ross' club a helping hand as they downed Chicago 2-1. Bibeault, in his first N.H.L. start of the season, held Hawks scoreless for 54 minutes and 29 seconds and was robbed of a shutout by Cully Dahlstrom.

Bill Durnan in Canadiens' net thwarted Detroit's scoring efforts for 53 minutes and 16 seconds, but Syd Howe finally broke the ice for Wings and prevented Irish Bill from his initial goose-egg of the season.

Richard's eight points in the contest was one better than the seven collected by Don (Detroit) Grosso on Feb. 3, 1944 against Rangers. Grosso scored one goal and was in on six other plays as the Manhattan squad was trounced 12-2.

One Shy of Record

Buddy O'Connor accounted for the ninth Canadien goal.

The cellar-dwelling Hawks kept their lowly abode, though they waged a tough battle against the Rossmen. For two and one-third periods it was a scoreless struggle, but rookie Gino (Rosie) Rozzini set up a neat pass in front of Paul Gladu, who beat Mike Karakas. Four minutes later Bill Cupolo clinched the game for Bruins with a close-in shot.

Following up its shutdown directive on horse racing, effective Jan. 3, the United States government last night warned that a further order would be forthcoming to prohibit the transportation of horses except to home stables. It was suggested at Washington that the order would prevent the shipment of thoroughbreds from southern tracks to tracks outside the country.

The Office of Defence Transportation, Washington, expressed opposition to the Detroit move to reopen Devonshire track in Windsor, Ont., on the ground that racing there would impose an additional burden on transportation facilities in the Detroit area.

Larry Bolvin, New England featherweight champion, announced last night at his Providence, R.I., home he had withdrawn from a scheduled bout with Phil Terranova at Boston Jan. 4 and was retiring from the ring until spring because of a sinus ailment. Previously at Boston it had been stated Bolvin had decided not to fight because of statements of James F. Byrnes, War Mobilization Director, regarding the wartime activities of pro athletes, who should be physically fit for military service.

A crowd of only 6,363 at Tropical Park, Miami, yesterday bet $511,719 on nine races, the feature of which was the nose victory of Greentree Stable's Spangled Game over He Rolls in the Orlando Purse in the record time of 1:40 for the mile and 70 yards. Ted Atkinson of Toronto was on the winning mount.

Toronto, Dec. 29 — (CP) — We gather from the press reports that Neil Colville, former New York Rangers nifty, is still as smooth as ever on the blades. Colville played with the R.C.A.F. team that beat Navy 2-0 in Winnipeg the other night. Reports Tony (Winnipeg Tribune) Allan: "Colville's first goal was just about the prettiest seen here this season. Colville's second goal was the prettiest seen here this season." Nuff said.

Barrel Bottoms:

The hockey scouts have left no stone unturned in their search for talent of any kind in the Montreal area. Bax (Montreal Star) O'Meara reports that the ivory hunters are searching the provincial and Montreal loops, having exhausted all possibilities in the upper senior brackets. So, he surmises, they will be lining the galleries at school games, since youth really is having its fling these days in the N.H.L.

Inflation, no Less:

Some of the teen-age hockey youngsters have quite an inflated value of their worth now. Jim (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman reports the case of a public-spirited minor hockey promoter who is baffled by it all. One of his 15-year-olds said he would play hockey for him, but wanted to know how much it would be worth to him. Another wouldn't play unless he got a new suit. The promoter, reports Coleman, is thinking of quitting such a thankless racket and opening a "nice quiet little bucketshop where he can sell penny gold stock to the widows and orphans."

Sewed Up:

One of the most stitched-over figures in hockey belongs to Helgy Bostrum, former Chicago Black Hawks performer, who revisited the ancestral acres in Winnipeg recently. Maurice Smith of the Winnipeg Free Press recalls the time Bostrum had his leg gashed to the tune of 162 stitches while playing against New York Rangers. That must be clearly an all-time high for a single bit of skate surgery.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

By The Canadian Press

Maurice Richard, Canadiens — who drove home five goals and assisted in three more as Detroit Red Wings suffered a 9-1 defeat at Montreal.

Syd Howe, Detroit — who scored the third-period goal that saved Red Wings from a shut-out.

Bill Cupolo, Boston, who made the tally that clinched Bruins' 2-1 victory over Chicago.

BOXING RECORD INTACT — BUT THEIR SHIP IS GONE

Athletic contests have been cancelled for many reasons but the members of the U.S.S. Princeton's boxing team claim they have a new one. The Princeton boxers had a match scheduled with the boxers of a large carrier but a Jap dive bomber hit their ship and the Princeton sank. All the ring crew survived the sinking. Above, the Princeton team's coach, Seaman [illegible], left, gives a few hints to Steward's Mate First Class Nate Allen of Georgetown, S.C., the Princeton light-heavy champ. Allen was a high-ranking middleweight two years ago under the ring name of Buddy O'Dell.

STEPHENS WINS R.B.I. HONORS IN JUNIOR LOOP

Browns' Shortstop Drove Home 109, and Was Only Two Short on Etten's Home Run Mark in American League

By JERRY LISKA
(AP Sport Writer)

Chicago, Dec. 29 — (AP)—Shortstop Vernon Stephens batted a modest .293 last season, but his 'clutch' hitting which sparked St. Louis Browns to the American League pennant gave him the prized runs-batted-in championship with 109.

Official figures released today showed Stephens, who was runner-up in home runs with 20 — two less than champion Nick Etten of New York Yankees — edged Boston's ace Bob Johnson by three in capturing the R.B.I. crown.

Despite Stephens' individual championship, the Browns were 3rd in team runs-batted-in behind the Red Sox, who aggregated 681, and the Yankees, who had 631, but the pennant winners emerged with a new league record for hitting into the fewest double plays, 93. The former record of 94 was shared by three clubs.

Two other players attained the 100 mark in R.B.I. — Johnny Lindell of the Yankees with 103 and Stan Spence of Washington with 100. In 1943, only York and Etten drove in 100 or more runs.

Home-run king Etten also drew the most walks, 97, topping Johnson by two and falling nine short of the 1943 winning total of Charley Keller of the Yankees. Jim Seerey of Cleveland won the undesirable distinction of striking out most, 99 times, followed by New York's George Stirnweiss with 87.

George Kell of Philadelphia set the pace in grounding into double plays with 28, while George McQuinn of the Browns thumped into only one twin killing in 146 games. Bob Ortiz of the Senators was the best pitcher's target. He was hit eight times by pitched balls.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Dec. 29. (AP)— The biggest reason why Herbert Bayard Swope resigned as chairman of the New York State Racing Commission probably was that he was the only real "racing man" on that body. . . Brig.-Gen. John J. Phelan's term as chairman of the New York Athletic Commission is soon to expire and that means two big jobs will have to be filled . . . The New York Commissions are probably most influential of all in their respective sports. . . . Incidentally, the Racing Commission job is salaryless, although New York made more than $39,000,000 from racing in 1944. . .

One-Minute Sports Page.

When Wilbert Robinson made seven hits in one game at Baltimore in 1892—the only time it ever has been done in Major League baseball—not one Baltimore paper mentioned the feat. . . It didn't go into the record books until many years later, when Robbie casually referred to it while talking to Heywood Broun. . . If lightweight Willie Joyce repeats his victory over Ike Williams in Philadelphia, Jan. 8, Los Angeles promoters want him to come back and meet N.B.A. Champ Juan Zurita.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

Not Long.

The pompous stranger stalked into the office and demanded to see the manager.

"I'm sorry, but he's not here", replied the clerk. "Is there anything I can do?"

"No", snapped the visitor. "I never deal with underlings. I'll wait until the manager returns".

"Very well, take a seat", said the clerk, and went on with his work.

About an hour later the man got impatient.

"How much longer do you think the manager will be?" he demanded.

"Oh, about a fortnight," was the calm reply. "He started his holidays yesterday!"

New Hockey Rules.

With the hockey season rapidly approaching a slight glance over the newly-instituted 1945 playing rules would doubtless be in order at this time.

There are only a few major changes in the actual playing rules pertaining to the governing of legal or illegal icing of the puck and what constitutes an onside or offside play. Of course the puck may not be shot the length of the ice when both teams are at full strength, that is to say not until after it has been carried over the centre-ice red line.

Prior to this winter the rule permitted shooting the puck the length of the ice once it had been carried over the blue line of the defending team. When a team is shorthanded it still may shoot the puck the length of the ice, as was the rule previously. It will also be noted that the defending team can make a legal pass from behind its own blue line up to the centre red line, but the pass must be completed or the puck touched by the receiver before it crosses the red line. Once a player has crossed his own blue line he may pass the puck to a mate up to the blue line of the opposing team, and it is not offside because it was passed over the centre red line. In other words, legal passes may be made between all blue lines, but while on the attack a player must not precede the puck over his rival's blue line, as was the regulation last season. The only time a pass from beyond the centre red line into an opponent's defensive zone is legal occurs in the event the puck enters a rival's net. Referees, therefore, have been cautioned not to call the play back for icing the puck until it crosses the penalty shot line of the defending team and it does not enter the net.

Advice From Babe.

When Jimmie Dykes, manager of the Chicago White Sox, was in New York the other week for the major he was even more talkative than ever.

During the height of the convention somehow or other the conversation got around to scouting minor league talent and Jimmy's eyes began to twinkle. "The best one I ever heard", he remarked, "was the time Babe Ruth entered the Yankee dressing room just before a game and was surprised to see Mike McNally fully dressed. You remember Mike, don't you? Good field, no hit. Well, the Babe took a gander at him and said, 'Where are you going, Mike?' McNally answered, 'Huggins wants me to scout a pitcher for him in New Haven. So he gave me the afternoon off'. The Babe grinned at him. 'Take a bat with you, Mike,' he advised, 'and if you can hit him, leave him there because he's no good.' "

Remember When.

The National League baseball records for 1937, released seven years ago today, gave Joe Medwick, St. Louis Cardinal leftfielder, the circuit's most valuable player award. Medwick led league batting with a percentage of .374. He also won fielding honors for outfielders with a .988 average and tied with Mel Ott, New York Giants, for most home runs with 31.

Interesting, What?

Only 11 players, two of whom are still in action, have ever scored as many as 200 goals in their National Hockey League careers. . . Nels Stewart, Howie Morenz, Aurel Joliat, Harvey Jackson, Bill Cook, Charley Conacher, Cy Denneny, Dit Clapper, Cecil (Babe) Dye, Hooley Smith and Syd Howe. . . Of course you don't have to be told that Clapper and Howe are the only ones of those mentioned who have a chance of bettering their present mark. . . New York Giants are still hopeful of making a deal with the Pittsburgh Pirates for Vince DiMaggio.

Toronto excels all other cities in the National Hockey League in the names of teams that have represented that city in organized professional hockey. . . Since Toronto entered the professional hockey field prior to the Great War, including both National Association and National League, its teams have been Tecumsehs, Ontarios, Shamrocks, 228th Battalion, Toronto, Toronto Arenas, St. Pat's, and now the Maple Leafs.

PROVIDENCE REDS SCORE SHUTOUT

(By The Canadian Press)

Providence Reds scored their first shut-out of the season last night as they defeated Indianapolis Capitals 6-0 in an American Hockey League fixture at Providence. The win cut short the Capitals seven-game undefeated streak but left the winning Providence team cellar-dwellers in the Eastern Division.

Jacques Lavoie opened the scoring in the initial period and was followed early in the second frame by Paul Courteau and Roland Forget. The fourth Providence goal was scored at 2:23 of the third period by Lavoie with Freeman Jack and Forget adding tallies several minutes later to bring the final score to 6-0.

BIG SEVEN

By The Canadian Press

Toe Blake of Canadiens added 3 points to his total last night as the Flying Frenchmen defeated Detroit 9-1, giving him a four-point lead in the National Hockey League scoring race. Maurice Richard, with five goals and three assists, jumped from fifth spot to a second-place tie with Bill Cowley of Boston, held scoreless as Bruins won a 2-1 victory over Chicago.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 562
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

George Washington would have made a good bridge player. Not to tell a lie is the outstanding virtue in the best bridge partner.

Bridge is an honorable game. The players in it are inherently honest. The trouble is, not all of them know the truthful way of expressing themselves with bids.

Take the subject of jump bids. There is an honest meaning to every type of jump. Its meaning depends on how high is the jump. Comparison shows they follow an unmistakeable pattern.

Jumps are in three groups: one-jumps, double-jumps, high jumps. A one-jump shows strength; a double-jump shows length with some strength; a high-jump (to game) shows length only.

A one-jump opening shows strength enough to make game; makes no promise of unusual suit length. A one-jump response shows two sure tricks in strength enough to help make game; makes no promise of unusual suit length.

A double-jump opening shows unusual length and strength in some suit with some outside strength. A double-jump response shows unusual length and strength in some suit.

A high-jump (to game) opening shows unusual length in some suit and denies outside strength. A high-jump (to game) response shows unusual length in some suit and denies strength anywhere.

Speak the truth about this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠A K 9 5
♥6
♦K Q 10 4
♣A 7 6 2

♠7 2
♥Q J 9 8 7 5 4 2
♦8 3
♣4

South opens with one spade. At anything but hearts, the north hand is practically worthless. But with south's opening, north may have a game in hearts.

He has not two high cards for a normal response of two hearts. He has not two sure tricks for a one-jump response. But he could make a game-jump to four hearts.

That would say: "Partner, I have a flock of hearts and nothing else. Lay off, McDuff. Even if it kills you, let me rest in peace."

Such things happen in a bridge game.

250,000 Extra Men Needed in Britain To Reinforce Lines

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 29. (CP Cable) — The emphasis on Britain's manpower situation has shifted. A couple of weeks ago it was on plans for partial demobilization of the armed forces after Germany was defeated, with consequent prospects for increased civilian production.

But that was changed by the unexpected announcement that 250,000 extra men are needed "to sustain and nourish our Allies in the lines".

It has been emphasized that this call-up was not the result of the German's pre-Christmas offensive. The public accepted the explanation but at the same time there is a widespread belief that it indicates officials now think beating Germany—and later Japan—is a bigger job than was anticipated when Allied armies raced through France and Belgium into Holland.

This country already is at the bottom of its manpower and the 250,000 men probably will be harder to find than any previous similar number.

Proposals drafted by H. C. Emmerson, manpower chief at the Labor Ministry, are understood to be under study by the cabinet and call-up papers likely will start coming before Jan. 15.

According to one report, 200,000 men will be drafted from industry and 50,000 transferred from other services, including civil defence.

Men aged 35 and over are not likely to be affected by the call-up but may be directed to war work or employment other than present jobs as part of the plan to release for the army men who now are deferred.

Dog Left for Dead And Reported Buried Is Found Alive

Toronto, Dec. 29. (CP)—A dog which was thought to have died 17 months ago and was reported buried in the dump in suburban Leaside has been found by its owner, Mrs. S. H. Bishop. Mrs. Bishop spotted boots, an Airedale, on the street yesterday. "Boots knew me sure", she said. The dog was overcome in a fire in July, 1943 dragged out by firemen who left it for dead. Mrs. Bishop had been informed later it had been buried.

Prime Minister To Make Decision On Election Date

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(CP Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 29 — (CP) — The big political decision of 1945 will be taken shortly if it has not already been taken. It will determine when a general election is to be held, and the man who must take it is Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

The German offensive makes the decision more difficult for him, but there is no indication yet it will alter the basis on which he has already indicated he will proceed.

Parliament stands adjourned until Jan. 31 and in political circles here opinion is about evenly divided as to whether it will ever assemble again.

The latest war developments make it clear there is little prospect of the European war being ended before the term of the present parliament expires in April.

Mr. King's position for more than a year, reiterated at the recent special meeting of parliament, has been that there should not be a general election while the European war is in progress and that the five-year constitutional term of parliament should not be extended.

If the war does not end before the term of parliament he is up against a choice between the two courses he wished to avoid — an election with the war in progress or extending the term of parliament.

Objects to Extension

The prime minister has never said which of the two he regarded as the greater evil but his associates have always considered his objections to extending the term to be greater than his objections to an election while fighting is in progress. The circumstances of the time and the confidential reports the prime minister has at his disposal on the state of things at the front will influence his decision.

Mr. King's choices are three:

1. To dissolve parliament before Jan. 31 and have a general election, presumably in March or April;

2. To re-assemble parliament for part or all of its unexpected term with an election in mind for May or June;

3. To re-assemble parliament and ask for an extension of its life.

As between the first two choices some observers see no point in calling parliament for two months with an election assured at the end. All that could be done would be the passing of estimates and a budget and much of the speaking would be for election purposes.

Possibility of Mr. King taking the third course is not taken seriously except in the case of the war outlook taking a grave turn. Constitutionally it can be done, as it was during the First Great War.

If such an address were not passed unanimously the situation might be embarrassing and there is evidence it would meet with opposition.

Melrose

Melrose — Thirty ladies of School Section No. 17 were present at Melrose School on Thursday afternoon to enjoy a short program put on by pupils and a social time when the teacher and her scholars served refreshments. Mrs. F. Jeffrey acted as chairlady. A vote of thanks was extended to the children and their teacher, Miss Jessie Whiteman, for the pleasing entertainment.

On Thursday evening a crowd gathered at the township hall for the school concert sponsored by the teacher and pupils of S. S. 15. The lengthy program included songs, readings and dialogues and concluded with the arrival of Santa Claus who distributed gifts to all the children. Tickets had been sold on a fruit cake and Miss Jessie Whiteman was asked to make the draw to decide the winner. Mr. Frank Doyle held the lucky ticket. Mrs. O'Neil and her scholars are to be congratulated on their successful entertainment, proceeds of which go to the Junior Red Cross. A two-piece orchestra supplied music for dancing during the remainder of the evening.

The Sunday morning church service was fairly well attended. A number of carols were sung and Miss Marion Blatherwick contributed as a vocal solo "Silent Night." The choir also gave special music.

Rev. Mr. Lougheed and his son, Mr. Keith Lougheed, R.C.A., spent the Sunday dinner hour with Mrs. H. Demille.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McMeechan held a family gathering on Christmas Day.

Mr. and Mrs. A. English and Margaret spent Christmas with relatives at Forfar.

Mrs. A. Winter has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Knapp, at the home of Mrs. R. M. Badgley. Mr. and Mrs. Badgley entertained other relatives also on Christmas Day.

Mrs. B. McKinney and Miss E. Embury of Toronto arrived here on Friday night to spend the holiday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Embury. They spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Snider, Napanee.

The Misses McLaren entertained friends on Christmas Day.

Mrs. R. C. English left on Wednesday to spend the winter with Mrs. Dowdell, Shannonville.

Miss Teresa Forestell of Kingston is spending the holidays at her home here.

Mrs. A. Riley entertained friends from Toronto and St. Catharines over the weekend and holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Snider spent Christmas Day with Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Sills.

Mrs. Nealy passed away early last week. Relatives from here attended the funeral in Napanee on Wednesday afternoon.

ONE-ARM HUNTER AND HIS KILL

Loss of an arm while deer hunting three years ago didn't stop Earl Hast, 31, of Castle Shannon, near Pittsburgh, from bagging this 160-pound buck. Hast shows how he shoots his rifle by resting it on a tripod. And he also exhibits the deer.

You Women Who Suffer From

HOT FLASHES then CHILLY FEELINGS

During 38 to 52 Years of Age!

If you—like so many women between the ages of 38 and 52—suffer from hot flashes, weak, tired, nervous irritable feelings, are a bit blue at times—all due to the functional middle age period peculiar to women—try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms.

Pinkham's Compound is one of the best known medicines you can buy for this purpose. Here's a product that helps nature and that's a sensible kind to buy! Thousands upon thousands have reported benefits. Follow label directions. Pinkham's Compound is worth trying.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was eating breakfast with her hat on, saying, Oh dear I'm sure that laundry man will call today when there's not a sole in the house. He only calls every 2nd week now, so I should think at least he would pick out a settled day and call on it instead of skipping like a proverbial flea anywhere from Monday to Saturday, she said.

He's probably just making up for the time when he had to call regularly twice a week on the same day at the same hour, pop said. It's an intristing proof of the old law of fizzicks which states that nothing is lost in nature, or whatever goes up must come down, he said, and ma said, The question is, if I leave the laundry bag at the front door he probably wont call and somebody will have a needless chance to steal the laundry, and if I dont leave it out he'll be sure to be true to his usual habits and call just when I dont want him to.

You seem to be on the horns of a dilemma, my dear, or to put it more appropriately, you're skating on 2 bars of laundry soap, pop said, and I said, How would it be if I stay home from school and wait for him?

Such an idea, the idea, ma said, and pop said, Nothing can take the place of education, Benny. On the other clenliness come before mere money so I'll stay home from the office and wait for him, he said.

You're both very noble and self sacrificing, I'm sure, but now that I come to think of it, he promised me faithfully that he'd call tomorrow morning without fail, ma said. So thank goodness there's nothing to worry about except whether his word is to be trusted, she said.

Being the end of the subject.

CATCH UP WITH MAIL, ALL BUT

London, Ont., Dec. 28 (CP) —After delivering about 225,000 letters and cards and 2,000 parcels over Christmas, post office officials here reported last night they were all caught up—"except for these." They pointed to a pile of 5,000 cards and another pile of 3,000 cards and letters—all incorrectly addressed.

TRUCKMAN DIES IN HOSPITAL

London, Ont., Dec. 28 — (CP) — Russell Miller, 40, of Sarnia, trapped in the wreckage of his truck for more than an hour last night after an accident at Strathroy, died early today at St. Joseph's Hospital where he had been moved for treatment.

Hospital authorities said that the body has been released by the coroner and will be moved to Sarnia for burial.

OFFERS GREAT OPPORTUNITIES

Toronto, Dec. 29 — (CP) —Premier Drew of Ontario in a New Year's broadcast over an Ontario network last night said confidence in the future is Canada's main need at this new year and Canada "offers greater opportunities for all its people than any other nation in the world."

Gen. E. G. Weeks Awarded O.B.E. In Latest List

Ottawa, Dec. 29. (CP)—Maj.-Gen. Ernest G. Weeks 48, Charlottetown and Toronto, recently appointed chief administrative officer at Canadian military headquarters in London, was one of the 74 officers and men listed today by defence headquarters as receiving honors and awards for service in the Mediterranean. No citations were given.

Gen. Weeks, a former deputy chief of the general staff and later on service in Italy, was one of four high-ranking officers made commanders of the Order of the British Empire.

The others were Brig. E. W. Haldenby, 51, Toronto, former commander of the 48th Highlanders and recently commander of a base reinforcement unit; Brig. G. A. McCarter, 46, Vernon, B.C., and Kingston, Ont., recently returned from overseas to the Pacific Command and Brig. E. A. McCusker, 54, Regina, chief medical officer of the 1st Division.

One D.S.O. Awarded.

The list also included the award of the Distinguished Service Order to Col. H. M. Costly Proposition To 'Step Out' This New Year's Eve

By The Canadian Press

Canadians who "step out" this New Year's Eve are going to find it a costly proposition with prices at hotel ballrooms, cabarets and night clubs ranging up to $15 per couple cover charge. Despite these charges a survey shows that reservations generally are more numerous than last year and many entertainment spots are booked to capacity.

In Halifax where year-end celebrations are limited to hotel and dance hall parties since there are no night clubs, prices range up to $5 per couple and reservations have been closed for some time now. The same situation exists at Saint John with reserved bookings filled for more than a week.

Prices Board regulations prevent Montreal's many night clubs, hotel ballrooms and dance halls from raising their prices over last year's fees, and so the top varies from $10 to $15 a couple, including dinner and dancing — liquid refreshments extra at popular prices. But Quebec law prevents liquor from being sold after 9 P. M. on Sunday nights.

Clubs in Quebec City, Montreal and at Hull across the river from the Dominion capital have had no word whether the Sunday 9 P. M. limit will hold for New Year's Eve, but patrons are already figuring on ordering "wet refreshments" early —just in case.

In Ottawa hundreds of reservations will go unfilled and prices range anywhere from $4 per couple to $12 and nothing but soft drinks sold. Prices range high in Toronto —up to $14 a couple — with supper served at 10 p. m. and no dancing until after midnight, when Sunday leaves with the old year.

Record crowds will meet 1945 in Winnipeg and late-planners are out of luck. Top prices are $4 per person and go as low as $2 a couple. In Edmonton the minimum is $2.50 a couple and the high $8 with cabarets and dance halls booked to overflowing.

Reports from Calgary say that reservations in hotels and dance halls are all filled and prices high. On the west coast average cabaret charge is $12.00 per couple and the a heavy crowd is expected, reservations are still available.

Siege and Relief Of Bastogne Told In More Detail

By EDWARD D. BALL
(AP War Correspondent)

Bastogne, Dec. 29. (AP) —Fresh details of the Bastogne siege released today disclosed that Brig.-Gen. A. C. McAuliffe, acting commander of the trapped 101st Airborne Division, gave the "nuts" reply to a German demand Dec. 22 for surrender.

McAuliffe took charge of all troops in the Bastogne pocket until the arrival of the 101st Commanding Officer, Maj.Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, who left Washington Christmas eve when he heard of his outfit's predicament and flew the Atlantic.

General Makes Way Through Foe Lines

Taylor arrived in Belgium Dec. 26, made his way through enemy lines and reached Bastogne early Dec. 27. Armored elements and stragglers from various infantry units were hemmed in the town along with the 101st.

The relief corridor from the south was opened by Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton, waging a kind of war that is to his liking.

Three days after Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt launched his offensive Dec. 16 along the Belgian-Luxembourg frontier, the U.S. 3rd Army Commander was handed the job of stemming the enemy drive.

The pistol-packin' general flung his men and armor in a swelling tide toward the critical front.

One of his objectives was to relieve the besieged garrison here in this strategic road hub. Bastogne now is a shambles, but it still is firmly in American hands.

His forces advanced up to 16 miles in six days along an east-to-west front extending from the Luxembourg-German border to west of Bastogne.

Lift Threat to Luxembourg.

They lifted a threat to the City of Luxembourg by pounding the Germans back two to 14 miles after they had speared within 13 miles of the Duchy's capital.

They reached Bastogne through a corridor that narrowed to only one mile as it entered the town, but widened at its base to three miles.

The task of countering von Rundstedt was a ready-made one for Patton, an old cavalry hand who now is considered one of the world's foremost tank experts.

Von Rundstedt threw all he could against Bastogne but he failed.

Today there were some 200 destroyed German tanks lying in and about the town, hundreds of dead and more hundreds of German prisoners in cages.

Von Rundstedt has lost the first round of what may well be the war's decisive battle.

POSTHUMOUS V.C. AWARDED

Rome, Dec. 29. (CP)—An Indian Rifleman, Sher Bahadur Thapa, has been posthumously awarded the Victoria Cross, it was announced last night. He won the award Sept. 19 during an attack near San Marino, when he charged and knocked out a German strongpoint, silenced several machine-guns, fired a Bren from an exposed position and brought back two wounded comrades before being killed.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 29 — (CP)—Stocks registered a stronger note this afternoon on Toronto Exchange. Gains predominated, especially in golds. Volume was 314,000 shares.

The market was strong for Yellowknife, Frobisher and Giant gained 20 cents and Conwest, Bear, Negus and Transcontinental Resources all moved upward on good volume.

Lake Dufault, Nickel and Ventures were stronger base metals.

Steels, liquors and papers held a margin of gains over losses.

WALL STREET

New York, Dec. 29. (AP)— The Stock Market today resumed its climb back to the seven-year peaks from which it slipped last week. Led by Steels, Motors, Industrial Specialties and Selected Rails, numerous issues added fractions to a point or more to Wednesday's rally. Dealings tapered somewhat near the fourth hour.

Further cheering news regarding the halting of the German European thrust again was the principal bullish influence.

At highs for the year or longer were Westinghouse Common and Preferred, up about 3 and 12 points, respectively, both still reflecting stock split-up proposals; United Merchants & Manufacturers and Pepsi-Cola. In front were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central, U.S. Rubber Douglas Aircraft, Kennecott and Du Pont. Canadian issues were firm, Distiller Seagram up 1 1-8. Hiram Walker, however, slipped 1-8.

Bonds were steady and commodities mixed.

HOGS

Toronto, Dec. 29 — (CP)—Prices were unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting early today. Dressedweight, grade A, delivered, London and Hamilton $17.90; Hull $17.75; Stratford, to farmers $17.50, to truckers $17.65.

Group Capt. Larry Wray Sends Message Of Thanks to Canadians

Canadian prisoners of war at Stalag Luft III in Germany "are intensely proud of the backing Canada has given them," Group Capt. Larry E. Wray, R.C.A.F., of Ottawa (formerly of Belleville), told Hugo Cedergren, Swedish Y.M.C.A. worker, during one of Cedergren's recent visits at the camp.

In a cable to Canadian Y.M.C.A. National Council, Cedergren passed along the following message given him by Wray on behalf of all Canadians in the camp:

"Accept our heartfelt thanks for your inestimable help. As our period of active assistance to our country is over, we are endeavouring to make the only contribution that is left—that of returning to our country and families physically and mentally fit.

"We are intensely proud of the backing Canada has given us and consider ourselves most fortunate of all prisoners of war. We have enjoyed a most active program of sports throughout the summer, thanks mainly to your assistance. It has helped us to pass the time profitably and easily. We are facing the future confident that with your continued help we can return as useful and proud citizens."

Group Capt. Wray is the son of Mr. Robt. Wray, city.

Life Underwriters Hold Dec. Meeting

The Life Underwriters' Association of Belleville held their regular monthly luncheon meeting for December at the Y.M.C.A., Thursday at noon and was presided over by Arthur L. Burke, president of the Association. The meeting was sponsored by the Canada Life Company and the program was under the capable direction of Mr. Ralph B. Morden, immediate past president of the local organization.

The Belleville Life Underwriters' Association has shown a steady increase in membership and is playing an important and useful part in every phase of life insurance activity.

In the capacity of President, Mr. Arthur L. Burke will attend the annual meeting of The Life Underwriters' Association of Canada to be held in Toronto in January.

Mr. Sandy Burrows, branch manager, of The Mutual Life Company, was in charge of the community song service and Mr. Ray Heap, branch manager of the Industrial Department of The London Life Company, sang a solo that was a creditable contribution to the program. Mr. Alex Gordon presided at the piano.

The guest speaker, was Rev. J. Grant Sparling, rector of Christ Church and was introduced by Mr. Ralph B. Morden, branch manager of the Canada Life Company.

Mr. Sparling is a pleasing and entertaining after-dinner speaker and the Christmas message he presented was enthusiastically received by all present.

Mr. Percy McGuire, who has filled an official position for the past few years with the Royal Canadian Air Force, and who has recently returned to his former position with the Mutual Life Company, extended the thanks of the Association to Mr. Sparling for his timely and interesting remarks.

Greece May Be First of Disturbed Liberated Countries to Hold Elections

By CHARLES BRUCE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 29 — (CP Cable) — Greece, the most disturbed of liberated countries, may be the first to hold national elections. It is even possible though not probable—that a vote will be held there before the final defeat of Germany.

This is possible because Greece is not actually an operational theatre of war and this fact sets out in sharp relief a further significant truth:

When Britain freed the country of German rule last October the action was taken simply to save one of her first Allies from starvation and to bring internal order. There was no particular military value in freeing Greece.

As for the choice of the Papandreou government as a body with which to deal, the fact is that regardless of its merits or demerits there was no other organization to work with. It was not until after the liberation that the Leftist E.A.M. withdrew from the administration.

In the words of the Times of London, however, it is unquestionable that the E.A.M. is entitled to consideration on its numbers and "its great share in the national resistance to the alien invader."

Supported Tito.

In Yugoslavia, when it became obvious that certain officers under Gen. Mikailovitch's command were "making accommodations" with the enemy while, in Prime Minister Churchill's words, a "new and far more formidable champion" had appeared in Marshal Tito, Britain had no hesitation in supporting Tito.

And by the middle of 1944 the forces of Tito and of the Royal Yugoslav government in Cairo—which had been levelling at each other complaints of a sharpness that can only be reached by bitter members of the same family — were working in unit. Tito and Premier Ivan Subasitch had agreed to forget matters like the monarchy until peace comes.

Yugoslavia is not yet liberated. It may be that when the enemy is cleared from its territory the family differences will break out again.

PICTON

Several County Men Included In Casualty Lists

Picton, Dec. 29—Several more Prince Edward County men are included among recent casualties. Pte. Wayne Ellsworth is officially reported missing in action in Italy. C.S.M. Fred Forshee has been wounded in action in Italy, for the third time. Pte. Courtland Rorabeck has been wounded in action in France.

Pte. Ellsworth is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ellsworth and his wife resides here. He went overseas with Hastings and Prince Edward regiment in 1939 and returned to Canada for eight months in 1942. Returning overseas, he rejoined his original unit.

C.S.M. Forshee is the son of Mrs. Ernest Boyer of Picton. He has been overseas since 1939. The official message stated that while he has been wounded he was remaining on duty with his unit. This is the third time that he has been wounded in action, the last wound being suffered exactly five years to the day he left Picton for overseas.

Pte. C. Rorabeck is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Rorabeck and has been overseas since 1942. He was serving in France. No details of the nature or extent of his wounds was revealed.

More than $100 was realized by Picton Public School Hockey Club from a draw on a turkey. The winner was Mrs. Helen Cross.

Arrives Home.

Sgt. Joe Vincent is expected here tomorrow after four years' service overseas. His wife was advised that he had landed at a U.S. port. He is a member of the RCAF and has seen extensive action in the African campaign, in Sicily, Italy and in England. He is one of four brothers in the services, one of them, Herbert, serving in Italy. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Vincent who reside here.

Rotarians Collect $100.

During Christmas weekend, the Rotary Club carollers travelled through the town, singing carols in front of homes where lighted candles were placed in windows. They travelled in sleighs. Free-will offerings were received and these amounted to more than $100 and will be used for work among underprivileged children. Dr. C. A. Brownson was in charge. Miss Florence Barber entertained the singers at the close of the evening.

Graduate Gets Commission.

Howard Armstrong was among the recent class of air gunners to graduate at Mount Pleasant, Prince Edward Island. At the same time he received his wings, he was granted his commission as Pilot Officer. He is spending a month's leave with his parents Mr. and Mrs. William Armstrong.

Bible Society Supported.

Rev. J. W. Shier, secretary-treasurer of the local branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society announced yesterday that $350 had been collected and sent to the society headquarters. This is more than double the amount sent last year and the Society expressed sincere thanks for the splendid support.

Help War Victims.

Prince Edward County people contributed $380.90 to the Christmas Cheer for British Children during December. This county has an enviable record for support of this fund. To date, they have contributed a total of $23,435.32.

News in Brief.

The Kinsmen Club provided a treat of candy for every public and separate school child in Picton at Christmas.

Harry Bowers is attending Older Boys' Parliament at McMaster University, Hamilton, as representative for Prince Edward County.

Many rural roads were blocked Wednesday and yesterday as high winds and more snow held sway. Snow plows are working night and day and most of the main roads are open.

Bombardier J. A. Cowan has arrived in Britain, his mother, Mrs. Eugene Cowan, is informed.

Pte. Donald McGinnis has returned from France to England, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O A. McGinnis are informed.

MADOC

Candlelight Service Held In St. Peter's

Madoc—The annual Christmas Candlelight Service in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church has become an established and growing feature of the Christmas services in Madoc. At the second Candlelight service held last Sunday evening the attendance was the largest of any such service in recent years.

The recently decorated church was further enhanced with the copious use of evergreens and candles. In the deep window recesses were placed evergreens as a background for three tall tapers. The lighted Christmas trees behind the pulpit and in the choir loft also gave a very festive setting.

For this occasion the choir of some twenty voices sang the anthem "High O'er the Hills of Judea." A girls octette sang, "Softly Sleep Little Babe." A solo by Douglas Blue "O Holy Night," was sung immediately before the minister began his sermon on the theme, "The Christmas Call to Worship."

In his brief message, Rev. Eric Larsen spoke from the well known message of the angelic choir to the shepherds, "Glory, Peace, Good Will Toward Men." Mr. Larsen emphasized the need for true worship pointing to some of the men and women at the time of the birth of Christ who worshipped in the temple and in their homes. This worship embraces the trinity of God as might be inferred from the text. Now as in the days of Christ peace on earth is needed. But where there is hatred, divisions and selfish interests, there can be no peace. This peace cannot come except when men have the peace of God in their own hearts. Then may follow "Good will toward men." The shepherds worshipped the Christ child and so did the saints of old as well as of today. They all sing "Come and worship. Worship Christ, the new-born King."

The Candlelight service began with a half hour organ recital by the organist Mr. Stanley Hawthorne. Members of the choir also had produced and provided a very dignified "Order of service" which we distributed to the congregation.

At the morning service the minister had chosen as his theme, "We Saw His Glory." His text was taken from the opening verses of St. John's gospel. In the past this glory was seen in the creation. Christ as the co-creator with God gave life and light. At the present, at the birth of Christ, the glory is seen in the Advent messages by Elizabeth, Mary and Zacharias as sung by them in their hymns of praise. It is also seen in the Advent messenger John, the forerunner of the Messiah. In the future, as looking toward the future from the birth of Christ, there will be those who reject and those who receive Christ and His message. The latter will truly see His glory, "to them gave He power to become the sons of God."

A full choir also was in attendance and rendered the anthem.

Copy of Nazi Order Confirms Von Kluge Committed Suicide

New York, Dec. 29.—The BBC said in a broadcast recorded by the office of war information today that a newly-received copy of a German High Command order Aug. 31 confirmed that German Field Marshal Guenther Von Kluge had killed himself.

"In view of the depressing responsibility for the outcome of the battle of Normandy", the order was quoted, "Von Kluge resigned from his post as commander of the western front and subsequently committed suicide.

"Further comments on this incident are banned".

Von Kluge had relieved Field Marshal Karl Von Rundstedt as supreme commander of German forces on the western front early last summer. Von Rundstedt was returned to the command later.

Wallbridge

Wallbridge — The annual Christmas concert was held in the schoolhouse last Friday evening and was a decided success. The teacher, Miss Ella Phillips, deserves great credit for the splendid manner in which it was carried out. The program consisted of singing, recitations, dialogues, drill and choral readings, and every pupil did his and her part well. Mr. Lawrence Ketcheson was chairman for the evening and Miss Jane Ketcheson was pianist. Little Miss Janice Denyes and her brother, Dale, Belleville, each gave recitations. Between some of the numbers Christmas carols were sung by the audience led by Mr. L. J. Ketcheson with the violin and Jane at the piano. At the close of the program Santa Claus arrived and distributed presents to both the children and adults. There was a good attendance of parents and others interested in the work of the school. The proceeds were $18.

According to plan, last Sunday was Wallbridge's Sunday to be without any preaching service, but being so near Christmas the W. A. and W. M. societies sponsored a candle-light service in the evening. Mr. C. M. Elliott kindly agreed to take charge and opened with prayer. Several Christmas carols were sung led by the choir which also gave one selection alone. Mr. Elliott read the Christmas story after which more carols were sung. Rev. Mr. Hillis came after Stone Church service and gave a beautiful explanation of the text found in Luke 1:76-79. There was a good attendance.

BASTOGNE CORRIDOR WIDENED, STRENGTHENED
REDS SLAUGHTER TRAPPED NAZIS IN BUDAPEST

Width of Enemy Bulge Sliced To Thirteen Miles

Von Rundstedt Held Without Gain for Past Three Days

By JAMES M. LONG
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Paris, Dec. 30 (AP)—The German winter bulge into Belgium recoiled bit by bit today under triphammer American blows which 48 hours ago had sliced the width of the enemy bulge to 13 miles, and flung its deepest wedges back 12 miles.

The Allied security cloak concealed later developments, except for telling of additional strengthening and widening of the U.S. 3rd army's corridor to Bastogne by Friday morning.

Action Flares on Another Front.

Meanwhile action flared on the British 2nd Army sector northwest of Geilenkirchen, in the region of Gangelt, when the Germans launched an infantry attack and gained "some initial success."

Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's Tommies hurled the enemy back, killing or wounding about 100 Germans and taking 70 prisoners, today's Allied communique reported.

Gangelt is on the frontier separating the Netherlands from Germany.

A front dispatch said German night patrols crossed the Maas (Meuse) river in Holland four miles southwest of Roermond but were driven off while trying to sneak up the Wessem canal in boats.

No action was reported from the 1st Canadian army [illegible] north and west, where for the past several days Gen. Crerar's men have met intensified enemy patrol activity.

The 3rd army had fought four miles north of Bastogne by Thursday, within 13 miles of U.S 1st army troops hitting Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's northern flank.

For close to three days, Von Rundstedt had been held without gain.

The most acute question today was whether the German commander was pulling his armor out.

Admittedly he still had enough armored power poised for another blow, and 48 hours of concealing haze and mist had given him opportunity to bring up supplies and regroup his forces.

But there was no immediate indication that Von Rundstedt was prepared to risk his armies against the force Gen. Eisenhower had assembled.

(A Berlin broadcast said the Americans had thrown 25 divisions against the German drive.)

Von Rundstedt had fallen short of his probable purpose—decisive victory—but had succeeded in knocking the props from under the Allied winter offensive, and in creating a salient seriously threatening Allied plans.

Thrusts Way Into Trouble.

At the same time, he had thrust his way into trouble. Either he must continue his offensive threat by smashing back the U.S. 3rd Army's flanking counter-attack on a 45-mile front, or get his armor out before the gap is pinched shut.

The gap between Von Rundstedt's narrowing flanks was thin enough to be raked by U.S. artillery.

Von Rundstedt's armor—two Panzer armies—apparently was the heart of his mobile reserve.

Skies Clearing.

Front dispatches reported indications skies were clearing this morning to give air power—a major factor in continuing the seal-off—A new opportunity after days of low-drifting fog.

The latest disclosed frontline positions up to Friday morning were:

At the western end, Americans had fought into the outskirts of Rochefort and opened a direct assault on bitterly-resisting Germans there. Infantry had surged 12 miles back from the Nazi penetration to within three miles of the Meuse.

The northern flank continued quiet. In this sector where the Germans earlier had delivered their heaviest blows, Von Rundstedt's attacks dwindled down to two-company size. Americans made limited, position-restoring gains.

Third army troops took at least four more towns in their broad attack from the south. They pushed into Moircy, five miles southeast of St. Hubert and 11 west of Bastogne. They drove the Germans from Remagne, Magerotte, and Morhet west of the Bastogne-Arlon road, and scored gains of a mile north of Sibret, northeast of Assenois and east of Hompre. Other units advanced around Villers-La-Bonne-Eau east of the Arlon-Bastogne road.

Third Army troops also closed up within two miles southwest and south of Wiltz, 10 miles southeast of Bastogne. Still farther east they cleared Eppeldorf, thrust into the Bigelbach area along the Sure river, and were along the German frontier for six miles between Echternach and Bigelbach, directly across from the Siegfried Line.

Germans were reported digging in along the northern flank of their Belgian bulge. The 12th S. S. Panzer Division and 26th Infantry Division were identified among enemy units met in the Stavelot area.

Nineteenth Tactical Air Force Fliers yesterday knocked out 62 enemy armored vehicles north of Bastogne, and damaged 10 more. The British 2nd Tactical Air Force downed 32 German planes, destroyed 27 Nazi locomotives and 90 railway cars, and damaged 48 locomotives and 220 railway cars. Canadian Spitfire and Typhoon wings flew 250 of the R.A.F.'s 1,000 sorties.

Patrol clashes occurred east of Wissembourg on the U. S. 7th Army front. Germans infiltrating Sigolsheim north of Colmar were mopped up.

Recapture Rochefort Report

(The Brussels radio said today that the Americans had recaptured Rochefort and a violent tank battle was raging near the town).

Observers reported enemy troops were throwing up fortifications and planting mines for a defensive stand.

(Reuters war correspondent William Stein said last night that the German withdrawal from the salient "has developed into a rout at some points.")

The narrowing of the enemy salient to 13 miles was accomplished when the 3rd Army cemented positions four miles north of Bastogne while 1st Army troops were fighting ahead from the north.

SIR A. E. EVANS ABOARD AIRLINER REPORTED MISSING

Plane Had Crew of Four and Bound for Britain With Load Of Mail

Montreal, Dec. 30 —(CP)— The Dominion Department of Transport and Trans-Canada Airlines in a statement Friday night announced that a Lancaster aircraft in the trans-Atlantic service was unreported "since the early hours of this morning." The plane was carrying one passenger and a crew of four.

The passenger was Sir Alfred E. Evans of the British Admiralty technical mission at Ottawa while members of the crew were: Maurice Gauthier (captain) of Montreal; R. G. Janckiewicz (first officer) of Winnipeg; P. B. Gregory (navigation officer) of Victoria and R. D. Smith (radio officer) of Vancouver.

The plane which left Montreal at 7 p.m. Thursday was in the mail service, with mail its principal load.

Vice-Admiral Evans has been chief of the British Admiralty technical mission at Ottawa since August, 1940. Two months before this war broke out he retired at the age of 58, but when the mission was conceived by the Admiralty he was appointed to head it because of his high qualifications.

30 Quislings Are Assassinated

London, Dec. 30 (CP)—An official Norwegian source said today that 30 quislings had been assassinated in Norway in the past six weeks.

He said Patriots in the country had declared "an open season" on traitors and "hardly a day passes without some quisling creature who has worked for the Germans being shot or liquidated."

The Norwegian government charged today that the Germans were staging commando raids against defenceless villages which they had already evacuated along the coasts of northern Norway.

"Not content with evacuating the greater part of the population of north Norway and destroying most of their homes and means of existence," a government spokesman said, "the Germans are sending back raiding parties to finish off the work"

"Quiet" Spell in Nijmegen Salient No Holiday for Canadian Troops

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadian Army in Holland, Dec. 30 —(CP)— The sign by the side of the road reads "Spend your holidays in the Nijmegen salient." It invites you into the area where Canadian soldiers are fighting along the Holland-German frontier and beyond.

There are many features to this holiday area which you don't find in a winter resort at home. They are features worth remembering when you read that all was "quiet" on the 1st Canadian Army front, when you begin to believe Canadians are having it easy in this static period of their war.

The Nijmegen salient and the area west of it to the mouth of the turbulent Maas river offer shells and bombs, night patrols into a No Man's Land covered by German machine-guns, mortars, rifles and grenades.

They offer the bitter chill of winter winds and rain, mud and the overflow and seepage of swollen rivers and canals, spreading across the bleak flatness of this country.

Canadian soldiers and their allies in this Canadian army are digging in for the winter. They don't know when they may be called upon to fight another battle, but while they are waiting they are making the most of a climate and a terrain that discourage a war of movement.

Most of the troops are under cover. Behind the front lines many are billeted with Netherlands families or in houses which have been evacuated by the Netherlanders who have gone farther to the rear. Many school-houses and some institutions have been requisitioned. Barracks the Germans used are serving the Canadians in some places.

Fix Up Winter Homes.

It is only at the front that you find troops in dugouts which, with the approach of winter they deepened, lined and roofed in ingenious ways that were intended to keep out the wet and keep in the warmth. Brigades and battalions have been alternating positions so that no soldier spends much more than two weeks at a stretch in a forward position.

Life in this static period does not offer much variety but the soldiers are kept busy. When in the line they patrol or stand guard by night and sleep by day for in this open country movement is restricted to the hours of darkness.

When they come out for a rest the soldiers have a day or two to clean up — themselves and their clothes. Then they are kept busy at instruction schools for the training of non-commissioned officers, for pioneers, flame throwers and in a variety of other specialist categories.

During a period such as this the troops find time for entertainment as well as work. Movies are brought as far forward as safety will allow and thousands of soldiers attend the pictures nightly. There are also canteens—Beaver Clubs and Canada Clubs — run by the auxiliary services.

HEAVY BOMBERS HIT RAIL YARDS AT TROISDORF

Synthetic Oil Plant in Ruhr Valley at Schloven-Buer Also Attacked

London, Dec. 30 (CP)—Long-range bombers from Britain punched at Germany today for the eighth consecutive day after twin raids last night by R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. four-engined craft on the railyards at Troisdorf and synthetic oil plants at Schloven-Beur in the Ruhr.

Two Canadian heavies are missing from the night's operations.

The U.S. strategic air forces announced at 1 p.m. that "United States bombers are again over Germany." German radio warnings reported a fleet of heavy craft over the Ruhr and another heading for southwestern Germany.

10,000 Tons Dumped.

Approximately 10,000 tons of bombs are believed to have been dropped on German targets yesterday by Allied planes based in Britain, western Europe and Italy.

A total of 14 heavy bombers and 26 fighters were lost by the U.S. 8th and 9th air forces, the R.A.F. bomber command and the 2nd tactical air force, which sent up 2,300 planes, many of them Canadian.

Thirty-two German planes were shot out of the air. In addition to the major strategical work raiders supporting Allied ground forces destroyed or damaged 66 locomotives, 319 freight cars, 63 tanks and 121 motor vehicles.

The U.S. 8th Air Force sent 800 Fortresses and Liberators with an escort of 790 fighters against behind-the-lines German communications. Ten bombers and three fighters were missing.

R.A.F. Halifaxes and Lancasters hit the congested rail yards at Coblenz on the Rhine, and other Lancasters dropped six-ton "earthquake" bombs on the U-boat pens still held by the Nazis at St. Nazaire.

Meanwhile, a year-end round-up of R.A.F. operations for 1944 estimated that the incessant bombing of Berlin cost the German capital's 980,000 industrial workers a total of 19,600,000 working days.

LOTS OF PIN MONEY

New York, Dec. 30. (AP)— The estate of Glamor Girl Gloria Vanderbilt Di Cicco was valued yesterday at $4,363,000 in an annual accounting by her guardian, Thomas B. Gilchrist, of Yonkers, N.Y.

SECOND HONEYMOON

Salt Lake City, Utah, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Back from 20 months of war and imprisonment in Europe, Sgt. Albert L. Shaffer, 24, will pick up his honeymoon where it left off four days after his marriage almost two years ago. "This is really just my fifth day of marriage", he said on arriving here.

ENEMY MOVEMENT IN TYRRHENIAN SECTOR REPORTED

Believed Germans Ready to Make Drive on U. S. 5th Army Positions

Rome, Dec. 30 (CP).—The Allied Command today reported increased enemy movement of troops and material in the Tyrrhenian coastal sector of Italy, while in the Serchio valley the situation "remains fluid".

On the British 8th Army front north of Faenza the 1st Canadian Corps continued to reduce German positions east of the Senio River, a communique reported. Patrols were active elsewhere along the front.

Canadian artillery last night was reported shelling Alfonsine, nine miles northwest of Ravenna, on Lt.-Gen. Foulkes' right flank, and Cotignola, on his left flank, six miles northeast of Faenza.

British tanks and infantry had cleared the Germans from Lamorcetta and Villa Quaglia, the latter a stoutly-held hamlet on the Naviglio canal's east bank, four miles northeast of Faenza.

These operations were being carried out in canal-laced, semi-flooded territory southeast of where the Po River empties into the Adriatic.

Attacks Appear Checked.

Near Italy's opposite coast, German attacks in the Serchio Valley appeared checked following four day's stiff fighting in which United States units of the Allied 5th Army had been forced back along a six-mile sector and driven from Gallicano, 15 miles north of Lucca, and Barga, two miles to the northeast.

There was no official estimate of the total German gain, nor any indication of whether German operations in this area foreshadowed a major counter-offensive to retake Lucca and Livorno (Leghorn) or merely marked a large-scale diversionary manoeuvre to distract Allied attention from the Bologna and Po valley fronts.

Possibility that the Germans were moving substantial force down the west coast was seen in an air force announcement that hundreds of Allied medium and fighter bombers spent yesterday blasting bridges and other targets along the coastal road south of La Spezia.

KING OF GREECE ACCEPTS REGENCY TO END CIVIL WAR

Archbishop Damaskinos In All Probability Will Take Oath of Office Sunday

By STEPHEN BARBER
(A.P. Staff Writer)

Athens, Dec. 30 (AP) — King George II. of Greece has assented to the establishment of a regency in the country and Archbishop Damaskinos' secretary said the Archbishop probably would take the oath as regent tomorrow.

"His Grace in all probability will take the oath before the government and Holy Synod tomorrow in accordance with the Greek constitution," the secretary said. "Immediately after his installation he will assume his official duties and, complying with a telegram from the king expressing 'hope you will try to restore order and peace in Greece,' will start his efforts to solve the major problems—firstly the formation of a new government and secondly the cessation of the civil war."

Reliable reports said E.L.A.S. leaders had sent Prime Minister Churchill a message offering to place the country's political squabbles in his hands, for arbitration and had proposed an immediate truce to the British. Mr. Churchill had left the country, however, before the letter reached British headquarters and Lt.-Gen. R. M. Scobie, British commander in Greece, forwarded the letter to London. Its contents were not revealed here.

Premier Likely to Resign

There were indications here that Premier George Papandreou had submitted his resignation and that the right-wing Liberal leader, Themistokles Sophoulis, had been asked to form a new cabinet.

In northwestern Greece, meanwhile, the forces of Gen. Napoleon Zervas, hard-pressed by the E.L.A.S., were reported evacuating to the island of Corfu which is held by British troops and forces friendly to Zervas' faction.

Sources in Athens estimated the forces of Gen. Zervas had diminished from 12,000 to between 2,000 and 3,000 through casualties and desertions.

Prisoners Stripped

The British said large numbers of prisoners captured by the E.L.A.S. had been stripped of their clothing and had been forced to endure the bitter winter weather in only their underclothing. The E.L.A.S. also have refused to allow Red Cross parcels to be distributed to the prisoners reported to number 17,000 men, women and children. Most, the British statement said, had been taken to the island of Thebes.

'Psychological Warfare' Leaflets Work Like 'Termites' on Hun Morale

By FRED BACKHOUSE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 30 (CP).—A blizzard of "psychological warfare" leaflets fluttered down from Allied bombers to enemy-occupied Europe during 1944 in a truth campaign which British Intelligence officers said today is having a "termite" effect on German morale.

Growth of this paper offensive since the paper-chase trail of a few thousand leaflets in early war days was indicated by Air Ministry disclosure that more than 250,000,000 leaflets were scattered over 12 European countries this year by Italy-based R.A.F. night bombers alone.

One of the most successful propaganda leaflets of the war, it now can be revealed, has been a message for German front-line troops telling them "the way home to Germany lies through Canada".

Under this heading, the leaflet contains a crisply-written account of the latest Allied successes with the implication that wise use of a safe-conduct pass leads to comfortable internment in Canada and eventually back to the Fatherland.

On the reverse side is a photographic reproduction of a bulletin board at a Canadian prison camp, with the tempting menu for the day, a message to newcomers by a German camp leader warmly describing the wonders of Canadian food and life and a notice of camp sporting and social activities.

The effect of this pamphlet on all but die-hard Nazis when first used during the slow-moving Italian campaign in 1943 was practically magical.

The Germans who had a leaflet with them when they deserted to Allied lines were discontented and brooding, officers would taunt: "What's the matter with you? Got the 'Canada spirit'?"

German officers captured on the Italian front described the leaflets as a "most ungentlemanly" form of warfare.

While all occupied countries receive a regular leaflet service or straight news, other leaflets are specially prepared for specific areas. For France, before the invasion, there were messages of encouragement. The Balkans generally were exhorted to overthrow Quisling leaders.

Allied leaflets have become the only source of accurate news for the German soldier and there is incontrovertible evidence in Allied intelligence files that he looks forward to what his superiors called 'doses of poison'.

Cross One of Last Water Barriers Leading to Vienna

Other Units Tighten Trap On Germans Caught in Hills

London, Dec. 30. (CP)—Austria-bound Russian troops plunged forward today in new gains after forcing strong German defences north of the Danube and crossing the Hron River, while to the south bloody fighting in the streets of Budapest raged with increased fury.

In the Buda section of the tottering Hungarian capital Russian shock battalions were slaughtering the trapped Nazi garrison in hand-to-hand fighting. In Pest, on the east bank of the Danube, German and Hungarian defenders fought desperately to stave off powerful Russian armor that already had penetrated the first of three inner defence rings.

Still other Russian units tightened the death trap on German and Hungarian troops caught in the Pilis Hills north of the city, killing 2,500 of them yesterday after capturing 2,200 the previous day.

The Russians crossed the Hron River, one of the last water hurdles before the Bratislava Plains leading to Vienna, sped two miles beyond and captured Nana and Parkany near the Hron's confluence with the Danube.

Units of Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's 3rd Ukrainian army already have outflanked the point of confluence of the two rivers west of the big Danube Bend and were driving along the approaches to Komaron, situated 53 miles southeast of Bratislava and 81 miles from Vienna.

The crossing of the Hron put the Russians within 78 miles of Bratislava and 105 miles from Vienna. Other sections of the same army arrayed along the east bank of the Hron to the north were only 64 miles from Bratislava.

Americans Using 25 Divisions

London, Dec. 30 (CP)—The German Transocean Agency broadcast today that the Americans now have thrown 25 divisions against Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's offensive salient into Belgium.

All Berlin broadcasts again withheld any claims of further German advances.

One report declared that "whatever course future events may take we have at least foiled the enemy's plans for a winter offensive which were well beyond the blueprint stage. At the same time Eisenhower has been forced to regroup all his front."

Berlin declared vaguely that "the advance of our spearheads has changed into a battle of movement."

Toronto Election Campaign Quiet

Toronto, Dec. 30 — (CP) — Municipal voters in Toronto, Canada's second largest city, go to the polls Monday to choose a mayor, city council and Board of Education for 1945 after a quiet election campaign completely devoid of fireworks.

It is in sharp contrast to the last election when the debate between the rival candidates for mayor waxed bitter at times and the entry of 16 official C.C.F. candidates added zest to the debate from all sides in the week before the balloting.

The mayoralty race this time is between Dr. Fred J. Conboy, seeking his fifth consecutive term, and Controller Robert H. Saunders, making a bid for the chief magistrate's chair after four years as a member of the Board of Control and four years as an alderman. Mayor Conboy's opponent in the last election was Lewis H. Duncan who is not a candidate for any office this time.

There has been no city-wide campaign in this election by the C.C.F. although one party official told The Canadian Press that two candidates for aldermen and one for Board of Education in one ward have party support. Three other aldermanic and three other Board of Education candidates are either receiving support from their ward C. C. F. organizations or were C.C.F. candidates a year ago.

Intruder Kills Soldier's Wife Then Shoots Self

Philadelphia, Dec. 30 — (AP) — Two hours after Cpl. Harry E. Hertel, 25, was reunited with his wife late last night after 2½ years overseas, she was dead, a bullet through her heart, and at her side was the body of a man who neighbors said had been a frequent visitor to her apartment, a revolver clutched in his hand.

The tragedy was enacted shortly after midnight in the little apartment Mrs. Betty Hertel, 20, occupied during her husband's absence. The dead man was identified by police as Charles Serwalt, 40.

Hertel told police he and his wife had just entered the bedroom when Serwalt burst into the apartment, revolver in hand. Hertel ran out of the apartment and met two friends. They dashed to the apartment where they found Mrs. Hertel slumped near the bedroom door, apparently shot down as she tried to escape, and Serwalt in a pool of blood on the floor.

City and District News

JAPANESE CIGARETTES SECURED ON LEYTE

Japanese cigarettes taken from Jap prisoners of war captured during the invasion of Leyte in the Philippine Islands have been forwarded to Mrs. Ralph Irvin of Tweed by her son Sgt. Marvin VanHorne. Sgt. VanHorne is attached to the postal corps and has been in the South Pacific with the American forces for nearly three years. In a letter to his mother he says the Leyte invasion was a "great show."

The Japanese cigarettes sent to Mrs. Irvin are more loosely rolled than Canadian brands, indicating the thriftiness of the Nipponese. Each packet contains a tiny paper holder permitting the smoker to enjoy all the tobacco, rather than having to throw away the fag end as is the custom in Canada.

DOG, BIKE LICENCES ON SALE NEXT WEEK

Pups, pooches and Pekes of the city will be all dressed up in their new shiny 1945 tags come next week, according to city hall officials. The 1945 design which "Hector" will wear during the coming year is made of aluminum, is bell-shaped and stamped with a number and the name of the city. The tags are now on sale at the city hall.

Coincident with the arrival of the dog tags, came the new edition of bicycle licences. White letters on a royal blue background was the city's idea for design which apparently caught the eye of provincial authorities for the shape and color scheme is identical with that of the forthcoming motor car markers.

RED COCKER SPANIEL LODGED IN POUND

A handsome red cocker spaniel wearing a red collar studded with brass tabs was found wandering at large on the Trent Road yesterday afternoon. The dog wore no official tag. He is a young male dog and apparently of good breeding. It is believed he followed some people from Highland Avenue to the Trent Road. He is now in the safe keeping of City Poundkeeper Thomas Thorne where the owner can claim him.

NO GARBAGE COLLECTION ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

To enable members of the garbage collection department to enjoy a well-deserved holiday there will be no collection of garbage on New Year's Day, it was stated by city hall officials today. Householders whose garbage is ordinarily collected on Mondays are thus advised not to put their garbage out, but to wait until the next day upon which collections are normally made on their streets.

Generous Response To Yuletide Appeal

Appreciation of Mr. and Mrs. Average Householder to the personnel of the local garbage collection department for their really conscientious effort in making collections despite the vagaries of the weather has again been indicated by the generous response given to the Dolan Drug Store appeal for contributions to buy these hard working men an appropriate remembrance at the Christmas season.

Each year proprietors of the local drug store remember the garbage collectors and placing a suitable collection box in their store appeal for contributions to help along the cause. Contributions this year amounted to $38.85, it has been announced by city hall officials.

Expressing their appreciation for the generous gesture on the part of the local drug store management and to the householders, members of the garbage collections department of the City Public Works Department indicated the money would be divided among the collection personnel.

Year End Market Sparsely Attended

Blocked township sideroads defying any kind of vehicular movement except horsedrawn sleighs were the contributing factor towards one of the smallest attended markets on Saturday to be seen here in many months. Compared to other market days only a few farmers' wives offered eggs and chicken on the inside market while outside the mart was practically deserted.

Vendors reported concession roads leading to the highway in Thurlow and Sidney Townships to be opened following Thursday's storm, but in Prince Edward County Township roads were still blocked to motor traffic.

Eggs held at their previous prices of 40 cents the dozen with mediums bringing 35 and pullets 30 cents. Fowl sold from 35 cents for mature birds to 40 cents for young well-finished birds. Honey sold at the customary 20 cents the pound.

A few vendors offered apples at $1.40 the half bushel for best grade Spy and McIntosh with Snows and Talman Sweets bringing $1.75 to $2 the bushel.

Market gardeners selling the customary vegetables were absent from the market while neither were there any young pigs nor loads of wood offered.

The service in the home at 14 Water Street, and at Mount Evergreen Cemetery, where entombment took place, was conducted by the Rev. J. G. McKee, minister of Grace United Church.

Besides the parents one brother survives.

ALLIES BOMBARD RHINE CITY

A mortar crew of the American Seventh Army is shown firing shells at the German city of Kehl, across the Rhine river, from their hastily erected sandbagged position in the Strasbourg railroad yards. The Germans had destroyed the three bridges spanning the Rhine between the two cities. The Yanks blasted the German city with every type of artillery.

WALTER MILLER
(North Trenton)

Trenton, Dec. 30 (Special) — Walter Miller died suddenly on Friday, December 29th., while assisting in operating a snow plow being used in removing snow from the concession road near his home in North Trenton, Murray Township. He was sixty-one years of age and all his life was passed in the Trenton district. To his friends his sudden death has brought much regret.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon and entombment will be at Mount Evergreen cemetery.

McNaughton Says Reinforcements "Well Assured"

Owen Sound, Ont., Dec. 30. (CP) —Defence Minister McNaughton said here today that overseas reinforcements "to an even greater scale than that demanded and promised are well assured".

He made the announcement in a New Year's address prepared for delivery from a local radio station (CFOS). This is the county seat of Grey North riding, which Gen. McNaughton is contesting in a February 5 by-election.

"I can report to you", he said, "That reinforcement for our forces in northwest Europe and in Italy, to an even greater scale than that demanded and promised, are well assured. So much so that we now can proceed to enlarge our plans for bringing back to Canada the men of very long service overseas and replacing them with others who have not yet given their share of service".

He did not elaborate on this statement, which might mean that a re-mustering process and volunteering from the ranks of home defence draftees had given him a number of infantrymen in addition to the 16,000 conscripted for overseas service by the new government reinforcement policy.

In a previous speech at his nominating convention here, Gen. McNaughton had announced that while he had originally promised to have about 450 long service men for Christmas, he then actually expected to have about 1,000 with their families by the New Year.

Cpl. John Newton Arrives Home

Member of the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders, Cpl. John Newton, formerly of this city has arrived home from overseas.

Cpl. Newton enlisted in June 1942 at Kingston with the P.W.O.R., transferring to his present unit following his arrival overseas in July of this year. He saw action in France and Belgium, where he was severely wounded in the arm on October first.

At present he is spending a 30-day furlough with his wife and young son of Kingston and also his parents of this city after which he will report to Kingston Military Hospital and later to Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, where he expects to be for about one and one half years.

The E.L.A.S. on the other hand charged Greek police with mistreating captured E.L.A.S. men.

The British-Greek drive on the astern suburbs of Athens which began at dawn yesterday was described by British headquarters as "highly successful."

The left-wing E.L.A.S. lost 300 dead and 700 prisoners. An additional 100 prisoners were taken by parachute troops clearing the Iroon district west of Omonia Square at the other end of the city.

More than half of Athens now is under British control with the E.L.A.S. cleared from the eastern suburbs and the southern section. Pireaus, the port of Athens, also was under British domination.

Gen. Scobie charged that E.L.A.S. forces in their mistreatment of prisoners were not abiding by the Geneva conventions.

WALK TO REACH FERRY

Kingston, Dec. 30 — (CP)—Early complete freezing of Kingston harbor is expected with current cold weather. Wolfe Island residents yesterday were forced to walk nearly half a mile on the ice to board the ferry which was prevented from reaching dock.

'Dead' Battery Springs to Life At Thief's Touch

When Fred Simmonds, 25 Victoria Avenue discovered the battery in his car to be "down" he shrugged his shoulders, left the car parked outside his home, with the keys in the switch and went in the house, satisfied that no one could steal the vehicle.

But he hadn't reckoned with the smartness of car thieves. By some strange process, life suddenly returned to the supposedly defunct battery and some person or persons quietly jumped into the car started the motor and took off for parts unknown.

The car is a 1936 model Ford and was taken between 6 and 8.45 p.m. Friday. Police departments of the district have been notified and given a description of the vehicle.

Ship Torpedoed In St. Lawrence Back in Service

Quebec, Dec. 30 (CP).—The Fort Thompson, 10,000-ton Vancouver-built ship, part of whose crew believed she had been sunk after she was torpedoed in the St. Lawrence River Nov. 2, was towed here for repairs and since has resumed her journey, it was permitted to be disclosed today.

When two explosions first occurred on the ship, it was not known whether they resulted from enemy action or from boiler trouble, but shipping officials since have determined definitely that the vessel was damaged in the first known torpedo attack in the river since 1942.

The vessel suffered torpedo damage on the starboard side near the bow, but 45 officers and crew men who remained aboard, were able to keep her afloat until she could be towed up-river to Quebec.

No One Injured.

No one was injured in the twin explosions which rocked the freighter. Seventeen members of the crew put off in one lifeboat and landed at Matane, Que., with word that their vessel had been sunk. They did not know what had happened to the other 45 persons aboard the ship.

Those left aboard said subsequently that the one lifeboat had been filled after the first explosion but that actual release of the boat was accidental resulting when somebody aboard pulled a slip knot in the rope by which the lifeboat was towed.

First reports of the "sinking" came from the group of 17 who landed at Matane early in the morning of Nov. 3 after a nine-hour row across the St. Lawrence current. They said their ship had gone down as they pulled away from her, their belief evidently springing from the fact that the current swept them out of sight of the freighter in the darkness just as a second explosion was heard.

Towed To Quebec.

Their story, with its assumption that the ship was sunk, was passed for publication by the press censors.

A few hour later, it was learned that the freighter was in tow on her way to Quebec, 235 miles up the river from Matane, with the remainder of her crew uninjured and still aboard. Stories correcting the first report that she had sunk were killed by the press censors.

Request for deletion of the later stories came from the navy on security grounds, with the explanation that it was desirable that nothing more be published about the fate of the ship until operations then in progress were completed. Permission to publish the fact that the "sunken" ship was in reality still afloat came today.

Reach Agreement To Remove Double Succession Duty Tax

Toronto, Dec. 30 (CP)—An agreement was reached Thursday in Quebec between Quebec and Ontario providing for removal of double succession duty taxation. The agreement followed a meeting of officials of Quebec and Ontario Treasury Departments, and still awaits approval of the provincial premiers.

At present in cases where a resident of Ontario dies leaving holdings in Quebec corporations, both Ontario and Quebec levy succession duty taxes. The same applies to a resident of Quebec. The dual provincial succession duty tax is additional to the federal duty tax.

Under the proposed change the tax will be collected by the province in which the corporation is situated. The Quebec delegation was headed by Hon. Onesome Gagnon, Quebec treasurer, while the Ontario delegation was led by Hon. L. M. Frost, provincial treasurer.

Premier George Drew commenting on the agreement said he believed it was one of the most important steps in the advancement of sound inerprovincial relations.

Final agreement was reached late yesterday afternoon in regard to terms of Orders-in-Council which will be presented to the two governments. The agreement becomes effective Feb. 1.

TIME-LAG TO CONTINUE

Paris, Dec. 30 —(AP)— Allied Supreme Headquarters announced today that the present news time-lag from the Belgian bulge front, roughly 36 hours, would continue a while longer because spot news disclosures would aid the German command in evaluating the weight and location of Allied counter-measures.

NEW MUSICAL PROGRAM

MART KENNEY

Commencing New Year's night, a new musical program entitled "The Coca-Cola Music Club" will be heard every Monday evening on the CBC's trans-Canada network—a half-hour of top-flight radio entertainment presented by The Coca-Cola Company of Canada. It will replace the same sponsor's "Victory Parade" which has originated during the past two years at navy centres, army camps, air force stations, and war plants throughout Canada.

The new show will star all the old favorites of the "Victory Parade"—Mart Kenney and his Western Gentlemen, known as Canada's Spotlight Band, the voices of Art Hallman, Norma Locke, and the Spotlight Quartet—and will introduce two new features: the week's Spotlight Parade of Top Tunes, and The Story of a Song which brings famous melodies to life in short dramatic sketches providing fast-moving entertainment.

WIDTH OF ENEMY

At Border on Three Points

Other 3rd Army units had pounded to the German border at three points in northeastern Luxembourg and placed a number of escape routes back into Germany under shellfire.

In a dispatch covering developments up to Thursday morning, Associated Press war correspondent Lewis Hawkins said the 3rd Army's corridor to Bastogne was strengthened against stout resistance from the west, but lesser opposition from the east. This corridor has been broadened to as much as six miles and is developing into an acute threat to the whole German position.

15 More Towns Overrun.

By Thursday morning at least 16 more towns had been overrun by the two American armies. Among these were Jodenville and Villeroux, five and three miles southwest of Bastogne, and Sainlex and Livarchamps, both five miles to the south.

East of Bastogne Patton's men were across the Sure river at numerous points and had sent vanguards to within three miles of the city of Wiltz, 25 miles north of the capital of Luxembourg.

In a break across the Sure, which turning westward from the German border forms a river barrier in northern Luxembourg, 3rd Army troops overran Boulaide, Baschleiden, Bavigne, Mecherdunkrodt and Kaundorf, all 19 to 22 miles north of the city of Luxembourg. Kaundorf is but three miles south of Wiltz.

Operating 15 miles north and northeast of the city of Luxembourg mop-up forces seized Ettelbruck, three miles southwest of Diekirch, and Eppeldorf, four miles southeast of Diekirch.

First Army troops fought into the outskirts of Rochefort after driving the Germans from Verre, Jamblinne and Humain, seven, four and three miles from the picturesque resort town. Mopping-up operations extended all the way to Celles, near the high water mark of the German drive.

On the northern flank the Germans sent two battalions against American positions in the "hot corner" near Monschau under cover of a heavy artillery barrage, but they were thrown back without gaining ground.

To the west 100 Germans slipped past First Army lines in the neighborhood of the crossroads town of Grandmenil, but were surrounded and at last reports were being wiped out.

Gets Car Back Minus Chickens

Herman Claus, Shannonville, who lost his car containing thirty dressed chickens and other articles the other day when a member of the light-fingered fraternity quietly but efficiently relieved him of it while he was shopping, will get his car back, but not the chickens.

Warden Thomas Fleming discovered the car parked along a road near his home at Ivanhoe yesterday. The keys were in the ignition switch, but otherwise the vehicle seemed to be in good condition — but the chickens were missing.

Warden Fleming who notified city police stated that he had seen the car earlier in the day and it had been locked. He had noticed a man walking around it. Later he investigated the vehicle and found it unlcked with the keys in the switch.

Claus left for Ivanhoe this morning to claim his property.

Bonarlaw

Bonarlaw, Ont., Dec. 30—Mrs. Gordon Blair was admitted to Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday evening of this week and underwent an operation on Thursday. Her many friends in this vicinity wish her a speedy recovery.

Home for Christmas included the following: Miss Hilda Brown, Miss Ruth Prest, Sub-Lieut. Garland McKeown, Marion McKeown, Cpl. Geo. F. Wellman, Jack Eastwood, R.C.A.F. and Mrs. Eastwood, O-Smn Murray McInroy, O-Smn Kennard Baker and Pte. Chester Baker.

The school concert held in the school house S.S. No. 5, on Wednesday of last week was a splendid success. Mrs. Geo. Williams, teacher, is to be congratulated upon the splendid program presented. Mr. Ronald Brown acted a chairman.

IN MEMORIAM

PALMER — In loving memory of Mrs. Gladys Palmer, who passed away December 30th., 1943.

More and more each day we miss her.
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within our hearts concealed.
—Lovingly remembered by Son and Husband.

ROWSOME — In loving memory of William Ernest Rowsome, who died December 31. 1937.
—Ever remembered by Son and Family.

DAVIS — In loving memory of our dear father, Verner Harding Davis, who passed away January 1, 1944.

Dear father, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more.
Still in memory you are with us,
As you always were before.
—Sadly missed by his son Ernest and Family.

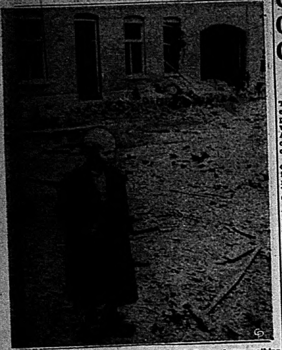
LITTLE DUTCH BOY OF 1944



He was a baby when the Nazis came in 1940. He has known nothing but oppression since then—oppression and the war of liberation that has made a shambles of his country. Little boys like this should have a hand in making the peace; for it is they who will have to fight the next war if the peacemakers botch the job this time.

Germans Fought Like Maniacs Say Weary Yanks

Paris, Dec. 30. (AP)—Two tired infantrymen told correspondents the story of nine sleepless days and nights and a fighting retreat of 30 miles from the Luxembourg border.

They were Staff Sgt. James H. Williams, Harisburg, Pa., and Pte. Abraham Rich, Ozone Park, N.Y.

Their division was on the Luxembourg-German border and took the full force of the German armored breakthrough to Bastogne. Williams' platoon was cut down from 42 men to 14 in the retreat and Rich's company lost all but 35 out of its original 130 men.

Williams said his headquarters company had been in a rest area to the rear and moved up to Clervaux in mountain country on the eve of the battle.

"We were supposed to attack, but we didn't need to", he said. "By the time of H-Hour we didn't need to go out to meet them. They were on us.

"They threw plenty. Their tanks came bursting through and their infantry ran up more like maniacs than soldiers. They poured fire into us with everything they had. They were even shooting flares point-blank at us".

By dusk the Germans had broken into the headquarters command post. Two Tiger tanks, whose heavy head armor turned all fire from light anti-tank weapons, plowed right up to the command building and fired through the windows at 15-yard range. The infantry, which rode up on the tanks, leaped off with grenades and burp guns.

"They ran wild in the gathering darkness like a bunch of drunks", Williams narrated.

With the American position overrun, the Germans waited for daybreak for the mop-up. But the Americans did not wait to be mopped up. In small groups they got out during the night, infiltrating through German patrols.

That was the start of the fight. It was fight and fall back, a delaying battle that lasted nine days, and covered 30 miles, with the Americans cut off by fast tank thrusts most of the time.

Twice the men swam rivers so cold they could hardly walk until bodily warmth slowly returned. Once they scaled a sheer cliff. Almost every mile of the way they dug in, and again and again slugged it out with the German infantry until driven out by tanks or forced to slip out at night when encircled or outflanked.

"We were hitting as hard as men could hit", Williams said. "By the time we had fallen back to a little town outside. Bastogne we were putting up a devil of a fight. Cooks and clerks and radio operators were fighting. I saw lieutenant-colonels with guns and grenades fighting just the same as anyone else at roadblocks and foxhole lines".

Cornwall Becomes Ontario's 28th City on Monday

By ALBERT GRATTON
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Cornwall, Ont., Dec. 30 (CP) — This 160-year old St. Lawrence River community embarks on a new phase in its historic civic career with the opening of the new year. After 110 years as a town, it becomes Ontario's 28th, and youngest city Monday, January 1.

The second largest and long one of the oldest towns in the province, as a city Cornwall will outrank four other Ontario cities—Welland, Galt, Woodstock and Owen Sound — in population.

Wartime industrial growth which brought its population over the 15,000-mark led town officials to seek incorporation as a city. The Ontario Municipal Board last March approved a formal application in which Corwall agreed to assume the full obligations of a city and to sever its long affiliation as a member municipality of the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry. In 1943 the Private Bills Committee of the Ontario Legislature rejected a move for city status on the grounds that the town wanted to become a city and at the same time retain its former status for municipal purposes.

Population Increases

In deciding on the application, town authorities said they felt the municipality's progress after the war could best be assured if it were free of financial commitments arising from its connection with the united counties.

The wartime population increase stated in 1942 when many outsiders moved in to take jobs in local industrial plants. Opening of Stormont Chemical War Plant also attracted newcomers. The 1943 assessment roll gave the population as 15,118—it was 14,117 in the 1941 census—and this figure has since increased by 200 to 300.

Cornwall is familiarly known through Eastern Ontario as the "Factory Town." Its largest industrial concern is Courtalds (Canada) Limited which employs about 2,000 men and women. About 1,800 are employed in the three mills of Canadian Cottons, Limited. These and other industries have been operating at capacity during the war.

The first community was established here in 1784 by United Empire Loyalists. They named it Johnstown after Sir John Johnston who supervised the settlement. A village sprang up and in 1834, the community was granted a charter which gave it the status of a town with local self-government and was given its present name. In 1847 another act of incorporation provided for civic administration by the council and ward system.

Personnel of Council

By the middle of the 19th. Century, the town's industrial growth was well under way. Opening of the Cornwall Canal and of the railroad system linking Toronto and Montreal provided enviable transportation facilities for industrial concerns.

Cornwall's first city council, which takes office January 2, is headed by Mayor Aaron Horovitz, president of a local manufacturing concern, who has been mayor in eight other years. The aldermen are: William H. Gallinger, Alfred Wilson, Levi Miller, Lloyd Gallinger, Dr. O. A. Keddy, O. E. Roberts, Bert Yates, Guy H. Smith, James P. St. Thomas, Albert Doyon, Dr. E. J. Courville and George Bergeron.

Fergus B. Brownridge is city Clerk and Oliva Larin, city treasurer and tax collector.

Arrogant German Chutist Commander Caught in Woods

Monschau, Germany, Dec. 30 (AP)—A king-pin prisoner taken by the Americans in the German offensive is swaggering Lt.-Col. Friedrich Von Der Heydte, parachute troop commander whose truculent men fought the Allies in Africa and Normandy.

Arrogant as ever, Von Der Hedte was dropped on his most important mission the night of December 17 as the leader of 600 German parachute troops in the Eupen-Malmedy area for the purpose of disrupting Allied communications and gathering information on Allied troop dispositons.

Most of his men were rounded up quickly, but for five days, although suffering injuries, the obdurate officer hid in the woods.

Guatemalan Embassy Charges El Salvador Pres.

"Osmin Aguirre (President of El Salvador) continues by means of the radio and press to make propaganda to create an atmosphere that would justify his aggression against Guatemala and even to obtain the help of some foreign government and to organize a military expedition to our country," said a statement issued by the Embassy.

Capital Closeups

By JACK BRAYLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 30 (CP).—DAILY TIP: In this city of sub-zero temperatures and ear muffs, with winter a month ahead of normal schedule, a lively, soft-spoken little man is continuing his health work after retirement age and keeping himself fit with a daily swim in a hotel pool.

He is Dr. J. H. Heagerty, Federal Director of Public Health Services, who celebrated his 65th birthday recently, but he doesn't look his age and says he doesn't feel it.

December temperatures in the capital have loitered consistently under the zero mark for most of the month and mention of anything but a hot bath would bring a shudder to most Ottawans hunching shoulders in weather that normally doesn't grip the city until January.

The swimming pool, however, has lost none of its appeal to Dr. Heagerty. "I still go swimming every day and I like it," he said.

He was scheduled to retire at the end of the month but he was asked to remain at his post and happily accepted. "I still feel I am a young man and that I can carry on my work for a good many years yet."

The doctor has the national health program in mind, financial arrangements of which have still to be worked out with the provinces. Dr. Heagerty would like to see the plan in operation and by that time he feels he will have schooled his more youthful lieutenants so they can carry on where he leaves off. In this connection the Re-organizing Health Department needs him as the switch of some responsibilities is being made to the new Veterans' Department.

Closest to his heart, however, is the National Physical Fitness Program and he wants to see it in full operation before quitting his post.

MEET THE VICEROY! Long tables are being set up in the Parliament Buildings today. They are there in preparation for an unique Canadian function—the Governor-General's levee on New Year's day.

The tables are for two purposes, checking the coats and hats of those who will attend, and serving coffee, sandwiches and cake to them after they have shaken the hand of the Earl of Athlone.

The levee is a trace of French colonial ceremonial and a relic of the French monarchy. When kings ruled France it was the custom on New Year's Day for the king to make himself available to the populace.

The French king's governors in Quebec followed the custom and the English governors adopted it when Canada finally became a British possession.

STOP PRESS: The Wartime Information Board's industrial pamphlet—"Labor Facts"—is running off the presses today on time but only because its editor scaled a fire ladder and saved his copy from advancing flames.

And Editor David Petegorsky, 26-year-old industrial economist, doctor of philosophy and graduate of the London School of Economics, is modestly allowing this column to scoop him on the story.

The W.I.B.'s industrial section was housed in a big Central Sparks St. building where fire broke out the other night. Petegorsky arrived on the scene to try and save his copy, all ready to go to press.

Preceded by a fireman he scaled a ladder to his second floor office and when the fireman smashed in a window with his axe, Petegorsky crawled through the smoke-filled office, grabbed his hard-won copy and handed it to the fireman.

But instead of following the fireman down the ladder, Petegorsky disappeared in the smoke again. He emerged a few seconds later, grasping a prized fishing rod and then descended to safety.

In Manhattan

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(C.P. Staff Writer)

New York Dec. 30 (CP) — Dwellers in free-spending Manhattan are all set for a traditionally noisy, alcoholic observance of New Year's Eve.

Although the office of Price Administration has barred night clubs and hotels from making higher charges for the privilege of drinking and screaming this year than they did last some of the prices to be exacted—coupled with the brigandish shakedown applied by head waiters on such evenings—are sufficient to make thrifty persons feel faintly ill.

Top holiday charges this year will be made by Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe and the Latin Quarter; both of which will squeeze their patrons for $36.30 a couple.

Prices range downwards from there but rarely far below $20 and include only meals—not drinks. These average more than $1.00 apiece.

The Stork Club will insist that its patrons wear evening dress; and will charge them $25.20 for the pleasure of wilting a high collar within its walls. But the management magnanimously says servicemen are exempt from the must-dress order.

Noisiest show to hit Broadway in a long time is the new Olsen and Johnson vehicle, "Laffing Room Only." What the production lacks in wit it attempts to make up in pace and general hullaballoo, with stooges falling into the orchestra pit and out of the stage boxes, midgets patrolling the aisles, chorus-girls mingling with the audience and pistol-shots crackling constantly.

A far pleasanter evening—in fact one of the most enjoyable Broadway has offered this season—is provided by the Theatre Guild musical "Sing Out, Sweet Land!" starring Alfred Drake—the original "Curly" of "Oklahoma!" — and featuring Minstrelman Burl Ives.

Mr. Drake sings his way delightfully through a series of American folk-songs as the rambling story of a wandering immortal troubadour traces the growth of the United States from Puritan days in New England to the Second Great War.

Seldom has a singer been confronted with a more demanding role—he is on the stage at least three-quarters of the evening and singing most of the time—and seldom has an opportunity been seized more firmly. Mr. Drake carries the weight of the long show magnificently, with a well-mannered sense of humor to match his pleasant tenor voice.

Mr. Ives strums a wicked guitar and sings right along too; in places he stops the show.

Australia Sees War Against Japan Going on 'For Long Time Yet' Senator Keene Tells Newspapermen

Ottawa, Dec. 30 (CP) — Australia believes the war against Japan will go on for "a long time yet" and consequently no slackening in the country's "100 per cent war effort" is in prospect for a few years, Senator R. V. Keene, Australian Minister for trade and customs, said Friday, reviewing Australia's war effort at a press conference here.

"All this talk of post-war reconstruction and reconversion is a distraction to the people," said Senator Keane when asked if his conferences with Canadian government officials would include plans for post-war trade.

He is in Canada for discussions with mutual aid and trade officials. Canada could supply many things that Australia could not manufacture at home and these supplies were more than ever necessary now.

There was a "colossal" shortage of manpower in Australia. Some 70,000 workers were needed. And this despite the fact that workers were frozen in their jobs and that elderly men were conscripted for work on defence projects. Several thousand men in their 50s had been conscripted to build airports and other military establishments.

The construction of the military establishments was part of Australia's reverse lend-lease. The country was spending £10,000,000 (approximately $35,000,000 a month on reverse lend-lease.)

All told the country with its seven million population was spending more than £2,000,000,000 (approximately $7,000,000,000) a year on the war effort. In addition, the people were subjected to much more rigid rationing than the people of Canada. Meat, clothing, cigarets, cigars, tobacco, liquor, beer, sugar and tea were all on the ration list.

London (CP).—Walter Elliot, Unionist member of Parliament, says Londoners spend two hours longer at work each day because: "The speed of London's traffic is about twice as fast as a wheel-barrow."

Bath, England (CP).—Queen Mary and the Princess Royal took their own shopping bags, paper and string when they did their Christmas shopping here.

FRANKFORD

Midnight Service At Trinity Church

Frankford — The midnight service held at Trinity Church on Christmas Eve was exceptionally well attended. The church had been tastefully decorated for the occasion with evergreens and sprigs of real holly very heavily berried, sent from Vancouver by Mr. Howard Morrow, especially for the service.

The service opened with the singing of familiar carols, followed by the Holy Communion. In place of the sermon, the Rector, Rev. C. C. Brazill, gave a Christmas message to the congregation, after which the choir sang the anthem "Hark What Mean Those Holy Voices." During the offertory, the anthem "Peace on Earth" was sung by the choir, the soloists being the Misses Marjory and Lucy Green and Azalene Smith. Owing to the holiday season and sickness the choir was very depleted in numbers but the anthem was especially well rendered.

After the blessing, that most beautiful of all carols "Silent Night, Holy Night," sung with the congregation kneeling, brought to a close a very bright and inspiring service.

In the vestry at the close of the midnight service, the church organist and choir leader Mrs. Gerald Johnson was presented with a beautiful silver cheese and cracker dish by the members of the choir.

Christmas Concert

The Public School Christmas concert was held in the auditorium of the school on the afternoon of Thursday, December 21st. The program:

Welcome song, Rooms 1 and 2; monologue, "Just Before Christmas," Douglas Armstrong; Upside Down Drill, pupils of room 3; duet, Christmas song, Shirley Closs and Marie Turley (vocal); recitation, "What the Stocking Said," Gary Walker; dialogue, "No News", room 5; chorus, "Toy Town Jamboree", room 4; exercise, Dolls' Christmas, girls of room 2; acrostic "Merry Christmas," room 1; violin and piano selection, Vlada Zapletal and Milan Kravacek; Umbrella song, pupils of room 3; recitation, "A Joke on Pa", Glen Ploud; exercise, Santa Claus, room 1; dialogue, School Days, room 5; choral reading, "Christmas Toyshop," room 3; two part song "Swinging on a Star," room 4; recitation, "I Wish I Were a Little Boy," June Sleeper; dialogue, "Dan Speaks a Piece," room 3; chorus, "Be Jolly," room 5; recitation, "A Christmas Gift," Bobby Ireland; dialogue, "The Truth Telling Machine," room 6; vocal duet, "Sunbonnet Sally and Overall Jim," Barbara Stickle and Buddy Sleeper; recitation, "Our Chimney," Blake Patrick and Arthur Rogers; "The Oldest Song of Christmas", room 5.

The audience was given an invitation to visit the rooms of the school where the children and teachers had been busy decorating Christmas trees for the occasion.

On Friday, the last day of school, Santa visited the children, distributing presents and candy to all.

No Election

There is to be no election, the various offices being filled by acclamation, and are:

Reeve, Geo. Montgomery; council, J. M. Dafoe, O. E. Farrar, S. A. Osterhout, W. F. Ketcheson. School board, James Whytock, Harold Terry, H. J. Carter.

Christmas concerts for the children were put on in the United Church on Friday evening, Dec. 22 and in the Full Gospel Hall on Wednesday Dec. 20th.

Rev. W. I. Simmons and Mrs. Simmons of Bancroft were holiday visitors at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Simmons.

Trenton Red Cross Shipped 7,758 Articles in 1944

Trenton, Dec. 30.—The annual meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held in the Red Cross rooms, over Shurie's Drug Store, on Thursday evening, December 28, Mr. B. F. Joyce presiding.

The minutes of the previous annual meeting were read by the Secretary, Mrs. V. P. Carswell, and approved. Treasurer George Sprentall gave a financial statement compiled to December 28, showing a balance in the bank of $1803.64.

Reports of the various committees were read and the shipping report showed 7,758 articles were shipped to headquarters during the year at a total value of $1820.23. These shipments were made up of:—5,024 surgical compresses, 485 bandages, 15 hospital towels, 220 gauze handkerchiefs, 45 wash cloths 49 bed jackets, 44 hospital dressing gowns, 85 seamen's dunnage bags, 72 pairs seamen's stockings and socks, 362 pairs army and airforce socks, 204 sweaters for service men, 2 pairs mitts, 16 pairs army gloves, 15 scarves, 8 caps for steel helmets, 6 ribbed helmets, 25 aviators' belts.

For Civilian Relief

Eighteen dresses, 70 girls' blouses, 105 pinafore dresses with blouses, 15 pairs girls' slacks, 21 skirts, 20 pairs girls' rompers, 3 women's silk slips 1 pair sockees, 11 girls' sweaters, 6 women's sweaters, 12 boys' sweaters, 5 boys' coats, 20 boys' knitted suits 11 pairs boys' socks, 70 pairs boys' shorts, 16 baby blankets 20 mill felt blankets, 62 quilts, 252 odds and ends (mostly babies'), 7 shelter kits, 20 articles Christmas treats.

For Greek Relief

In addition to the above, shipments containing 205 articles of seamen's comforts, and a quantity of games, total value $149.64 were sent to Corvette "Trentonian"; 51 articles of new and used clothing valued at $57.45 sent to Russian Relief, and 198 articles valued at $133.50 were sent for the Russian Linen shower. Other items forwarded to headquarters consisted of one carton used leather and one carton used furs.

Election of officers resulted in Mr. B. F. Joyce being chosen president for a sixth term. Mrs. C. V. Wilkins was elected first vice-president to fill the vacancy through Mrs. J. H. Redick's resignation, while second and third vice-presidents remain as in 1944, namely Mrs. W. J. Potts and Mr. W. B. McClung.

The resignation of Treasurer, George Sprentall and Secretary, Mrs. V. P. Carswell were both accepted with sincere regrets by the Society and the vacancies were left in abeyance until others suggested for the offices could be contacted. Deep regret was also voiced at the resignation, due to ill health, of Mrs. J. H. Redick, first vice president.

The work rooms are to re-open following the holiday recess on Tuesday, January 9, when it is hoped Trenton ladies will co-operate to the fullest in order that large quotas of work now on hand may be quickly completed. The need is urgent and all are asked to help.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Thelma Julian, in a pink wool suit and shoulder-length veil caught with pink flowers, matching accessories, and a corsage of Bettertime roses. WO Jean Hammond, R.C.A.F., her other attendant, wore her Airforce uniform. Maurice Ferguson was best man.

At the reception, held at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother received the guests, in a rose crepe suit, with black fur and felt hat, and corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother, also receiving, wore a green wool suit, with black felt hat, and corsage of white carnations.

For a wedding trip to Toronto, the bride chose a brown crepe suit, with black hat and matching accessories. On their return, they will make their home in Belleville.

Girl Get Fiance's Number When He Dodged the Draft

"Dear Miss Fairfax:—

"It was not until my finace successfully evaded the Draft on the score of physical disability that I realized the truth about our engagement, though we'd been going together for eight years.

"Six years ago our engagement had been announced, but there was always some reason why our marriage was postponed. He didn't have that usual alibi — an old parent, or even an Aunt Jane who had acted in loco parentis and helped him get his college education. I was foolish enough to fall for his excuses because I loved him so much.

"When we entered the war I thought he would be one of the first to enlist. But he side-stepped the issue. Then one evening when he was in a particularly expansive mood, he told me how clever he was; that he'd been doctoring up with various drugs, etc. to bring about faulty diagnosis which would keep him out of the Army. I can't tell you how repulsive he became to me in that moment of revelation.

"He had avoided marriage because he didn't want the responsibility of a wife, and he declined to enlist but was willing to let other men risk their lives while he did his part abusing the Germans, the Japanese, and Mussolini of stab-in-the-back fame.

"Fortunately my annual leave from a Government office occurred at the time I got this man's number. I didn't invite him to our home as I had done during previous vacations. After a week I wrote and broke our engagement, saying we were unsuited. Now I feel utterly lost.

"For eight years every aspiration and thought had been built around my future with this man. What's to do with the years that stretch ahead? I'm 28 years of age, and have tried to summon my sense of humor and laugh over my escape. But tears come more often than laughter.

A. J. F."

Why don't you join the CWACS? You might be sent to some far-flung post like Australia, New Guinea, or Italy. Nothing would help you forget this unworthy specimen more quickly.

You won't have time left for thoughts of this responsibility dodger. You'll be seeing the world under favorable circumstances, and you'll have to be a long way past 28 before you realize how young 28 actually is. It's more than likely you'll wind up by thinking that your broken engagement was a successful calamity before six weeks have passed.

GOOD MANNERS

Children Should Write Their Own Thank-You Notes

Having your children write their thank-you notes for their Christmas presents is a perfect opportunity to plant the seed of that endearing quality of appreciation.

You should begin early to teach your children to write their letters thanking for gifts. You can even begin when the children are so tiny that you must hold the little hands to make their mark (X) after the signature of the letters you write for them then explain the mark by saying, "This is your thank-you for the lovely present Aunt Betty sent you".

This seed will pleasantly blossom into the habit of writing their own notes when they are old enough. Then let them word their own notes. Some will be worded naturally, as the child would speak his thanks. Some will be studied, in the effort to be "grown-up". Some will be charmingly naive. Some of these tiny letters will be painstakingly printed, and most of them will probably be written "up hill and down dale" on the paper. But they will be delightful to the receivers, and far more prized than any notes written for their children by parents.

The important points are (1) that children should not be excused from writing to thank for their Christmas presents, and (2) that they should be taught that it is not enough to wait to thank relatives and friends when they happen to see them.

Announcing The Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My fiance is a staff sergeant in the Army, and we plan to be married next month. He has a stepmother, and he has lived with his father and stepmother since he was a very young child. I too have a stepmother, and although I live with my sister, I continue to visit my father and stepmother. Will you please tell how our marriage announcements should be worded?

Louise

If you have a "daughter-ly" feeling toward your stepmother, you may use this form:

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Paul Smith announce the marriage of their daughter Louise etc.

Or, if you prefer, this form is proper:

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Paul Smith
announce the marriage of Mr.
Smith's daughter, Louise

There is no problem about the names of the bridegroom's parents, since these are not included in a marriage announcement.

BEAUTY

Good-Looks Resolutions

You didn't do so well by yourself last year, did you? Didn't have much time. Lots of work, lots of worries, maybe. Life is like that, only it is worse in war time. What does your mirror say? Are you battling the birthdays gallantly and valiantly? That is a help. Father Time is every woman's enemy, so far as external appearances go. Thank goodness the old meanie can't do a thing to one's heart; that can stay young until the last bell tolls.

Let this be your resolution for 1945: Cross your heart and vow that this year you will not only attend to all the beauty chores but also will make every endeavor to keep well and radiant. You'll keep your chin up, no matter what happens. You will eat wisely, sleep long hours every night, get a certain amount of exercise — because muscle tone means brisk circulation, colorful complexion and digestive motors that click properly.

Keeping within finger touch of one's youth is a lifetime contract but a worth while job; it makes for happiness and contentment. Many a woman jumps out of bed in the morning, looks in the mirror before she decides whether or not she feels well. If she looks terrible, she feels terrible. Many a half-sick woman—sick in body or soul—perks up and is ready to swing the world by the tail after she goes through the beauty hopper.

It is important to cultivate emotional control. The percentage of organic ills is small compared to functional ones that are caused by emotional stress or lack of mental hygiene. Any doctor will testify to that fact. An unsound nervous system, combined with worry, will not only make one ill, but will raise the dickens with appearance. Cheerfulness is the best insurance against wrinkles. Amiability imparts radiance to a plain face. Friendliness and graciousness turn on the high lights of the countenance, make it lovely.

Don't forget that perfect health is the fundamental secret of charm. This is the year in which you are going to arrange for yourself a well-organized life, increase your charm, your self-assurance and your general attractiveness 100 per cent. You will not tolerate a dim personality. Strive for the intangible quality of radiance, both in appearance and in spirit.

Pay heed to what you eat; include the various elements of good that are necessary for health. Drink milk, so you will get calcium for the sake of your teeth. And, oh yes! This year you will go to the dentist's office every six months, even if you haven't a sign of tooth trouble. That is taking time by the cowlick, and it saves money in the long run.

Sleeves in Spotlight, New Trend in Fashion

Because Montreal is gradually developing individuality as a style centre the fashion preferences of its top-flight designers are of increasing interest to the fashion-alert public. This season there is seen a decided liking for novel sleeve treatments. In the winter collection of Alfandri, one of Montreal's leading couturiers, many outstanding examples of the new trend, with changes either subtle or dramatic, are noted.

Afternoon dresses that can be worn in the evening have special sleeve charm. Many sleeves are short and with deep armholes. One of the most exciting effects, rich but not overdone, is a button-back sleeve. This very wide, short sleeve is lined in a contrasing colour and folded back into a deep cuff buttoning on shoulder. It looks marvellous in black with the turn-back in Marcella, a bluish rose shade which Alfandri describes as "crushed raspberries and cream".

Semi-kimona sleeves, sleeves crossing over on the upper arm and held by a large button, sleeves edged with lattice-work banding, ruffles or other trimming also have great appeal.

Cap sleeves are presented in many variations. One delightful style with the top of the sleeve a continuation of the shoulder has its flowing fabric drawn into a soft knot at front. In another dress the ruffles of the yoke edge extend to provide the merest whisper of a sleeve.

Three-quarter and long sleeves, simpler in design, are sometimes accented by ruffles, buttons, jewelled or sequin ornaments.

Advice to Young Ladies 'Way Back in Year 1859

By "R. L. W." in the Providence Bulletin

I don't know who Miss Eliza Leslie was or anything about her, except that she lived in Philadelphia in the 1850's, but the other evening I opened her "Behaviour Book: a Manual for Ladies" at page 103. After reading just one paragraph I spent the rest of the night with Miss Leslie in an armchair. Here is the paragraph:

"Ladies no longer eat saltfish at a public table. The odor of it is now considered extremely ungenteel, and it is always very disagreeable to those who do not eat it. If you breakfast alone you can then indulge in it."

Once I had read that, nothing would do me but I must go back and devour all of Chapter X, "Deportment at a Hotel". I wished to know what some of the other things were that a lady stopping at a hotel had to do besides pull down the shades while she ate a herring. I must say I learned plenty. Miss Leslie and John Cotton and Co. of Philly brought out "The Behaviour Book" in 1859 and it was high time they did. It is evident that a dangerus spirit of change was abroad in the land and that liberty was fast turning into licence. Eliza had to concede that:

"The fashion of wearing black silk mittens at breakfast is now obsolete. It was always inconvenient, and neither useful nor ornamental."

I'll bet that raised the very d——l in Philadelphia. But don't think Miss Leslie was one who could be pushed around. She had plenty of backbone and on page 128 she took a firm stand against something that was undermining the very foundation of the ship of state.

"It is an affectation of ultra-fashion to eat the pie with a fork and has a very awkward and inconvenient look."

On page 133 there is an incident involving a well-dressed stranger, who was dining "at a great hotel in Boston", and was eating beans with his knife. Miss Leslie was down upon this fellow like a row of Pennsylvania Dutch brick smoke-houses. For eating with his knife? Dear, no. For hurling the butter knife at a waiter. It seems the waiter had insisted on his using the butter knife in helping himself to butter, whereupon the well-dressed stranger had allowed as how the knife he had been shovelling beans with was good enough for him. He then threw the butter knife so hard that it shattered against the wall. "For the exploit," Miss Leslie remarks, "he had to pay $5." I hope it was a lesson to him.

If the female hotel guest paid attention to Miss Leslie's instructions she did not, after eating her herringless breakfast, gallop back to her room to make sure the chambermaid wasn't stealing her cashmere shawl. "This palpable suspicion of their honesty is an insult to the girls, and is always felt as such. It is sufficient to lock the bureau, the wardrobe and your trunks."

Instead, she was supposed to repair to the hotel drawing room or parlor and there converse with other ladies, taking care to avoid any one "who is travelling without a companion, and whose face is painted, who wears a profusion of long curls about her neck, who has a mereticulous expression of eye, and who is overdressed." She was also to steer clear of "young girls who are loud, noisy, bold and forward," and of "females who are evidently coarse and vulgar, even if you know that they are rich, live in a large house and are of respectable character."

That didn't leave a naturally sociable girl much in the way of companionship, except her own thoughts and the shipping news.

In case she ever met a man who was fit to speak to, and Miss Leslie doesn't hold out much hope, she was to converse sensibly with him and not use slang.

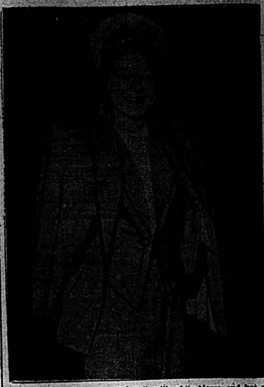
WOMAN MAYOR

Mayor-elect Mary C. Dondero at her home in Portsmouth, N.H. Mrs. Dondero lost the election in the original count held Dec. 12 but was later declared the winner in a recount, over County Commissioner Ira A. Brown (R.) by a margin of seven votes, 2,117 to 2,110.

It's About Time

It's about time to rejuvenate that fox scarf which is made of two skins. Have it made into a stole not using the tails or heads. Skins are opened to full width and lined with material.

Gray Day in Hollywood



Sonja's three-piece gray wool suit, with white blouse, and hat and bag of the gray fabric, features a swallow tailed jacket, short topper and skirt with diagonal detail.

It's not a sorry gray day in Hollywood at all, if it's Sonja Henie introducing it. Here is the silver skates girl as she looks in private life, wearing a Hollywood designer's gray wool suit . . . suitable for practically all daytime purposes, in cluding travel or pink teas.

Mrs. Sid Demorest gathered the offering which amounted to almost eight dollars and this was dedicated by Mrs. John Holmes.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver outlined a chapter of the Study Book entitled "Peoples of Island India". When the second world war broke out, many countries with strong missionary forces had no way of assisting their workers about so the International missionary council was asked to help. As the book is studied, readers will understand better the words of a Christian pastor when he said "the ground is level at the foot of the Cross".

A Canadian friendship candle-lighting service prepared by Miss Winnifred Thomas in the Missionary Monthly was given in three parts with Miss Muriel Sine, Mrs. Sid Demorest, Miss Edna Hubble, Mrs. Kenneth Weaver, Mrs. Frank Jeffs, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mrs. George Weaver, Mrs. Edgar McKeown assisting the president. A lovely picture of "The Madonna and Child" by Rapha elgraced the worship centre.

During the worship service, several musical numbers, hymns, solos and duets were rendered.

At the close, the hostess served a lunch and Mrs. John Holmes poured tea. Mrs. McKeown was thanked for her hospitality.

The ladies enjoyed visiting the hostess in her new home at Bethel and hope she will often visit the W.M.S. at Mount Pleasant.

360,000 FOOTBALL FANS EXPECTED TO WATCH GAMES

Rose Bowl Game in California Will Draw 90,000

New York, Dec. 30. (AP)—More than 30,000 football fans, nearly 100,000 more than a year ago, are expected to watch the various year-end football Bowl games that put the finishing touches on a hectic 1944 campaign.

Serving as an appetizer for the Rose, Sugar, Orange, Cotton, Shrine, Sun and Spaghetti Bowls on New Year's Day is the renewal today of the north-south struggle at Montgomery, Ala., after a year's lapse. Officials anticipate a capacity crowd of 22,500 for the game that stars two ace forward passers in the former Georgia Star, Charlie Trippi, for the south, and Indiana's Bob Hoernschemeyer for the north.

The S.R.O. sign has been hung out for Monday's glamorous struggles. More than 90,000 are expected at the Rose Bowl in California where highly favored southern California tangles with undefeated, but tied Tennessee of the Southeast Conference.

Down at New Orleans the Sugar Bowl clash between Duke and Alabama figures to draw 70,000 and the East vs West (Shrine Bowl) encounter at San Francisco 60,000. The East All-Stars and Duke are favored.

The Spaghetti Bowl in Italy that pits the Allied 5th Army agains the 12th Air Force expects a turnout of some 35,000 soldiers. The Cotton Bowl engagement at Dallas between the Oklahoma Aggies' and Texas Christian looks for a similar crowd.

Georgia Tech, upset conqueror of Navy during the regular season, battles highscoring Tulsa in the Orange Bowl at Miami with 30,000 in the stands. The Sun Bowl tilt at El Paso, Tex., between the University of Mexico and Southwestern of Texas probably will have a crowd of 18,000.

Final Shipment Of 'Fags' Made For This Year

The final shipment of Canadian cigarettes to Belleville boys serving overseas for the year 1944 were dispatched by the Kinsmen "Fag Fund" yesterday Chairman Buster LaBarr announced today.

In the year's last shipment 87 Belleville boys were sent an aggregate total of 26,100 cigarettes bringing the year's total to well over a million fags and the fund's total to far over the three million mark since the Kinsmen's Fag Fund was first instituted.

The Belleville Kinsmen Fag Fund is recognized as a war measure charity by the Dominion Government and donations contributed to fund are exempt from individual private income taxation, according to the 1939 war measures regulation governing such charity contributions. As has been pointed out by the Kinsmen Fag Fund before $1.00 sends 300 cigarettes to a Belleville boy serving overseas.

The list sent shipments of individual packages of 300 cigarettes each yesterday included:

22 Marks Bettered Or Equalled In American League

St. Louis Browns, Winners of the Pennant, Put Three Entries in Book

By JERRY LISKA
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Chicago, Dec. 30. (AP)—The American League was more occupied with a slam-bang pennant race than breaking records last season, according to official figures released today which listed only 22 marks bettered or equalled, compared with 30 in 1943.

St. Louis Browns, who finally shook off Detroit and New York for the pennant, made three entries in the record book, while batting champion Lou Boudreau of Cleveland Indians and Frank Hayes of Philadelphia each hung up two new individual marks.

Hayes, in contributing two of the eight new Major League records registered by the Junior circuit, caught 155 games for the most consecutive contests and most games played by a catcher in one season. Hayes tied Catcher Ray Mueller of Cincinnati who set a similar National League record.

Boudreau Best Shortstop.

Boudreau set a new Major League record for double plays at shortstop in a season, 113, and his .978 average was a new league high in fielding by a shortstop.

The Browns tied two Major League records when they won nine straight games at the season's outset and took the flag with the low percentage of .578. Luke Sewell's lads also set a league record for grounding into the fewest infield double plays, 83.

Other new Major League marks included: most years leading league in home runs—New York, 25; most double plays at first base in a season—Rudy York of Detroit, 163; three successive errors at third base in one inning—Oscar Grimes of New York; and most years without a no-hit game—23.

Equal Major Loop Mark.

Team-mates George Myatt and Stan Spence of Washington equalled the Mayor League mark of six-for-six at bat, while Boston's Bobby Doerr and Bob Johnson each hit the cycle. Other league records tied were the single game high of four two-baggers, by Johnny Lindell of New York, and five double plays at shortstop, by John Sullivan of Washington.

George McQuinn and Don Gutteridge of the Browns had a hand in two of the five new league marks, each figuring in five double plays in a single game at first and second respectively. Reliefer Joe Heving of Cleveland set a loop mark of most consecutive games pitched and none completed with 63.

It was the fifth time in American League history that there were no unplayed games on the schedule—another record.

Memorial Cup Finals in Toronto Starting April 14

Toronto, Dec. 30 (CP).—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association at its annual mid-winter meeting yesterday announced that the Memorial Cup finals would be played in Toronto starting Saturday, April 14. Venue and dates of the Allan Cup finals for the senior title were not decided upon.

Frank Sargent, president of the C.A.H.A., said that a decision would be reached on place and dates of Allan Cup series before the end of February. The annual meeting of the C.A.H.A. will b held in Vancouver, May 5, 6 and 7.

A warning was issued by the executive that permission must be granted by the provincial branch and the C.A.H.A. before any member team can play an exhibition game with an United States team.

REVIEW OF YEAR IN SPORTS

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Dec. 30 (CP) — That's a funny little situation that arose at Nanaimo, B.C., where the Kirk Brothers staged a "sitdown strike" demanding more pay for their hockey talents. Jack and Norm Kirk are stars of the Nanaimo Clippers, and recognize their worth. The strange part of it all is that the team officials and Amateur Hockey Association men on the coast don't think it at all strange that "amateurs" should be demanding pay increases, but take it all for granted. .. As a matter of fact, President Doug Grimston of the Provincial Amateur Hockey body said he would much rather have things in the open, instead of having surreptitious bonuses slipped around as was done in the old days before everyone gave up the struggle to preserve that grand old myth. .. Only objection to the Kirk brothers' action apparently is that they have broken the price ceiling for hockey wages, and must pay the penalty of their sins—which means they may be suspended if they don't decide to live within their incomes!

Just because men can play tough, bruising games doesn't necessarily mean they are in good enough condition for the armed services, as suggested by James Byrnes, U.S. War Mobilization director.

Fred Thompson of The Kitchener Record, points out the case of Ted Reeve, noted Toronto athlete and sports writer, whose old football injuries finally caught up with him after he had hoodwinked the army doctors into taking him on as a volunteer. Ted had most of those injuries—the ones that made him unfit for military service —for many years while he was playing football, which isn't a sissy sport by any means.

Then of course there are the thousands of men in business and industry who have been rejected by the army for one reason or another. They didn't have even the physical fitness apparently demanded to hold down one of the countless desk jobs in the services!

Mr. Byrnes evidently was barking up the wrong tree when he said a man must be fit for military service if he can "compete with the greatest athletes of the nation."

BIBEAULT MOVE LIKELY TO HELP LES CANADIENS

Most Solid Goalie in the National League and Bruins Will Benefit

By FRED KEENER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Suggesting that the feud between Art Ross and Tommy Gorman is at an end because the Canadiens' mentor handed goalie Paul Bibeault over to Bruins on a silver platter may or may not be on the right track. There is always the possibility that a shrewd player-trader like Tommy Gorman had more than an olive-branch in mind.

Paul Bibeault may not be an all-time all-star goalie, but he is as solid a netminder as can be found in the N.H.L. today. With a fair defensive aggregation in front of him, the former Habitant backstop is worth half a team — something he proved while with Toronto Leafs last season. And just as he proved a help to Leafs last season, this year with Boston he might be a hindrance to Hay Day's boys.

With a first class goaltender, Bruins can climb into third place and push the Leafs onto the fourth rung in the standing. In that way Leafs might end up playing Detroit in one of the semi-final Stanley Cup series, and Habitants would face the team they helped.

Meanwhile with a full New Year's weekend booked in hockeydom, Detroit's Red Wings have a possibility of overtaking the Stanley Cup holders — but the probability is slim. Wings face the cellar-cloistered Chihawks twice in a row on Sunda yand Monday and the four points they can pick up in easy fashion might boost them atop Habs. The Montrealers play only a single game — tonight — facing Rangers who have managed to down the loop-leaders once this year.

Figure Filberts also point out that Hawks can go a long way to lift themselves ou tof the basement, for the Thompson team plays three games, facing Leafs at Toronto tonight prior to the two-tilt series against Detroit. Rangers get their second holiday game under their belts Sunday night at home when they entertain Bruins.

All in all though, the odds are good that the standing will be unchanged next Tuesday morning.

The efficiency of electric light bulbs has been increased about six-fold since 1900.

STAFFORDS TIE HAMILTONMAJORS IN NIFTY TILT

St. Michael's Tied for First Place in Junior "A" Series

By The Canadain Press

For the second time this season in the O.H.A. senior series, the surprising Staffords of Toronto last night held the league-leading Majors to a tie, the score at Hamilton being 4-all in overtime. As a result, Majors retain a two-point margin above Staffords and St. Catharines Saints, tied for second place.

There was no score in the first period and it looked like the cheers for Majors as they emerged from the second round with a 2-0 advantage on goals by Liscombe and Shillington. Within 11 minutes of the third frame, however, Kosick and Grigor balanced the score for Staffords and from there on the rivals took turns in flipping the counters, with Moorehouse of the visitors knotting it at 4-4 with only 15 seconds of regular time to play.

The snipers for Majors were Liscombe, Shillington, Conick and Brady while the Stafford markers went to Kosick, Grigor, Calhoun and Moorehouse.

In a return to junior "A" competition, St. Catharines Falcons climbed into a first-place tie with St. Wings 6-2.

McMurdy notched the sole tally of the first frame for Falcpos, then the homesters cut loose to lead 5-1 at the close of the second period. Peterson paced the winners with two goals while Adamo registered both scores for Red Wings.

Falcons' other counter went to McMurdy, Davis, Delmonte and Dawdy, with Delmonte also breaking through for two assists. Other assists were chalked to the credit of Dawdy, Stewart (2) and Edwards. Helping Adamo in his two Galt counters were Jordan and Pavelich.

GERMANS BADLY MAULED

Washington, Dec. 30 —(AP)— Military experts estimated yesterday that seven German divisions, including two crack panzer outfits, have been so badly mauled in the enemy's counter-offensive that they no longer are fighting units.

Bury St. Edmonds, England (CP).—A bomb from an American plane on its way to a raid on the enemy fell here and three cottages were made uninhabitable.

400 STANDOUT ATHLETES DIE IN SERVICE OF U.S.

Charlie Paddock, World's Fastest Human, Killed in Plane Crash

New York, Dec. 30 (AP)—More than 400 standout professional and nationally-ranked amateur athletes have died in the service of the United States since that country entered the war.

A partial roundup of sports fatalities includes such familiar names as sprinter Charlie Paddock, polo ace Tommy Hitchcock, all-America footballer Nile Kinnick and miler Lou Zamperini.

Paddock, a marine captain and once known to million as the world's fastest human, died in a plane crash near Sitka, Alaska; Hitchcock, a lieutenant-colonel and 10-goal international polo hero, was killed when his P51 cracked up at Salisbury; and Kinnick, a naval ensign after an amazing grid career at the University of Iowa, was lost in the Caribbean Sea when his aircraft failed to return to its carrier.

Zamperini, a lieutenant generally credited with once climbing a flagpole at Hitler's chancellery to collect a Nazi flag, was officially listed killed in action in the South Pacific although his family at Torrance, Calif., still has hopes he is a war prisoner.

Football Roll High.

College football's honor roll is longer than the others because so many of its players are in the age group and physical condition that add up to front line service. Baseball, track, boxing and golf are others high on the list.

Two Major League baseball players have died in service—Eugene Stack, a rookie pitcher with Chicago White Sox, and Ordys Keller, a catcher who started 1944 spring training with St. Louis Browns. Incomplete minor league lists reported to secretary L. H. Addington of the National Association include 41 names.

Boxing's better known of 131 fatalities were Indian Johnny Rivers and Andy Callahan. Gus Sonnenberg, who died of natural causes while in the navy, and Tex Edwards, Olympic ace and former football star, top wrestling's representation.

Johnny Burke of Newport, R.I., former National Intercollegiate golf champ, and Jack Evert and Kendall Cram of tennis fame also died in service. Track's gold star list includes, in addition to Paddock and Zamperini, Frank Cubel, 1928 Olympian hurdler from Iowa who was a war correspondent, and Bill Lyda, Oklahoma's 880-National collegiate king in 1942.

Billy Fisk, captain of the Olympic bobsled team in 1932 and 1936, was killed while serving as an R.A.F. pilot.

Hepburn Urges Races Understand Each Other

London, Ont. Dec. 30 (CP) — Mitchell F. Hepburn, House leader of the Liberal party in the Ontario Legislature, said in an address last night to the Ontario Commercial Travellers Association that "if we cannot settle our own domestic problems it ill-behooves us to point an accusing finger at Greece, Belgium or Holland if they fight as soon as they get free."

"Here in Canada we have a duel population," said the former Ontario premier. "We were not the first to settle this Dominion. The French came first. When the battle of the Plains of Abraham had been fought and won by the British ,they settled down in peace and harmony, and shortly after when the invader came the French fought to defend the land that had been wrested from them by the British.

"There are hot-heads in Ontario and other parts of Canada and there are hot-heads in Quebec that are listened to too much. The thing for both races to do is understand each other's point of view. We must make a different approach in dealing with these people, avoiding the threats and coercion harmfully advbocated in editorials we sometimes read in our ultra-imperialistic press."

STRIKE AVERTED

Vancouver, Dec. 30 —(AP)— A threatened strike of some 2,500 street car and bus operators in Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster starting Jan. 6 was averted yesterday when the National War Labor Board said it had made a ruling on the workers' appeal from a Regional Board's decision regarding wage increases. The Board gave no details of the ruling, stating a public release would be made Tuesday.

Port Colborne Players Given A Concession

Toronto, Dec. 30 (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association sub-committee Friday decided that players from the Port Colborne [illegible] which withdrew from Junior A series may join other Junior teams, with a limit of two players to any one club.

The Waterloo Junior B team was transferred from Group Nine to Group Ten where it will play with Preston, Paris and Guelph. The Newmarket Junior B team was transferred from Group Seven to Group 16 with Markham, Port Credit and Richmond Hill.

Alex Barilko was given permission to play for the Brantford Junior B club and Edward Simon was given permission to play with the Kitchener Junior B club providing he has not played more than three games with the Philadelphia team in the Eastern United States Amateur Hockey League. Omemee Intermediates were given permission to sign Peterboro players.

The committee re-affirmed its decision in not permitting service players to perform with civilian teams.

C.A.H.A. Executive Meets in Toronto

Toronto, Dec. 30 (CP) — The executive committee of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, Friday began consideration of dates and venue for the Memorial Cup and Allan Cup finals next spring. President Frank Sargent said "we expect to name the rink locations and the dates later."

The association's registration committee granted Terry Cavanaugh of Edmonton permission to play with Galt Red Wings in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series. The residence rule was waved. The committee supported a ruling of the Saskatchewan branch refusing Gordon Howe of Saskatoon, permission to join the Galt team on the grounds that he is a first-year juvenile.

After a discussion of the junior player situation across Canada, the executive committee decided to recommend to branch presidents that all branches except Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba be allowed to add three players from their own branches to their championship teams. A previous C.A.H.A. decision tossed out a rule under which championship teams could add additional player strength.

President Sargent said during a discussion about service players that there is no C.A.H.A. rule barring servicemen from playing with civilian teams although the O.H.A. has such a rule.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

With all the stables trying to get their horses into races at Tropical Park yesterday with the U.S. turf ban becoming effective after Tuesday, there were no less than 407 entries for the nine-race card. The track management restricted fields to 12 starters, however, and only 108 horses went to the post. Close finishes were the rule. Everybody, it seemed, was out for a piece of the prize-money as racing days started to fade out.

President Bill Tobin of Chicago Black Hawks and Art Ross, manager of the N.H.L. Bruins, in further conference yesterday at Boston reported they still had been unable to come to terms on prospective player deals. Tobin left for home late in the day without a trade.

The O.H.A. sub-committee, in session in Toronto yesterday, ruled that players of the former Port Colborne Junior "A" Club could be signed by other teams, with a limit of two puck-chasers for any club. Alex Barilko was given permission to play for the Brantford Junior "B" Club and Edward Simon, formerly with Philadelphia in the U.S. Eastern Hockey League, will go to Kitchener Junior "B" team providing he has not played more than three games with the Quakers.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

It was the day after Christmas and Santa Claus had long departed. The children were busy at their many toys, for this was the house of the rich and cultured Hastors. Little precocious Fitzgerald walked over to his mother and queried:

Fitzgerald—Mawthah deah, I say, from where did all these pretteh toys come?

Mother—Why, Fitzgerald, Santa Claus brought them.

Fitzgerald—Did he bring everything? Did he bring the electric train, the baseball glove, the ice skates—

Mother (interrupting)—Yes, my love, he brought everything.

Fitzgerald—Well, Mawthah, deah, may I ask, who buys all the damned things in the stores?

What's This?

According to news leaking out of the northern part of Northumberland County the Hastings-Norwood "Amalgamates" are gathering in junior puck talent from far and near. It appears as though Mentor Jim Stephenson is going to need a goodly bank roll to foster the "Amalgamates", who are drafting players from as far west as Peterboro and Lakefield.

Of course the better the opposition the better class of hockey the fans will be treated to when junior O.H.A. swings into action in the "Little Six" next week. Stirling goes to Norwood next Wednesday, following which the "Amalgamates" invade the Hume Arena here on Jan. 5th. to pry off the 1945 hockey lid officially. However, after viewing the list of puck aspirants listed for trial with Hastings, "Toots" Holway's local "Bears" had better forget about New Year's Eve celebrations and get down to this business of serious practising.

The Lowdown

Peterboro Scribe Fred Craig gives the Hastings-Norwood situation the once over as follows—"It looks as if the Hastings-Norwood Combines in the eastern Junior B. group will be representative of the entire district. Strangely enough Norwood, the locale of the home ice of the Combines, is about the only spot that isn't turning out many candidates for the team. Four or five Peterboro youngsters including Reg. Jones, McDougall, Williams and Kennedy have been practising with the Hastings-Norwood gang and some of them are expected to make the grade. Then there are Henry and Hopkins from Lakefield, young Lonsboro from Warsaw, Hamilton from Havelock and a number of Hastings aspirants including Fife, Pettigrew, Oliver, West and McKenty. The Combines should have quite a team when they get their talent all unscrambled and a line-up selected. The team plays its first game next Wednesday night when they will meet the Stirling-Marmora combines at Norwood. There is a fast sheet of ice available at the Norwood arena and the team is taking advantage of every opportunity to practice. They hope to be in good shape for the opening battle next week."

Looking Backward

Again we come to the end of another year, a year that has been good to local sport fans despite over five years of war. In hockey circles the fans saw Mountain View win the Quinte Service league championship when some strong puck chasing with former N. H. L. players sprinkling the teams' rosters added to the game. The Belleville juniors lost out in their OHA group, which was won by Stirling. Interscholastic hockey was also good.

In basketball circles there were city leagues, including a strong girls' loop. Red Townsend's B. C. I. cagers won both the junior and senior Bay of Quinte hoop honors, but lost out in the C.O.S.S.A. semi-finals. Miss Isobel Morton's senior girls from the Collegiate advanced to the C.O.S.S.A. finals last spring losing out by two points for a provincial crown.

Softball was the biggest crowd-pleaser and drew the largest attendance of any sport. Under President Joe Samain the Belleville Softball League sent two teams to the O.A.S.A. provincial finals, the SACO "Marines" losing out to Fort Erie while the Columbian Squires bowed out in Windsor. Both series went three games. The "Marines" won the city and Eastern Ontario championships. In Girls' Softball circles the Reliance lassies were repeaters as champions and the big event of the season saw the Toronto Sunday Morning Class girls draw over 4,000 to exhibition games on Civic Holiday. The Hi-Y league also provided games for the minors.

After an absence of three years baseball poked its nose out of retirement when Sunday ball was introduced at the Alemite Field. Although somewhat impromptu a foundation was laid towards the revival of baseball in Belleville.

In interscholastic football circles it was St. Mikes taking the senior six-man and conventional senior 12-man grid honors, while B. C. I. captured the junior six-man honors. Boxing saw a definite move towards the return of the fight game in Belleville when crowds of over 2,000 jammed the Hume Arena for several fine amateur fight cards. There is still a field here. Professional wrestling again went over well, as did the second annual Corbin Gold Cup lawn bowling tournament. Both the bowlers and golfers reported successful seasons.

Bowl Games

Five "Bowl" games will highlight sport activities in the United States New Year's Day. The top event will be the traditional Rose Bowl Game at Pasadena, Cal., where the Tennessee "Volunteers" will meet University of Southern California, who are slight favorites.

At New Orleans the Crimson Tide of Alabama meets the Blue Devils of Duke in the Sugar Bowl and this one is a toss-up. In the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Texas, the Oklahoma Aggies meet Texas Christian, who are easy favorites.

There'll be an International atmosphere in the Sun Bowl game at El Paso, Tex., where the University of Mexico meets the strong University of Texas, with the Texans strong on the betting.

In Miami's Orange Bowl Georgia Tech's "Rambling Wrecks" are favorites over Oklahoma.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Dec. 30 (AP).—One sure way to drive yourself wacky is to try to make sense out of the various interpretations of amateurism and this dept. wouldn't bring up the subject if Nat Holman hadn't done it first. . . . And there might be room for the suspicion that the canny C.C.N.Y. basketball coach was providing a ready-made alibi when he asked A.A.U. permission this week for his boys to play against Hamline's professional baseball players, Howie Schultz and Rollie Seltz.

★ ★ ★

Besides the varying ideas of collegiate amateurism, you have everything from tennis, which won't let a player accept a free racquet and limits travelling on expenses to eight weeks a year, to "amateur" hockey, paying cash on the barrel head, and polo, which ignores the whole matter. . . . Hockey men, for instance, argue that kids who come down from Canada and receive just enough money to pay for room and board, a few movies and presents for the folks at home are just as much amateurs as, say, Gunder Haegg, who was to come here for two months of foot racing under the auspices of the strict A.A.U., have all his expenses paid and hold down a job as correspondent for a Swedish newspaper to make up the salary he would have lost, by not staying at home to sell haberdashery. . . . We like the golf idea that a professional in one sport isn't necessarily a pro in another.

AT THE CAPITOL — Simone Simon, William Terry and James Ellison share top honors in the gay comedy "Johnny Doesn't Live Here Any More," first showing in Belleville New Year's Eve midnight show at the Capitol. The added technicolor hit "Buffalo Bill," stars Joel McCrea.

London (CP).—The Albert Medal, instituted by Queen Victoria in 1866 for saving life at sea or on land, has been extended to the dominions under royal warrant.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was eating bacon and scramble eggs for breakfast, saying to ma, Well, this is a treat, I was beginning to think I was never going to see any more bacon, and believe me it was a sollem thought.

It's still as scarce as proverbial hen's teeth, but I managed to get a half pound for you without any loss to my self respect, ma said, and pop said, It sounds like a moral victory I'd like to hear more.

Really William, I mean really, I almost lose the last vestiges of respect for my own sex when I see the outrageous way women flirt with the butcher to make him change his mind after he tells them he has no bacon, ma said. There were 2 tipical examples ahead of me at the market today, one quite stout, and I assure you my dear I thought she was going to lean across the counter and kiss Mr. Smit the butcher in open daylight. You never saw such flagrant wheedling in your life, and it ended up by Mr. Smit slyly putting some bacon in with her order underneeth the counter, ma said, and pop said, Shades of Mata Harry!

Isn't it revolting? ma said. Then it was the other woman's turn, and she fluttered her eyes like a movie scene and said, "Why Mr. Smit, what's this I hear? A big strong handsome man like you without any bacon?" So paturally he slipped her some too, and when my turn came I merely remarked in a dignified tone, "I'd like a little bacon, please, Mr. Smit," and he came out like a flash with a whole half pound right over the counter, ma said.

By gollies how do you explain it? pop said, and ma said, I dont know, unless he just happened to remember the shoe stamp I gave him last week because I knew the poor man has a large family.

It's a woman's world and I love to hear about it, pop said.

Being the end of the subject.

CONSCRIPTION WANTED

Toronto, Dec. 30 (CP)—The Canadian Corps Association in a New Year's message last night declared "it is to be hoped that every decent Canadian will rest uneasy with his conscience until a full-out war effort has been made an actuality." The statement said that conscription would put more able-bodied troops "in the front line facing the enemy than any other system and it will do so faster and more efficiently."

SHORTAGE MORE CRITICAL

Canberra, Dec. 30 (CP-Reuter)—Forecasting that the Australian shipping shortage in 1945 would be more critical than at any time during the war, J. A. Beasley, Minister of supply and shipping, said yesterday: "We shall be lucky if we pull through without serious repercussions to our war activities, and without a severe impact on every home."

Dundee, Scotland (CP).—The 400-ton coaster Harley was lost in a storm near the mouth of the Tay River and the master and three crew members were drowned.

The skin of the yak, beast of burden in Tibet, is so tough that drivers use stones instead of whips to spur the animal on.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 589

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

A man always talks back to his wife in a bridge game when they are partners. He cannot keep from it. When she makes a bid, he must always respond to it.

Suppose partner's opening is a bid of one. If you have less than three tricks, your response is a pass. With more than two tricks, of which two are high cards, you should bid something.

When you bid something, you follow the order of choice of bids guided by T-A-N; takeout to your own suit, first; assist partner's suit, second; no-trump, as your last resort.

You first decide whether you pass or bid. If you decide to bid, you decide whether to T. or A or N. When you decide which of these, you then decide whether or not to jump.

How do you know when to jump? Add the tricks you have in your own hand to the tricks partner promised by his bid. If the total is enough tricks for a game, you jump.

An immediate jump, therefore, promises tricks enough to help make a game. If it is a one-jump, it also guarantees two sure tricks. If it is a higher jump to game, it denies having two sure tricks.

Suppose your partner opens with one heart and you have this hand:

♠ None
♥ Q 7 4 3
♦ A 5 3 2
♣ 8 7 5 4 3

You have no biddable suit for a takeout. You have heart support for an assist in that suit. And you have five tricks; enough to make a game with what partner promised by his opening bid.

So, you jump. But you will not one-jump to three hearts. Because you lack two sure tricks. Your immediate response is a high jump to four hearts, to show enough for game without two sure tricks.

Asked a wife of her man in Woonsocket: "What became of that watch in your pocket?" And her spouse fairly hissed: "Since your wrong jump assist, I was forced to rush downtown and hocket."

COAST TO VICTORY

Cornwall, Dec. 30 (CP).—Lachine Rapids coasted to a 7-3 victory over Cornwall Cookies in an Interprovincial Hockey League game last night, scoring four goals in the third period after the teams had deadlocked in each of the earlier frames. The result lifted the Rapids into a third-place tie with Shawinigan Falls Cataracts.

Switzerland has achieved a high degree of industrialization without creating large factory centres.

INTENSE A. A. FIRE

Pearl Harbor, Dec. 30 (AP)—American heavy bombers bombed Iwo Jima in the Volcano Islands Wednesday for the 21st consecutive day this month, running into intense anti-aircraft fire, the navy announced yesterday.

London (CP). — Maj.-Gen. Rt. Hon. Sir Lovick Bransby Friend, 80, whose military career extended over 40 years has died in hospital here.

The War Today—

Savage Hitlerism Superimposed On Junkers' Barbaric War-Making

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

War Secretary Stimson says it's "too early to pass judgment as to whether any person or group of persons should be censured in connection with the German break-through on the western front".

Nobody is likely to challenge that, and in any event the fixing of blame —if any—is a matter for the military authorities and not for observers. Still we may be excused for puzzlement over the phenomenon of 250,000 German troops being thrown against the Allied line unexpectedly. Certainly we are left with the broad question of why it is that, quite apart from the break-through, we so often have underestimated the capabilities and initiative of the Germans.

If you check memory you will recall many instances of miscalculation. The Allies underestimated the Kaiser's striking power with his submarines, and German ruthlessness in waging unrestricted warfare, and he all but won the war with the U-boats. Again in the spring of fateful 1918 he nearly triumphed when his generals massed troops on the British 5th Army front—while 5th Army intelligence officers watched—and then broke through. General Sir Hubert Gough, commander of the 5th Army, later was replaced.

Germany's Recovery After 1918.

The whole world underestimated the ability of "shattered" Germany to recover quickly after the First Great War. The Anglo-French Allies guessed wrong again at the time of the Munich conference. When I returned to London after attending that historic parley, which lighted the fuse for the Second Great War, I tried to tell friends that Hitler was brewing catastrophe, and they said:

"Nonsense, my lad. He's just a one-armed paper-hanger."

So it goes. Despite many lessons, the present war has produced numerous examples. Along with these there has grown up the curious idea that when the Germans make a brave stand in battle it's "fanaticism" and that at heart they have no stomach for fighting and are likely to quit.

What's the answer to all this? Have we been misled by the homely tradition that the German is an easy-going, placid individual of ample girth whose sole concerns are his job, his good-natured hausfrau and his children, and whose pleasure is a pipe and seidel of beer in a music hall?

Adaptable To Regimentation.

Well, that's somewhat characteristic of part of the German population. Perhaps where we go wrong is in forgetting that all Germans, placid or otherwise, are particularly adaptable to regimentation and that the mainspring of German militarism and barbarism is the powerful Prussian race of overlords. These Junkers of great wealth have for generations made war and leadership their sole business.

The Prussian represents close to the last word in military craftsmanship. He's a skillful leader. He's brave in battle. He's not to be taken lightly.

But that's not the whole story. It represents Germany up to the advent of Hitler. The fuehrer has superimposed on this evil structure something infinitely worse. He has deprived German youth of their religion and created in them the spirit of savagery that has resulted in some of the most horrible atrocities the world has known. He had much fertile soil for his seed, because the Prussian is by nature a wholly ruthless and conscienceless killer.

So we have no reason to regard German military skill, leadership, bravery, or utter brutality with any degree of complacence. There's never a moment when the German isn't dangerous. He will become more so as the Allies push farther onto his home soil.

On the whole Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's great counter-blow may have a salutary effect on the Allies. We now know that the only beaten German is a dead one.

Police Searching Four States For German Officers

Detroit, Dec. 30 (AP).—Reports that two men wearing uniforms resembling those of German officers were seen in Detroit last night put police in four states on the alert today.

Spurring the search was another report that two German prisoners of war had escaped Thursday from a camp at Jacksonborough, Ont. They were identified by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as Arnold Schultz, 24, and Edward Gurzan, 22, both of whom, the F.B.I. said, speak broken English.

Pte. Frank Waniolek of the Michigan State Troops said he saw two men in full uniform, but without caps or overcoats, running from between two box cars to a waiting automobile as he stood on guard last night at the Detroit harbor terminal. The motor of the car was running and a driver, in civilian clothes, was at the wheel, Waniolek said.

A watchman at the harbor terminal said that a few minutes before he heard Waniolek yell he heard a motorboat enter one of the slips. The boat stopped for a few seconds, he added, and then left.

The vicinity of the terminal was searched by more than 50 policemen and other officers watched the main highways out of Detroit.

Germany Finally Beaten in 1945 Says Churchill

London, Dec. 30 — (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill expressed the cautious hope today that Germany will be finally beaten in 1945.

In a New Year's message to members of the Primrose League, a Conservative group of which he is Grand Master, he observed that the Allies were entering upon a year "that should bring us victory in Europe."

"Before many months have passed," he said, "the evil gang that has long dominated that unhappy continent will be wiped out.

"Until that end has been achieved there can be no return to our normal habits.

"It will be tragic folly to prolong by any slackening in the last phase the agony that megalomanias ambition has loosed upon the world."

5,000 BOTTLES SEIZED

Toronto, Dec. 30 — (CP) — An estimated 5,000 bottles of liquor, worth nearly $50,000 on the bootleg market, have been seized here this year by police and disposed of by the Ontario Liquor Control Board. Liquor which analysis proves below standards is poured down sewers, location of which remains a Board secret.

Townsfolk Honor V.C. Winner

New Westminster, B.C., Dec. 30—(CP)—Pte. Ernest Alvia (Smokey) Smith, V.C., is Canada's latest hero and the first private to bring home to the Dominion the Empire's highest award. But the stocky young soldier who stammered out a few laconic words at a public reception last night was the witty Smokey Smith known to everyone in the neighborhood.

"This one won't go into the hock shop," Smokey told the crowded arena as he accepted an engraved gold watch from his townsfolk. "I have most of my watches spread across Canada, but I'll hang onto this one."

The embarrassed hero with the crooked grin was escorted through the cheering stadium by two pipers from his Seaforth Highlanders Regiment.

He opened his terse address with a muttered "This is going to be kind of fast."

The crowd howled when he referred to the timepieces he had left in pawn shops during his pre-war travels across the country in search of work.

Then in the pause that followed, Smokey said seriously:

"Remember there are a lot of guys still over there. I would like to thank everybody very much and wish them a happy New Year."

ASKED TO FEED PHEASANTS

Toronto, Dec. 30 — (CP)—Recent heavy snowfall has threatened pheasants with starvation, D. J. Taylor, Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries, said yesterday in asking the co-operation of farmers and other citizens in helping to feed the birds. Pheasants were the only game birds whose food supply had been endangered by the storm, Mr. Taylor said, and the department's field men were engaged in bringing them from the woods to be fed.

London Paper Accuses Americans of Hypocrisy

London, Dec. 28 C.P.-Reuters) — The London Economist this week devoted its leading article to "some very plain speaking long overdue" on the subject of the United States.

Accusing the Americans of "hypocrisy" in their attitude to collaboration in Europe and of scantily founded "criticism and abuse" of BriBtain, the Economist also protested against Britain's "painful attempts to adjust her policies to American wishes."

"It is even a subject of complaint (in the United States) that Von Rundstedt did not select the British-held front for his break-through," the paper declared, listing a series of accusations it says were made in an anti-British "outburst" in recent weeks—"one of the most violent and sustained of the war years."

"Hypocrisy is a common Anglo-Saxon failing," the weekly paper said, "and the British have many times made themselves cordially disliked by it, "but that does not exempt them from feeling resentment when they are the victims of other people's hypocrisy. What makes the American criticism so intolerable is not merely that they are unjust, but that they come from a source that has done so little to earn the right to postures of superiority.

Ill-Conceived Criticism

"To be told by anyone that the British people are slacking in their effort would be insufferable enough to a people struggling through their sixth winter of black-out and blockade and bombs — but when the criticism comes from a nation that was practising cash and carry during the Battle of Britain, whose consumption has risen through the war years, which is still without a national service act —then it is not to be borne.

"The latest turn the criticism has taken is that British policy in Greece and Poland has killed the Atlantic Charter, from a country where both political parties were ready to promise, in the hope of securing the electoral vote of New York State, that they would force a wholly Jewish state on the Arab majority in Palestine."

Neither in Greece nor in Poland, the article declares, neither in India nor in Palestine, were the American pronouncements combined with any willingness to get down into the dust of the arena and attempt to work out a policy both right and feasible.

"With every outburst of righteous indignation in America, the ordinary Englishman gets one degree more cynical about America's real intentions of active collaboration, and one degree more ready to believe that the only reliable helping hand is in Soviet Russia," the Economist said.

Sharp 'Quake Shakes Britain

London, Dec. 30 (C.P. Cable) — An earthquake termed by seismologists the worst to be felt in Britain "for some years" shook northern England today. There were no immediate reports of damage.

Buildings in Manchester were reported "violently shaken" and tremors were felt at West Bromwich, 80 miles distant, and at Leeds, 108 miles from Manchester. The tremors began at 1.36 a.m. (8.36 p.m. E.D.T. Friday.)

Seismologist J. J. W. Shaw, of West Bromwich said indications were the quake was the most severe in Britain "for some years," terming it a "sever vibration for this country."

Tremors began slowly and built up for 45 seconds, with vibrations continuing for two minutes. Shaw said preliminary indicatoins were that the centre of the disturbance probably was somewhere between Manchester and Darlington.

The last extensive earthquake shock in Britain occurred before the First Great War when vibrations were felt between London and Aberdeen.

FEEDING BIRDS

Windsor, Dec. 30 — (CP)—Essex County Sportsmen's Association has appealed to farmers and householders to furnish scraps for birds which are suffering because of the recent heavy snowstorms. The Association's trucks this week began distributing five tons of scrap and grain throughout the county.

MISS LIEUTENANT

By Nina Wilcox Putnam

Installment One

It was sunset, and time for her to get out of bed, but Lieutenant Carol Melton snuggled her red-gold head deeper into the warmth of her narrow cot and turned one large expressive eye balefully upon the alarm clock which was about to explode into imperious sound.

For a moment she thought that she was back in Kansas and that the alarm would sound in order to get her down through the bitter winter morning in time to catch the school bus at the farm gate; the bus where Bright, the boy from the next farm would be waiting, his freckled face grinning from ear to ear, ready to take books from her. Then the mosaic pattern in the niche which held the noisy American clock became apparent to her sleep-drenched vision and she remembered. This was not Kansas, this was North Africa. She came awake with the clear suddenness of perfect health and youth, but lay still for another minute, luxuriating in the consciousness of being warm. The stone floor of the vast unheated room would be icy despite the glowing sunset clouds of pink and bright yellow which were painting the upper reaches of the Kasbah, just visible above the rooftop across the courtyard.

"I'm ungrateful as a bill collector!" she told herself reproachfully. "This is heaven after the mud floors and unlighted tents we had out on the desert. It's not exactly a Medical Centre, but I'm shot with luck, being transferred here!"

The alarm clock went off with the explosive vigor of a time bomb, and was promptly silenced by another nurse who slept within arm's reach of it. Carol sat up and stretched her long body. All down the line the night shift was coming to life, stirring from the narrow Army cots which looked so incongruous in what had only a little while before been the Refrectory of Algiers' most ancient French convent.

The girls hurried with their dressing, squealing at the coldness of the water in the washing buckets, exchanging good-natured commiserations. Diminutive, dainty Lieutenant Betty-Lu Brainford, incongruously nicknamed "Butch" and gravely addressed by the polite French nuns as Mees Butch, had an announcement.

"I'll bet you-all don't know there's doughnuts for breakfast!" she called out in her soft voice.

"Doughnuts in Africa!" Carol fixed stern, widest grey eyes upon her. "If you're lying, I'll use up your last lipstick marking my fever charts!"

"It's true!" Butch insisted. "The cook over with Engineers used to make them in a window on Broadway, and he's mooney over our cook. So on his free day he comes here and makes doughnuts for us in order to be in the kitchen with his honeychile!"

"God bless love!" said Carol solemnly.

"Hey, Kansas, that reminds me!" It was the husky voice of Smithy, the big, bony ex-vaudevillian. "How's it making with you and your heartbeat, the Colonel?"

For an instant a hot wave of indignation swept over Carol. How had they found out about Colonel Barlow? God knows she had never so much as hinted at his interest in her. She had even tried to ignore it through the long weeks of nursing him, except for that first night when he had been brought in from the front badly wounded. Then she had held his hand and comforted him, just as any other nurse would have done. He should not, must not be talked about lightly. He was too fine, too important, a staff officer of the high command, distinguished and unaccountably—unmarried. But these girls seemed to find out everything.

"The only heartbeat I've had so far in this war," she said, "I got from running to the hospital because I was late."

"If you don't go for Barlow," Smithy persisted, "you're plain dumb. Why, he's the equivalent of a big-time producer!"

It was true that Colonel Barlow had everything, Carol thought, except the power to attract her. She had never felt "exactly right" as she put it to herself about anybody except Bright Stoner, back home, and she hadn't seen him since she was sixteen and her mother had taken her and her twin sister Lita back to southern France, after their father's death. Carol did not even know what had become of Bright, what he had grown up to be, whether he had married.

He had lived with his widowed mother and young sister on a quarter-section which was mostly dry arroyo, and even during school days Bright had done a man's work on their land. The last time Carol had been back home she learned that the entire family had moved away though they still owned the farm. There was only one relative left in town: Uncle Joe Stoner, an elderly man who seemed to know little or nothing about the family's movements. But in spite of all this Bright Stoner had kept his place in Carol's heart. He was a year older than she was. That would make him twenty-four by now. Presumably he was alive, although one could never be sure these days.

There had been other men, of course, since those school days. Flirtations that she had been obliged to cut short when they became too warm.

"It's awful," she sometimes told them, "to have a French temperament and a Kansas conscience. It tears me to pieces plenty. But I warn you, the Kansas conscience wins out every time."

The trouble was that Brighton Stoner had an extra something which had stood between her and all the other men she met. Now he was standing between her and the unspoken interest of this splendid soldier who was her respected chief. It was just one of those things.

Carol went to the mirror and adjusted the soft white kerchief which had replaced the stiff little nurse's cap of former days. The beautiful face which stared back at her from the wavy glass she regarded not as her own but as that of Lita, her identical twin, the younger, gentler Lita whom she had worshipped and mothered ever since she could remember. Curiously enough she always regarded their mutual beauty as exclusively Lita's and inevitably experienced this odd sensation of looking at her sister when she faced a mirror. This illusion had grown stronger during the long period since she had seen her other half who had remained in France.

"I know she's all right," Carol thought. "If she were ill or in physical danger I would feel it, as I always have. But oh it's been a long time no see!"

After a certain period of separation there was always this ache to be reunited with Lita, this awful sense of incompleteness. It was different, Carol felt sure, from the loneliness of a mother for her child, or even the spiritual hunger a woman might feel for an absent husband or lover. Always before this feeling of being lost, of being only half a person, could be cured by a reunion. Sooner or later one of the other of the twins would take the necessary step, make the inevitable journey, and they would be together once more, ending the curious, almost physical pain of overlong separation.

But now war had trapped them—one in France, one in North Africa, and it had begun to seem as though they would just have to bear it—and grin if they could. Lita would grin, Carol knew. Lita would smile and appear to take things as they came and never let the charming and sensitive French husband at whose side she had elected to remain, be burdened by a knowledge of this loneliness for Carol which she could neither help nor cure. And of course if Lita could face the prolonged separation, so could Carol. What one could do, the other could do, likewise. It had always been like that.

"But we will be together again," Carol told herself. "It has to be. So it will be."

The seven-to-seven night shift was on its way out now, their sturdy campaign shoes making a vast clatter along the paved cloisters. In the dim past before the coming of the French this section of the convent had been the women's courtyard of some Caid's palace; and every evening at the same hour a blind old horse driven by an elfin French girl child turned the winch which filled the centre pool from the well below and fed the circles of time-worn stone wash-tubs where the American Army nurses washed their clothes. The horse was there now, plodding his circle with indescribable resignation. Carol stopped long enough to offer the bit of sugary doughnut she had saved for him.

Far down the corridor which led to the small private room allotted to Colonel Barlow, Carol could tell that the brass hats were there again. Since the Colonel's convalescence military conferences were often held at his bedside and one seemed to be in progress. There was one General with a barking voice capable, she felt, of carrying clear over to Europe. It was in all-out action now. Carol drew a breath of relief. At least Barlow was not alone. But it was a part of her routine to take his medicine to him at this hour. Outside the door she could not help overhearing part of the talk.

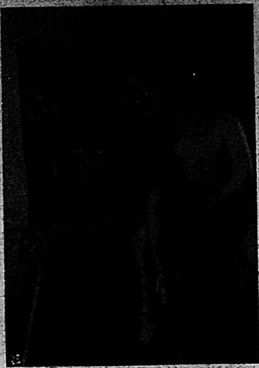
"And he must speak perfect French," the barking voice was continuing. "Those towns along the Riviera are rabbit-warrens. The chances are that not even the natives themselves know half the secret passages and hideouts in the old cities and even in some of those small villages which date back to the ninth century—some even to the days before the Roman conquest. Naturally full information on the subject is of the highest importance to us."

"I agree," said another voice, "that it's the sort of data the ordinary routine surveys haven't been able to cover anything like completely. Maps of those crooked little towns, photos which might give a clue to places which could be used as traps, that's what's been so damned difficult to get hold of!"

"We can damn well bet the Nazis haven't got the information either!" the General barked again.

Something strange and exciting had swelled up in Carol's breast. She leaned against the wall for a moment, the little tray in her strong, lovely hands trembling. A curious exhilaration which was akin to physical sickness had seized her: it was a feeling which comes only to those who have the unexpected opportunity for vital service thrust upon them. Now she knew that she had been wanting this ever since the day she had become an Army Nurse; wanting to do something difficult and dangerous which would leave its definite mark upon the enemy, no matter what the consequences to herself. Now without warning this opportunity was confronting her and she must not miss it. She could almost hear Lita voicing approval, reading her wish, motioning her to go ahead. This, she thought, must be the way the boys at the front feel when they volunteer for some desperate mission and don't yet know if they will be accepted.

GREETINGS, 1945-VICTORY



"V" is for the New Year which promises Victory in its very numerical symbolism. The charming celebrator who hopes to see victory ours in 1945, is Charlotte Manson.

Then the sudden calm of a determined decision took the place of emotion and Carol remembered that she was eavesdropping where she had no business to do so. She pulled herself together and tapped lightly on the door.

"Come in, Kansas!" Barlow's voice had a hidden note of warmth in it. She opened the door and went in.

There were three important brass hats in the tiny room, not counting Barlow whose eloquent eyes greeted her from the bed. As always when she entered any room where the men present were strangers, there was a second of breathless, admiring silence.

"Lieutenant Carol Melton, gentlemen," said Barlow's cultured New York accent. His tone made it such a definitely royal introduction that the three men saluted instinctively. The General gave the signal for departure.

"We leave Barlow, here, in enviable hands," he said with a little bow. Then he turned to the patient. "I'll have a look about for the right man for the job," he added, "and if any of the rest run into a good prospect, let me know. It's got to be done very quietly—no open call for volunteers, of course—but done quickly."

"Right!"

The door closed behind them and Carol began making her patient comfortable for the night in a silence she somehow did not quite know how to break. His eyes followed her every movement in a way which made her unwilling to encourage him to speak at all. But at last she could endure it no longer. She had something more important to do than merely avoiding a love scene tonight. Her heart was in her throat but she managed to keep her voice casual.

"Did I ever mention that I have a sister on the French Riviera?"

"A sister? No! Whereabouts?"

"About as straight across as you can go from here. She has a castle, between Nice and Monte Carlo."

"Caught there by the war?"

"No, married to a Frenchman—an amateur historian who's a nut about old buildings. Makes maps of the old towns as his hobby and has floor plans of every secret room and passageway from Metone to Marseilles. He was going to use them in a book he intended writing."

"The devil you say!" Barlow was sitting bolt upright now. "Did he ever publish the book?" Carol laughed a little tolerantly.

"Jacques Cassard is not the type who finishes things," she said. "A charming, not too forceful amateur. I was visiting them when France fell and all he had at that time was a vast collection of maps and drawings and photographs and the title, 'The Secret Riviera' he was going to call it. It seems impossible that he's done anything else with them since, except hide them away in one of the medieval strongboxes which that old castle of his has plenty of."

"Or possibly he has destroyed his records."

"Jacques wouldn't destroy them. He'd squirrel them away — and I believe I know exactly where. You see, being able to hide them successfully from the Germans would bolster his vanity and prove his theories about the value of medieval methods of protection against invasion. They worked in the case of the Saracen hordes, who didn't know their way around. Colonel, I've seen Jacques' collection, I've had it explained to me to the point of boredom, time and time again. Of course, it may have been destroyed, but that's a chance we have to take."

His eyes were excited now. "What do you mean when you say it's a chance we have to take?"

All the hope and fright and wild desire to serve that was in her, burst out uncontrollably.

"Listen to me, Stephen Barlow," she cried. "I couldn't help hearing what was said just before I came in here tonight. I know the French Riviera as well as I do the palm of my hand. I've lived there on and off since I was five. I was educated at Nice and I speak French like a French woman. I even speak Nicoise, the local patois. I know the people and their ways. I could go straight to my sister, although it's been about a year since I've heard from her."

"But how can you be sure she'll even be there?"

"But I do know nothing has happened to her." Carol was quiet, but positive about it. "You see, we are twins, and we each can sense it if there is anything seriously wrong with the other. If Lita were not alive and well, I'd know it instinctively."

"I've heard that twins do have a sort of uncanny knowledge about each other."

"And you heard correctly. Once when we were separated, Lita fell downstairs in a hotel in Paris, and I knew it—I called her from Nice and it had just happened."

"And you think—I beg pardon—know that your sister is still at her home?"

"I wouldn't go quite that far. But I've no reason to suppose she and her husband are not still right there at their home."

"Didn't you originally come from Kansas?"

"We did. My father was a wheat farmer on a big scale. I guess neither Lita or I will ever really get the wheat dust out of our shoes and we love it. But Mother never did. She thought our town was dull and provincial, and she loved the south of France. She came of French stock, and that was one of the reasons she gave for living over there about half the time. She began dragging us over there when we were little."

"But they never shook the American out of you, I can see that!" Carol gave a little laugh.

"Hardly! I remember on one visit home I went to the local school and the teacher asked me to write something about France, and I wrote:

'I do not love France as Much as I love Kansas.'

A Happy
New Year

A Happy New Year
The words are just the same
A well-worn greeting passed from friend to friend
Holding for each a different wish and hope.
Happy New Year! Empty words since Thirty-nine
But now they ring anew,
A Happy New Year! May it really come,
If not today, at least along the year.
May Nineteen-Forty-Five be all we dreamed,
A year that shines down history like a star,
Lighting the way to Victory and Peace
To Life and Freedom—to home and happiness.
A Happy New Year! Let's work to make it one,
The first of tens and scores of better years
For all the world, for Canada, for us
In that we place our faith, our courage—all.
